The fyrst Chapter.

Howe Heuen and earth, the lyght, the firmament, & the moone, the sterres, and all beastes, foules, & fishes in the see were made by the worde of God. And howe man also was created.

Gen. i. 1.
Gen. i. 2.
Gen. i. 3.
Gen. i. 4.
Gen. i. 5.

In the begyn-ning* God created Heauen & erth. The erth was voyd and empty & darck-
nes was vpon
the face of the depe, & the spi-
ryte of god mo-
ued vpon the face of the waters.

And God sayde: let there be made lyght, and there was lyght made. And God saw the lyght that it was good. And God made a diuision be-twene the lyght and darcknes. And God called the lyght, daye: and the darcknes called he, night.
And the euenyng and the moornyng was made one daye. And God sayde: let there be a firmamente betwene the waters, & let it make a diui-sion betwene waters & waters. And God made the firmament, and set a diuision betwene the waters which were vnder the firmament, and the waters that were aboue the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament heauen. The euenyng also and the moornyng was made the seconde daye.

And God sayde: *let the waters vnder heauen be gathered together into one place, that the drye lande maye be sene. And so it came to passe. And God called the drye lande, Earthe and the gatheringe together of waters caled he the sees. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: lette the earthe bring forth grene hearbe, whiche maye engendre seede: and frutefull tree, yeldyng frute after hys kynde, whose seede maye be in it selfe vpon the earth.

And it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene herbe, makynge seede after hys kynde: and tree yeldyng frute, whose seede was in it self after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good.
The euenyng also and the moornyng was made the thyrde daye. And God sayde: * lette there be made lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, and lette them make a difference betwene the daye and the nyght, and lette them be vnto spghes: and vnto appoynted seasons, and vnto dayes, and vnto yeres.

And lette them be vnto lyghtes in the firmament of heauen: that they maye geue lyght vpon the earth. And so it came to passe.

And god made *two great lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, and a lesse lyghte to rule the nyghte. (And he made) sterres also. And God set them in the firmament of heauen that they might geue lyght vpon the earth, and that Genesis.

they myght rule the daye and the nyghte, and to make a difference betwene the lyght and dark-nesse. And God sawe that it was good. The euening also and the morning was made the fourth daye. And God sayde: *let the waters bringe forth the mouyng creatures that haue lyfe, and foule that maye flye vpon the earth in the face of the firmament of heauen. And God created great whales, and every living and moving creature, which the waters brought forth after they kynde: & every fethered foule after they kynde.
And God sawe that it was good. And god blessed them, sayinge: Growe and increase, and fyll the waters of the see, and lette fethered foules be multiplied in the earth. The euenyng also & the moornyng was made the fyfte daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bringe forth lyuyng creature after hys kynde: catell, worme, and beaste of the earth after hys kynde, and so it came to passe. And God made the beaste of the earth after hys kynde, & catell after they kynde, and every thyng that crepeth vpon the earth after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good.
And God sayde, let vs make man in our ymage after our lykenesse, and let them haue rule of the fyshes of the see: and foule of the ayre and catell, and all the erth and of every creppng thyng that crepeth vpon the erth. And so God created man in hys owne ymage, in the ymage of God created he hym, & male and female created he them.
And God blessed them, & God sayde vnto them:
Growe and increase, and replenysh the earthe, and subdue it: and haue dominion of the fyshes of the see, and foule of the ayre, & of every liuyng thyng that moueth vpon the earth. And God sayde: beholde, I haue geuen you every hearbe sowynge seede, which is in the vpper face of all the earth: and every tree in the which is the frute of tre, and that soweth seede, that they may be meat vnto you. To every beaste of the erth also, and to every byrde of the ayre and to every such thing as crepeth vpon the earthe (wherin is a liuyng soule) I haue geuen all greynesse of herbe to be meate. And it came so to passe. And God sawe every thyng that he had made, & beholde: it was exceeding good. The evening also and the moornyng was made the. vi. daye.

The. ii. Chapter.

The desceynge of the Sabbath daye. The foure floures of paradise. The settinge in of man in paradise. The tree of knowledge is forbidden hym: howe Adams named al creatures. The creatyng of Eua. The institucyō of marriage.

The heauens also and the earth were synghed, and all the hoooste of them.
And in the seventh daye God ended his worke whiche he had made * In the. vii. daye also he rested from all his worke, whiche he had made. And god blessed the. vii. daye, & sanctified it, because in it he had rested fro al his worke, which God ordeined to make.

These are the generacions of the heauens & of the earth when they were created, in the daye

When the Lorde God made the earth & the hea-uens, and euery plant of the felde, before it was in the earth: and euery herbe of the felde, before it grewe. For the Lorde God had not caused it to rayne vpon the erth, nether was there a man to tyll y<sup>e</sup> grounde. And there went vp a myst fro of the erth, & wattered y<sup>e</sup> whole face of y<sup>e</sup> grounde.

B The Lorde God also *thope man, euen dust from of the grounde, and *breated into his no-strelles the breath of lyfe, and Adam was made a lypunge soule. And the Lorde God planted a garden eastwarde from Eden, and there he put man whome he had made. Whereouer out of the grounde made the Lorde God to growe, euerye tree that was pleasaunte to the syght, and commodious for meate. The *tree of lyfe also and the tree of knowledge of good and of euill was in the myddes of the garden.

And oute of Eden there went forth a ryuer to water the garden. And from thence it was de-uided, and became into foure heades. The name of one is *Pison: The same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Haulah, where there is gold.
And the golde of the lande is good. There is also Sbellium, and the Onix stone. The name of the seconde ryuer, is Sihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Ethyopia. The name of the thyrde ryuer is Hidkeil, and it goeth towarde the Eastsyde of Assyria: And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

C The Lorde God also tooke Adam, and put hym into y<sup>e</sup> garden of Eden, that he might dresse and kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Eatyng, thou shalt eate of eue-ry tree of the garden. But as touching the tre of knowledge of good and euill, thou shalt not eate of it. Els, in what daye soeuer thou eatest ther-of thou shalt dye the death.

And agayne, the Lorde God sayde: It is not good that Adam shulde be aloone, I wyl make hym an helpe, which maye be present with hym.
And so out of the grounde thope the Lorde God euery beaste of the felde, and euery soule of the ayre, and brought it vnto man: that he myght se howe he wolde call it. For lyke wylle as man hym selfe named euery lypunge thynge, euen so was the name thereof.

D Man hym selfe therfore named the names vnto all cattell, and soule of the ayre, and to euery beaste of the felde. And for man founde he not an helpe, that myght be present with hym. The Lorde God also caused a slombze to fall vpon Adam. And he slept. And he toke one of his rybbes, and closed vp the fleshe in stede thereof. And the rybbe whiche the Lorde God had taken from ma-*made he a womā, & brought her vnto mā. And mā sayd: This is now bone of my bones, & fleshe of my fleshe. She shalbe called woman, bycause she was take out of mā. For this cause shal man leane his father & his mother, & shalbe ioyned wth his wife, & they *shal becom one fleshe, & they wer both naked, y<sup>e</sup> mā & his wife, & wer not ashamed.

C The. iiii. Chapter.

The serpent deceyeth the woman. The serpent the woman, and the man are cursed, and bygyn out of paradise. Chypp our onely sauour is promysed.

B At the serpente was subtyller then euerye beaste of the felde, whiche the Lorde God made. And he sayd: Vnto the woman: yea, hath the Lorde God sayde: ye shall not eate of euery tree of the garden: And the woman sayd vnto the serpent: we rate of the frute of the tree of the garden, but as for the frute of the tree whiche is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: ye shall not eate of it, neyther shall ye tounge it, lest haplye ye dye. And *the serpent sayd vnto the woman: ye shall not dye the death, but God doeth knowe, that the same daye that ye eate thereof, y<sup>e</sup>oure eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be euen as god-des, knowynge good and euill. And so the *woman (seing that the same tree was good to eate, and lusty to the eyes, and that the same tre was pleasaunte to get wysdome) tooke of the frute therof, and dyd eate, and gaue vnto her husband beinge with her, whiche dyd eate also. And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knewe that they were naked: and they sowed fygge lea-ues togyther, and made them selues apions.

And they hearde the voyce of the Lorde God walkyng in the garden in the coole of the daye.
And Adam and his wyfe hyd them selues from the ptesence of the Lorde God amonge the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam and sayde vnto hym: where arte thou: whyche sayd: I herde thy voyce in the garden, and was afraid, bycause I was naked, and hyd my selfe.
And he sayde: Who tolde the, that thou wast naked: hast thou not eaten of the same tree, concernynge the whiche I commaunded the, that thou shouldest not eate of it: And Adam sayde:
The woman whom thou gauest to be with me she gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

And the Lorde God sayd vnto the woman:
why hast thou done this: And the woman sayd: pouder serpent begyled me, and I dyd eate. And the Lorde God sayde vnto the serpent: bycause thou hast doone this, thou art cursed aboue all cattell, and aboue euery beaste of the felde. Vpon thy bellye shalt thou goo, and duste shalt thou eate all the dayes of thy lyfe. I wyl also put enimities betwene the and the woman, betwene thy seed and her seed.

* The same shall treade downe thy heed, and thou shalt treade vpon his heele.

But vnto the woman he sayd: In multiplynge, wyl I multiply thy sorowe, and thy conceyung: In sorow shalt thou bringe forth children, and thy lust shall pertaine to thy husband and he shall haue the rule of the.

Unto Adam he sayde, because thou hast he-kened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, and haste eaten of the tree (concernyng the which I commaunded the, sayyng: Thou shalt not eate of it) cursed is the ground for thy sake. In sorowe shalt thou eate of it all the dayes of thy lyfe. Thorne also, and thystle shall it cause to growe vnto the, and thou shalt eate the hearbe of the felde. In the sweate of thy face shalt thou eate breade, tyll thou be turned agayne into the grounde, for out of it wast thou taken, in as much as thou * arte dust, and into dust shalt thou be turned agayne.

Job. xxxiii.

D And Adam called his wyues name Hena, because she was the mother of all liuyng. Unto the same Adam also and to his wyfe dyd þe Lozde God make lethren garmentes, and clothed them.
And the Lord God sayde: Beholde, ponder man hath bene euen as one of vs, þe myght knowe good and euell.

And nowe lesse happily he put forth his hand and take also of the tre of lyfe and eate, and lyue for euer. And þe Lozde god sente them furth from the garden of Eden, to dwelle the grounde that he was taken out of. And so he dzone out man, and at the east syde of the garden of Eden, he set Cherubims, and the glysterynge flame of a Flakynges wearde, to kepe the waye of þe tre of lyfe.

The. iiii. Chapter.

I haue gotten a man of the Lozde.
And he procedyng furth, brought furth hys brother Habel, and ha-bell was a keeper of shepe. But Cain was a tyl-ler of the grounde. And in processe of dayes it came to passe, that Cain brought of the frute of the grounde an oblacyn vnto the Lozde. Habel also brought of þe fyrstlynges of hys shepe, and of the fat therof. And the Lozde had respecte vnto * Habel, and to his oblacyn. But vnto Cain and to his offeryng he had no respect. For the whiche cause Cain was excedyng wroth, and his countenance abated. And the Lozde sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou wroth, and why is thy countenance abated? þe thou do well, shall there not be a promocyon? And þe thou dost not well, lyeth not thy synne in the doores? Unto the also pertayneth the lust therof, and þe shalt haue domynon ouer it, and Cain spake vnto Habel

Am I my brothers keeper? And he sayde: what hast þe done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude cryeth vnto me out of þe grounde. And nowe art thou cursed from þe erth, whiche hath opened her mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloude from thy Fugityue and a vagabound shalt thou be in * iniquyte is more, then that it maye be forgeuen. Beholde, thou haste caste me out this daye from the vpper face of the earthe, and from thy face shall I be hyd: Fugityue also and a vaga-bounde shall I be in the earth. And it shall come to passe: euery one that fyndeth me, shall slaye me. And the Lozde sayde vnto hym: þe (let him not be so) per, but who soeuer slayeth Cain, it shall be auenged seven folde.

Job. xv. c.

Job.

And the Lozde set a marke vpon Cain: lest any man fyndyng hym, shulde kill hym. And Cain went out from the presence of the Lozde, and dwelte in the lande of Nod eastwarde from Eden. Cain also knewe his wyfe which concea-ued and bare Henoche: and buyldyng a cytie he called the name of the same cytie after the name of his sonne Henoche. Unto þe same Henoche was borne Irad. Irad begat Mehuiel, and Mehuiael begat Methuschaell. Methuschaell begat Lamech. And Lamech toke vnto hym two wy-ues: The name of the one was Ada, and þe name of the other was Zilla. And Ada begat Jabel, whyche was the father of such as dwell in the tentis, and of such as haue catell. His brothers name was Chuball, whiche was the father of such as handle harpe and organe. And Zilla also begat Chubalcain, which wrought cunning ly euery crafte of brasle and of yron. The syster of Chubalcain, was Naenia.

And Lamech sayde vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech, her ken vnto my speche: I haue slayne a man to the woundyng of my selfe, & a yonge man to myne owne punishment. Þe Cain shall be auenged seven folde, truly Lamech seuentye tymes and seven tymes. Adam knewe his wyfe agayne, and she bare a sonne and called his name Seth: For god (sayde she) hath appoynted me another sede in steade of Habel, whome Cain slewe. And vnto the same Seth also, there was borne a sonne, & he called his name Enos. Then began they to make inuocacyon in the name of the Lozde.

The. vi. Chapter.

The cause of the floud. God warneth Noe of the cominge of the floud. The preparacion of the Arke.

A And it cam to passe, that man began to be multiplied in the vypper face of the earth, and there were daughters borne vnto them. The sonnes of god also saw the daughters of men that they wer sayre, and they toke them wyues from among al that they had chosen. And the Lorde sayde: my sprete shall not alwaye, strue in man, because he is fleshe, and his dayes shall be * an hundred and twenty yerres. But there were giantes in the earth in those dayes: pee, and after that the sonnes of god came vnto the daughters of men, and they had gendred vnto the, the same became myghtye men of the worlde, and men of renoune. But god sawe that the malice of man was great in the earth, and all the ymagynacion of the thoughtes of his hert was onely euyl euery daye. And it repented the Lord, that he had made man in the earth, and he wastouchyd with sorowe in his hert. And the Lorde sayde: I wyll (from the vypper face of the earth) destroye man, whome I haue created: both man, catell, wyne and foule of the ayre, for it repenteth me that I haue made them.

B But Noah founde grace in the eyes of the Lorde. These are the generacions of Noah, * Noah was iuste and perfecte in his generacions, and walked wyth God. Noah begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. The earth also was corrupt before God, and the same earth was fylled with crueltie. And God looked vpon the earth, and beholde, it was corrupte: for all fleshe had corrupte his waye vpon earth.

And God sayde vnto Noah: The ende of all fleshe is come before me, for the earth is fylled with crueltie from the face of them. And behold I wyll destroye them with the earth. Make the an arke of pyne trees. Habitacons shalt thou make in the Arke, and shalt pytche it within and without wyth pytche. And of this fashion shalt thou make it. The length of the Arke shall be thre hundredth cubites: The bredth of it. L. cubites, and the heygth of it thyrty cubytes. A wyndowe shalt thou make in the Arke, and in a cubite shalt thou synysse it aboue: but the doore of the Arke shalt thou set in the syde therof. With thre loftes one aboue another shalt thou make it. And beholde, I, euen I, do bypunge a floude of waters vpon the earth, that I maye destroye all fleshe wherein is the bredth of lyfe vnder heauen: And euery thyng that is in the earth shall dye.

With the also wyll I make my conuenaunte and thou shalt come into the Arke thou and thy sonnes, thy wyfe and thy sonnes wyues with thee: And euery liuyng thyng, and of all fleshe, a payre of euery one shalt thou bypunge into the Arke, to kepe them alpyue with thee. They shall be male and female. Of fethered foules also after theyr kynde, and of all catell after theyr kynde, of euery wyne of the earth after his kynde: two of euery one shalt thou come vnto the, that thou mayst kepe them alpyue. And take thou with thee of all meate that is eaten, and thou shalt lape it vp with thee, that it maye be meate for thee and them. Noah therefore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

The. vii. Chapter.

The entrance of Noe, and of them that were with him, into the Arke. The risinge of the floud, where thowse all thynges dyd perishe.

And

And the Lorde sayde vnto Noah: come thou and al thy house into the Arke for the haue I sene *ryghteous before me in thys generacyon. Of euery cleane beast thou shalt take with the seuen and seuē: The male and his female: But of vncleane catell, two, the male and his female. Of foules also of the ayre, seuen and seuen, the male and the female, to kepe sede alpye vpon the face of all the whole earth. For yet after seuen dayes I wyl rayne vpon the earth fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes. And all substance that I haue made, wyl I destroye from the vpper face of the earth. Noah therefore dyd accordyng vnto all that God comaunded hym.

And Noah was syre hundreth yeres olde, and the floude of waters was vpon the earth. And Noah came (and his sonnes, and his wyfe, & his sonnes wyues with him) vnto the Arke, because of the waters of the floude. Of cleane catell, and of vncleane catell and of flyinge foules, & of euery such as crepeth vpon the earth, there came two and two vnto Noah into the arke, the male and the female, as God had comaunded Noah. It fortunyd also after seuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the earth.

In the syre hundreth yere of Noes lyfe in the seconde moneth, the seuententh daye of the moneth. In the same daye were all the fountaynes of the great depe broken vp and the wyndowes of heauen were opened. And the rayne was vpon the earth fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes. In the selfe same daye entred Noah, Sem, Ham, & Japheth, the sonnes of Noah, & Noahs wyfe, and the thre wyues of his sonnes, with them into the Arke: They, and euery beast after his kynde, & all catell after theyr kynde: yee and euery woyme that crepeth vpon the earth after his kynde, and euery byrde after his kynde, and euery flyinge & feathered foule. And they came vnto Noah into the Arke, two & two, of all fleshe wherin is lyfe. And they entrynge in, came male and female of all fleshe, as God had comaunded hym. And God shut hym in rounde aboute. And the floude came fortye dayes vpon the earth, and the waters were increased, and bare vp the Arke, which was lyfte vp aboue the earth. The waters also preuapled, and were encreased exceedingly vpon the earth, and so the Arke wente on the vpper face of the waters.

And the waters preuapled exceedingly vpon the earth, and all the bryddes that are vnder the whole heauen, were covered. Iftene cubytes vwarde dyd the waters preuaple, so that the mountaynes were covered.

And all fleshe dyed that moued vpon the earth in foule, in catell, in beast, and in euery woyme that crepeth vpon the earth: yee, and euery man also (what soeuer was in whose nostrils the brythe of lyfe dyd brythe all these in the drye lande dyed). And euery thyng was destroyed, that remayned, and that was in the vpper parte of the grounde (both man, and catell, and woyme, and foule of the ayre) they were euen destroyed from of the earth. And Noah onely remayned alpye, and they that were with hym in the Arke. But the waters preuapled vpon the earth an hundredeth and fortye dayes.

The viii. Chapter.

¶ After the synge out of the heauen and the Dore, Noe goeth forth of the Arke, and offereth sacrifice. The naturall corrupcyon of mans nature.

And God remembred Noah, and euery beast, and all the catell that was wyth hym in the Arke. And God made a wynde to passe vpon the earth, and the waters ceased. The fountaynes also of the depe and the wyndowes of heauen were stopped, and the rayne from heauen was restrayned. And the waters from the earth were returned, goynge and comynge agayne. And after the ende of the hundredeth and fortyeth daye, the waters were abated.

And in the seuenth moneth: in the seuententh daye of the moneth, the Arke rested vpon the mountaynes of Armenia. And the waters truely were goynge and decreasynge vntill the tenth moneth: for in the tenth moneth, and in the fyrste daye of the same moneth, were the toppes of the mountaynes sene. And after the ende of the fortyeth daye, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowe of the Arke which he had made. And he sent furth a rauen, whiche went out goynge furth and returnynge agayne, vntill the waters were dried vp vpon the earth. And agayne he sent furth a doue from hym, that he myght se if the waters were abated from the vpper face of the grounde. And the doue founde no rest for the sole of her fote, & she returned vnto hym agayne into the Arke: for the waters were in the vpper face of the whole earth. And he when he had put furth his hande, toke her: and pulled her into hym into the Arke.

And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and proceedinge further, he sente furth the doue out of the Arke. And the doue came to hym in the euen lyde, and lo, in her mouth was an olyue leafe that she had plucked: wherby Noah dyd knowe, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and sente furth the doue, which proceeded not to returne vnto hym any more.

And it came to passe in the syre hundreth and one yere, in the fyrste moneth, and in the fyrste daye of the moneth, the waters were dried vp from the earth. And Noah remoued the couerage of the Arke, and looked, and beholde, the vpper face of the grounde was dried vp. And in the seconde moneth, in the seuen and twenty day of the moneth, was the earth dried.

And God spak vnto Noah sayng: Go furth of the Arke, thou and thy wyfe, thy sonnes, and thy sonnes wyues with the. And brynge furth with the, euery beast that is wyth the: of all flesch (both foule and catell, and euery woyme that crepeth vpon the earth) that they maye geudre in the earth, and brynge furth the fruite, and *encrease vpon earth. And so Noah came furth, and his sonnes, his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues with hym. Euery beast also and euery woyme, and euery euerye foule, and what so euer creepeth vpon the erth (after they kyndes) went out of the Arke.

And Noah builded an alter vnto the Lorde, and toke of euerye * cleane beaste, and of euerye cleane foule, and offered sacrifices in the altare. And the Lorde smelled a sweete (or quyet) sauour. And the Lorde sayde in his hert: I wyl not procede to curse the grounde any moze for mannes sake, for the * ymaginacyon of mannes herte is euell even from his yowth. Neyther wyl I adde to smyte any moze euery thyngge luyngge, as I haue done, yet therfore shall not sowynge tyme and haruest, cold and heate, Sommer and wynter, daye & nyght cease, all the dayes of y earth.

The ix. Chapter.

God blessed Noe and his sonnes. He forbyddeth to eate the bloude of beastes, and to shed mans bloude. The token of the covenante. He maketh a covenante that he wyl destroye the world no moze by water, and geueth the raignbowe for a token and confirmacyon of the same. Noe is drunken, Ham uncovereth hym, and getteth his curse.

Gen. ix. c. d. and. xlii. d.

And God * blessed Noah and his sonnes. And sayde vnto them: Bynge ye furthe frute, and multiplie, and replenyshe the earth. The feare of you and the drede of you shall be vpon euery beast of the earth, and vpon euery foule of the ayre, in all suche as the earth byngeth furth and in all the fyshes of the see.

Gen. ix. c. d. and. xlii. d.

In to your hande are they deliuered. Euery thyngge that moueth it selfe, and that lyueth shall be meat for you: Euen as the grene herbe haue I geuen you all thyngges. But * fleshe in the lyfe therof and in the bloude therof shall ye not eate. & lles your bloude of your lyues wyl I requyre from the hande of euery beaste wyl I requyre it, and from the hande of man: From the hande of mans brother wyl I requyre the lyfe of man. Who so * sheddeth mannes bloude, by man shall his bloude be shedde: For in the ymage of God byd God make man. But byng you furth frute and multiplie: Sendre ye in the earth, and encrease therein.

Gen. ix. c. d. and. xlii. d.

God spake also vnto Noah and to his sonnes wyth hym, sayinge: Beholde, I set vp my * covenante wyth you, and with your sede after you and wyth euery luyngge creature that is wyth you, both in foule and in catel, and in euery beast of the earth whiche is wyth you of all that go out of the Arke, accordynge vnto euery luyngge thyngge of the earth. But my covenante wyl I make wyth you, that from * henceforth euery fleshe, be not rooted oute wyth the waters of a floude, neyther shall there be a floude to destroye the earth any moze.

Gen. ix. c. d. and. xlii. d.

And God sayde: This is the token of the covenante whiche I geue betwene me and you, and euery luyngge creature that is wyth you vnto petpetuall generacions. I haue set my bowe in the cloud, and it shall be for a token betwene me and the earth. And it shall come to passe that when I bynge a cloude vpon the earth, the bowe also shall be sene in the same cloude. And I wyl thynke vpon my covenante whiche is betwene me and you, and euery luyngge creature in al fleshe and it shall no moze come to passe, that * waters make a floude to destroye all fleshe. But the bowe shall be in the same cloude, and I wyl loke vpon it, that I maye thynke vpon the euery luyngge creature betwene God, and euery luyngge creature in all fleshe that is vpon earth. And God sayde vnto Noah. This is the token of the covenante whiche I haue made betwene me and all fleshe that is vpon earth.

The sonnes of Noah going furth of the arke were: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. And Ham truly is the father of Canaan. These are the thre sons of Noah, and of them was the whole earth ouerspred. Noah also beganne to be an husband man, and planted a vinegarde. And he byng luyngge of the wyne, was drunken, and uncovered wythin his tente.

And Ham the father of Canaan seynge the nakednes of his father, tolde his two brethren without. And Sem and Japhet, they two, takynge a garmente, layde it vpon theyr shulders and cumynge backwarde, couered the naked preuities of theyr father: ne by their faces beynge turned awaye, lest they shoulde se theyr fathers preuities.

And Noah awoke from his wyne, and knew what his yonger sonne had done vnto him. And he sayde: Cursed be Canaan, a seruante of seruantes shall he be vnto his brethren. He sayde mozeouer: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, and Canaan shall be his seruant. God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwel in the tentes of Sem, and Canaan shall be theyr seruante. Noah lyued after the floude thre hundred and fiftie yeres. And all the dayes of Noah were nyne hundred and fiftie yeres. And he dyed.

The x. Chapter.

The genealogie of Japheth, Sem, and Ham.

These are the generacions of the sonnes of Noah, Sem, Ham, and Japheth: And vnto them were chyldren borne after the floude. The chyldren of * Japheth: Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Iauan, and Eubal, Melech, and Theras. The chyldren of Gomer: Askenas, and Ripath and Togarma. The chyldren of Iauan: Elisa and Tharsis, Kittim, and Donanim. Of these were the fles of the Gentyles deuyled in theyr landes, euery man after his tonge, and after his kynred in theyr nacjons.

The chyldren of Ham: Cusch, and Mizraim, and Phut, and Canaan. And the chyldren of Cusch: Seba and Haulah, and Sabtha, and Rahma, and Sabthecha. The chyldren of Rahma: Scheba and Dedan. Cusch also begatte * Nimrod. The same began to be myghtye in the earth. For he was a myghtye hunter before the Lorde. Wherefore it is sayde: Euen as Nimrod the myghtye hunter before the Lorde.

The begynnyng of his kynge dom was * Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calne, in the lande of Sinhar. Out of that lande came Assur, and builded * Ninue, and the stretes of the cyrie, & Calah. Resen also betwene Ninue and Calah, and it is a greate Cyrie.

Mizraim begat Ludim, and Enamim, and Lehabim, and Sephtuhim. Parthrusim, also and Casluhim, out of whome came Philistim and Capthorim. Chanaan begate zidon bys fyrste borne sonne and heth, and Jebusi, and Emozi, and Sirgosi, habiui also, and haarki, and halsini, and haaruadi, and hazmari, and hahemathi: And afterward were the kynreds of the Canaanites spred abrode. The border of the Canaanites was from zidon, as thou comest to Gerar vntyll Gazan, and as thou goest vnto Sodom, and Gomorra, and Adama, and zeboum, euen vnto Lesa. These are the chyldren of ham in theyr kynredes, in theyr tonges, countres and in theyr nacpys.

Vnto Sem also the father of all the chyldren of Eber, (and elder brother of Japheth) there were chyldren borne. The chyldren of Sem: Elam and Assur, Arphachlad, and Lud and Aram. The chyldren of Aram: Uz and Hul, Gether and Mas. * Arphachlad begat Selah, and Selah begat Eber. Vnto Eber also were borne two sonnes: The name of the one was Peleg, for in his dayes was the earth deuyded. And his brothers name was Jaketan. Jaketan begate Almodad and Saleph, hazarmauthe and Jetrab, and Hodozan and Uzall and Dickla, Obal also and Abimaell, and Scheba, and Ophir, & Hauila, and Jobab. All these were the chyldren of Jaketan. And theyre dwellynge was from Mela, as thou goest vnto Sephar a mounte of the Easte. These are the chyldren of Sem after theyr kynredes and tonges in theyr landes and nacpys. And so these are the kynredes of the chyldren of Noah, after theyre generacyons in theyr peoples, and of these were the nacpys deuyded in the earth, after the floude.

The xi. Chapter.

The buyldynge of the towre of Babel. The confusyon of tonges. The generacyon of Sem the sonne of Noe, vntyll Abraham, which goeth with Lot vnto Haran.

At the whole earth was of one language and lyke speche. And it happened when they went furthe from the Easte, they founde a playne in the land of Sinhar, and there they abode. And they sayde every one to his neyghoure: Come, let vs prepare bypcke, and burne them in the fyre. And they had bypcke for stone, and lime had they in steade of mortar. And they sayde: Goto, let vs buylde vs a ctyie and a tower, whose toppes maye reach vnto Heauen: and let vs make vs a name, lest happely we be scattered abrode into the vpper face of þ whole carth. But the Lorde came downe, to se the Cytie and tower which the chyldren of men buylde.

And the Lorde sayde: Behold, the people is one, and they haue all one language, & this they begyn to do, neyther wyll it be restrayned from them, what so euer they haue ymagined to do. Come on, let vs go downe, and confounde theyr language: that euery one perceaue not his neighbours speche. And so the Lorde scattered them fro that place into the vpper face of all the earthe. And they leste of to buylde the ctyie. And therefore is the name of it called * Babel, because the Lorde dyd there confounde the language of all the earth. And from thence dyd the Lorde scatter them abrode vpon the face of all the earth.

And Haran dyed in the presence of Terah his father, in the lande of bys natiuptye, euen in Uz of the Caldees. Abram and Nahor toke them wyues: The name of Abrams wyfe was Sarai, and the name of Nahors wife was Milca, the doughter of Haran: þ father of Milca, and the father of Isca. And so Abiam departed, euen as the Lorde spake vnto hym, and Lot went with hym. And Abiam was leuentye and syue yeres olde, when he departed out of haran. And Abiam toke Sarai his wyfe and Lot his brothers sonne, and all theyre *substaunce that they had in possession, and the soules that they had begotten in haran. And they departed, that they myghte come into the lande of Chanaan: And in to the lande of Chanaan they came. Abiam passed thorowe the lande vnto the place of Sychem, and vnto the playne of Mozethe: And the Cananyte was then in the lande. And the Lorde appearynge vnto Abiam, sayde vnto thy *sede wyl I geue this lande. And there buylded he an altare vnto the Lorde, euen where he had appered vnto hym. And remouynge thence vnto a mountayne that was estwarde from Bethel, he pitched his tent haupynge Bethell on the west syde, and Hai on the east. And he buyldynge an altare vnto the Lorde, dyd call on the name of the Lorde. And Abiam went furth goynge and departynge toward the south. But there was a deth in that land, and therfore went Abiam downe into Egypte, that he myghte socourne there, for there was a sore dearth in the lande. And it happened when he was come nere to entre into Egypt, he sayde vnto Sarai his wyfe Beholde, I knowe that thou art a fayer woman to loke vpon.

And so it happened, when Abiam was come into Egypt, the Egypcyans behelde the woman for she was verie fayer. The Prynces also of Pharaos sawe her, and comended her before Pharaos, & the woman was take into Pharaos house. And he went furth on his iourney from the south toward Bethel, to the place where hys tente had bene at the begynnyng, betwene Bethel and Hai. Euen vnto the place of the *altare whiche he had made there at the fyrst, and there Abiam called on the name of the Lorde. Lot also whiche went with Abiam had shepe, catell and tentes, and his lande was not able to receaue them that they myghte dwell together, for the *substaunce of theyre riches was great, and they coude not dwell together. And there fel a stryfe betwene the herdmen of Abiams catell, and the herdmen of Lots catell. Moreover the *Cananytes and the Idume-sytes dwelled at that tyme in the lande. Then sayde Abiam vnto Lot: Let there be no stryfe (I pray the) betwene the and me and *betwene my herdmen and thyne, for we be brethren. Is not all the *whole lande before the? Departe I pray the fro me. If thou wylt take thy lefte hande, I wyl go to the ryght, or if thou depart to thy ryght hande, I wyl go to the lefte. And so Lot lystnyng vp hys eyes, behelde all the contrey of Iordane, whiche was a plentuous countre of water euey where, before the Lorde destroyed Sodome and Gomorra, euen as the garden of the Lord, like the lande of Egypt as thou cummest vnto soar.

haue geuen the a sonne of her, and wyl blesse her

And shall Sara that is nynty yere olde beare?

And Abrahā sayde vnto God: O that ysmacel

The xviii. Chapter.

C There appered thre men vnto Abraham. Isahac is promised to hym agayne: at which Sara laugheth. The destruccyon of the Sodomytes is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

St. xiii. b And the Lorde appeared vnto hym in the playne of Mamre, as he sat in hys tente dore in the heate of the daye. And he lyft vp his eyes, and looked and lo, thre men stode by hym. And when he sawe them he ranne to mete them from the tente dore, and fell to the ground and sayde: Lord, I beseech the yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght go not: I praye the) from thy seruaunt. Let a lytelle water be set, and washe your fete and refreshe your sel-ues vnder the tree. And I wyll fet a morsell of breade to comforte your hartes withall. And then shall ye go your wayes, for euen therefore are ye come to your seruaunt. And they sayde: No euen so as thou haste sayde. And Abraham went a pale into his tent vnto Sara, and sayde make redy at once. iii. peces of fyne meale, kned it, and make cakes. And Abraham rennyng vnto his beastes, sette a calfe tender and good, and gaue it vnto a ponnge man, and he hastid to make it redy at once. And he toke butter and mylke and the calfe whyche he had prepared, and sette it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree, * when they dyde eate.

And they sayde vnto hym: Where is Sara thy wyfe? he answered: behold, she is in the tent.
 And he sayde: In returnynge, I wyll come a-gayne vnto the, accordynge to the tyme of lyfe.
 And lo, * Sara thy wyfe shal haue a sonne.

That herde Sara, in the tent dore whiche was behynde hym. Abraham and Sara were both olde and well stryken in age, and it ceased to be wth Sara, after the maner as it is wth we-men. Therefore Sara laughed within her selfe, sayynge: Howe I am wared olde, shall I geue my selfe to * luste, and my Lorde olde also? And God sayde vnto Abraham: wherfore did Sara laugh sayynge: Shall I of a surety beare a chylde whyche am olde? is any thyng wonderfull to God? Accordynge to the tyme * appoynted wyl I returne vnto the, euen accordynge to the tyme of lyf, and Sara shal haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it sayynge: I laughed not, for she was afraid. And he sayde: It is not so, but thou laugh-edst. And the men standynge vp from thence, looked toward the Sodome. And Abraham wente with them to bringe them on the waye.

And the Lorde sayde. Shall I hyde from Abraham that thyng whiche I do: sayng that Abraham shal be a * great and a myghty people, and all the nations of the earth shal be blessed in him I knowe this also, that he wyll commaunde his chyldren and his household after hym, that they kepe the waye of the Lorde, and do after ryght and conscience, that the Lorde maye bynge vpon Abraham that he hath spoken vnto hym.

And the Lorde sayde: * The crye of Sodome and Gomorra is grete, and theyr synne is ex-ceedynge greuous. I wyll go downe nowe, and se whether they haue done altogether accordynge to that crye, whych is come vnto me or not, that I maye knowe. And the men departed thence and went to Sodome ward. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and Abraham drewe nere and sayde: Wylt thou also destroye the ryghtwyes wth the wycked? peradventure there be fyfetye ryghtwyes wthyn the cytie, wylt thou destroye, and not spare the place for the sake of fyfetye ryghtwyes that are therein? That he farre from the that thou shuldest do after this sayynge, and sleve the ryghtwyes wth the wycked, and that the ryghtwyes shulde be as the wycked that be farre from the.

Shall not the Judge of all the worlde do accordynge to ryghtes? And the Lorde sayde: Yf I fynde in Sodome fyfetye ryghtwyes wthyn the cytie, I wyll spare all the place for theyr sakes.
 And Abraham answerynge, sayde: Beholde, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lorde, * whyche am but duste and ashes peradventure there shal lacke foure of fyfetye ryghteous: Wylt thou destroye all the cytie for lacke of foure?
 And he sayde: Yf I fynde there fourtye and fyue
 I wyll not destroye them.

And

And he proceeded to speake vnto hym agayne, and sayde: peradventure there shall be fourtye founde there. He answered I wyl not do it for fortyes sake. He sayde vnto hym agayne: O let not my Lorde be angrye that I spake peradventure there shall thyrtie be founde there. And he sayde: I wyl do nothyng of I fynde thyrtie there. He sayd agayne: O se I haue taken vpon me to speake nowe also vnto my Lorde: peradventure there shall be twentye founde there. He answered I wyl not destroye them for twentyes sake. And he sayde: O let not my Lorde be angrye, and I wyl speake yet but this once peradventure there shall ten be founde there. He answered: I wyl not destroye them for tens sake. And the Lorde went his waye as soone as he had left comynge wth Abraham. And Abraham also turned vnto his place.

Ch. xix. Chapter.

Lot receaueth two angels into his house. The synners of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered and departyth to dwell in the ctye of zoar. Lot's wyfe is turned into a pillar of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is broken and lyeth wth his daughters, whiche constrained chydren of hym.

And there came. ii. angels to Sodome at euen. And Lot sat at y gate of Sodome. And Lot seying them rose vp to mete them, and he bowed hym self to the ground with his face. And he sayde: my Lordes, turne in I praye you into poure seruautes house and tarpe all nyght and walke your fete, and ye shall esle vp early to go in your wayes. Which sayde: nay, but we wyl byde in the streetes all nyght. And he in manner dyd euen* compelle them vpolentlye. And they retournynge in vnto hym entred into his house, and he made them a feaste, and dyd bake swete breade, and they dyd eate.

And before they wente foreste, the men of the ctye, euen the men of Sodome) compassed the house rounde about both olde and yonge, all the people from all quarters. And they callynge vnto Lot, sayd vnto him: where are y men which came into the this nyght: byng them out vnto vs and we wyl knowe them. And Lot went out at the doores vnto them and shut the doore after hym and sayde: naye for Gods sake brethren do not so wyckedly. Beholde, I haue two daughters whiche haue knowne no man, them wyl I byng out now vnto you: and do w them as it seemeth good in your eyes. Only vnto these men do nothyng, for therfore came they in vnder the shadow of my rose. And they sayde: stand backe. And they sayde: he came in as one to soeorne, and wyl be be nowe a Judge: We wyl surely deale worse with the then with them. And they yzached soze vpon the man, euen Lot: & came to breake vp the doore, but the men put furthe theyr hand and pulled Lot into the house to them and shut to the doore. And the men that were at the doore of the house were smote wth byndnesse, *both small and great so that they fainted and coulde not fynde the doore. And the men sayde vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe or sonnes or daughters or whatlocuer thou hast in y ctye, byng it out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is great* before the face of God: for the Lord hath sent vs to destroy it. And Lot went out & spake vnto his sonnes in law which married his daughters sayng: stande vp, get you out of this place for the Lorde wyl ouerthrowe this ctye. But he seemed as though he had mocked, vnto his sonnes in lawe. And when the mornynge arose, the angels caused Lot to speke hym sayng: Stande vp, take thy wyfe & thy two daughters at hand lest thou perishe in the synne of the ctye. And as he prolonged the tyme, the men caught both him his wyfe and his two daughters by the handes the Lorde byng mercyfull vnto hym, and they brought hym furth and let hym without the ctye. It fortuned when they had broughte them out he sayde: Hane thy lyfe, & loke not behynde the, neither tary thou in all this playne countre. Hane thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perishe. And Lot sayde vnto them: Oh naye lorde beholde, thy seruaunte hath founde grace in thy syght, and I haue magnified thy merce whiche thou haste shewed vnto me in sauyng my lyfe. Beholde, I can not be saued in the mountayne, lest some myffortune fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a Ctye by, to fle vnto, euen ponder lytle one, Oh let me be saued there: is it not a lytle one, and my soule shall lyue? And he sayde to hym: se, I haue receaued thy requeste, as concernynge this thyng, that I wyl not ouerthrowe this Ctye, for the whiche thou haste spoken. Haste the, and be saued there, for I can do nothyng tyll thou be come thither. And therfore the name of the Ctye is called zoar. And the sonne was nowe risen vpon the erth, when Lot was entred into zoar.

Then the Lorde raygned vpon* Sodome & Gomorra, byrystone, and fyre from the Lorde out of heuen, and ouerthrewe those ctyes and all the regyon, and all that dwelled in the ctyes, & that that grewe vpon the earthe. But Lottes wyfe looked behynde her, and was turned into a pyller of salte. Abraham risynge vpearly, got hym to the place where he stood before the presence of God, and lokynge towarde Sodome and Gomorra and toward all the lande of that contre, he looked and beholde, the smoke of the contrey arose as the smoke of a forname. And it happened that when God destroyed the Cties of that regyon, he thought vpon Abraham and sente Lot: oute from the myddes of the ouerthrowynge, when he ouerthrew the Cties where Lot dwelled.

And Lot departed out of zoar and dwelled in the mountaynes wth his two daughters, for he feared to tarpe in zoar, but dwelled in a caue, he and his two daughters. And the elder sayde vnto the yonger: oure father is olde, and there is not a man in the earth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all the worlde. Come, we wyl make oure father dronken wth wyne, and ly with hym, that we maye saue sede of oure father. And so they made theyr father dronken w wyne that nyght. And the elder daughter went and laye wpth her father. And he perceaued it not, neyther when she laye downe, neither when she rose vp. And on the morow it happened that the elder sayde vnto the yonger: beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father. Let vs make hym dronke with wyne this nyght also, and go thou and lye with him, that we maye rayse vp seede of our father. And they made the yonger father dronke with wyne þ nyght also. And the yonger arose and laye with hym. And he perceaued it not: neither when she laye downe, neither when she rose vp. Thus were both the daughters of Lot with chylde by the yonger father. And the elder bare a sone and called his name Moab. The same is the father of the Moabites vnto this daye. And the yonger bare a sonne also & called his name Ben Ammi. The same is the father of the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

The .xx. Chapter.

Abraham went as a stranger into the lande of Gerar. The kynge of Gerar takech awaye his wyfe.

And Abraham departed thence toward the south countrey, & dwelled betwene Cadis and Sur, and sojourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayde of Sara his wyfe. She is my syster. And Abimelech kyng of Gerar sent and fet Sara awaye.

Gen. xii. c. and. f. fol. b.

But God came to Abimelech in a dreame in the nyght and sayde vnto hym: Se, thou shalt dye for the womans sake which thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mans wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, & he sayde: Lord wylt thou slaye ryghteous people? sayde not he vnto me, she is my syster? yee, and sayd not she her self he is my brother? with a pure heart and innocent handes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto hym by a dreame, I wot it well that thou dydest it in the purenes of thy heart. I kept the also that thou shouldest not synne agaynst me, and therfor suffered I the not to touche her. Nowe therfore deliuer the man his wyfe agayne for he is a prophete. And he shal praye for the that thou mayst lye. But and yet thou deliuer her not agayne, be sure that thou shalt dye the death both thou, and all that thou hast. Therfore Abimelech rypunge vp by tymes in the morning called all his seruantes and tolde all these sayinges in theyr eares, and the men were sore afraid. And Abimelech called Abraham & sayd vnto hym what hast thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended the that thou hast brought on me and on my kyngdome so great a synne? thou hast done dedes vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abraham: What sawest thou that thou hast done this thynge.

Abraham answered. For I sayde. surely the feare of God is not in this place, and they shall slepe me for my wifes sake yet in very dede she is my syster, for she is the daughter of my father though she be not the daughter of my mother. & she became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her: This kyndenesse shalt thou shewe vnto me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, he is my brother. Then toke Abimelech shepe and oren, men seruantes and women seruantes and gaue them vnto Abraham, & deliuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayde. beholde, my lande I geue thee, dwell where it pleaseth the best. But vnto Sara he sayd: Se, I haue geuen thy brother a thousand peces of syluer, beholde: it shall be a couerunge of thyne eyes, vnto all that are with the and thus with all was she reprobued.

And so Abraham prayde vnto God, and god healed Abimelech, and hys wyfe and hys maydens, and they bare chylde. For the Lord had closed to all the matryces of the house of Abimelech: because of Abrahams wyfe.

The .xxi. Chapter.

Isaac is borne. Agar is cast out with her yonger sonne. The angel comforteth Agar. The seruantes becomen Abimelech and Abraham.

The Lord visyted Sara as he had sayd & and byd vnto her & accordynge as he had promysed. For Sara was wpth chylde, and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euen the same season which þ Lord had appointed him. And Abraham called his sonnes name that was borne vnto hym which Sara bare hym, Isaac: and Abraham circumcysed Isaac hys sonne when he was ryght dayes olde as God commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde: when his sonne Isaac was borne vnto hym. But Sara sayd: God hath made me a laughynge stocke: so that all þ heare: wyl laugh at me. She sayde also: who wold haue sayde vnto Abraham, þ Sara shuld haue geuen chylde? for I haue borne him a sonne in his olde age: The chylde grewe: and was wened: and Abraham made a great feast: the same daye that Isaac was wened. Sara sawe also þ sonne of Hagar þ Egyptian (which she had borne vnto Abraham) to be a mocker, wherfor she sayde vnto Abraham: put awaye this bondmayde and her sonne: for the sonne of this bondwoman shal not be heyre with my son Isaac: and this sayynge was very greuous in Abrahams syght because of his sonne. And god sayde vnto Abraham: lette it not be greuous in thy syght, because of the lad & of thy bondmayde. All þ Sara hath sayde vnto the, heare her voyce for in Isaac shal thy seede be called. For ouer of the sonne of the bondwoman wyl I make a nacion: because he is thy seede.

And so Abraham arose vp early in the morning, and toke breade and a bottell of water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, puttyng it on her shulders with the lad also, and sent her awaye, who departyng, wandred vp and downe in the wilderness of Beer Seba. And the water was spent in the bottell, and she caste the lad vnder a bush and wente and satte on the other syde a greate waye, as it were a bowe shote of: for she sayde: I wyl not se the death of the chylde. And she syttinge downe on the other syde, lyfte vp her voyce and wepte.

And God hearde the voyce of the chylde. And the angel of god called Hagar out of heuen and sayde vnto her: what ayleth the Hagar? Heare

And God opened her eyes: and she saw a well of water. And she went and fylled the bottell wpth water and gaue the boye drinke. And God was with the lad, and he grewe and dwelte in the wyldernesse, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wyldernes of Pharan. And hys mother gat hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

Gen. xxi. 6.

And it chaunced the same season that Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe captayne spake vnto Abraham sayinge: * God is with the in all that thou dost. And nowe therfore sweare vnto me euen here by God, that thou wylt not hurte me nor my chylidren, nor my chylidrens chylidren. But that thou shalt deale with me, and the cuntery where thou haste bene a straunger, accordyng vnto the kyndnesse that I haue shewed the. And Abraham sayde: I wyl sweare.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, whych Abimelechs seruauntes had byolently taken awaye. And Abimelech sayde: I wote not who hath done thys thyng.

Also thou toldest me not. neyther hearde I of it, but this daye. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen, and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bond together. And Abraham set seven ewe lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayde vnto Abraham: what meane these seven ewe lambes which thou haste set by them selues? He answered: For these seven lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they may be a wyttnesse vnto me, that I haue dygged this well. Wherefore the place is called Beer Seba, because that there they sweare both of them.

Thus made they a bonde together at Beer Seba. And Abimelech & Phicol his chiefe captayne rose vp, and turned agayne vnto the land of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wood in Beer Seba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerlastyng God: and so gouerned in the Philistines lande a longe season.

After these saynges, it happened & God dyd & proue Abraham & sayde vnto hym: Abraham. Whiche answered: here am I. And he sayde, take thy only sonne Isaac whom thou louest, and get the vnto the lanbe Mozia, and sacrifice hym there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountaynes, whiche I wyl shewe the.

Then Abraham rose vpearly in the mornynge, and saddled hys asse, and toke two of hys yonge men with hym, and Isaac hys sonne: and cloue wood for the sacrifice and rose vp and gat him to the place whiche God had appoynted hym.

The thyrde daye Abraham lyfte vp his eyes and saw the place a farre off, and sayde vnto his yongemen byde here with the asse I and the lad wyl go ponder and worshyp, and come agayne vnto you. And Abraham toke the woode of the sacrifice: and layde it vpon Isaac hys sonne, but he hym selfe toke fyre in his hande & a knyfe. And they went both of them together.

Then spake Isaac vnto Abraham hys father and sayde: My father. And he answered: here am I my sonne. He sayde: Se here is fyre and woode, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? Abraham answered: my sonne, God wyl prouyde hym a shepe for sacrifice, and so they went both together.

And when they came vnto the place whiche God had shewed hym, Abraham made an altier there, and dressed the wood, and bounde Isaac his sonne, & layde hym on the altier, aboute vpon the wood. And Abraham stretching forth his hande, toke the knyfe to haue kylled his sonne. And the angel of the Lorde called vnto him from heauen, sayinge: Abraham Abraham: And he sayde: here am I. And he sayd laye not thy hand vpon the chylde, neyther do any thyng at all vnto hym, for nowe I know that thou fearest god and hast for my sake not spared thyne only sonne. And Abraham lystyng vpon hys eyes, looked aboute: and beholde, there was a ram caught by the hornes in a thickette. And he went and toke the ram and offred hym vp for a sacrifice in the stead of his sonne. And Abraham called the name of the place, & Lorde wyl se. As it is sayde this daye: in the mounte wyl the Lorde be seene.

Gen. 22. 13.

And the angell of the Lorde cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme, and sayde: & by my selfe haue I sworne (sayth the Lorde) because thou haste done this thyng, and haste not spared thy onely sonne. that in blessinge I wyl blesse the, and in multiplyng I wyl multiplye thy seede as the starres of heauen, and as & sande whiche is vpon the see syde. And thy seede shall possesse & gate of his enemyes. & And in thy seede shall all the nacions of the earthe be blessed, because thou haste hearde my voyce. So turned Abraham agayne vnto his yonge men, and they rose vp and wente together to Beer Seba. And Abraham dwelt at Beer Seba. And it chaunced after these thynges, that one tolde Abraham sayinge: Beholde, Milcha, she hath also borne chylidren vnto thy brother Nachor: hus hys eldest sonne, and Hus his brother, and Kemuell & father of the Surpans, and ceased, and also, & Bildag, and Jedlaph, and Sethucl. And Sethucl begat Rebecca. These viii did Milcha beare Nachor Abrahams brother. And hys concubine called Rhuma: she bare also Tebah, and Sahan, Chaag, and Maacha.

The xxiij. Chapter.

Abra was an hundred and. xxvij. yere olde (so longe lyued he) and Sara dyed in Kynat Arba. The same is Hebzon in the lande of Canaan. And Abraham came to mourne Sara and to wepe for her.

¶ And Abraham stode vp from the syght of his co-lyse, and talked wpyth the sonnes of heth saying I am a straunger and a forreiner amonge you geue me a posseltyon to bury in wch you, that I maye bury my coarke out of my segot. And the chyldren of heth answered Abraham, sayinge vnto hym: heare vs Lorde, thou art a pryncce of God amonge vs. In the chere of our sepulchres burye thy deade. None of vs also shall forbyd the thy sepulchre but thou mayst burye thy deade therein: Abraham stode vp and bowed hym self before the people of the lande of heth. And he communed with them sayinge.

¶ It is beyour mynde that I shall bury my deade out of my syght, heare me: and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of zoar. þ he maye geue me the dubble caue whiche he hath, and that is in the ende of hys felde but for as muche money as it is worth, shall he geue it me in the presence of you for a posseltyon to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of heth.

¶ And Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham in the audyence of the chyldren of heth and of all that went in at the gates of his Cytie, sayinge: Not so my Lorde, heare me. The felde geue I the, and the caue that therein is geue I the also and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the, burye thy deade. And Abraham bowed hym self before the people of þ lande and spake vnto Ephron in the audyence of the people of the countrey, sayinge I praye the heare me if it please the: I wyll geue syluer for þ felde, take it, & I wyll burye my deade there. Ephron answered Abraham sayinge vnto hym: My lord hearken vnto me. The lande is worth foure hundred sylces of syluer what is that betwyxe the and me: burye therefore thy deade. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron and wyped hym the syluer which he had sayde, in the audyence of the sonnes of heth. Euen foure hundred sylces of curraunt money amonge marchauntes. And the felde of Ephron with the dubble caue whiche was before Hamre: euen the felde and the caue that was therein, and all the trees that were in the felde, and that were in all þ borders rounde aboute, was made sure vnto Abraham for a posseltyon, in the syghte of the chyldren of heth, before all that wente in at the gates of the cytie. After this dyd Abraham burye Sara his wyfe in þ double caue of the felde that lyeth before Hamre. The same is Hebzon in the lande of Canaan. And so both the felde and the caue þ is therein, was made vnto Abraham a sure posseltyon to burye in, of the sonnes of heth.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ Abraham maketh his seruante to sweare, and sendeth him to take a wyfe for Isaac his sonne, Abraham's was sayd full and broughte Rebekke, whiche Isaac toke to his wyfe.

Abraham was olde and streken in dayes, and the Lorde had blessed hym in all thynges. And Abraham sayde vnto his eldest seruante of hys house whiche hadde the rule ouer all that he had. Put thy hande vnder my thyghe, and I wyll make the sweare by the Lorde God of heauen, and God of the earth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of þ daughters of Chanaan, amonge whiche I dwell. But thou shalt go vnto my countrey and to my natyue lande, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac. And the seruante sayde vnto hym: peradventure the woman wyll not agre to come w me vnto this lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whiche thou camest out of? To whom Abraham answered, beware that thou bring not my sonne thither agayne.

¶ The Lorde God of heauen, whiche take me from my fathers house, and from þ lande where I was borne: And which spake vnto me, and that sweare vnto me sayinge vnto thy seide wyf I geue this lande, he shall sende his Angell before the, and thou shalt take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuerthelesse if the woman wyll not agre to folowe the, than shalt thou be without danger of this my oth.

¶ Only bringe not my sonne thither agayne. And the seruante put his hand vnder the thygh of Abraham hys master, and swore to hym as concernyng that matter. And the seruante toke ten Camelles of the camelles of his master and departed, and had of all maner of goodes of hys master wpyth hym, and stode vp, and wente to Mesopotamia, vnto the Cytie of Nahor. And made his Camelles to lye downe withoute the Cytie by a welles syde of water, at euen, aboute the tyme that women come out to drawe water. And he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, sende me good speche this daye, and shewe mercede vnto my master Abraham. Lo, I stande here by the well of water, and the daughters of the men of this Cytie come out to drawe water. Nowe þ damessell to whom I saye, stoupe downe thy ptycher I praye the, that I maye drynke. If she saye also Drynke, and I wyll geue thy Camelles drynke the same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruante Isaac. yea, and thereby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe per he had left speaking beholde, Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abraham's brother, & her ptycher vpon her shoulder: The damessell was very fayre to loken vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknewen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled her ptycher, and came vp. And the seruante running vnto her, sayde let me sup a lytle water of thy ptycher. And she sayde drynke my Lorde.

water for thy camels also, vntyl they haue dronken ynoughe. And she poured out her ppytcher into the trough hastily, and ran agayne vnto the well to fet water, and drew for all his camels. And þe man wondred at her. But helde his peace, to wite whyther the Lord had made his iourney prosperous or not: And it fortuned, as the camels had lefte dypnyng, the man toke a golden earynge of halfe a lytle weyght, and two brace-lettes for her handes, of renne lyces weyght of golde, and sayde: whose daughter art thou: tell me I pray þe, is there roume in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in: She answered him. I am the daughter of Bathuel the son of Myla, whiche she bare vnto Habor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue lytter and prouondre ynoughe, and also roume to lodge in.

D And the mā bowed hym self, and worshipped the Lord, and sayde: blessed be the Lord God of my master Abraham, whiche ceaseth not to deale mercifullpe and trulpe with my master, and hath brought me þe way to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and told them of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And he ran out vnto the man, euen to the well for assoone as he had sene the earynges, and the bracelettes in his sisters handes (and herde the wordes of Rebecca his sister, saying thus sayd the man vnto me) he wente oute vnto the man. And loo: he stode with the camels by the well syde. And he sayde: come in thou blessed of the Lord. Wherefore standest thou wythoute? I haue dresed the house, and made roume for þe camels. And then the man came into þe house: and he vnbrydled the camels, and Laban, brought lytter and prouondre for the camels, and water to washe his feet and the mennes feet that were with him, and set meate before him to eate. But he sayd I wyl not eate, vntyl I haue sayde mine errande. And he sayde saye ou. And he sayde: I am Abrahams seruaunte, and God hath blessed my mayster oute of measure, that he is become great, and hath gyuen hym shepe, and oxen, syluer and golde, men seruauntes, and mayde seruauntes, camelles, and allex.

Gen. 24. 10 And * Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when she was olde, and vnto him hath he gyuen al that he hath. And my master made me sweare, saying: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the daughters of the Canaanites in whose lande I dwell.

But thou shalt goo vnto my fathers house, and to my kintred, & take a wyfe vnto my sonne.

E And I sayde vnto my master: peradventure the wyfe wyl not foloweme: And he answered me the Lord, before whome I walke, wyl sende his Angell with the, and prosper thy iourneye, and thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne of my kynrede and of my fathers house. Then shalt thou be gyftlesse of my curse, when thou comest to my kynrede. And yf they gyue the not one, thou shalt be gyftlesse of my curse.

And so I came this daye vnto the well, & sayd to the Lord, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so nowe that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous beholde, I stande by this well of water, and when a vyrgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me (I pray the) a lytle water of thy ppytcher to dypnke, and she say to me: dypnke thou, & I wyl also drawe for thy camelles: that same is the wyfe, whome the Lord hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of speakyng in myne herte: beholde, Rebecca came forth, and her ppytcher on her shoulde, and she went downe vnto to the well, and drew water. And I sayde vnto her: geue me dypnke I praye the. And she made haste, and toke downe her ppytcher from of her, and sayde: dypnke, and I wyl geue the Camelles dypnke also.

And I dranke, and she gaue the camels dypnke also. And I asked her, saying: whose daughter art thou? She answered: the daughter of Bathuel Haboris sonne * whome Myla bare vnto hym. And I put the earynge vpon her face, and the bracelettes vpon her handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshipped the Lord, and blessed the Lord God of my master Abraham whyche had brought me the ryght waye to take my masters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. Nowe also, yf ye wyl deale mercifullpe and truly with my master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also that I maye tourne me to the ryght hand or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bathuel, saying: Thys saying is proceded euen out of the Lord: we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good, or badde: Beholde, Rebecca is before the, take her and goo, that she may be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as God hath sayde: And when Abrahams seruaunt heard thes wordes, he worshipped the Lord flat vpon the earth. And the seruaunt toke for the reuelis of syluer and reuelis of golde and rayment and gaue them to Rebecca. And vnto her brother & to her mother, he gaue gyftes, and they dyd eate and dypnke, both he & the men that were with him, and tarped all nyght. And when they rose vp in the morning she sayd lette me departe vnto my master. Her brother, and her mother answered: let the damsell abyde wyth vs a whyle, and it be but enen ten dayes, and then shall she go. He sayde vnto them, hyn- dze me not: beholde, the Lord hath prospered my iourneye. Sende me awaye therfore, that I maye go vnto my master. And they sayde we wyl call the damsel, and enquyre at her mouth. And they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wylte thou goo wyth thys man? And she answered: I wyl goo.

So they let Rebecca thes sister go and her nuse, and Abrahams seruaunte, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art our sister, growe into thousand thousandes * and thy seede possesse the gate of thes enemies. And Rebecca arose, and her damsel, and set them vp vpon the camelles, and wente thes way after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went his waye.

And Laban was comynge from the waye of the well of the * lyupngc and seinge me, for he dwelt he dwelt in the south countrey, and Isaac was gone out to pray in the field at the euentide. And he lyft vp his eyes and saw the camels cummyng. And Rebecca lyfte vp her eyes, & when she saw Isaac, she lychted of the camel, and layse vnto the seruaunt what man is this that cometh wal- kyng agaynst vs in the felde? And the seruaunt said it is my master. Therefore she toke her cloke and put it about her. And the seruaunt told Isaac all thynges that he had done. And Isaac brought her into his mother Saraes tent, & toke Rebecca, and she became his wyfe, & he loued her so Isaac receaued conforte after his mother.

Abraham taketh Hethura to his wyfe, & he getteth many chyldren. Abraham dyeth and geueth all his goods to Isaac. The genealogy of Isaac. The birth of Jacob & Esau. Esau sellith his byrthright for a messe of pottage.

Abraham proceeded further and took hym a wyfe called Hethura, which bare hym Shumram, and Zeklan, & Medan & Midian, and Zebach, & Suah. Zeklan begat Heba, & Dedan. And the sonnes of Medan were Maturim, Letusim, and Leumim. And the sonnes of Midian Ephra and Ephra, Janoch, & Abida and Elda. All these were the chyldren of Hethura. And Abraham gaue all his goods vnto Isaac. But vnto the sonnes of the concubynes which Abraham had, he gaue gyses, and sent them away from Isaac his sonne (whyle he yet lyued, eastward vnto the land of Eedes. And these are the dayes of the yeres of Abrahams lyfe which he liued in Canaan. And he was a hundred & thre yere, & then he fel sick, & dyed in a lusty age (wher he had lyued ynough) & was put to his people. And his sons, Isaac & Immaell buried hym in the double caue in the feld of Ephron sonne of Zear the Hethyte, besyde the playne of Mamre. Which feld Abraham bought of the sons of Heth: where Abraham was buried & Sara his wyfe. It fortuneth after the death of Abraham that God blessed Isaac his sonne, and Isaac dwelled by the well of the lypunge, and sepunge me.

These are the generacions of Immaell, Abrahams sonne, which Hagar the Egyptian Saraes handmayd bare vnto Abraham. And these are the names of the sonnes of Immaell in their names according to the byrthrightes of the eldest sone of Immaell Nebaioth, & Cedar and Abbel, & Midian, & Misma duma, and Mafah & Hagar. These are the sons of Immaell & these are their names, by their townes and castles & the princes of their households. And these are the yeres of the lyfe of Immaell an hundred and thre yere, and he fel sick, and dyed and was layde vnto his people. And they dwelled from Beulah vnto Sur, that is by the border of Egypte, as thou goest toward the Syrians. And he dyed in the presence of all his brethren. And these are the generacions of Isaac Abrahams sonne: Abraham begat Isaac. And Isaac was forty yere olde when he toke Rebecca to wyfe, the daughter of Bathuell the Syrian of Mesopotamia, and sister to Laban the Syrian. And Isaac made intercession vnto the Lorde for his wyfe: because she was barren:

and the Lorde was intreated of hym, and Rebecca his wyfe conceived, and the chyldren stroue together within her. Therefore she sayd yf it wold go so to passe, what helpeth it that I am with chylder: wherefore she wente to aske the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto her: there are two manner of people in thy wombe, and two nacyns shall be deuyled out of thy bowels, and the one nacyn shall be myghtyer then the other, and the elder shall be seruaunte vnto the yonger.

Therefore when her tyme was come to be deliuered, behold, there were two twynes in her wombe. And he that came out first was red, and he was all ouer as it were a rough garment, and they called his name Esau. And after him, came his brother out, and his handes holdynge Esau by the heele. And his name was called Jacob. And Isaac was xl. yere olde when they were borne: and the boyes grewe, and Esau became a cunnyng hunter and a tyller of the earth. But Jacob was a perfecte man, and dwelled in the tentes. Isaac loued Esau, because he dyd eate of his venyson, but Rebecca loued Jacob.

Isaac sod pottage, and Esau came from the feld and was saynt, and Esau sayde to Jacob feede me I praye the with that redde pottage, for I am saynt. And therefore was his name called Esau. And Jacob sayde sell me this daye thy byrthright. Esau sayde Loo, I am at the point to dye, and what profite shall this byrthright do me? Jacob answered & swaure to me then this daye. And he swaure to hym, and sold his byrthright vnto Jacob. Then Jacob gaue Esau bred and pottage of ryle. And he dyd eate and drynke and rose vp, and wente his waye. And Esau regarded not his byrthright.

Ad there came a dert in the lande, passinge the fyrst dert that was in the dayes of Abraham. And Isaac went vnto Abimelech kyng of the Philistynes vnto Gerar. And the Lorde appeared vnto hym, and sayde: Go not downe in to Egypte, but hyde in the lande which I shall shewe vnto the: sogeorne in thy lande, and I wyll be with the, and wyll blesse the for vnto the and vnto thy sode I wyll geue all these contreyes. And I wyll performe the othe which I swore vnto Abraham thy father, and wyll multiplye thy sode as the starrs of heauen, and wyll geue vnto thy sode all these contreyes. And in thy sode shall all the nacyns of the earth be blessed, because that Abraham hath named vnto my name and kepte myne ordynances, my commaundementes, my statutes, and my lawes. And Isaac dwelled in Gerar. And the men of the place asked hym of his wyfe, and he sayde: she is my sister: for he feared to saye: she is my wyfe, lest the men of the place shoulde haue kyllid, hym because of Rebecca whiche was bewyfull to the eye.

And it happened after he had bene there longe tyme, that Abimelech kynge of the Philistynes looked out at a wyndowe, and sawe Isaac spoz tynge with Rebecca his wyfe. And Abimelech called Isaac, & sayde: He is of a surety thy wyfe and why saydst thou she is my syster? To whome Isaac answered: I thought that I myght; & adventure haue died for her sake. Abimelech sayd: Why hast thou done this vnto vs: one of the people myght lyghtely haue lyne by thy wyfe, & so shuldest thou haue brought synne vpon vs. And so Abimelech charged all his people, saying: he that toucheth this man or his wyfe, shal dye the death. Isaac sowd in that lande, and found in that same yere an hundred buichels, and the Lorde blessed hym, and the man waxed myghty, and went forth and grewe, tyll he was exceedingly great, for he had possession of shepe, of oxen, and a myghty household, & therefore the Philistynes had enuy at hym: for the Philistynes stopped & fylled vp with earth all the wells whiche his fathers seruauntes dygged in his fathers Abrahams tyme. And Abimelech sayde vnto Isaac: get the from vs, for thou art myghty, & then we are a great deale. Therefore Isaac departed thence and abode in the valley of Gerar, & dwelt there. And Isaac returning, dygged agayne the wells of water whiche they dygged in the dayes of Abraham his father, whiche the Philistynes had stopped after the deathe of Abraham, and gaue them the same names whiche his father gaue the. Isaacs seruauntes dygged in the valley, and founde a well of liuynge water. And the herdmen of Gerar dyd stryue with Isaacs herdmen saying: the water is ours. And then he departed thence, and dygged another well, for the which they stroue not: therefore called he it: Rehoboth, saying: the Lorde hath nowe made vs to dwelle, that we maye encerre vpon the earth. And he went vpon thence, to Beer Seba. And the Lorde appered vnto hym the same nyght & sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not, for I am with the, and wyl blesse the and multiply thy sede for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. ¶ Jacob receiue the blessinge from Esau by his mothers counsell. Isaac is sad. Esau is comforted. The hatred of Esau toward Jacob.

And it came to passe that when Isaac waxed olde, and his eyes were dimme (so that he coulde not se.) he called Esau his eldest sonne and sayde vnto hym. My sonne, and he sayde vnto hym. here am I. And he sayde. behold, I am nowe olde, and knowe not the daye of my deeth and nowe therefore take thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bowe and get the to the felde, that thou mayst take me some venison, and make me meate such as I loue, and bynge it, in that I maye eate, and that my soule maye blesse the, before that I dye. But Rebecca hearde whiche Isaac spake to Esau his sonne, And Esau went into the felde, to catche venyson, and to bynge it. And Rebecca sayde vnto Jacob her sonne saying: behold I haue hearde thy father talking with Esau thy brother and saying: bynng me venyson and make me meate, that I maye eate and blesse the before the Lord, afore my deeth. Nowe therefore my sonne heare my voice in that whiche I comaunde the: get the to the flocke, & bynng me thence two good kyds, & I may make meate of them for thy father, suche as he loueth. And thou wilt bynng it to thy father, & he may eat and that he may blesse the before his deeth. Then said Jacob to Rebecca his mother: behold, Esau my brother is a rough man, & I am smoth. My father shall peradventure fele me, & I shall seme vnto hym as though I wet about to begyle him and so shal he bynng a curse vpon me, & not a blessing and his mother sayde vnto hym. vpon me be thy curse my sonne, only heare my voyce, & go and fetch me the. And Jacob went & fet them, & brought the to his mother. And his mother made meate suche as she knewe his father loued. And Rebecca let goodly rayment of her eldest sonne Esau, whiche was in the house wyth her, and put them vpon Jacob her yonger sonne & she put the

the kynges of goates vpon his handes and vpon the smoothe of his necke. And he put the meate & breade whiche he had prepared in the hande of her sonne Jacob. When he came to his father, he sayde, my father? And he answered, here am I, who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayde vnto his father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordyng as thou baddest me: vp and slay and eate of my venyson, & thy soule maye blesse me. And Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: howe cometh it that thou hast founde it so quicly my sonne? He answered: The Lord thy God brought it to my hande: Then sayde Isaac vnto Jacob, come nere and let me fele the my sonne whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac his father, and he sayde: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe him not, because his handes were rough as his brothers Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

D And he asked hym: art thou my sonne Esau? And he sayde, that I am. Then sayde he, bryng me and let me eate of my sonnes venyson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym and he ate. And he brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And his father Isaac sayde vnto hym: come nere, and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym and kysed hym. And he smelled the sauoure of his rayment, and blessed hym, & sayde: See, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a felde, whiche the Lord hath blessed. God geue the of the dewe of heuen, and of the fatnes of the earth, and plenty of corne and wyne. People be thy seruantes, and nacions bowe vnto the. Be lord ouer thy brethren, & thy mothers chyldren stoupe vnto the. Cursed be he that curse the, and blessed be he that blesseth the.

E It happened that as soon as Isaac had made an ende of blessing, and Jacob was scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, then came Esau his brother from his huntinge, and had made also meate and brought it vnto his father, and sayde vnto his father: let my father arys and eate of his sonnes venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. Then his father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who art thou? he answered I am thy eldest sonne Esau, and Isaac was greatly astounded out of measure, and sayde: whiche is he and where is he then that hath hunted venyson: and brought it me: & I haue eaten of all before thou camest, and haue blessed hym, and he shall be blessed. When Esau heard the wordes of his father, he cryed out greatly and bitterly, about measure, & sayde vnto his father: blesse me also my father. Who answered, thy brother came w subtylty, & hath taken awaye thy blessing. And he sayde agayne he maye well be called Jacob for he hath vndermynd me now ii. tymes: for he took awaye my byrt byght and se now hath he taken awaye my blessing also. And he sayde hast thou kept neuer a blessing for me?

Isaac answered and sayde vnto Esau: beholde, I haue made hym thy lord, and all his mothers chyldren haue I made his seruantes. Moreover with corne & wyne haue I stablyshed hym, what can I do vnto the nowe my sonne? And Esau sayde vnto his father: hast thou but that one blessing my father? blesse me also my father. so lyfted vp Esau his voyce and wept. Then Isaac his father answered and sayde vnto hym: beholde, thy dwellinge place shall be the fatnesse of the earth, and of the dewe of heauen from aboue. And with thy sword shalt thou lyue, and shalt be thy brothers seruant. And it wyl come to passe, that when thou shalt get the masterye, thou shalt loose bys yoke from of thy necke. And Esau hated Jacob, because of the blessing that his father blessed hym with all. And Esau sayde in his herte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, and I wyl slaye my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne were tolde to rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob her yongest sonne, & sayde vnto hym: beholde, thy brother Esau threatneth to kyl the: now therfore my sonne heare my voyce, make the redy, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran, and tary with hym a whyle vntill thy brothers fearnes be swaged, and vntill thy brothers wrath turne awaye from the, and he forget the thynges whiche thou hast done to hym. Then wyl I sende and fet the awaye from thence. Why shulde I be desolate of you both in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Isaac, I am wery of my life, for feare of the daughters of Heth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the daughters of Heth luche one as these are, or of the daughters of the lande what good shall my lyfe do me?

The xxviii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marryeth an Hittite. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Esau is prompted. Jacob marryeth a wyfe.

And so Isaac called Jacob & blessed hym and charged hym, & sayde vnto hym: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Chanaan, but arys and get thee to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: & there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy mothers brother. Thus Isaac sent forth Jacob. And he went to Mesopotamia vnto Laban sonne of Bethuel the Hittite, & brother to Rebecca Jacob & Esaus mother. When Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, & sent hym to Mesopotamia, to fet him a wyfe thence, and as he blessed hym he gaue him a charg saying thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Chanaan and thou Jacob had obeyed his father & mother & was gone to Mesopotamia & Esau saynge also of the daughters of Chanaan pased not Isaac his father then went he vnto Ismael, & toke vnto the wyues which he had. Rahala the daughter of Ismael Abrahams sonne, the sister of Laban to be his wyfe. Jacob departed fro Beer Seba, to come vnto Haran, and came vnto a place by chaunce, & taried there all nyght, because the sunne was downe.

And toke a stone of the place and put it vnder his heade and layde hym downe in y<sup>e</sup> same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and behold there stode a ladder vpon the earth and the toppe of it reached vp to heuen. And se y<sup>e</sup> angels of God went vp and downe vpon it: y<sup>e</sup>ce, and God stode vpon it, and sayde. I am the Lorde God of Abraham thy father, & the God of Isahac: the lande which thou slepest vpon wyl I geue the and thy seide. And thy seide shalbe as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spede abroad to the west, to the east to the north and to the south. And thou shalt be blessed. And se I am with the, and wyl be thy keeper in all places whither thou goest, and wyl bringe the agayne into this lande: nether wyl I leaue the vntill I haue made good all that I haue promysed the. When Jacob was awaked out of his slepe, he sayde: surely the Lorde is in this place, and I was not aware. And he was afrayde and sayde: howe fearfull is this place? it is none other but euens the house of God & the gate of heuen. And Jacob stode vp early in the mornynge, and toke the stone y<sup>e</sup> he had layde vnder his heade, and pyched it vp an ende * & powdered oyle in the top of it. And he called the name of the place * Bethell, but the name of the cytie was called Lus before tyme. And Jacob vowed a vowe sayinge. If God wyl be with me, and wyl kepe me in this iourney whiche I goo, and wyl geue me breade to eat, and clothes to put on, so that I come agayne vnto my fathers house in safete, then shall the Lorde be my God, and this stone whiche I haue set vp an ende, shalbe Goddes house: and of all that thou shalt geue me, wyl I geue the tenth vnto the.

When Jacob lyfte vp his fete and came into the east countre. And as he looked aboute, beholde there was a well in the felde, and thre flockes of shepe laped therby, for at that wel were the flockes watered) and there was a great stone vpon the welles mouth. And whither were all the flockes brought, and they rouled the stone from the welles mouth, and watered the shepe & put the stone agayne vnto the welles mouth vnto his place. And Jacob sayde vnto them: brethren, whence be ye? And they sayde of Haran are we. And he sayde vnto them know ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? They sayd we know hym. And he sayd vnto them, is he in good helth? And they sayde, he is in good helth, & beholde, his daughter Rachel cometh with the shepe. And he sayde, lo, it is yet but y<sup>e</sup> dape, nether is it tyme that the catel shulde be gathered together, water ye the shepe and go & fede them. And they sayde, we may not vntill all the flockes be brought together, & till they roll the stone from the welles mouth, & so we water our shepe. Though y<sup>e</sup> be my brother, shuldest thou therfor serue me for nought? tell me, what shal thy wages be? Laban had two doughters: the eldest called Lea and the yongest Rachel. but of La-of Laban and beholde. it was not as yesterdape and per yesterdape. And the Lord sayde vnto Jacob, turne agayne into the lande of thy fathers, and to thy kynred, and I wyl be with the. Therfore Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the felde vnto hys flocke, and sayde vnto them: I se youre fathers countenance & it is not towarde me as yesterdape, and per yesterdape. But the God of my father hath bene wpth me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued youre father w all my myght. But youre father hath discreaned me, and chaunged my wages. x tymes: but god suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayde, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all þ shepe bare spotted. And when he sayde: the straked shall be thy reward, then bare all the shepe straked: thus hath God taken a waye youre fathers wepe, and genen them me. But in rammyng tyme it happened, that I lyfted vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame, and beholde the rammes leaped vpon þ shepe that were straked, spotted and party. And the Angell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayinge: Jacob. And I answered: here am I.

And he sayde: lyfte vp nowe thyne eyes, and se all the rammes leappng vpon the shepe that are straked, spotted and party: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the, I am þ God of Bethell, where thou anoyntedst the stone, & where thou vowedst a vowe vnto me. Nowe therfore aryse and get the * out of thys countre, and returne vnto the lande where thou wast borne.

Then answered Rachel, and Lea, and sayde vnto hym: haue we a porcyon and inheritaunce in our fathers house? Doth not he count vs euen as straungers? for he hath sold vs, and hath euē eaten vp our money. But all the ryches whiche God hath taken from oure father, that is oures and our chyldrens. And nowe whatsoener God hath sayde vnto the, that do. Then Jacob rose vp, and let hys sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, and carped awaye all hys flockes, and all his substance whiche he had procured, hys ryches and possessions which he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Israhac hys father vnto the lande of Canaan. But Laban was gone to * where his shepe, and Rachel had stolen her fathers pnyages. And Jacob stole awaye the hart of Laban the Syrian, in that he tolde hym not that he fled. So fled he and all that he had, and made hym selfe redy, and passed ouer the ryuer, and let his face streyght towarde the mount Gilead.

Ge. xxxiij.

Upon the thirde dape after, was it tolde Laban that Jacob fled. Then he toke hys brethren wpth hym, and folowed after hym seuen dayes iourney, and ouer toke hym at the mount Gilead. And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by nyght, and sayde vnto hym: take hede that thou speake not to Jacob oughte saue good. And Laban ouer toke Jacob: and Jacob had pyched his tente in the mount. And Laban with his brethren pyched theyr tent also vpon the mount Gilead. And Laban sayde to Jacob: Why hast þ this done to steale awaye my harte and carpe awaye my daughters as though they had bene taken captiue wpth the swerde?

Wherfore wentest thou awaye secretly & knowne to me, and dydest not tell me, that I myght haue brought the on þ waye with mirth syngyng, tymrell and harpe, and hast not suffred me to kisse my chylidren and my daughters. Thou wast * a foole now to do it, for I am able to do yow euyl. But þ God of youre father spake vnto me yesterdape, sayinge take hede that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And now thoughe thou wentest thy waye, because þ longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore haste thou stolen my goddes. Jacob answered & sayd to Laban. because I was afrayde, and thought that thou woldest haue taken awaye thy daughters from me. But * (where as thou layest these to my charges) with whome scener thou spendest thy goddes, let hym dye, here before our brethren. Seke that thyne is by me, and take it to the. But Jacob wylt not that Rachel had stolen them. The went Laban into Jacobs tente, and vnto Leas tente, & into the two maydens tentes: but found them not. Then went he out of Leas tente, and entred into Rachels tente. And Rachel had taken the pnyages and put them in the camels stawe, and late doune vpon them. And Laban seched all the tente. but founde them not. Then sayde he to her father: my Lorde, be not angry that I can not ryse vp before the, for the custome of women is come vpon me. So seached he but found not those ydols. And Jacob was wroth, & chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and sayde to hym what haue I trespassed or what haue I offended, that thou folowedest so after me? Thou hast seached all my stuffe, and what hast thou found of al thy household stuffe? put it here before thy brethren & myne þ they may iudge betwxt vs both. Behold. This twenty pere haue I bene with the, thy shepe and thy goates haue not bene baren, & the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eaten. What soeuer was to me of bestes, I brought it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hand didst þ require it, euen as it þ was stole by dape or nyght. By day the heate consumed me, & the frost by nyght, & my slepe departed from myne eyes. Thus haue I bene. xx. pere in thy house, and serued the *. xiii. peres for thy. ii. daughters and syre peres for thy shepe, and thou hast charged my rewarde ten tymes. And except the god of my father, the god of Abraham, and the feare of Israhac had bene with me, surely thou haddest sente me awaye nowe all emptye. But God behelde my tribulacion, & the labour of my handes, and rebuked the yesterdape.

Laban answered & sayde vnto Jacob: these daughters are my daughters, and these chylidren are my chylidren, and these shepe are my shepe, and all that thou seyst, is myne. And what can I do thys dape vnto these my daughters, or vnto theyr chylidren whiche they haue borne? Nowe therfore come on and let vs make a bond I and thou, whych maye be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone, and sette it vp an ende, and Jacob sayde vnto hys brethren: gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an heape, and they dyd eat there vpon the

The heape. And Laban called it * Jegar Sabadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead. or rather of the acceptance to the property of his own language.

¶ Then sayde Laban: this braye is * wopenesse man with vs behold, God be wytnesse betwixt cob: beholde, this heape and this marke whiche I haue set here, betwixt me and the. this heape be wytnesse and also this marke that I wyl not come ouer this heape to the, and þu shalt not come ouer this heape & this marke vnto me: to do any harmie The God of Abraham, þu god of Nahor, and þu god of thep; fathers be iudge betwixt vs.

And Jacob sware by the feare of hys father Isaac. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon y<sup>e</sup> mount and called his brethren to eate breade. And they dyd eate bread & tarped all nyght in the pyl. And early in the mornynge Laban rose vp and kyssed his chyldren & his daughters, and blessed them & Laban departynge, went vnto his place agayne.

The xxxii. Chapter.

¶ The disson of the Angles. Jacob sendeth presentes unto his brother Esau. Howe he was filled with the angel whiche changed his name and called him Israel.

BUt Jacob went forth on his journey.
And the angels of God came, and met him. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayde this is Goddes host and called þe name of þe same place * Mahanaim that is an ar mye. And Jacob sente messengers before hym to Esau his brother, vnto the lande * of Seir & the felde of Edom. And he commaunded them saying Thus shall ye speake to my Lorde Esau the se-ruant Jacob sayth thus I haue sojourned and bene a straunger with Laban vnto thys tyme & haue oxen, asses and shepe, men seruantes, and women seruantes, and haue sent to the wit my Lorde, & I maye fynde grace in thy syght. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob sayinge:
we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cometh agaynst the and hath foure hundred men with hym. But Jacob was greatly afrayd, and wyll not which waye to turne hym selfe, and deu-yded the people that was with hym and the shepe and oxen and camels into .ii. companyes and sayde: If Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other shall saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde agayne: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac lord which saydest vnto me *returne vnto thy coun-tre and to thy kynred, & I wyll do all well with the. I am not worthy of the least of all the mer-cyes and truthe whiche thou haste shewed vnto thy seruante. For wyth my staffe came I ouer this Iordane, and now haue I gotten it. dyones Welpuer me from þ handes of my brother Esau for I feare hym: lest he wyll come and synpte the mother wyth the chyldren. Thou saydest: I wyl surely do the good, & make thy sede as the sand of the see, which can not be nombred for multiply.

And he tarped ther that same night, & toke of that whiche came to hande, a presente for Elau his brother. ii. hundred she goates and. xx. he gon tes. ii. hundred shepe and. xx. rāmes: thirty mulch camels with their coltes. xl. hyne, & .x. bulles. xx. she asses and ten foles: and delyuered them in to the hand of his seruañtes, euey droue by them selues and sayd vnto his seruañtes: go forth before me, and put a space betwixt. droue, & droue.
And he commaunded the foremost sayinge.

¶ Et sau my brother mete the and are the saying: whose art thou, and whyther goest thou: and whose are these that goe before the: ¶ Shalt saye they be thy seruaunt Jacobs, & it is a present sent vnto my Lorde Esau, and beholde, he hym selfe commeth after vs: And so commaunded he the second, and the thyrde, & all that folowed the brothers saying of this maner: se that you speak vnto Esau when ye mete him, and saye moreouer: thy seruaunt Jacob also cometh after vs, for he sayd I wyl peace his wraath with the present that goeth before me, and afterwarde I wyl se hym my selfe, if peraduenture he wyl receaue me to grace So went the present before him and he taried al that night in the company, and rose vp the same nyght, and toke hys two wpues & his two mapdens, and his eleuen sonnes, & went ouer y<sup>e</sup> foord Jacob. And he toke them & sent the ouer y<sup>e</sup> ryuer and sent ouer that he had, taried behonde hymselfe alone. And there wrestled a man with hym vnto the breakyng of y<sup>e</sup> daye. And when he saw that he could not preuaile agaynst him, he smote hym vnder the thye, and the synowe of Jacobs thye shrank, as he wrestled with hym. And he sayd: let me goo for the daye breaketh. Whiche answered: I wyl not let the go, excepte y<sup>e</sup> blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: what is thy name? he answered: Jacob. he sayde: thou shalt be called Jacob no more, but Israel. For as a prynce hast thou wrestled wth God: and wth man, and hast preuailed.

And Jacob asked hym sayinge: tell me thy name. And he sayd, wherfore dost thou so aske after my name: and he blessed hym ther. And Jacob called the name of the place * Phenuel, for I haue sene God face to face, and my lyfe is preserved. And as he went ouer Phenuel, the sonne rose vpon him, and he halted vpon his thye. And therfore is it that the chylidren of Israel eate not of s synow that theyrke in that place of the thye, vnto this daye: because that he touched the place of Jacobs thye in the scnowe that theyrke.

¶ The. xxii. Chapter.

¶ Esau and Jacob are agreed: and Jacob came into Bethlem.

Jacob lyfpyngē by hys eyes, loked, & beholde Elau came. Hauynge wpyt hym foure hundred men. And he deydēd the chyldren vnto Lea and vnto Rachel, and vnto the two maydēs. And he put the maydens and theyr chyldren foremoste: and Lea and her chyldren after, and Rachel, and Joseph byndermost. And he went before them and felle on the grounde seuen tymes & vntyl he came vnto his brother.

Elau* came to meet him and embraced him, saying bun and

and fell on hys necke and kyssed hym, and they wepte. And he lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe the women, and the chyliden, and sayde: whence hast thou these? (And so they belonge vnto the.) And he answered: they are the chyliden whiche God hath geuen thy seruauit. Then came the mapdens forth, & their chyliden, and dyd theyr obersaunce. Lea also with her chyliden came and dyd theyr obersaunce. And last of all came Joseph & Rachel, and dyd theyr obersaunce.

And he sayde: what is all the done whiche I mette? he answered: that I maye fynde grace in the syght of my Lorde. And Esau sayde: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou haste vnto thy selfe. To whome Jacob answered, oh nay, but yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, receaue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face as though I had sene the face of God and thou haste had a good wyll toward me. Oh take my blessing that is brought the, for God hath had mercy on me. (I sayng me all thynges.) And I haue ynough. And so he compelled hym, and he toke it. And he sayd: let vs take oure iourney and go, I wyll go before the. Jacob answered hym my Lorde. Thou knowest, that the chyliden are tender, and the ewes & kyne wylch pong vnder myne hande, which yf men shulde ouerdryue but even one daye all the shepe wyl dye. Oh let my Lorde goo before hys seruante, and I wyll dryue sayre and loselye, accordyng as the catell that goth before me and the chyliden, be able to endure vntyll I come to my Lorde vnto Seir.

And Esau sayde let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he answered, what nedeth it? (Thys one thyng onely haue I orde of) let me fynde grace in the syght of my Lorde. So Esau went hys waye agayne that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke hys iourney towarde Sucoth, and buylte hym an house, and made bootes for hys catell. And therfore is it, that the name of the place is called * Sucoth.

And Jacob came to Halem a cite of Sichem whiche is in the lande of Canaan, after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pyched before the Cytie, and bought a parcell of grounde (where he pyched hys tente) of the chyliden of Hemoz Sichems father for an hundred peces of money. And he made there an auter, and called vpon the myghtye God of Israel.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The rapturage of Dina Jacobs daughter by the men of Sichem. And of the great bloude sheddunge done by the sonnes of Jacob.

Inna the daughter of Lea * whiche she bare vnto Jacob, wente out to se the daughters of the lande. Whome whan Sichem the sonne of Hemoz yf heente: Lorde of that countre saw, he toke her, and laye wyth her, and forced * her and hys hart laye vnto Dina the daughter of Jacob. And he loued that damessell and spake kyndely vnto her, and Sichem spake vnto hys father Hemoz: sayeng, get me thys mayden vnto my wyfe.

in the felde, and he helde hys peace, vntyll they were come. And Hemoz the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to comen with hym. And when the sonnes of Jacob comyng out of yf felde hearde it, it greued them, & they wer not a lytell wroth, because he had wrought folpe in Israel, in that he had lyen w Jacobs daughter, whiche thyng ought not to be done. And Hemoz comyned wyth them sayenge. the soule of my sone Sichem longeth for poure daughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make mariages with vs: and geue your daughters vnto vs, and take our daughters vnto you, and ye shall dwell with vs, and the lande shall be before you, dwell and do your busynes, and haue your possessions therein. And Sichem sayde vnto her father and her brethren let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what soeuer ye appoynte me, that wyll I geue. Arefrelye of me both the dowry and gyses, and I wyll geue accordyng as ye saye vnto me, so that ye geue me the damsell to wyfe.

But the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Hemoz hys father talkyng amonge them selues deceptfully, because he had despyled Dina theyr syster. And they sayd vnto them, we can not do thys thyng that we shulde geue our syster to one that is vncircumcised, for that were a shame vnto vs. But in this wyll we consent vnto you. Yf ye wyl be as we be and all the men chyliden amonge you be circumcised, then wyll we geue oure daughters to you, and take your daughters to vs, and wyll dwell with you, and be one people. But and yf ye wyl not harken vnto vs to be circumcised, then wyll we take oure daughter & go our wayes. Theyr wordes pleased Hemoz and Sichem hys sonne. And the ponge man deserde not for to do the thyng, because he had a luste to Jacobs daughter. he was also most sette by of all that were in hys fathers house. Then Hemoz and Sichem hys sonne wente vnto the gate of theyr cytie, and comened wyth the men of theyr cytie, sayeng: these men are vncircumcised toward vs, and dwell in the lande and do theyr occupacyon therein. And in the lande is rowme ynough for them, we wyll take theyr daughters to wiues, and geue them our daughters, onely here in wyll they consent vnto vs for to dwell wyth vs and to be one people: yf all the men chyliden that are amonge vs be circumcised as they are. Shal not their goodes and their substance and all theyr catell be oures, only yf we consente vnto them? For they wyll dwell wyth vs. And vnto Hemoz and Sichem hys sonne herkened all that wente out of the gate of hys cytie. And all the men chyliden were circumcised what soeuer wente out of the gates of hys cytie. And it happened the thyrde daye (when it was paynfull to them) two of the sonnes of Jacob Simeon & Levi, Dinas brethren, toke ether of them hys swerde and wente into the Cytie boldly, and slewe all that was male, and slewe also Hemoz and Sichem hys sonne wyth yf edge of the swerde and toke Dina out of Sichems house, and went theyr waye.

deade, spoiled the cytie, because they had defyled thep: sytler: and toke thep: shepe, oren and their alies and whatsoeuer was in the cytie, and also in the felde. And all thep: goodes and all thep: chyldren, and thep: wyues toke they captiue, and made hauock of all that was in the house.

But Jacob sayde to Symeon, and Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me styne before the inhabitours of the lande, before the Canaanite, and the Pherezyte. And I beyng sewe in nombr, they shall gather them selues togyther agaynst me, and slaye me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered: woulde they deale with our sytler as with an whore?

The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Jacob goeth by vnto Bethel, and buryeth his pater: ges vnder an oke. Deboia dyeth Jacob is called Israel. The lande of Canaan is promysed him. Isachar dyeth in labour. Ruben layeth with his fathers concubine. The death of Isachar.

AND God sayd, vnto Jacob, aryse, and get the vp to Bethel, and dwel there. And make there an alter vnto God, that appeared vnto the, * when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother. Then sayde Jacob vnto his household and to all that were with hym put awaye the straunge goddes that are amonge you, and be cleane, and chaunge your garmentes, for we wyll aryse and go vp to Bethel, and wil make an alter there, vnto God which herde me in the daye of my tribulation, and was with me in the waye which I went.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straunge goddes whiche they had in thep: hande, and all thep: earpynges whiche were in thep: eares, and Jacob hyd them vnder an ooke whiche was by Sichem. And when they departed, the feare of God fell vpon the cyties that were round about them. And they dyd not folowe after the sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus whiche is in the lande of Canaan. The same is Bethel, he and all the people that was with hym. And he builded there an alter, and called the place: The God of Bethel: because that God appered vnto him there, whē he fled fro the face of his brother.

* But Deboia Rebeccas nurse, dyed, and was buryed beneth Bethel vnder an ooke. And the name of it was called: the ooke of lamentation. And God appeared vnto Jacob agayne after he came out of Mesopotamia, and blessed hym, and God sayde vnto hym thy name is Jacob. Notwithstandynge, thou shalt be nomore called * Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name. And he called his name Israel.

And God sayde vnto hym: I am God almyghty, growe and multiplie: people and a multitude of people shall sprynge of the ye, and kynges shall come out of thy loynes. And the lande which I gaue Abraham and Isachar, wyl I gyue vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the wil I gyue that land also. And so God departed vp from hym in the place where he had talked with hym. And Jacob sette vp a marke in the place where he talked with hym: euē a marke of stone and poured drynke offrynge thereon, and poured also oyle thereon, and Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him: Bethel.

For house of God.

And they departed from Bethel, and when he was but a felde breadth from Ephrath, Rachel beganne to trauaile: and in traualynge, she was in payll. And it happened as she was in paynes of her labour, the my dwyfe sayde vnto her, feare not, for this sonne is thyne also.

Then as her soule was a departynge, that she must dye, she called his name Ben Ony: * the sonne of my sorrow. But his father called him Ben Jamin. * (The sonne of the rymme hande.) And thus dyed Rachel, and was buryed in the waye to Ephrath, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob set vp a stone vpon her graue, whiche is called Rahels graue stone vnto this daye. And Israel wente thence, and pytched up hys tente beyonde the towre of Eder. And it chaunced, as Israel dwelt in the lande, that Ruben wente and laye with Bilha his fathers concubine, and it cam to Israels ear. The sonnes of Jacob were. xiiij. in nombre. The sonnes of Lea. Ruben Jacobs eldest sonne, and Simeon, Leui, Iuda, Isachar, Zabulon. The sonnes of Rachel. Joseph and Benjamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rahels mayde: Dan and Nephthali. The sonnes of Zilpha Leas mayde, Gad and Aser. These are y sonnes of Jacob which were borne him in Mesopotamia.

And so Jacob came vnto Isachar hys father to Hamre vnto Iaymath Arba which is in Hebron: where Abraham, and Isachar sojourned as straungers. And the dayes of Isachar were an hundred and lxx peres and Isachar fel speche and dyed, and was put vnto his people beyng olde and full of dayes. And his sonnes, Gad and Jacob buryed hym.

Thus dwelt Esau in mounte Seir. The same Esau is Edom. These are the generacyons of Esau father of the Edomytes in mounte Seir, and these are the names of Esaus sonnes: Eliphaz, the sonne of Ada the wyfe of Esau, and Reguel the son of Basmath the wyfe of Esau.

When Hadad was deed, Samla of Wasteka raygned in his steede. When Samla was deed, Saul of the ryner Neboboth raygned in his steede. When

The xxxvii. Chapter.

¶ Joseph enuiceth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of his brethren, and sold to the Egyptians. Jacob bewaipeth Joseph.

Iacob dwelt in the lande wherein his father was a straunger, euen in the lande of Canaan. These are the generacions of Jacob: When Joseph was seuentene yere old, he kept shepe with his brethren, and the ladde was with the sonnes of Bilha and with the sonnes of Zilpha, his fathers wyues. And he brought vnto theyr father an euill sayinge of them. But Israel loued Joseph more then all his chyldren, bycause he begat hym in his olde age, and he made hym a coose of many colours.

And when his brethren sawe that theyr father loued hym more then all his brethren, they hated hym, and coude not speake peaceably vnto hym. Moreover, when Joseph had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren, whiche hated hym yet the more. And he sayde vnto them: heare, I praye you, this dreame whiche I haue dreamed. Beholde, we were byndynge sheues in the felde: and lo, my shefe arose, and stode vpryght, and yours stode rounde about, and made obeyssaunce to my shefe. To whom his brethren sayde: shalt thou be our kynge in dede? or shalt thou in dede haue domynion ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, bycause of his dreames and of his wordes.

And he dreamed yet an other dreame, and tolde his brethren, sayinge beholde, I haue had one dreame more. me thought the sunne and the moone and xi. starres made obeyssaunce to me.

And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked hym, and sayde vnto hym what is this dreame whiche thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother, and thy brethren then come to fall on the ground before the:

And his brethren hated him, but his father noted the sayinge. His brethren also went to kepe the fathers shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayd vnto Joseph: doo not thy brethren kepe in Sichem: come, and I will sende thee to them.

He answered * here am I. And he sayde vnto him: goo and se whether it be well with thy brethren, and the shepe: and bringe me worde agayne. And so he sente him out of the vale of Hebron, and he went to Sichem. And a certayn man founde him, and behold he was wandring out of his waye in the felde, and the man asked him: what sekest thou? He answered: I seek my brethren, tell me I praye where they kepe shepe. And the man sayde, they are departed hence, for I haerd them saye. let vs go vnto Dothan.

Thus went Joseph after his brethren, & founde them in Dothan. And when they saw him a far off before he came at them, they toke counsell agaynst him, for to sleie him. For one sayde to another: Behold * this dreamer cometh: come now therefore and let vs sleie him and cast him into some pyt, and we will saye a wycked beast hath deuoured him, and we shall se what will come of his dreames. When Ruben hearde that he had hym out of their handes & sayde, we will not kyll him. And Ruben sayde: moreouer vnto them, Wede not his * bloude, but cast him into this pyt that is in the wyldernesse, and lape no hande vpon him. Thus he sayde. Namely, that he myghte hym out of their handes and deliuer hym to his father agayne. I

And it happened that when Joseph was come vnto his brethren, they streipt hym out of his coate, hys party coloured coate that was vpon hym, and they toke hym and caste hym into an emptye pyt: wherein was no water. And they sat them downe to eate bread. And as they lyfte vp they eyes and looked about, there came a companye of Itinayntes from Gilead, & their camels laden with spex, baulme, and myrr, and were goynge downe to carie it into Egypt.

And Juda sayde vnto his brethren: what anayleth it yf we slaye our brother, and kepe hys bloude secrete, come on and let vs * sell hym to the Itinayntes, and let not our handes be vpon him: for he is our brother and our flesh. And his brethren were content. Then as the Itinayntes marchaunte men passed by, they drew and lyfte Joseph out of the pyt and solde hym vnto the Itinayntes for twentye peces of syluer. And they brought hym into Egypt.

And when Ruben came agayne vnto the pyt and founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes and went agayne vnto his brethren saying: the lad is not pender, and whether shall I go? And they toke Josephs coate and kyllled a goate, and dypped the coate in the bloude. And they sente that party coloured coate, and brought it vnto their father and sayde: This haue we founde: se whether it be thy sonnes coate or no. And he knew it sayinge, it is my sonnes coate, a wycked beast hath deuoured hym, Joseph is rent in peces.

aboute hys loynes, and sorowed for hys sonne a longe season. But all his sonnes and all his daughters rose vp to comforte hym. Neuerthelesse, he wolde not be comforted, but sayde: I will go downe into the graue vnto my sonne, mourning. And thus his father wepte for hym. And y<sup>e</sup> Adianptes * solde hym in Egypte vnto Putiphar a lord of Pharaos, and his chefe steward.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

The marriage of Iuda. The frendes of Er and Onan, and the vengeance of God that came there vpon. And a lye with hys daughter Thamar. The tyche of Job. xxi and xxv.

Fortuned at that time, that Iudas wente downe from his brethren, and gate hym to a man called Hira of Doolan, and there he sawe the daughter of a man called * Suan a Canaanite. And he toke her and went into her. And she conceived and bare a sonne and called his name Er. And she conceived agayne, and bare a sonne and called hym Onan. And she conceived agayne, and bare yet a sonne, whome she called Sela: and he was at Chesib when she bare him.

And Iudas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Thamar. And Er Iudas eldest sonne was wycked in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord slewe hym. And Iudas sayde vnto Onan: gouite thy brothers wyfe, and marie her: that thou mayst stirre vp seide vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceaued that the seide shuld not be his, therfore when he went into his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the ground, and gaue not seide vnto his brother. And the thyng whiche he dyd, dyspleased the Lord, & therfore he slewe hym also. Then sayde Iudas to Thamar his daughter in lawe, remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyl Sela my sonne be growen, for he sayde: Lest peradventure he dye also as hys brethren dyd. And Thamar wente and dwelte in her fathers house.

And in proces of tyme, the daughter of Suan Iudas wyfe dyed. Then Iudas when he had lefte mourning, went vnto his shepe shepers to Tunnath he and his frende Hira of Doolan. And one tolde Thamar sayinge: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp to Tunnath, to heare his shepe. And she put her wydowes garmentes of from her and couered her with a clooke, and despyled her selfe, and sat her downe in a common place whiche is by the hys wayes syde to Tunnath, for because she sawe y<sup>e</sup> Sela was growne and she was not geuen vnto hym to wyfe.

When Iuda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whoze, because she had couered her face. And he turned to her vnto the ware, and sayde come I praye thee, let me lye with thee, for he knew not that it was his daughter in lawe. And she answered: what wilt thou geue me, for to lye with me? Then sayde he, I will sende thee a kydd from the flocke. She sayde. Then geue me a pledge tyl thou sende it. He sayde, what pledge shall I geue thee? She answered: thy spynnet, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her and lape by her, and she was with chylde by hym. And she gat her vp and wente and put her hath shewed Pharaon what he is aboute to do.

The seven good kyne are seven yerres and the seven good eares are seven yerres also, and it is but one dreame. Lyke wyse, the seven thynne and cruel fauoured kyne that came out after them, are seven yerres: and the seven emptye, and blasted eares, shall be seven yerres of hunger. This whiche I haue sayde vnto Pharaon, it is that god is about to do, and sheweth it vnto Pharaon.

D Beholde there come seven yere of great plenteousnes through oute all the lande of Egypte. And agayne, there shall aryse after the seven yerres of hunger. And also the plenteousnes shall be forgotten in the lande of Egypte. And the hunger shall consume the lande: nether shall the plenteousnes be knowen in the lande, by reason of þe hunger that shall come after, for it shall be excedyng great. And as concernynge þe dreame was doubled vnto Pharaon the second tyme, beholde, the thynge is certaynly prepared of God, and God wyll shortly brynge it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharaon prouyde for a man of vnderstandynge and wysdome, and set hym ouer the lande of Egypte. And let Pharaon do this also that he make officers ouer þe lande and take vp the fyfth parte of the lande of Egypte in the seven plenteous yerres, and let them gather all þe foode of these good yerres that come, and lay vp corne vnder the hande of Pharaon, that there maye be foode in the cyties, and there lette them kepe it: that there maye be founde in store in the lande, agaynst the seven yerres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypte, that the lande perishe not thowowe hunger.

E And the sayynge pleased Pharaon and all his seruauntes. Then sayde Pharaon vnto his seruauntes: where shall we fynde suche a man as this is, in whom is the sperte of God? And Pharaon sayd vnto Joseph for as much as God hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstandynge oz of wysdome lyke vnto the. Thou therfore shalt be ouer my house, and accordynge to thy worde shall all my people be ruled, onely in the kynges leate wyll I be aboute the. And Pharaon sayde agayne vnto Joseph, beholde, I haue set the ouer all the lande of Egypte. And he toke of his rynge from his hande, and put it vpon Josephs hande, and arayed hym in cloth of rapnes, and put a golden cheryne aboute his necke, & set hym vpon the best chariot that he had, saue one. And they cryed before hym Bowe the knee, and Pharaon made hym ruler ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Pharaon sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharaon, without the shall no man lyfe vpon þys hande oz foote in all the lande of Egypte.

A And he called Josephs name zaphnath Panea. And he gaue hym to wyfe Asnath the daughter of Putiphar preaste of On. Then wente Joseph abrode in the lande of Egypte. And he was thytie yere olde when he stode before Pharaon kyng of Egypte. And Joseph departynge from the presence of Pharaon, went thowowe oute all the lande of Egypte. And in the seven plenteous yerres they made sheues and gathered vp all the foode of the seven plenteous yerres whiche were in the lande of Egypte, and layde vp the same in the cyties. The foode of the felde that grew rounde about euery cytie, layde he vp in þe same. And Joseph layde vp corne in store, lyke vnto the sande of þe see, in multytude out of measure, vntyl he lest numbrynge. For it was with out numbre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes: before the yerres of hunger came) whiche Asnath the daughter of Putiphar preaste of On bare vnto hym. And Joseph called the name of the fyrste sonne* Ganasse, for God sayde he) hath made me forget all my labour and all my fathers householde. The name of the seconde called he Ephraim, for God sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seven yerres of plenteousnes þe was in þe lande of Egypte were ended then came the seven yerres of* death accordynge as Joseph had sayde. And the death was in all landes but in all the lande of Egypte was there yet foode. And when þe lande of Egypte also began to hunger, the people cryed to Pharaon for breade. And Pharaon sayde vnto all the Egyptians, go vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you, that do. And the death was thowout all the lande. And Joseph opened all that was in the cyties, and solde vnto the Egyptians. For þe hunger wared sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countrees came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: because þe the hunger was so sore in all landes.

The xlii. Chapter.

Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. And he knoweth them and stretcheth them. Symeon is put in prison, the other returne to chepe. Iaher to serche Ben Jamen. His father is woth to let hym go, but at the last he graunteth it.

A And Jacob saynge þe there was corne in Egypte, sayde vnto his sonnes: why gaze ye one vpon another? And he sayde: beholde, I haue heard that there is corne in Egypte. *Get you downe thither and by vs corne from thence, that we maye lyue and not dye. So wente Josephs ten brethren downe to bye corne of the Egyptians. But Ben Jamen Josephs brother wolde not Jacob sende with his other brethren, for he sayde: lest some myffortune happen hym. And the sonnes of Israhell came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was death in the land of Canaan. And Joseph was gouernour in þe land and solde to all the people of the lande. And his brethren came, and fell flat on the grounde before hym. When Joseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them and made hym selfe straunge vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them, sayynge: Whence come ye? They answered out of þe land of Canaan, to bye vytayle. And Joseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Joseph remembred his* dreames which he dreamed of them, and sayde vnto them: ye are spyes, and to se where the land is weake is your comynge. And they sayde vnto hym: naye my lord, but to bye vytayle thy seruauntes are come. We are all one mans sonnes, and meane truly, and thy seruauntes are no spyes. And he sayde vnto them agayne, naye, but euen to se where þe lande is weake, is your comynge. And they sayd saye: For thy seruantes are twelve brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Chanaan.

And behold, the ponge is this daye with our father, and one no man woteth where he is. And Joseph sayde vnto them, that is it that I spake vnto you, saying ye are spyes. herby ye shal be proued. By the lyfe of Pharaon, ye shall not go hence, except your ponge brother come hither.
Sende out one of you whiche maye set your brother, and ye shall be kepte in pylon, that your wordes maye be proued, whether there be any truth in you: or els by the lyfe of Pharaon, ye are but spyes. And he put them in ward thre dayes.

And Joseph sayde vnto them the thyrde day
This do and lyue, for I feare God. If ye meane no hurte, lette one of your brethren be bounde in the house of your pylon, and goo ye and brynge the necessary foode vnto your householdes, but brynge your yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes maye be tryed, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so. And one sayde to another: we haue verely synned agaynst our brother, in that we sawe the anguish of his soule when he besought vs, and we wolde not heare hym: and therefore is this trouble come vpon vs. And Ruben answered them saying: sayde I not vnto you that ye shulde not synne agaynst the ladde: and ye wolde not heare. And he bloude is requyred.

They were not aware that Joseph understode them, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter.
And he turned from them, and wepte: and turned to them agayne, and comened wpth them, & toke out Simeon from amonge them, & bounde hym before they eyes, and Joseph commaunded to fyll theyr sakes with corne, and to put every mans money in his sake, and to geue them by-table to spende by the waye. And thus dyd he vnto them. And they laded theyr asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened hys sake, for to geue hys ass prouender in the iune, he spied his money for it was in his sakes mouth. And he sayde vnto his brethren, my money is restored me agayne: for lo, it is euen in my sake. And they herte sayled them, & they were astonysed, and sayde one to another:

Why hath God dealt thus with vs? And they came vnto Jacob theyr father vnto the lande of Chanaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them, saying: The man, euen the lord of y<sup>e</sup> land spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spyes of y<sup>e</sup> countre. And we sayde vnto hym: we meane truly and are no spyes. We be twelve brethren, & sonnes of our father, one is awaye, and the yon-gest is this daye with our father in the lande of Chanaan. And the lord of the countre sayde a-gayne vnto vs: herby shal I knowe if ye meane truly I canne one of your brethren here with me, and take fode necessary for your householdes and get you awaye, and brynge your yongest brother vnto me, that I maye knowe if ye are no spyes, but meane truly: So wyl I deliuer you your brother, and ye shal occupye in the lande.

And it fortuneth as they emptied theyr sakes beholde, every mannes bundel of money was in his sake. And when both they and theyr father sawe the bundels of money, they were afrayde.

And Jacob theyr father sayde vnto them: We haue ye robbed of my chyldren: Joseph is awaye and Simeon is awaye, and ye take Ben Jamin awaye. All these thynges are agaynst me. Ruben sayde vnto his father: Sler my two sonnes if I brynge hym not to the agayne. Deliuere him to my hande, & I wyl brynge hym to the agayne.
And he sayde: my sonne shal not go downe with you. For his brother is deade, and he is lefte alone. If some misfortune happen vnto hym by y<sup>e</sup> waye whiche ye go, ye shall brynge my graue heade with sorowe vnto the graue.

The xlii. Chapter.

When Ben Jamin was brought, they returned with gyf-tes Simeon is deliuered out of pylon. Joseph goth a-pyde and wept. They feast together.

And the dearth was greate in y<sup>e</sup> lande.
And it fortuneth when they had eaten by y<sup>e</sup> corne which they brought out of the lande of Egypt, they lather sayde vnto them goo agayne, and bye vs a lytle foode. Juda answered hym, & sayde: the man dyd testyfy vnto vs, sayinge:
take that ye se not my face, except your brother be with you. If thou wylt sende our brother wth vs, we wyl go done, and bye the foode. But if thou wylt not sende hym, we wyl not goo done: for the man sayde vnto vs: take that ye se not my face, except your brother be with you.
And Israel sayde wherfore belte ye so cruelly wth me, as to tell the man that ye had yet a brother?
They answered: The man asked vs straptly of our kindred saying, is your father yet alpye: haue ye not yet another brother? And we tolde hym accoydynge to these wordes. Coude we knowe that he wolde saye: brynge your brother done with you. Then sayde Juda vnto Israel his father: Sende the ladde with me, & we maye ryle and go, and that we may lyue and not dye: both we, and thou and also our chyldren. I wyl be su-recty for hym, of my handes shalte thou requyre hym. If I brynge hym not to the agayne, and set hym before thyne eyes, & then lette me beare the blame for euer. Truly excepte we had made this sarpynge: by this, we had bene there twyse and come agayne. And theyr father Israel sayde vnto them: If it must nedes be so now: then do thus Take of the best frutes of the lande in your vesselles, and brynge the man a presente, a curtesye of barwme, & a curtesye of hony, spyces & myrrre, nuttres and almondes. And take double money in your hande. And the money y<sup>e</sup> was broughte agayne in your sakes, take it agayne with you lest peradventure it was some ouer syght.

Take also your brother with you, and aryse and go agayne to the man. And God almyghty grue you merce in the syght of the man, that he maye deliuer you your other brother, and this Ben Jamin, and I shal be robbed of my chyld, as I haue bene. Thus toke they the present and twyse so much more money in theyr hande with Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt and stode before Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jamin wth them, he sayde to the ruler of his house: brynge these men home and slepe and make redye, for these men shall dyne with me at none. And the man dyd as Joseph hadde, and broughte them vnto Josephs house. When the men were brought into Josephs house, they were afrayde, and sayde: because of the money that came in oure sakes mouthes at the fyrste tyme are we brought in, that he maye ppeke a quarell with vs, and to laye some thyng to our charge, and to bypunge vs in bondage and our asses also. Therfore came they to the man that was the rular ouer Josephs house, and comened with hym at the doore of the house, and sayde.

E Oh Syr, we came downe hither at the fyrst tyme to bye fode: and as we came to an inne, it happened that we opened our sakes, and behold euery mans money was in hys sake with full weyght. And we haue brought it agayne in our hande, and other money haue we broughte also in oure handes, to bye fode, but we can not tell who put our money in our sakes. And he sayde peace be vnto you, feare not poure God and the God of poure father hath geuen you that treasure in your sakes, I had your money. And he brought Symeon out to them, and the man led them into Josephs house, and gaue them water to wash theyr fete, and gaue theyr asses pponen ber. And they made redy theyr present agaynst Joseph came at none, for they hearde saye that they woulde eate breade there. When Joseph came home, they brought s present into hys house to hym, which was in theyr handes, and fel flat on the grounde before hym. And he welcomed them curteously saying, is your father that olde man whiche ye tolde me of, in good helth and is he yet aloue: they answered, thy seruante oure father is in good helth, & is yet aloue. And they bowed downe theyr heddes, & made obeysaunce.

E And he lyftynge vp his eyes, behelde his brother Ben Jamin hys moother sonne, and sayde: * is this your yonger brother, of whom ye sayde vnto me? And he sayde: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast, for hys herte dyd melte vpon hys brother, and loughte where to wepe, and entred into his chamber, and wepte there. And he washed his face and came out, and refrayned hym selfe, and sayd, set bread on the table. And they prepared for hym by hym selfe and for them by them selues, & for the Egiptians which dyd eate with him by them selues, because the Egiptians maye not eate breade wth the hebrues, for that is an abhominacion vnto the Egiptians. And they latte before hym, the eldest accordynge vnto the age, and the yongest accordynge vnto his pouth. And the men manueled amonge them selues. And they broughte rewardes vnto them from before hym: but Ben Jamins part was spued pmes so much as any of theyr. And they drynking were dronke wth him.

The xliii Chapter.

the sakes mouth of the yongest, & his corne money also. And he dyd accordynge to s worde that Joseph had sayde. And in the morning allone as it was lyght the men were let go, they & their asses. And whē they were out of the cytie & not yet farr awaye, Joseph sayde vnto the rular of his house: vp & follow after the men, and when ye doo ouer take them, ye shalte saye vnto them wherfore haue ye rewarded euil for good: is that not the cup in the which my Lorde drinketh, and for the whiche he prophesyeth: ye haue euell done & ye haue done. And when he ouertoke them, he sayde these same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayth my Lorde suche wordes? God forbyd that thy seruantes shuld do so beholde, the money which we found in our sakes mouthes, we brought agayne to the out of the lande of Chanaan. howe then shoulde we steale out of thy Lordes house, eyther siluer or golde? with whome locust of thy seruantes ye be founde, lette hym dye, and we also wyl be my Lordes bondmen. And he sayde: Nowe also let it be accordynge vnto your wordes, he wth whom it is founde, shalte my seruant, and ye shalte be harmelesse. And at once euery man toke downe his sake to the grounde, and euery man opened his sake. And he searched, and beganne at the eldest and left at the yongest. And the cup was founde in Ben Jamins sake. Then they rente theyr clothes, and laded euery man hys asse, & went agayne vnto the Eytie. And Juba and his byet hren came to Josephs house for he was yet there, and they fell before hym on the grounde. And Joseph sayde vnto them: what dede is this whiche ye haue done? wote ye not s suche a man as I can prophesy? Then sayde Juba: what shal we say vnto my lord: what shal we speake or what excuse can we make? God hath founde out the wyckednesse of thy seruantes. Behold both he and we with whome the cuppe is founde are my Lordes seruantes. And he answered, God forbyd that I shulde do so, but the man wth whome the cup is found, he shalte my seruant. And go ye in peace vnto your father.

E Then Juba went vnto hym and sayd, oh my Lorde, lette thy seruant speake a worde in my Lordes eares, & be not wroth with thy seruant for thou art euen as Pharao. Wh<sup>er</sup> Lorde asked his seruant sayinge: haue ye a father or a brother. And we answered my Lorde: we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge lad whiche he begat in hys age: and the brother of the sayde lad is deade and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father loueth hym. And thou saydst vnto thy seruantes: bypunge hym vnto me, that I maye set myne eye vpon hym. And we answered my Lorde, s the lad coulde not goo from his father, for ye shulde leaue his father, he were but deade. Then saydst thou vnto thy seruantes: except your yonger brother come with you, I shal see my face no more. And when we came vnto thy seruant oure father, we shewed hym what my Lorde had sayde: And oure father sayde vnto vs: goo agayne, and bye vs a lytle fode. And we answered we can not goo doune.

Neuertheles

Neuerthelesse yf oure yongest brother go wyth vs, then wyll we go downe, for we maye not se the mannes face, excepte our yongest brother be wyth vs. And thy seruaunt our father sayde vnto vs: ye knowe that my wyfe bare me two sonnes. And the one went out from me, and I sayde of a surety he is tozme in peces, and I sawe him not sence. And ye take this also adwaye from me yf some misfortune happen vpon hym, * ye shal bypunge my grave head in sorowe vnto y<sup>e</sup> graue.

Nowe therfore, when I come to thy seruaunt my father, and the lad be not wyth vs, seyng y<sup>e</sup> his lyfe hangerh by the laddes lyfe) then shall it come to passe, that as soone as he seeth that the lad is not come, he wyll dye. So shal we thy seruantes bypunge the gray heede of thy seruaunt our father wyth sorowe vnto the graue. For I thy seruaunte became suretye for the lad before my father and sayde: * yf I bypunge hym not vnto the agayne, I wyll beare the blame vnto my father all my lyfe longe. Nowe therfore let me thy seruaunt byde here for the lad, and be my lordes bondman: and let the lad go vp wyth his brethren. For howe can I goo vnto my father, yf the lad be not wyth me: oulesse I wold se y<sup>e</sup> wretchednes that shall come on my father.

The xlv. Chapter.

Joseph maketh hym selfe knowne vnto his brethren, and sendeth for his father.

Joseph coulde no longer refrayne before all them that stood by hym.

Wherfore he cryed: bypunge tureh all the men from me. And there remayned no man wyth hym whyle Joseph vnterf hym selfe vnto his brethren. And he wept alowde, so that the Egyptians, and the house of Pharaoh heard it. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: I am Joseph, doth my father yet lyue?

And his brethren coulde not answer hym, they were so abashed at his presence. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren come nere to me, & they came nere. And he sayde: * I am Joseph your brother: whome ye solde into Egypte. Nowe therfore be not greued therewith, neyther let it seme a cruell thyng in youre eyes that ye solde me hither. For God byd sende me before you to saue lyfe. * For this is the seconde yere of dert in the lande, and fyue mo are behynde in whiche there shall nether be earpyng nor harvest.

Wherfore God sente me before you to make prouysyon, that ye myght contynue in the earth and to saue your lyues by a great deliuerance. So nowe it was not you that sente me hither, but God: whiche hath made me a father vnto Pharaoh: and Lorde of all his house, and ruler thowoe out all the lande of Egypte. Haste you and goo vnto my father and tell hym. This sayeth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me Lorde of all Egypte. Come downe therfore vnto me, tarpe not. And thou shalte dwell in the lande of Goshen: and byde by me, thou and thy chyldren, and thy chyldrens chyldren: thy shepe and thy beastes, and all that thou haste. And there wyll I make prouysyon for the, for there remayne yet fyue yeres of dert, lest thou and thy household and all that thou haste come to povertie. And beholde, youre eyes do se, and the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that myne owne mouth speaketh to you. Therfore tell my father of all my honoure in Egypte, and of all that ye haue sene, and make haste, and bypunge my father hither. And he fell on his brother Ben Jamins necke and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte on his necke. Moreover he kyssed all his brethren and wepte vpon them. And after that his brethren talked wyth hym. And the tydnynges came vnto Pharaohs house, so that they sayde: Josephs brethren are come, and it pleased Pharaoh well and all his seruantes.

And Pharaoh spake vnto Joseph: say vnto thy brethren, theys do ye: lade youre beastes and get you hence, vnto the lande of Canaan. Take your father, and your householdes: and come vnto me, and I wyll geue you the good of the land of Egypte, and ye shall eate of the fat of y<sup>e</sup> lande. And thou also shalte commaunde them. Theys do ye: take carrettes wyth you out of the lande of Egypte, for youre chyldren and for your wyues and bypunge your father, and come. Also regarde not youre stuffe, for the good of all y<sup>e</sup> land of Egypte is youre.

And the chyldren of Israell byd euen so. And Joseph gaue them carrettes accordyng to the commaundement of Pharaoh, and gaue them bytrayle also to spende by the waye.

And he gaue vnto eche of them chaunge of rayment: But vnto Ben Jamin he gaue thre hundred peces of syluer, and fyue chaunge of rayment. And vnto his father he sente after the same maner ten asses laden with good out of Egypte, and ten she asses laden with cozne, bread and meate for his father by the waye. So sente he his brethren adwaye to departe. And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not out by the waye.

They departed therfore from Egypte, and came into the land of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde hym sayng: Joseph is yet alyue and is gouernour ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Jacobs herte wauered: for he belened them not. And they tolde hym all the wordes of Joseph whiche he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe the charettes, whiche Joseph had sente to carpe hym, the sperte of Jacob their father reuyned. And Israell sayde: I haue prounged that Joseph my sonne is yet alyue. I wyll goo and se hym yet that I dye.

The xlii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob cometh before Pharao, & vnto hym is given the land of Golan. He maketh his son to swere for his burpel.

Joseph came therfore and told Pharao and laide my father and my brethren they? shepe and they? oxen, & all that they haue, are come out of þe lande of Canaan, and beholde: they are in the lande of Golan. And Joseph toke of the bynmost of his brethren euen syue men, and presented the vnto Pharao. And Pharao layde vnto his brethren what is your occupacyon?
 And they answered Pharao: Shepherdes are thy seruantes, both we and also our father. They sayde moreouer vnto Pharao: for to * logeorne in þe lande are we come, for thy seruantes haue no pasture for they? shepe, so sore is the * amishment in the lande of Canaan. Nowe therfore let thy seruantes dwell in the lande of Golan.

And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph thy father & thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is before the: In the best place of the land make both thy father and thy brethren dwell. euen in the lande of Golan let them dwell. More-ouer, yf thou know any man of actuyte among them, make them rulers ouer my catell. And Joseph broughte in Jacob hys father, and set hym before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao.

And Pharao sayde vnto Jacob. how olde art thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharao. the dayes of my pylgrymage are an hundred and thyrtye yeres. Fewe and euil haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeres of þe lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of they? pylgre-mages. And Jacob blessed Pharao and went out from hym. And Joseph prepared dwellyn-ges for his father and his brethren, & gaue them possessyons in the lande of Egypt, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharao had commaunded. And Joseph made prousyon for his father, his brethren: and all his fathers householde with breade, euen as yong chyldren are fedde. There was no breade in all the lande, for the dearth was exceeding sore: so that the lande of Egypte and the lande of Canaan, were famished by the reason of the dearth. And Joseph broughte together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypt, and of Canaan, for the cozne whiche they bought: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When money failed in the land of Egypt, & of Canaan all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph and sayde geue vs breade: wherfore sufferest thou vs to dye

dyt before the when our money is spent? Then sayde Joseph: byynge poure catell, and I wyl geue you for your catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought their catell vnto Joseph. And Joseph gaue them breade for horses & shepe and oxen, & asses, and fed them wth breade, for all theyr catell that yere. But when y<sup>r</sup> yere was eded, they came vnto hym the nexte yere, & sayde vnto hym we wyl not hyde it frome my Lorde howe that our money is spent, my Lorde also had our catell and beastes, nether is there ought left in the syght of my Lorde, but euen our bodie and our landes. Wherefore lette y<sup>e</sup> vs dye before thyne eyes, and the land to go to nought: bye vs & our landes for breade: and both we & our landes wyl be bounde to Pharao. Only geue vs seide, y<sup>e</sup> we maye lyue and not dye, & that the land go not to wait. And so Joseph bought all y<sup>e</sup> land of Egypt for Pharao. For y<sup>e</sup> Egyptians solde euery man his lande because the verth was sore vpon them and so the lande became Pharaos. And he appoynted the people vnto y<sup>e</sup> cyties, from one syde o. Egypt vnto the other. onely the lande of the Priestes bought he not. For the Priestes had an ordynance of Pharao, that they shoulde eate y<sup>e</sup> which was appoynted vnto them: which Pharao had geuen the wherefore they solde not theyr landes. Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde I haue bought you this daye & your lande for Pharao. Take there breade and seide and sow the lande. And of the encrease, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharao, and foure partes shal be your owne, for the seide of y<sup>e</sup> seide and for you, and them of your householdes, and for your chyldren, to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued our lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syght of my Lorde, and we wyl be Pharaos seruantes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye that Pharao shoulde haue the fyfte parte, excepte the lande of the Priestes only, whiche was not Pharaos.

And Israel dwelte in Egypt: euen in the countre of Gosan. And they had theyre possession therein, and grewe and multiplied exceedingly. Moreover, Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte seuentene yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was an hundred and xlvj yere. When the tyme drew nye, that Israel must dye, he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: Yf I haue found grace in thy syght, ob, put thy hand now vnder my thigh, and deale mercifully & truly with me, that y<sup>e</sup> burye me not in Egypte, but I wyl lye with my fathers, & thou shalt cary me out of Egypte, & burye me in theyr buryall. And he answered: I wyl do as y<sup>e</sup> haste sayde. And he sayde: swere vnto me, and he swore vnto hym. And Israel worshipped toward y<sup>e</sup> bedchamber.

And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes and sayde what are theser Joseph sayde vnto his father, they are my sonnes which God hath geuen me here. And he said ob, byng them to me, & let me blesse them. And the eyes of Israel were dym for age, so that he coulde not well se. And he brought them to hym and he kysed them and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thoughte to haue sene thy face, and yet so, God hath shewed it me, and also thy seide, and Joseph toke them away from his lap, & worshipped on the grounde before hym. Then toke Joseph the both Euzaim wth his right hande toward Israels left hande and Manasses wth his left hande, toward Israels ryght hande, & brought them vnto hym. And Israel stretched out his ryght hande, & layde it on Ephraims hed, which was the yonger, & his left hande vpon Manasses hed, guidyng his handes wylfuly for Manasses was y<sup>e</sup> elder. When Joseph saw y<sup>e</sup> his father layd his ryght hand vpon y<sup>e</sup> head of Ephraim, it displeyd him. And he lifted vp his fathers hand to haue remoued it fro Ephraims hed vnto Manasses hed, & Joseph sayd vnto his father: not so my father for this is y<sup>e</sup> eldest. And when the inhabytors of the lande (even the Cananites) saw the mournynge in the corne floze of Atrad, they sayde: this is a great mournynge vnto the Egyptians: wherfore the name of the place is called the mournynge of the Egyptians, and it is beyonde Jordane: and his scennes dyd vnto hym, accordyng as he had commaunded them. For his sonnes carped hym * into the lande of Canaan, and buried hym in the double caue of yfale which he caue * Abraham bought and the feide also, to be a place to burye in, of Egipt vnto the westhyte before Haimre. And Joseph returned into Egypte agayne, he and his brethren, and all that wente wth hym to burye his father, ) as soon as he had buried hym.

And when Josephs brethren sawe that their father was d. aoe, they sayde: Joseph myghte fortune to hate vs and * rewarde vs agayne all the euell which we dyd vnto hym. And they dyd a commaundement vnto Joseph, sayng: thy father charged vs before his death, sayng: This wyll shall ye saye vnto Joseph for geue I pray the the trespass of thy brethren, and they: spn: for they rewarded the euell. And nowe (we pray the) for geue the trespass of the seruantes o. thy fathers God. And Joseph wepte, when they spake vnto hym.

For his brethren came vnto hym, and fell flatte before his face sayng: behold, we be thy seruantes. To whome Joseph sayde: feare not. Am I God? Ye thought euell agaynst me: but God turned it vnto good, to bryng to passe as it is this daye, and to saue much people alpyne. Feare not therefore. Nowe I wyll norysh you, and your chyldren, and he comforted them, and spake kyndely vnto them.

Joseph dwelt in Egypte, he and his fathers house, and Joseph liued an hundred and ten yere. And Joseph sawe * Ephrayms chyldren, even vnto the thyrde generacyon. And vnto Machir the sonne of Manasses were chyldren borne, on Josephs knees. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: I dye. And God wyll surely vyset you and bryng you out of this lande, vnto the lande whych he sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. And Joseph toke an oth of the chyldren of Israel, sayng: God wyll not fayle but vyset you, and ye shall carry my bones hence.

And so Joseph dyed, when he was an hundred & ten yere olde. And they embalmed hym with spyes, puttynge hym in a chest in Egypte.

The fyrste Chapter.

The chyl dren of Jacob are nombred. The newe pharaon appereth. The act o the godde wyues.

These are the names of the chyldren of Israel, whiche came to Egypt wth Jacob euery man came with his houtholde: Ruben Simcon Leui, and Iuda, Issachar, and Benjamin, Dan Asephali, Gad, and Aser. All the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob were .lxx. But Joseph was in Egypte already. And Joseph dyed and all his brethren, and all p generacyon, and the chyldren of Israel grete increased, multiplyed, and waxed exceedingly: and the lande was full of them.

But there rose vp a newe kyng in Egypte, whiche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: behold, the people of the chyldren of Israel are greater and myghtier then we. Come on, let vs playe wth them, lest they multiplye, and lest it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they loyne them selues vnto our enemies, and fyght agaynst vs, and so get them out of the lande. Therefore dyd they set taskmasters over them, to kepe them vnder wth burdens. And they buyle vnto Pharaon treasure cities: Pithon and Rameses. But the more they vbered them, p more they multiplied and grew so that they abhorred the chyldren of Israel. And the Egyptians helde the chyldren of Israel in bondage without merce. Therefore was theye lyfe bytter vnto them in that cruell bondage, in claye and byrche, & all maner of worke in the feldes. For all they: bondage whiche they serued them, was full of cruelte.

And the kyng of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyes of the hebrues women, of whiche y ones name was Sephora and the other Phua, when ye do the offyce of a midwyfe to the woman of y hebrues and se in y byrth tyme that it is a boye ye shall kyl it. But if it be a doughter, it shall lyue. Now, thystanding the mydwyes feared God, & dyd not as the kyng of Egypte comaunded them but saued the men chyldren. And the kyng of Egypte called for the mydwyes, & sayde vnto the why haue you delt on this maner, & gaue saue y men chyldren? And y mydwyes answered Pharaon, that the hebrues women are not as the we-

men of Egypte: for they are sturdy women, and are deliuered yet the myddowes come at them. And God therfore delt wel with the myddowes. And the people multiplied & waxed very myghty. And it fortuned because the myddowes feared God, he made them houses. And Pharaos charged all his people saying. All the men chylidren that are borne cast into the ryuer, and saue the maydechylidren alpye.

And she had compassion on it, and sayde: it is one of the hebreus chylidren. Then sayde his syster vnto Pharaos daughter: Shall I goo and call vnto the a nurse of the hebreus women to nurse the the chylde? Pharaos daughter answered her: Go. And the mayde ranne and called the chylides mother. To whome Pharaos daughter sayde. Take thys chylde a way, and nurse it for me, I wyll reward the. And the woman toke the chylde and nursed it vp. The chylde grewe, and she brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, and it was made her son, and she called þ name of it Moses, because (sayd she) I toke hym out of the water. And it happened in thole dapes, when Moses was waxed greete, that he went out vnto hys brethren & looked on theyre burdens, and spied an Egypcian smytynge an hebreue whiche was one of his brethren. And he looked rounde aboute, and when he sawe no man by, he slew the Egypcian, and hyd hym in the sande. And when he was gone out another dape, beholde: two hebreus stroue together. And they answered: a man of Egypt deliuered vs from the hande of the shephards, and so drew vs water, and watered the shepe. he sayde vnto his daughters. And where is he? why haue ye so left the man? And it chaunced in procelle of tyme, that the kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chylidren of Israel spghed be the reason of bondage, and cryed. And theyr complaynt came vp vnto God from the bondage: and God hearde theyr mone. And God remembred hys promyse wyth Abraham, Isahac and Jacob. And God looked vpon þ chylidren of Israel, and God had respect vnto them.

The.iii. Chapter.

And wlex. he Lorde saw that he came for to se, God called vnto him out of the myddes of the bushe, and sayde: Moses, Moses. he answered: here am I. unto the place of the Cananytes and Hethtes, and Amozites, and Pherezites, and Heuites, & of the Jebusites. Now therefore, the complaynt of the chyldren of Israel is come vnto me, and I haue also sente the opprellpon wgerwith þe Egiptians oppresse them. Come thou therefore, and I wyll sende the vnto Pharaon, that thou mayest brynge my people the chyldren of Israel out of Egypt. And Moses sayde vnto God. what am I to go vnto Pharaon, and to brynge the chyldren of Israel out of Egypt? And he answered: I wyll be with the. And this shalbe a token vnto the, that I haue sente the: after that thou haste brought the people out of Egypt, ye shal serue God vpon this mountayne. And Moses sayde vnto God: beholde, when I come vnto the chyldren of Israel I shal saye vnto them the God of your fathers hath sent me vnto you, and yf they saye vnto me, what is his name, what answer shall I geue them? And God answered Moses. I am that I am: and he sayde, thus shalte thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel. I am hath sent me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moses: thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: the Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you: thus is my name for euer, and this is my memorypall into generacyon and generacyon. So and gather the elders of Israel together, and thou shalt saye vnto them. þe Lord God of poure fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob appeared vnto me, and sayde. In visyting haue I visyted you, and knowe that whiche is done to you in Egypt. And I haue sayde, I wyll brynge you out of the tribulacion of Egypt vnto the land of the Cananytes, and Hethtes, and Amozites, and Pherezites, and Heuites, and Jebusites: euen vnto a lande that floweth with mylke & hony. And when they heare thy voyce then go: both thou and the elders of Israel shall goo vnto the kynge of Egypt, and saye vnto hym: The Lord God of the hebrues hath met with vs: & now we wyll go therfore. iii. dayes iourney into the wylde, and doo sacrifice vnto the Lord our God. And I am sure, that þe kynge of Egypt wyll not let you go: no not in a myght: and I wyll stretch out myne hande and smyte Egypte with all my wonders which I wyll do in the myddes therof. And after that he wyl let you go. And I wyl get this people fauoure in the syght of the Egiptians so that whē ye go, ye shal not go empty: but a wife shall borowe of her neyghbours and of her þe so: georneth in her house, iewels of syluer and golde and rayment. And ye shall put the on your sons and daughters, and shall rob the Egiptians.

The. lili. Chapter.

Moses receiued signes of his calling & was sent into Egypt his wyfe zephora, a egiptian, vnto her son Aaron mereth with Moses. Moses laboureth his leaue of his father in lawe.

Moses answered and sayde: Se, they wyll not beleue me, nor harken vnto my voyce: but wyll saye, the Lord hath not appeared vnto the. And the Lord sayde vnto hym: what is that which is in thy hande: he answered a rodde. And he sayde: cast it on the ground. And he cast it on þe ground and it became a serpent. And Moses fled from the syght of it. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses put furth thyne hande & take it by the tayle. And therefore he put furth his hande and caught it, and it became a rodde in his hande. For this thyng, sayeth he, shall they beleue the, that the Lord God of theyr fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the Lord sayde furthermore vnto hym þe thruste thyne hande in to thy bosome. And he thrust his hande into his bosome. And when he toke it out agayne, beholde his hande was lpyrous euen as snowe. And he sayde: put thyne hande into thy bosome agayne. And he put his hande into his bosome agayne, and plucked it out of his bosome, and beholde, it was turned agayne as his other fleshe. Therefore yf they wyl not beleue the, nether heare the voyce of the first token, yet wyl they beleue for the voyce of the seconde token. But and yf they wyl not beleue the two spynes, neyther herken vnto thy voyce, thou shalt take of the water of the ryuer, and powre it vpon the drye lande. And the water whiche thou takest out of the ryuer, shall turne to bloude vpon the drye lande.

Moses sayde vnto the Lord oh my Lord, I am not eloquent from yester day and yet yester daye, and namely sence thou haste spoken vnto thy seruant but I am now mouthed and now tunded. And þe Lord sayde vnto hym: who hath made mans mouth, or who hath made the deafe, or the deafe, the seynge or the blynde haue not I the Lord? Therefore I wyl be with thy mouth and teache the what thou shalt saye. He sayde: oh my Lord, sende I praye the by the hande of hym whome thou wylte sende. And the Lord was angrie with Moses, and sayde: doo not I know Aaron thy brother the Leuyte, that he can speake? For lo, he cometh furent to mete the, and when he seyth the, he wyl be glad in his parte. Therefore thou shalt speake vnto hym, and put these wordes in his mouth, and I wyl be with thy mouth and with his mouth, and wil teache you what ye ought to do. And he shalbe thy spokesman vnto the people: he also shal be thy mouth and thou shalt be his God and thou shalt take this rod in thy hande, wherewith thou shalt do myzacles. Therefore Moses went and returned to Jethro his father in lawe agayne, and sayde vnto hym: I wyl go nowe, and turne agayne vnto my brethren whiche are in Egypt and se whether they be yet alyue. And Jethro sayde to Moses, goo in peace. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses in Midian: goo and returne agayne into Egypt, for they are deade which went abonte to kyll the. And Moses toke his wyfe, and his sonnes, and put them on an asse, and wente agayne to Egypt, and Moses toke the rod of God in his hande. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: when thou arte entred and come in to Egypt agayne, se that thou doo all these thinges.

Wonders before Pharaon, whiche I haue put in thy hande: but I wyll holde * hys herte, and he shall not lette the people goo. And thou shalt saye vnto Pharaon, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and I haue sayde vnto the that thou shouldest let my sonne go, that he maye serue me. And thou woldest not let hym goo, behold, I wyll * be thyne eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the way in the Jorne that the Lorde met hym, and wolde haue kylled hym.
 And zephora toke a stone, and cut away the fore skynne of her sonne, and fell at his fete, and sayd a bloudy husbnde art thou vnto me. Then he let hym go. And she sayde a bloudy husbnde, because of the circumcysion. Then sayde the Lorde vnto Aaron go mete Moses in the wyldernesse.
 And he went and met hym in the mount of God and kyssed hym. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lorde which had sent hym, and al the tokens whiche he had charged hym wthall.
 So wente Moses and Aaron, and gathered all the elders of the chyldren of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes which the Lord had spoken vnto Moses, and dyd the myracles in the syght of the people, and the people beleued. And when they hearde that the Lorde had visyted the chyldren of Israel and had looked vpon theyr tribulacyon, they bowed theyr head, and worshypped.

The. v. Chapter.

Moses and Aaron go vnto Pharaon. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more, and they crye out vpon Moses and Aaron therfore.

Moses and Aaron went in after ward, and tolde Pharaon, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. Let my people go, that they maye kepe holy daie vnto me in the wyldernes. And Pharaon sayde who * is the Lorde, that I shulde heare his voyce, and let Israel go: I knowe not the Lorde, neyther wyll I let Israel go. And they sayde, the God of the hebrews hath met with vs: and therfore wyll we goo thre dayes iourney in the deserte and sacryfyce vnto the Lorde our God: lest there happen vnto vs, ether pestylence or sweard. Then sayd the kynge of Egypte vnto them: wherfore doye (Moses and Aaron) let the people from theyr worke: get you vnto your labour. And Pharaon sayde further more: beholde, there is muche people nowe in the lande, and ye make them leaue theyr worke. And Pharaon commaunded the same daie vnto the taskemasters which were among the people and vnto the offycers, sayng: ye shal geue the people nomore strawe, to make byrche wthall, (as ye dyd in tyme passed,) let them goo and gather them strawe them selues, and the nomi-bre of byrche whiche they were wonte to make in tyme passed laye vnto theyr charges also, and mynys the nothyng of therof. For they be ydel and therfore crye sayng: we wyll go and do sacryfyce vnto our god. They must haue more worke layde vpon them, that they maye labour therein and not regarde wayne wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people & the offycers out: and tolde the people: Thus sayeth Pharaon. I wyll geue you nomore strawe, go your selues and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of your labour be minyshed. And so were the people scatred abrode throrowe out all the lande of Egypte: for to gather stubble in steade of strawe. And the taskema-sters hasted them forwarde sayng: fulfyll our worke daie by daie, euen as yf ye had strawe.

 And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel which Pharaons taskemasters had set ouer them, were beaten. And they said vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfyllid your taske in makynge byrche, both yester day and to daie, as well as in tymes past? The offycers also of the chyldren of Israell, came and complayned vnto Pharaon, sayng wherfore dealest thou thus wth thy seruauntes: there is no strawe geuen to thy seruauntes, and they saye vnto vs: make byrche. And thy seruauntes are beaten, & thy people is foule intreated. He sayde, ydel are ye, ydel: and therfore ye saye. We wyll go and do sacryfyce vnto the Lorde. Soo therfore nowe and worke and there shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet shall ye de-lyuer the whole tale of byrche.

And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel dyd with heynesse loke on them that sayde ye shall minys the nothyng of your dayly makynge of byrche. And they met Moses and Aaron which stode in theyr waye as they came out from Pharaon, and sayde vnto them: The Lord loke vpon you and iudge you, which hath made the sauour of vs syncke in the yes of Pharaon and in the es-es of his seruauntes: and haue put a sweard in theyr hande to sle vs. Moses returned vnto the Lorde, and sayde Lord, wherfore hast thou delt cruelly wth this people, & wherfore haste thou sent me: for sence I came to Pharaon to speake in thy name, he hath feared foule wth this folke, & yet thou hast not deliuered thy people at all.

Then the Lord sayde vnto Moses: Howe shalt thou se, what I wyll doo vnto Pharaon, for in a myghty hande shal he let them go, & in a myghty hande shal he dryue them out of his lande.

God promyseth the deliuerance of the Israelites and the lande of Chanaan. The Genealogy of Labben, Symeon, and Reu.

And God spake vnto Moses, & sayd vnto him: I am the Lord: I appeawth them to geue them the land of Chanaan. & lande of theyr pylgrymage, wherein they were straungers. And I haue also heard the gronyng of the chyldren of Israel, whom the Egyptians kepe in bondage, and haue remembred my coue-naunte. Wherfore saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I am the Lorde, I wyll byynge you out from the burdens of the Egyptians, and wyll ryd you out of theyr bondage, and wyll deliuer you in a stretched out arme and in greute widgementes. And I wyll take you for my people, and wyll be to you a God. And ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God, whiche byynge you out from the burdens of the Egyptians. And I wyll

will bypunge you vnto the lande concernyng the whych I dyd lyfte vpon my hande to geue it vnto Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, and will geue it vnto you for a possession: euen in the Lorde.

And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel euen so.

But they harkened not vnto Moses, for angryth of sperte and for cruel bondage. The lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: Goo in, and speake vnto Pharaos kyng of Egypte, that he lette the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande. And Moses spake before the Lorde, sayinge: beholde, the chyldren of Israel herken not vnto me, howe then shall Pharaos heare me, whych am of vncircumcysed lippes? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and vnto Aaron, & gaue them a charge vnto the chyldren of Israel: and vnto Pharaos kyng of Egypte: to bypunge the chyldren of Is-

Lorde spake vnto Moses in the lande of Egypt he spake vnto hym, sayinge: I am the Lorde, all that I commaunded the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharaos that he sende the chyldren of Israel out of his lande.

And * I will harden Pharaos harte, and multiple my myracles and my wordes in the lande of Egypte. But Pharaos shall not herken vnto you, that I may set myne hande vpon Egypte and bypunge out myne armys, and my people chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypt, in greate iudgements, and the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lorde, when I stretch furth my hande vpon Egypte, and bypunge out chyldren of Israel from amonge them.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde comanded them, euen so dyd they. Moses was. lxxi.
yere olde, and Aaron. lxxiii. when they spake vnto Pharaos. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: If Pharaos speake vnto you sayinge: Shewe a wonder, thou shalt say vnto Aaron: take thy rod and caste it before Pha-raos, that it maye be a serpent. Then went Moses and Aaron in vnto Pharaos, and dyd euen as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron caste furth his rod before Pharaos and before his seruauntes: and it turned to a serpent. Then Pha-raos called for the wyse men and enchauntes, and those wyse men of Egypte dyd in lyke maner with theyr sorcery. For they cast downe eue-ry man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde dyd eat vp theyr rodde: and he hardened Pharaos herte: that he harkened not vnto them, euen as the Lorde had sayde.

The Lorde also sayde vnto Moses: Phara-os herte is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go. Get the vnto Pharaos in the morninge, so, he will come vnto the water, and thou shalt stande vpon the ryuers bypyncke agaynst he come, and the rod whiche turned to a serpente, shalt thou take in thynne hande. And thou shalt saye vnto hym: the Lorde God of the hebrewes hath sent me vnto the, sayinge: let my people go, that they may serue me in the wylernes: And beholde, hyt herto thou wouldest not heare. Thus sayth the Lorde.
Beholde, I will smyte (with the staffe that is in myne hande) the water that is in the ryuer, & it shall turne to bloude. And the fische that is in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer shall stynke: and it shall greue the Egyptians to drynke of the water of the ryuer. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron. take thy staffe and stretch out thynne hande ouer the waters of Egypt ouer theyr streames, ouer theyr ryuers and ponde, & all pooles of water, whych they haue, that they maye be bloude, and that there maye be bloude thorowout all the lande of Egypte. both in vessels of woode and also of stone. And Moses and Aaron dyd euen as the Lorde commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the ryuer in the syght of Pharaos, and in the syght of his seruauntes. and all the water that was was in the ryuer, turned into bloude. And the fysh that was in the ryuer dyed, * and the ryuer stauke: and the Egyptians coulde not drynke of the waters of the ryuer. And there was bloude thowout all the lande of Egypte. And the en-chaunters of Egypte dyd lyke wyse with theyr sorceryes, and he hardened Pharaos hert: neyther dyd he harken vnto them * as the Lorde had sayde. And Pharaos turned hym selfe, and went agayn into his house, & set not his hert therunto.

 And the Egyptians dygged counde about þe ryuer for water to drynke, for they could not drynke of the water of þe ryuer. And it continued a weke after that the Lorde had smyten the ryuer.

The vii. Chapter.

The plague of frogges. Moses prayeth for Pharaos. The plague of the flies.

The Lorde spake vnto Moses: Soo vnto Pharaos and tel him, thus sayeth the Lorde: * let my people go & they maye serue me. If thou wylt not let them go behold, I wil smite all thy border with frogges. And the ryuer shal scall with frogges, which shal go vp and come in to thyne house. and in to thy pryncipe chamber where thou slepest, and vpon thy bed, and into the house of thy seruauntes, and vpon thy people, and into thyne ouens, and vpon thy meates.
 And the frogges shal come vpon the and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruauntes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses. Saye vnto Aaron: stretch furth thyne hande wth thy rod ouer the streames, ouer the ryuers, and ouer the ponde, that thou mayst brynge vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the waters of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, and couered þe lande of Egypte.
 And the sorcerers dyd lyke wyse with theyr sorcery, and brought frogges vp vpon the lande of Egypte. Then Pharaos called for Moses and Aaron and sayde: * praye ye vnto the Lord that he maye take awaye the frogges from me: and from my people, and I wyl let the people go. þe they maye do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayd vnto Pharaos. reioyce thou ouer me, and appoynte when I shal praye for the and for thy seruauntes, and for thy people, to dryue awaye the frogges from the, and thy houses, and þe they maye remayne but in the ryuer only. He sayde: to morowe. And he sayde, euen as thou hast sayde that thou mayest knowe that there is none lyke vnto þe Lorde our God. And so the frogges shal departe from the and from thy houses, from thy seruauntes and from thy people, and shal re-maine in the ryuer only. Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaos, and Moses cryed vnto the Lorde vpon the appoynement of frogges, whiche he had made vnto Pharaos. And þe Lord dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houses, out of þe cour-tes and feldes. And they gathered them together vpon heapes, and the lande stauke of them.

But when Pharaos sawe that he had rest geuen hym, he hardened his herte and hekened not vnto them, as the Lorde had sayde. And þe Lord sayde vnto Moses. Saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rod and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyle thowout all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. For Aaron stretched out his hande, and with his rod he smote the dust of the earth which turned to lyle in men & beaste so that all the duste of the lande turned to lyle, thowout all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters assayed lyke wyse with theyr enchaunmentes to brynge furth lyle, but they coulde not. And the lyle were both vpon men and beastes. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharaos: it is the finger of God. And Pha-raos herte remayned obstinate, and he harkned not vnto them, euen * as þe Lorde had sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryle vp early in the mornynge, and stand before Pharaos for he wyl come furth vnto the water and thou shalt saye vnto hym thus sayeth the Lorde: Let my people go, that they maye serue me. Els, yf thou wylt not let my people go: behold, I wyl sende all maner of flies bothe vpon the and thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into the houses.
 And the houses of the Egyptians shal be full of flies, and the grounde wgeron they are. And þe lande of * Golan where my people are, wyl cause to be wonderful in that daye so that there shal no flies be there. Wherby thou shalt knowe that I am the Lorde in the myddes of the earth.
 And I wyl put a diuysyon betwene my people and thyne. And euen to morowe shal this myracle be done. And the Lorde dyd euen so, and there came noysome flies into the house of Pharaos, & into his seruauntes houses, and into all the land of Egypt: and the lande was corrupt with these flies. And Pharaos called for Moses and Aaron and sayde: So and do sacrifice vnto youre God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete that we do so. For then we must offer vnto the Lorde our God, that whiche is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians. But and yf we sacrifice that which is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians before they eyes, quid they not stone vs: we wyl go thre dayes iorney into the deserte, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God, * as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharaos sayde: I wyl let you go that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde your God in the wyldecnesse: but go not farrer awaye, praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I wyl go out from the, and praye vnto the Lorde, that þe flies maye departe from Pharaos, and from his seruauntes and from his people to morowe. But let Pharaos from hence furth decrease nomore, þe he wyl not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moses went out from Pharaos and prayde vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moses, and the flies departed from Pharaos, and from his seruauntes, and from his people, & there remayned not one. And Pharaos hardened his herte euen then also, and dyd not let the people go.

The ix. Chapter.

The moyn of beastes. The plague of botches & sores. The horribile hoyle, thunders, and lychtynge.

The

3 Exo. vii. c.  The Lorde sayde vnto Moses: goo in vnto Pharaon and thou shalt tel him thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebyues: *tel my people goo, that they maye serue me. If thou wylt not let them go, and wylt holde them still, beholde. the hande of the Lorde is vpon thy flocke whiche is in the felde for vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen, and shepe, there shalbe a myghty great moynyn And the Lorde shall do wonderfully betwene þ beasts of Israel and the beasts of Egypte. so that there shal notynge dye of all that pertaineth to the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde appointed a tyme, sayinge. to morowe the Lorde shall synche thys worde in the lande. And the Lorde dyd it on the morowe, and all the catel of Egypte dyed but of the catell of the chyldren of Israel dyed not one. And Pharaon sent, and beheld: there was not one of the catel of þ Israelites deade. And the herte of Pharaon was hardened that he wolde not let the people go.

4 And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take poure handes full of asphers out of the fornace, and Moses shal spynkle it vpon the apye, in the syghte of Pharaon, and it shall turne to dust in all the lande of Egypt: that there may be swellynge sores with blaynes both on man & best thowout all the lande of Egypte. And they toke asphers out of the furnace, and stode before Pharaon, and Moses spynkled it vpon to þ apye. And there were sores with blaynes both in men and in bestes: and the sozerers coulde not stonde before Moses because of the blaynes for there were botches vpon the enchaunteres & vpon all the Egyptians. And the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharaon, and he harkened not vnto them: as the Lorde had sayde vnto Moses.

Exo. viii. c. Exo. viii. c.  And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: rylc vp early in the mornynge, and stande before Pharaon, and thou shalt tel him thus sayth þ Lord God of the Ebyues: *let my people go þ they maye serue me or elles I wyl at this tyme send all my plages vpon thyne herte, and vpon thy seruantes and on thy people, that thou mayst know, that there is none lyke me in all the earth. For nowe I wyl stretch out myne hande, that I may synche the and thy people with pestylence and thou shalt perishe from the earth. And in very dede, *for this cause haue I kepte the, for to shewe the my power: and that they myght declare my name thowout all the worlde.

5 Yet thou exaltest thy selfe agaynst my people, that thou wylt not let them go: beholde, to morowe this tyme I wyl sende downe a myghty grete hayle: such suche a one as was not in Egypte, sence it was grounde vnto this tyme. Sende therfore nowe, and gather thy bestes, and all that thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the men and the bestes which are founde in the felde, and not brought home, shall the hayle fall and they shall dye. And as many as feared the worde of the Lorde amonge the seruantes of Pharaon made theyre seruantes and theyre bestes flee into þ houses but he that regarded not the worde of the Lorde, left his seruantes and his bestes in the felde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that there maye be hayle in all the lande of Egypte: vpon man and vpon bestes, and vpon all the herbes of the felde, thowout all þ lande of Egypte. And Moses stretched out his rod vnto heauen and the Lorde thundred and hayled, & the fyre ran a longe vpon the ground. *And the Lorde so hayled in the lande of Egypte, þ there was hayle and fyre myngled with the hayle, so greuous, and suche as there was none thowout all the lande of Egypte, sence people inhabited it. And the hayle smote thowout all þ land of Egypte, all that was in the felde both man & best. And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and broke all the trees of the felde: onely in the lande of Gyzam, where the chyldren of Israel were, was no hayle. And Pharaon sent and called for Moses and Aaron, & sayde vnto them I haue now synned: the Lorde is ryghteous, & I and my people are vngodly. *Praye ye vnto the Lorde for it is muche þ there shulde be thunders of God and hayle. I wyl let you go, and ye shall tary no longer. Moses sayde vnto hym: as sone as I am out of the Eptie, I wyl spede abroad my handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder shall cease, neyther shall there be any more hayle, that thou mayst know howe that þ earth is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruantes yet feare not the face of þ Lord god.

And so the flaxe and the barley were smytten for the barley was out vp, & the flaxe was bould: but the wheate and the rye were not smytte for they were late sowne. And Moses went out of the eptie from Pharaon and spede abroad his handes vnto the Lorde and the thunder & hayle ceased, neyther rained it vpon the earth. And when Pharaon saw that the rayne and the hayle and thunder were ceased, he synned agayne and hardened his herte, he and his seruantes. And the herte of Pharaon was hardened: neyther wold he lette the chyldren of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde by the hande of Moses.

The x. Chapter.

The herte of Pharaon is hardened of God. The grete pestilence. The theke darke.

1 Exo. x. c.  And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, go in vnto Pharaon for *I haue hardened his herte, and the herte of his seruantes, that I might put thesc my sygnes amongest them, and þ thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sonnes sonne, what thynges I haue done in Egypte, and the myracles whiche I haue done amonge them. that ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. And so Moses and Aaron came vnto Pharaon and sayde vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebyues, howe longe shal it be or thou wylt submyt thy selfe vnto me? *let my people go, that they maye serue me. *Ergo: *if thou do not, and wylt not let my people go: beholde, to morowe wyl I brynge grethopers into thy coastes, and they shal couer the face of the earth, that it can not be sene: and they shal eate the resydue whiche remaineth vnto you and

And is escaped from the hable and they shall eat euery grene tree that beareth you frute in y<sup>e</sup> felde and they shall fyll thy houses, and all thy seruantes houses, and the houses of all the Egyptians after suche a maner as neyther thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue sene, sence y<sup>e</sup> tyme they were vpon the earth vnto this daye. And he turned hym selfe about, & went out from Pharaos.

And Pharaos seruantes sayde vnto hym, howe longe shall he be a flander vnto vs? Let the men go, that they maye serue the Lord their God: knowest thou not that Egypte is destroyed? And Moses & Aaron were brought agayne vnto Pharaos, and he sayde, then go, and serue y<sup>e</sup> Lord your God. Who are they that shall go? And Moses answered we wyl go wth our ponge and with our olde: yee, and with our sonnes and with our daughters, and with our wyues and with our oxen we muste go. For we muste holde a fcaste vnto the Lord.

And he sayd vnto them, let it be so. The lord be with you. When I let you go, and your chyldren also, take yeede, for ye haue some mischefe in hande. Naye, not so but go they that are men & serue the Lord, for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaos presence. And the Lord sayde vnto moles Stretch out thynne hande ouer the lande of Egypte for greschoppers that they maye come vpon the lande of Egypte and eate all the herbes of the lande, and all that the hable leste behynde. And Moses stretched furthys rod ouer the lande of Egypte: and the Lord brought an east wynde vpon the lande at that daye, and all that nyght. And in the morninge, the east wynde broughte the greschoppers, and the greschoppers wente vpon all the lande of Egypte: and remayned in all quarters of Egypte very greuously. Before them were there no suche greschoppers, neyther after them shalbe for they couered all the face of the earth, so that the lande was darke. And they dyd eate all the hearbes of the lande, and all the fentes of the trees, and whatsoeuer the hable hadde leste: there was no grene thynges left in the trees and herbes of the felde thorow all y<sup>e</sup> lande of Egypt.

Therefore Pharaos called for Moses and Aaron in haste, and sayde: I haue sinned agaynst y<sup>e</sup> Lord your God, and agaynst you. And nowe forgiue me my synne once this once and praye vnto the Lord your God, that he maye take awaye from me this deeth only. And Moses went out from Pharaos, and prayde vnto the Lord. And the Lord turned a myghty stronge weste wynde, and it toke awaye the greschoppers, and caste them into the red see, so that there was not one greschopper in all the coste of Egypte. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wold not let the chyldren of Israell go.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses Stretch out thy hande vnto heauen, that there maye be vpon the lande of Egypte darknes which maye be felt. And Moses stretched furth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thicke darknesse vpon all the lande of Egypte thre dayes longe, no man sawe another, neyther rose vp from y<sup>e</sup> place where he was by the space of thre dayes but all y<sup>e</sup> chyldren of Israell had lycht where they dwelled.

And Pharaos called for Moses and sayde: go and serue the Lord, only let your shepe and your oxen abyde, and let your chyldren go with you. And Moses sayde: thou must geue vs also offerynges and burnt offerynges for to sacrifice vnto the Lord our God: our catell also shall go wth vs, and there shall not one hefe be leste behynde for thereof muste we take to serue the Lord, our God. Acyther do we knowe what we shall offer vnto the Lord, vntill we come thither.

But the Lord hardened Pharaos herte: and he wolde not let them go. And Pharaos sayd vnto hym get the frome, and take hed to thy selfe, and se my face nomore. For when soeuer thou comest in my syght, thou shalt dye. And Moses sayde: Let it be as thou hast sayde, I wyl se thy face no more.

Exe. xi. Chapter.

The Lord commaundeth to radd the Egyptians. The death of all the fyrst begotten in Egypte.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses pet I wyl I bring one plage more vpon Pharaos vpon Egypte and after y<sup>e</sup> he wyl let you go hence. And when he letteth you go, he shall utterly dryue you hence. Speake y<sup>e</sup> therefore in the eares of the people y<sup>e</sup> euery man borrowe of his neyghbour, and euery woman of her neyghbour: ic wels of syluer and iewels of gold. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord shall geue the people fauour in the syghte of the Egyptians. Moreover, * Moses was very great in the lande of Egypt, in the syght of Pharaos seruantes and in the syght of the people.

And Moses sayde thus sayeth the Lord. * At mydynyght wyl I go out into the myddes of Egypte, and all the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte shal dye, euen from the fyrst borne of Pharaos that sytteth on this seate, vnto y<sup>e</sup> fyrst borne of the mayde seruaunte that is behynde the myll and all the fyrst genbred of the catell. And there shall be a greate crye thorowout all the lande of Egypt, suche as there was neuer none lyke, nor shalbe. But amonge the chyldren of Israell shal not a dog moue his tunge, nor pet man or beast that pe maye knowe howe that the Lord putteth a dyfference betwene the Egyptians and Israell. And these thy seruantes shall all come downe vnto me. And fall before me, and saye: get the out and all the people that are vnder the, and then wyl I departe. And he wente out from Pharaos with an angry countenance. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses. Pharaos shall not heare pon, that my wonders maye be multiplied in the Lande of Egypte. And Moses and Aaron dyd al these wonders, which are wyrtten, before Pharaos. And the Lord hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israell go out of his lande.

Exe. xii. Chapter.

The passouer is eaten. The fowte breade. They m<sup>e</sup>te the chylren what the passouer is gynteth. The heuyn of the fyrst begotten in Egypte. The raddeth of the Egyptians, The going out of the Israellites.

And

M And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron in the lande of Egypte sayinge: Eþys moneth shall be vnto you the begynnyng of monethes and the fyrste moneth of þe pere shall it be vnto you. Speake þe vnto all the congregacion of Israel, sayinge: In the tenth daye of this moneth euery man take vnto hym a lambe accordyng to the house of the fathers a lambe thowout euery house. If the household be to lytle for the lambe, let hym take his neyghbour whiche is next vnto hym house accordyng to the nombre of þe soules euery one of you, accordyng to his eatyng, shal make your count for a lambe. And let the lambe of yours be without blemyshe a male of a pere olde whiche þe shall take out fro amonge the shepe, or from amonge the goates.

And þe shall kepe hym vntyll the .xiiij. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shall kyll hym about euen. And they shal take of the bloude, and streke it on the two syde postes and on the vpper doze post euen in the houses, where they shall eat hym. And they shal cate the fleshe the same nyght, roste wth fyre and with unleuened bread and with sower herbes they shal cate it. Se þe eate not thereof rawe nor soden in water, but roste with fyre: the heade, fet, and purtenaunce therof. And þe shall let nothing of it to remayne vnto the mornyng. That whiche remaineth of it vntyll the morowe, shall þe butne with fyre.

Of this maner shall þe eate it with your loynes girded, and your shoes on your fete and your staves in your handes. And þe shal cate it in haste for it is the Lordes pascouer: for I wyl passe thowthe the lande of Egypte this same nyght, and wyl smyte all the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte both of man and beaste, and vpon all the goddes of Egypte wyl I the Lorde do execution. And the bloude shal be vnto you a token in the houses where in þe are. And when I se the bloude, I wyl passe ouer you, and the plage shal not be vpon you to destroye you, when I smyte the lande of Egypte. And this daye shal be vnto you a remembraunce: and þe shall kepe it holy vnto the Lorde, euen thowthe oure your generacions shall þe kepe it holpe daye, that it be a custome for euer. * Seuen dayes shall þe eate unleuened breade: and the fyrste daye þe shall put a waye leuen out of your houses. For whoso euer eateh leuened breade from the fyrst day vntyll the seuenth daye, that soule shal be plucked out from Israel. * The fyrste daye shal be an holpe conuocacion, and the seuenth daye shal be an holpe conuocacion vnto you. There shal be no maner of worke done in them, saue about that onely whiche euery man must eate, þe onely maye þe do. And þe shall obserue unleuened breade. For this same daye haue I brought your armyes out of the lande of Egypte, therefore þe shall obserue this daye, and all your chyldren after you, by a custome for euer. * The first moneth, and the fourtene daye of the moneth at euen, þe shall eate swete bread vnto the .xiiij. daye of the moneth at euen agayn. Seuen dayes shal there be no leuened breade founde in your houses. And whoso euer eateh leuened breade, that soule shal be rote out from the multitude of Israel: whether he be a straunger or borne in the lande. Þe shall eate nothinge leuened: but in all your habitacions shall þe eate swete breade.

Moses called for the elders of Israel & sayde vnto them chose out and take you to euery household of you a shepe, and kyll it for pascouer. And take a bunch of plope, & dyp it in the bloud that is in the bason, and stryke the vpper poste and the two syde postes with the bloude that is in the bason, and none of you go out at the dore of his house, vntyll the mornyng. For the Lorde wyl go aboute to smyte the Egyptians. And when he seeth the bloud vpon þe vpper doze post and on the two syde postes he wyl passe ouer the doze, and wyl not suffer the destroyer to come in to your house to plage you. Therefore shal þe obserue this thyng, that it be an ordinaunce both to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when þe be come into the lande whiche the Lorde wyl geue you, accordyng as he hath promysed, þe shal kepe this scrupce. * And when your chyldren aske you what maner of scrupce is this þe do, þe shal saye it is the sacrifice of the Lordes pascouer whiche passed ouer the houses of the chyldren of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians and saued our houses. And the people bowed themselves, & worshipped: And the chyldren of Israel went, and dyd as þe Lorde had commaunded Moyses & Aaron. Euen so dyd they. And at .xiiij. nyght, the Lorde smote all þe fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte, from þe fyrst borne of Pharao that sat on his seate, vnto the fyrst borne of the captiue that was in pylon, and all the fyrst gendered of catell. And Pharao rose, vp in the nyght, he and all his seruantes & all the Egyptians: * and there was a great cryinge in Egypte, for there was no house where there was not one deade. And he called vnto Moyses and Aaron by nyght, sayinge: ryle vp & get you out from amonge my people bothe þe & also the chyldren of Israel, and go and serue the Lorde as þe haue sayde. And take your shepe & your oxen with you as þe haue sayde, and departe and * blesse me. And the Egyptians were fearce vpon the people, that they myghte sende them out of the lande in haste for they sayde we dye all. And the people toke theyr dough before it was sowred, and theyr vitayles bounde in clothes vpon their shulders. And þe chyldren of Israel dyd accordyng to the saying of Moyses. And they borrowed of þe Egyptians * ierwels of syluer ierwels of gold, & rayment. And the Lorde gaue þe people fauoure in the syght of the Egyptians: so that they graunted suche thynges as they requested. And they robbed the Egyptians. And þe chyldren of Israel toke theyr iourney from Ramses to Suchoth: syre hundred thousande men of fote, besyde chyldren. And muche comen people wente out also with them, and shepe and oxen an exceeding great flocke. And they baked swete cakes of þe dough which they brought out of Egypt, for it was not sowred. they were thruste oute by the Egyptians, they could not say to prepare themselves any provision of meate. The dwelling of the children of Israel, which they dwelled in Egypte was four hundred and thirtie yeres, and when the four hundred and thirtie yeres were cryed, even the selfe same daye departed all the hostes of the Lorde out of the lande of Egypt. It is a nyght to be observed to the Lorde, in the which he brought them out of y lande of Egypt. This is that nyght of the Lorde which all the children of Israel must kepe thorowout theyr generacions. And the Lorde sayde unto Moles and Aaron: This is the lawe of the pascouer: there shall no straunger eate thereof. But every servaunt y is bought for money (after that thou hast circumcised him) shall eate thereof. A straunger and an hyred servaunt shall not eate thereof. In one house shall it be eaten. Thou shalt carry none of the fliche out at y house. * Neither shalt ye breake a bone thereof. All the multitude shall observe it. Yt a straunger also dwell amonge you, and wyll holde wallower unto the Lorde, let hym circumcise all that be males: and then let hym come and observe it, and he shall be as one that is borne in the land. For the uncircumcised persone shall not eat thereof. One maner of lawe shall be unto hym that is borne in the lande: & unto the straunger that dwelleth amonge you. And all the children of Israel dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moles and Aaron. Even so dyd they. And the selfe same daye dyd the Lorde bringe the children of Israel out of y lande of Egypt w theyr armies.

The xiii Chapter.

The fyfte daye must be sanctified unto the Lorde. The immortall of thes deservantes. Why they were carried thow to the wylernes. The bones of Joseph. The pyl of the cloude.

And y Lord spake unto Moles saying * Sanctify unto me all the first borne, that open all maner matryces amonge the children of Israel, as well of man as of beaste: for it is myne. And Moles sayde unto y people thynke on this day in which ye came out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage for thorowe a myghtye hande the Lorde brought you out from thence.

1. Cor. x. c. There shall no leuened breade be eaten. This daye come ye out in the moneth when come begynneth to ripe * When y Lorde hath brought the into the lande of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorytes, Hittites, and Jebusytes. * Whiche he sware unto thy fathers, that he wolde geue the a lande wherin mylke and hony floweth, y shall kepe this scrupce in this same moneth. Seven dayes thou shalt eate swete breade: and in the * seventh daye, it is the feaste of the Lorde.

2 Swete breade shall be eaten seven dayes, and there shall no leuened breade be sene, nor yet leuen with the in all thy quarters. And thou shalt shewe thy sonne in that daye saying this is done because of that whiche the Lorde dyd unto me, when I came out of Egypt. And it shall be a signe unto the vpon thyne hande, and for a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lorde declare it as be in thy mouth. For in a strong hande the Lorde brought the out of Egypt. Kepe therefore this ordynance in his season fro yere to yere. And it wyll come to passe, that the Lorde shall bringe the into the lande of the Cananytes, whiche he sware unto the and to thy fathers and shall geue it y. And then thou shalt appoynte unto the Lorde all that openeth y matryce. And every caste thyng that fyrt doth open the matryce of a beaste which thou hast yf they be males, they shall be y Lordes. And every fyrt gendered of an asse, thou shalt redeme w a lambe: yf thou redeme hym not, thou shalt breake hym necke. All the fyrt borne amonge thy children also shalt thou bye out. And when thy sonne asketh the to morowe, saying what is this, y shalt saye unto hym With a myghtie hande y Lorde broughte vs out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharaos was loth to let vs go, the Lorde slew all the fyrt borne in the land of Egypt as well the fyrt borne of man as of beaste. Therefore I sacrifice unto the Lorde all the males that open the matryce: and all y fyrt borne of my children I redeme. This shall be a token vpon thyne hande, and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lorde broughte vs out of Egypte thorowe a myghtye hande.

It came to passe that when Pharaos had let the people go, God carped them not thorowe the waye and lande of the Philistines whiche was the more nye waye. But God sayde lette y people happilye repent when they se warre. & so turne agayne to Egypte. But God led the people aboute thorowe the way of the wylernes of the red see. And the children of Israel went by harneled out of the lande of Egypte. And Moles took the bones of Joseph with hym for he made the children of Israel sweare, saying * God wil surely vset you, and ye shall take my bones awaye hence with you. * And they toke theyr journey from Succoth: & abode in Etham in y edge of the wylernes. * And the Lorde went before them by daye in a pylle of a cloude to leade the the way and by nyght in a pylle of fyre to geue them lyght, that they myght go both by daye & by nyght. * The pylle of y cloude departed not by daye, nor the pylle of fyre by nyghte, out of the syghte of the people.

The xiiii Chapter.

Pharaos herte is hardened out wth the Israelites with all humbles and captaynes, and is ordained. The Israelites grudge. They go thow, and the chere see.

And the Lorde spake unto Moles, sayinge * Speke to the children of Israel, that they turne & remayne before Pharaoh betweene Migdol and the see, over agaynst Baalzephon and before that shall they pryche by y see. For Pharaos wyll saye of the children of Israel they are tangled in the lande, y wylernes hath shut them in. And I wyll harden Pharaos herte that he shall folowe after you: and I wyll get me honoure vpon Pharaos and vpon al his host: the Egyptians also shall knowe that I am y Lorde. And they dyd even so. And it was tolde the king of Egypte that the people fled. And the herte of Pharaos Pharao and of his seruantes turned agaynste the people & they sayde: why haue we thys done that we haue let Israel go out of our serupce? & he made redy his charettes: and toke his people with hym and toke syxe hundred cholen charettes, and all the charets of Egypt and captaynes vpon euery one of them. And the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao kyng of Egypt, and he folowed after the chyldren of Israel. But the chyldren of Israel went out with an hye hande and the Egyptians folowed after them, and all the hoxses and charets of Pharao and his hoxslemen and his hoost ouertoke them abydyng by the see, besyde Bi Hiroth before Baalzephon. And when Pharao diewenye, the chyldren of Israel lyfte vp theyr eyes and beholde, the Egyptians folowed after them, and they were sore afrayde.

Exod. x. 1. * and the chyldren of Israel cryed out vnto the Lorde. But they sayd vnto Moles: because there were no graues in Egypte, haste thou therfore brought vs a waye for to dye in the wyldernes wherfore haste thou serued vs thus, for to carry vs out of Egypte? Wyl not we tell the thys in Egypte, sayinge let vs be in rest, that we maye serue the Egyptians? For it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians then for to dye in the wyldernesse. And Moles sayde vnto the people: feare ye not stand styll, and behold, how the Lorde shall saue you this daye. For ye that haue seene the Egyptians this daye, shall see the nomore for ever. The Lorde shall fyght for you, and ye shall holde your peace.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moles: wherfore cryest thou vnto me: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel that they go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche out thy hande ouer the see and deuyde it a sunder, and let the chyldren of Israel go on drye grounde thow the myddest of the see. And beholde, I wyll harden the herte of the Egyptians that theyr maye folowe them. And I wyll get me honoure vpon Pharao and vpon all his hooste, and vpon his charettes and vpon his hoxslemen. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gottē me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon his charettes, and vpon his hoxslemen. And the angell of God which wente before the hoost of Israel remoued and beganne to go behynde them. And the clouden ppyler that was before the face of them beganne to stande behynde them, & came betwene the hoost of the Egyptians and the hoost of Israel. It was also a darke cloude, & gaue lychte by nyght: and all the nyght longe the one came not at the other. And Moles stretched furth his hande ouer the see: and the Lorde carped a waye the see, by a very stronge East wynde all that nyght, and made the see drye lande, and the waters were deuyded. And the chyldren of Israel went out into the myddest of the see: vpon the drye grounde. And the waters were a walle vnto them on the ryght hande, and on the left hand. And the Egyptians folowed and went in after them to the myddest of the see, euen all Pharao's hoxses, his charettes and his hoxslemen. And in the moynyng watche, the Lorde looked vnto the hoost of the Egyptians out of the fyre and cloude ppyler: and troubled the hoost of the Egyptians, and toke of his charet wheles and carped them awape violently. So that the Egyptians sayde. Let vs fle from the face of Israel, for the Lorde fyghteth for them agaynst the Egyptians. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moles: stretche out thyne hande ouer the see, that the waters maye come agayne vpon the Egyptians, vpon hyr charettes and vpon his hoxslemen.

And Moles stretched furth his hande ouer the see, and it came agayne to his course early in the moynyng, and the Egyptians fled agaynst it. And the Lorde ouerthrewe the Egyptians in the myddest of the see: and the water returned & couered the charettes and the hoxslemen: and all the hoost of Pharao that came into the see after them, so that there remayned not one of them. But the chyldren of Israel walked vpon drye lande: thow the myddest of the see, and the waters were a walle vnto them on the ryght hande of them, and on the left. Thus the Lorde deliuered Israel the selfe same daye out of the hande of the Egyptians: and Israel sawe the Egyptians dead vpon the see syde. And Israel sawe the myghty power whiche the Lorde shewed vpon the Egyptians: and the people feared the Lorde, and beleued the Lorde & his seruant Moles.

The xv. Chapter.

¶ Moles and the people with the women syng. At the passyng of Moles, the dryer waters were swete. God must be heard. They come to Elim.

When Moles and the chyldren of Israel sange this songe vnto the Lorde and sayde: I wyll syng vnto the Lorde. for he hath triumphed gloriously. the hoxse and hym that rode vpon hym hath he ouerthrowne in the see. The Lorde is my strength and praye, and he is become my saluacion. He is my God, and I wyll glorifye hym my fathers God, and I wyll exalte hym. The Lorde is a man of warre. The Lorde is his name. Pharao's charettes and his hoost hath he cast into the see. His cholen captaynes also are drowned in the red see, the depe waters haue couered them theyr soncke to the botome as a stone. Thy ryght hande Lorde, is become glorious in powre thy ryght hande Lorde hath all to dashed the enemye. And in thy great glory thou hast ouerthrowne them that rose vp against the. thou sentest furth thy wrath which consumed them euen as stoble. Thow the wind of thy nostrils the water gathered together, the floudes stode styll as an heape, and the depe water congeled together in the herte of the see.

The enemye sayde: I wyll folowe on them: I wyll ouertake them, I wyll deuyde the people, I wyll satisfye my luste vpon them, I wyll draw my swearde, myne hande shall destroye them. Thou blewest wth thy wynde, the see couered them, theyr soncke as leade in the nyghtye waters. Who is lyke vnto the Lorde, amonge goddes: who is lyke the so glorious in holynes, fearfull in prayse, shewing wonders: Thou stretchedest out thy ryght hande, the earth swallowed lowed them. Thou in thy merete haste carped this people whiche thou deliueredest: and haste brought them in thy strenght vnto thy holy habitacyon. The nacjons heard and were afraid for so we came vpon the Philistynes. Then the Dukes of the Edomites were amased, and the myghtyest of the Moabites, tremblinge came vpon them: all the inhabytors of Canaan waxed faynt hearted: Let feare and drede fall vpon them in the greatnes of thine, let them be as styll as a stone, tyll the people passe thorow. O Lord whyle thys people passe thorow whiche thou hast gotten. Thou shalt bring them in, and plante them in the mountayne of thyne inheritaunce, the place Lord whiche thou hast made for to dwell in the sanctuarie. O Lord, whiche thy handes haue prepared. The Lord shall rayne euer and alwaye. For Pharaos horse went in with his charrettes and horsemen into the see, and the Lord brought the waters of the see vpon them.

But the chyldren of Israel went on dry land in the myddel of the see. And Miriam a propheteesse, the syster of Aaron toke a tymbrell in her hande and all the women came out after her with tymbrells and daunces. And Miriam sange before them: * Sprynge ye vnto the Lord: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his ryder hath he ouerthrowne in the see. And so Moses brought Israel from the red see, and they went out into the wyldernes of Sur. And they went thre dayes longe in the wyldernes, and founde no waters. And when they came to Mara, they coulde not drynke of the waters of Mara for they were bitter, therfore the name of the place was called Mara, (that is to saye bitternes.) And the people murmured agaynst Moses, sayinge: what shall we drynke? And he cryed vnto the Lord: and the Lord shewed hym a tree, whiche when he had cast into the water, the waters were made swete. There he made them an ordynauce and a lawe, and there he prouyd hym, and sayde vnto the Lord: Thou wilt hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, and wilt do that which is ryght in his syght, and wilt geue eare vnto his commaundementes, and kepe all his ordynaunces: then wilt I put none of these dyscales vpon the whiche I brought vpon the Egyptians for I am the Lord that healeth the.

The xvi. Chapter.

The Israelites come into the deserte of Sur. They rageth quaples and quarrels. They struge.

The chyldren of Israel came to Elim where were twelue welles of water, and. lxx. palme trees, and they abode there by the waters. And they toke theyr iorney from Elim: and all the whole company of the chyldren of Israel came to the wyldernes of Syn which is betwene Elim and Sinai: the fyfene daye of the seconde moneth after they departed out of the lande of Egypt. And the hore multitude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron in the wyldernes: and the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto them: wouldest thou God we had died by the hand of the Lord in the lande of Egypt, when we sat by the flesch pottes, and when we dyd eate bread out of bellies full for ye haue brought vs out into this wyldernes, to kylle thys hole multitude with hunger. Then sayde the Lord vnto Moses: behold, I will raine bread from heauen to you, and the people shall go out, and gather daye by daye that I maye proue the, whether they will walke in my lawe or no. The sytte daye they shall prepare for them selues that which they will bring in, and let it be as muche as they gather in dayly. And Moses and Aaron sayd vnto all the chyldren of Israel: at euen ye shall knowe that it is the Lord, which brought you out of the land of Egypt: and in the morninge, ye shall see the glorie of the Lord, because he hath hearde your grudgynges agaynst the Lord. And what are we that ye haue murmured agaynst the Lord? And Moses sayde: At euen shall the Lord geue you fleshe to eat, and in the morninge bread enough for the Lord hath hearde your murmurings: which ye murmur agaynst hym, for what are we? your murmurings are not agaynst vs, but agaynst the Lord. And Moses spake vnto Aaron: Saye vnto all the company of the chyldren of Israel, come forth before the Lord: for he hath hearde your grudgynges. And as Aaron spake vnto the whole multitude of the chyldren of Israel, they looked towards the wyldernes: and beholde, the glorie of the Lord appeared in the cloude. And the Lord spake vnto Moses: sayinge, I haue hearde the murmurynge of the chyldren of Israel, tell them therfore and saye: at euen ye shall eate fleshe, and in the morninge ye shall be fylled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lord your God. And as euen the quaples came and couered the ground where they laye. And in the morninge, the dewe laye rounde about the host. And when the dewe was fallen, beholde: it laye vpon the grounde in the wyldernes, smal, and rounde and thynne, as the hoze frost on the grounde. And when the chyldren of Israel sawe it, they sayde euery one to his neyghbour: It is Manna. For they wist not what it was. And Moses sayde vnto them: this is the bread which the Lord hath geuen you to eat. This is the worde whiche the Lord hath commaunded, gather it euery man for hym selfe to eate: a gomer full for a man accordyng to the nombre of you, take euery man for the whiche are in his tente. And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so and gathered, some more, some lesse, and when they vndre it was a gomer, vnto hym that had gathered muche, remayned nothinge ouer, & vnto hym that had gathered lyle, was there no lacke: euery man gathered sufficiente for his eatynge. And Moles sayde vnto them.

E See that no man let ought remaine of it tyll the mornynge. Notwithstandynge they harkened not vnto Moles: but some of them left of it vntill the mornynge and it waxed full of wormes and stynke, and Moles was angry wth them. And they gathered it all mornynge, euery man for his eatynge. And as soon as the heate of the sunne came, it moulte. And the fyrte daye they gathered twyse so muche breade, two gomrs for one man. and all the rulers of the multitude came and tolde Moles. He sayde vnto them this is that whiche the Lorde hath sayde: to morowe is the reste of the holy Sabbath vnto the Lorde. bake that which ye wyl bake, and leth that ye wyl leth, and that whiche remaineth, laye it vp tyll the mornynge. And they layde it vp tyll the mornynge, as Moles bad, and it stynke not, neyther bred there any worme therein.

I And Moles sayde that cate thys daye: for it is the Sabbath vnto the Lord: to daye ye shall not fynde it in the felde. Syre dayes shall ye gather it, and in the senenth daye whiche is Sabbath, there shall be none. Notwithstandynge, there wente out some of the people in the senenth daye for to gather, and they found none. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moles howe longe refuse ye to kepe my comaundementes, and my lawes? Se, the Lorde hath geuen you a Sabbath, therefore he geueth you fyrte daye breade for two dayes. Spde therefore euery man at home and let no man go out of his place the senenth daye. And the house of Israel called it Manna.

* And it was lyke vnto Coriandre scde, whete and the taste of it was lyke vnto wafers made with hony. And Moles sayd this is that which the Lorde comaundeth fyt a gomer of it, which maye be kepte for your chyldren after you: that they maye le the breade wherewith I haue fed you in wyldernesse, when I broughte you out of the lande of Egypte. And Moles spake vnto Aaron take a cuse and put a gomer full of Manna therein, and laye it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for your chyldren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moles. So Aaron layde it vp before the testymony to be kepte. * And the chyldren of Israel dyd eate Manna fortye pere, vntill they came vnto a lande inhabited. And so they dyd eate Manna euen vntill they came vnto the borders of the lande of Canaan. A gomer is the tenth parte of an Ephah.

The xviij. Chapter.

The Israelites come into Raphidim. They gete drye. Moles holdeth up his handes: and they overcome the Amalechites.

A And all the company of the chyldren of Israel thorowout theyr armyes went from the wyldernes of Sin, after the commaundemente of the Lorde, and pytched in Raphidim where was no water for the people to drynke. And the people chode wth Moles, and sayde, geue vs water to drynke. Moles sayde vnto them: why chode ye wth me? wherfore doo ye tempte the Lorde? There the people chafed for water, and the people murmured agaynst Moles, and sayde: * Wherfore haste thou thus brought vs oute of Egypte: to kyll vs and oure chyldren and catell with thyrste.

And Moles cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: What shal I do vnto this people: they be almost ready to stone me. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moles go before the people, and take with the of the elders of Israel, and thy rodde wherewith thou smotest the ryuer, sae in thine hande, and go. Beholde, * I stand before the vespde a rocke that is in Horeb and thou shalt smyte the rocke and there shall come water out thereof, that the people maye drynke. * And Moles dyd euen so before the eyes of the elders of Israel. And he called the name of the place * Malla andi: et cetera, because of the chydrynge of the chyldren of Israel, and because they tempted the Lorde, sayinge is the Lorde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amalech and foughte wth Israel in Raphidim. And Moles sayde vnto Josua: chuse vs out men, and go fyghe wth Amalech, and to morowe I wyl stonde on the toppe of the hyl, and the rod of God shal be in my hand. Josua dyd as Moles bade hym, & fought wth Amalech. And Moles, and Aaron, and hur went vnto the toppe of the hyl. And it happened, that when * Moles helde vp his hanue, Israel had the better. And when he lett his hande downe, Amalech had the better.

But Moles handes were heuy, and therefore they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he sat downe thereon. And Aaron and hur staped vp his handes, the one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde. And his handes remayned stadye vntill the goynge downe of the sun. And Josua dysconfeted Amalech and his people, with the edge of the swerde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moles wyte this for a remembraunce in a boke, and comynpte it vnto the eares of Josua for * I wyl utterly put out the remembraunce of Amalech from vnder heauen. And Moles made an autler and called the name of it: The Lorde is he that worketh myracles for me. For he sayde the lande is on the seate of God, the Lorde wyl haue war wth Amalech from generation to generation.

The name of the other was Eliesar for the god of my father sayde he, was myne helpe, and delyuered me from the swerde of Pharaon.

went out to mete his father in lawe and dyd obey saunce and kyssed hym, and eache asked other of his health, and they came into the tent. And Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharaon and to the Egypcyans for Israels sake, and all the trauaile that had happened them by the waye, and howe the Lorde deliuered them. And Jethro reioyced ouer all the goodnesse whiche the Lorde had done to Israel and because he had deliuered them out of the hand of the Egypcyans. And Jethro sayde, blessed be the Lorde whiche hath deliuered you out of the hande of the Egypcyans, and out of the hand of Pharaon, whiche hath also deliuered hys people from the captiuitie of the Egypcyans. Now I knowe that the Lorde is greater then all gods, for in the thyng whereby they deale cruelly wth them, are they them selues perswaded. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offered burnt offruges and sacrifices vnto God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eate breade with Moses father in lawe before God.

And it chaunced on the morowe, that Moses sat to iudge the people, and the people stode aboute Moses from mornynge vnto euen. And when Moses father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayde what is this that thou dost vnto the people: why sittest thou thy selfe alone, and all the people stande aboute the from mornynge vnto euen? And Moses sayde vnto his father in lawe because the people come vnto me to seeke counsell of God. When they haue a matter, they come vnto me, & I iudge betwene euery man and his neyghboure, and shewe them the ordinaunces of God and his lawes.

And Moses father in lawe sayde vnto hym: it is not well that thou dost. Thou both weyest thy selfe, and this people that is with the: for this thyng is of more weyght, then thou arte able to persoume thy selfe alone. Heare now therfore my voyce, and I wyll geue the counsel, and God shalbe with the. Be thou vnto the people to God warde, that thou mayst bryng the causes vnto God, and thou shalt teache them ordynaunces, and lawes, and shewe them the way wherein they must walke, and the worke that they must do. Moreouer, thou shalt seeke out amonge all the people, men of actiuite, and such as feare

God: true men, hatynge couetousnes: and make them heedes ouer the people captayns ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten.
 And let them iudge the people at all seasons.
 And euery greates matter that happeneth, let them bryng vnto the, but let them iudge all smal causes them selues, and so shall it be easer for thy selfe, and they shall beare with the. If thou shalt do this thyng, (and God charge the with-all, thou shalt be able to endure, and yet the people shall come to the place in peace.

And so Moses obeyed the voyce of hys father in lawe, and dyd all that he had sayde, and chose actiue men out of all Israel, and made them as heedes ouer the people: namely captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, but brought the hard causes vnto Moses and iudged all small matters them selues.
 And Moses let hys father in lawe departe, and he wente into his owne lande.

The xix. Chapter.

The chylidren of Israel come to the mount Synay. The people of God are holy and a royal priesthood. Be that thou-shalt the hill synay. God appeareth vnto Moses vpon the mount in thunder and lightynge.

At the thyrde moneth, when the chyldren of Israel were gone out of the lande of Egypte, the same daye came they in to the wyldernes of Synai.
 For they were departed from Ra-phidim, and were come to the deserte of Synay, and had pitched their tentes in the wyldernes.
 And there Israel abode before the mounte. But Moses went vp vnto God, and the Lorde called to hym out of the mountayne, sayinge: thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tel the chylidren of Israel: ye haue seene what I dyd vnto the Egypcyans, and howe you byd vpon E-gles wynges, and haue brought you vnto my selfe. Nowe therfore, ye wyll heare my voyce in dede, and kepe myne appoyntment, ye shalbe myne owne, aboue all nacyns, for all the earth is myne. Ye shall be vnto me also a kyngdome of priests and an holy people: and these are the wordes which thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel. Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and layde before the face all these wordes, whiche the Lorde commaunded hym. And the people answered all together, and sayde. All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyll doo. And Moses broughte the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Loo, I come come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people maye heare me talkynge wpth the, and be-lene the for euer. Moyses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

23 And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: So vnto the people, and sanctifye them to dape and to morrowe, and let them washe theyr clothes: and be redy agaynst the thyrde dape. For the thyrde dape the Lorde wyll come downe in the syghte of all the people vpon mount Sinai. And thou shalt set markes rounde aboute the people and saye: beware that ye go not vp into the mount, or touche the bordre of it. Who soeuer toucheth the + mounce, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touche it: Els he shalbe stoned or shot thorowe: whpther it be beast or man, it shal not lyue. When the trumpe bloweth longe, then may they come vp into the mountayne.

24 And Moyses went downe from the mounte vnto the people, and sanctified them, and they washed theyr clothes: And he sayde vnto the people: be redy agaynst the thyrde dape, and come not at your wyues. And the thyrde dape in the mornynge there was thunder, and lpyghtning and a thicke cloude vpon the mount, & the voyce of the trumpe exceedinge lowde, so that all the people that was in the hoste was afrayde. And Moyses broughte the people out of the tentes to mete with God, and they + stode vnder the hyll.
And mount Sinay was altogether on a smoke because the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyrre. And the smoke therof ascended vp, as the smoke of a kele, and all the mounte was exceadyng fearfull. And when the voyce of þ trumpe blewe and wared lowder and lowder: Moyses spoke, and God answered hym by a voyce.

25 And the Lord came downe vpon mount Sinay, euen in the toppe of the hyll, and when the Lorde called Moyses vp into the toppe of þ hyll, Moyses wente vp. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Go downe charge the people, that they prease not vp to se the Lord, and so many of the peryshe. And let the prestes also whiche come to the Lorde sanctifye them selues, lest the Lorde destroy them. And Moyses sayde vnto the Lord the people can not come vp into the mount Sinay, for thou chargedst vs sayinge: set markes about the hyll, and sanctifye it. And the Lorde sayde vnto þ, w + maye, and get the downe: and thou shalt come vp, thou and Aaron wth the. But let not þ prestes & the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lorde, lest he destroye them. And so Moyses went downe vnto þ people & told them.

The .xx. Chapter.

The ten commaundementes are given the altare of crith.

1 And God spake all these wordes, and sayd: I am the Lord thy God whiche haue + brought the out of the lande of Egypt, out of þ house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my syghte.

2 Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage, neyther any synulytude that is in heauen aboue, ey-ther in the earthe beneth, or in the waters vnder the earthe. * Thou shalt not worshyppe them, neyther serue them. for I the Lorde thy God, am a gelouse God: and vysetet the spure of the fathers vpon the chyldren vnto the thyrde and fourthe generacyon of thepyn that hate me:

and shewe mercy vnto thousandes in them that loue me and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not + take the name of the Lord thy God in vayne, for the Lorde wyll not holde hym gyltlesse that taketh his name in vayne.

* Remember the Sabboth dape, that thou sanctifye it. Syre dayes shalt thou labour and doe all that thou haste to doo: Lut the seuenth dape is the Sabboth of the Lorde thy God, in it thou shalt do no maner of worke, thou and thy sonne, and thy doughter, thy manseruaunt, and thy maydeseruaunte, thy catell, and the straunger that is within thy gates. For in syre dayes the Lorde made heauen and earth, the see, and all that in them is, and + rested the seuenth dape wherfore the Lorde blessed the Sabboth dape, and halowed it. * Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy dayes maye be longe in the lande, which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

* Thou shalt not kyll.

* Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.

* Thou shalt not steale.

* Thou shalt not beare false wytnesse a-gaynst thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not couet + thy neyghbours house: neyther shalt thou couet thy neyghbours wyfe, or his manseruaunte, or his mayde, or his Oxe, or his ass, or what soeuer thy neygh-boure hath. And all the people sawe the thunder, and the lpyghtnyng, and the noyse of the trumpe, and the mountayne smokyng.

And when the people sawe it, they remoued and stode a far of, and sayde vnto Moyses, talke + thou with vs, and we wyll heare: but lette not God talke wth vs, lest we dye. And Moyses sayde vnto þ people: feare not, for God is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be in your face, that ye synne not. And the people stode a far of: And Moyses went into the thicke cloude where God was. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israell. Ye haue sene that I haue talked with you from out of heuē. Ye shal not make therfore wth me gods of syluer, neyther shall ye make you goddes of golde. * An altare of earth thou shalt make vnto me, and thereon offer thy burnt offerpynges, and thy peace offerpynges, thy shepe, and thyne oxen. In all places where I shall put the remembraunce of my name I thither I wyll come vnto the and blesse the. And yf thou wyll make me an altare of stone, se thou make it not of hewen stone. Els yf thou lyfte vp thy toole vpon it, thou hast polluted it. Nether shalt thou go vp by stappes vnto myne altare, that thy sylthyne be not shewed thereon.

And if his mayster haue geuen hym a wyfe, and she haue borne hym sonnes or daughters: then the wyfe and her chyldren shall be her masters, and he shall go out alone. And if the seruante saye: I loue my master, my wyfe and my chyldren, I wyll not go out free. His master shall brynge hym vnto the Judges, and set hym to the doore or to the doorepost, and his master shall boze his eare thorow with a nawle, and he shall be his seruante for ever.

And if a man sell his daughter to be a seruante: she shall not go out as the men seruantes doo. If she also please not her master, and he geue her to no man to wyfe, then shall he lette her go free: to sell her vnto a straunge nacion shall he haue no power, saynge he despyed her. If he haue promysed her vnto his son to wyfe, he shall deale with her, as men do with their daughters. And if he take hym another wyfe, yet her fode, her raimente and dutye of marriage shall he not minyssh. And if he do not these thre vnto her, then shall she go out free, and paye no money.

* He that smyteth a man that he dye, shall be sleyn for it. If a man laye not a wayte, but God deliuer hym into his hande, then I wyll poynte the a place whither he shall flee. If a man come presumptuously vpon his neyghboure to slepe hym with gyle, thou shalt take hym from myne: aulter that he dye. If he smyteth his father or his mother, lette hym be slayne for it. * He that stealeth a man and selleth hym (if it be proued vpon hym) shall be slayne for it. * And he that curseth his father or mother, shall be put to death for it. If men stryue together, and one smyte another with a stone or with his fyfte, and he dye not, but lyeth in bed: if he ryse agayne and walke without vpon his staffe, then shall he that smote hym goo quyte: he shall onely be charged with his charges for lesynge his tyme, and shall paye for his healyng. And if a man smyte his seruant or his mayde with a rodde, and they dye vnder his hande, it shall be auenged in dede.

And if they contynue a daye or two, it shall not be auenged, for they are his money. If men stryue and hurte a woman with chyldre, so that her frute departe from her, and yet no mysfortune followe: then shall he be merced accordyng as the womans husbande wyll laye to his charge, and he shall paye as the dayes men appoynte hym. * And if any mysfortune folowe: then shall he paye lyfe for lyfe, eye for eye, tothe for tothe, hande for hande, fote for fote, burning for burning, wounde for wounde, strype for strype. And if a man smyte his seruante or his mayde in the eye, and it perishe, he shall let them go free for the eyes sake.

And whither he hath gozed a sonne, or hurte a daughter, he shall be serued after the same maner. shall trouble them, and they crye vnto me, I wyl surely heare theyre crye, and then wyl I your chyldren fatherlesse.

geue me, lyke wise also shalt thou do with thyne ther shall ye cate any fleshe that is tozme of beastes in the fildes. But shall call it to dogges.

wytnesse. Thou shalt not folowe a multytude to do euell neyther answer in a matter of plee that thou woldest (to folowe many) tuen asyde from the truth, neyther shalt thou paynte a poore mannes cause. * If thou mete thyne enemyes ore or alle goynge astrape, thou shalt brynge them to hym agayne. * If thou se thyne enemyes alle synke vnder hys butthen, thou shalt not passe by and let hym alone: but shalt helpe hym to lyfte hym vp agayne.

Thou shalt not hynder the ryghte of the poore, in theyr sute. Kepe the farre from a false mater, * and the innocent and righteous se thou slepe not, for I wyl not Justifye the wycked.

* Thou shalt take no gyftes, for gyftes blynde the seynge, and pouerte the wordes of the ryghte-ous. Thou shalt not oppresse a straunger, for ye knowe þ herce of a straunger, seynge ye were straungers in the lande of Egypte.

* Seuen dayes thou shalt sowe thy lande, and gather in the frutes thereof and the seuenthy pere thou shalt let it reste and lye still, that the poore the beasts of the felde shall cate. In lyke maner thou shalt do also with thy vyneyard, and thyne olyue trees. * Seuen dayes thou shalt do thy worke, and in the seuenthy dape thou shalt reste, that thyne ore and thyne ass maye rest, and the sowme of thy mayde and thyne straunger may be refreshed. In all thynges that I haue sayde vnto you, be circumspecte. And make no rehersall of the names of straunge goddes, * neyther let it be hearde out of thy mouth.

Thre feastes thou shalt hold vnto me in a yere * Thou shalt kepe the feast of swete breade, that I cate vnto leuened breade seuen dayes longe as I commaunded the, in the tyme of the moneth when corne begynneth to ryse, for in that Mo-neth ye came out of Egypte * and se that no man to kepe the in the waye, and to brynge the into the place whiche I haue prepared. Beware of hym, and heare hys voyce, and resyste hym not:

for he wyl not spare poure mysdoers, and my name is in hym. But and if thou shalt hearken vnto his voyce, and do all that I speake, I wyl be an enemye vnto thine enemyes, and an ad-uersary vnto thyne aduersaries. For myne angell * shall go before the, and brynge the in vnto the Amorites, and Hethytes, and Chanaanites, and Canaanites, Hethites, and Jebusites, and I shall destroye them. Thou shalt not worshyp theyr * goddes, neyther serue them, neyther do after the workes of them: but ouerthrowe them, and breake downe the ymagines of them. And ye shall serue the * Lorde poure God, and he shall blesse thy bread and thy water, and I wyl take all synners awaye from the myds of the.

There shall be no womā chyldlesse or vnfrute be full.

I fulfyll. I wyll sende my feare before the, and wyll trouble all the people whither thou shalt go. And I wyll make all thine enemies turne their backs vnto the, and I wyll sende hornettes before the, whiche shall dyspue out the heutes, the Cananites, and the hethtes before the. Neuertheles, I wyll not cast them out in one pere, lest the lande growe to a wyldernesse and the bestes of the feld multiplye agaynst the. Wyltyle and lytle I wyll dyspue them out before the, vntyll thou be increased, and inheret the lande. And I wyll make thy costes from the red see vnto the see of the Whylstynes, and from the desert vnto the ryuer. For I wyll deluyt the inhabytters of ylande into thyne hande, and thou shalt dyspue them out before the. * Thou shalt make none appoyntmente with them, nor with theyr goddes. Nether let them dwell in thy lande, lest they make the syn agaynst me: for if thou serue theyr goddes, it wyll be thy decaye.

Ex. xxi. 10.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Moses ascendeth vp to the mounte and wyrteth the worde of the Lorde. The bloude of the couenante. The elders of Israell iudge the people.

Ad he sayde vnto Moses: come vp vnto the Lorde: þ and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the lxx. elders of Israell, and ye shall worshippe a farre of. this be a continual burnt offering amonge your chyldren after you before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde, where I wyl mete you, to speake there vnto you. There I wyl mete with the chyldren of Israel, and wyl

And Aaron shall reconple vpon the hornes of it once in a pere: wpth the bloude of the synne offering of reconcilynge: euen once in the peare shall he reconple it thowout pour generatynge. It is most holy vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying * If thou takest the summe of the chyldren of Israel after theyr nombre, they shall geue euery man a reconcilynge of his soule vnto the Lorde when thou tellest them that there be no plage amonge them, when thou tellest them. And thus muche shall euery man geue, and that goeth into the nombre halfe a shekel, after the shekel * of the sanctuary: a shekel is twenty halfe pence. An halfe shekel shall be the heue offering of the Lorde. All that are nombred from twenty pere old and aboue, shall geue an heue offering vnto the Lorde. The ryche shall not passe, and the poore shall not go vnder halfe a shekel. But ye shall geue an heue offering vnto the Lorde that he maye haue mercede vpon pour soules. And thou shalt take the reconcilynge money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of wytnesse, that it maye be a memorial vnto the chyldren of Israel before the Lorde, that he maye haue mercede vpon pour soules.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: * Thou shalt make a lauer of brasse, and his fete also of brasse to wash withal, & shalt put it betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altar, and put water therein. For Aaron & his sons shall wash theyr handes & theyr fete therein euen when they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they goo vnto the altar to minister and to burne the Lordes offering, they shall wash them selues with water, lest they dye. And it shall be an ordynance vnto them for euer, bothe vnto hym and his seed thowout theyr generacyons. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: Take vnto the pryncypall spices: of the moste pure myrrour fyue hundred shekels, of sweete cynamon halfe so muche, euen two hundred and fyfthe shekels: of sweete calamus, two hundred & fyfthe shekels, of cassia, two hundred and fyfthe shekels, after the holy shekel, and of oyle olyfe an hyne. * And thou shalt make of the oyle an holy ointment, euen

And thou shalt sanctify them, that they maye be most holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And thou shalt anoynt Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them, that they may minister vnto me. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, saying: this shall be an holy ointynge oyle vnto me, thowout pour generacyons. Vpon manys flesh shall it not be powred: nether shall ye make any other after the makinge of it, for it is holye and shall be holye vnto you whosoever maketh lyke that, or who soeuer putteth any of it vpon a stranger, shall be rythe from amonge his people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses: take vnto the sweete spices: balme, Onicha, sweete galbanum, these spices wpth pure frankincense, of eache lyke much, & make of them sweete smellynge incense, after the crafte of the apotecarpe, mingled together, pure and holy. And beate it to powder and put of it before the wytnesse in the tabernacle of wytnesse, where I wyll mete the. It shall be vnto you moste holy. And se that ye make none after the makinge of that. It shall be vnto you holy for the Lorde. Whosoever shall make lyke vnto that, to synel therto, shall perishe from amonge his people.

The xxxi. Chapter.

The callinge of Bezaleel and Ahiaab the workemen. The Sabbath is commaunded. The tables of stones are covenanted.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: beholde, * I haue called by name, Bezaleel, y son of Uri, the summe of Hur of y trybe of Iuda. And I haue fylled hym wpth the sperte of God, in wysdome, and vnderstandynge, in knowledge and in all maner of worke, to fynde out soyle seates and to worke in golde, syluer and brasse: and in y crafte to set stones, and to carue in tymber, & to worke in all maner of workmanshopp. And beholde, I haue geuen hym to be his companion Ahiaab the sonne of Ahisamaach of the trybe of Dan, & in the hartes of all that are wysly harted, haue I put wysdome to make all that I haue commaunded the, the tabernacle of wytnesse, the Arke of wytnesse, and the mercy seate that is thereupon: and all the ornaments of the tabernacle, and y table and his ornamentes, and the pure candle stycke with all his apparell, and the altar of encense and the altar of burnt offerings and all his vessels, and the lauer with his fote. The vestimentes to minister in and the holy garmentes for Aaron the prest, and the garmentes of his sonnes to minister in and the annoyntynge oyle: and sweete cense for y sanctuary, accordyng to all that I haue commaunded the that they do.

He that defileth it, shall be slayne. For whosoever worketh therein, the same soule shall be rored out from amonge his people. Seuen dayes shall men worke. And in the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of the holpe rest of the Lorde. Whosoever doth any worke in the Sabbath daye, shall dye: wherefore let the chyldren of Israel kepe the Sabbath, that they obserue it thorowout theyr generacions, that it be an appoyntment for euer. For it is a sygne betwene me and the chyldren of Israel for euer.

Gene. i. d. * For in sye dayes the Lorde made heauen and earth: and in the seuenth daye he rested, and was refreshed. And when the Lord had made an end of comenyng with Moyses vpon the mounte Sinai, he gaue hym two tables of wytnesse: euen tables of stone, wyrtten with the fyrer of God.

The xxii Chapter.

The golden calfe. Moyses prayeth for them. He breaketh the tables for anger. He chastyseth Aaron. The poplattes are slayne.

Ex. xxxii. a. And when the people sawe, that it was longe or Moyses came downe out of the mountayne, they gathered them selues together vnto Aaron, and sayde vnto hym: * Eip, make vs goddes to go before vs for of this Moyses the felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte we wote not what is become. And Aaron sayde vnto them: * plucke of the golden earynges which are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes, and of your daughters and bring them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, which they had in theyr eares and brought them vnto Aaron. And he receaued them of theyr handes, and fashioned it with a grauer, and made of it a calfe of molten metal. And they sayde: * These be thy goddes, O Israel which brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And when Aaron sawe that, he made an altar before it. And Aaron cryed, sayinge: to morowe is the holy daye of the Lorde. And they rose vp in the mornynge and offered burnt offerynges, and brought peace offerynges also. And the people sat them downe to eate and drynke and rose vp agayne to playe.

Deut. x. b. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: * go, get thee downe: thy people which thou broughtest out of the lande of Egypte, haue marred all they are turned at once out of the waye, which I commaunded them: * for they haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshipped it and haue offered therto, sayinge: These be thy goddes, O Israel which haue brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: * I haue sene this people and behold it is a stiffnecked people, and nowe suffre me, I my wrath maye ware hote agaynst them, and consume them, and I will make of the a myghty people. And Moyses besought the Lorde bys God, and sayde: O Lorde, why doth thy wrath ware hote agaynst thy people, which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, with great powre and with a myghty hauber? * Wherefore should the Egyptians speake and saye: For a myschefe dyd he bring them out euen for to slep them in the mountaynes, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turne from thy ferece wrath and turne from thys euell (deuysed) agaynst the people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac, and Israel thy seruauntes to whome thou swarest by thyne owne selfe: and saydest vnto them, * I will multiplye your sede, as the starys of heauen, and all this lande that I haue soken of will I geue vnto your sede, and theyr shall inheret it for euer. And the Lorde refrayned hym selfe from the euell. I whiche he sayde he wolde do vnto his people. And Moyses turned bys backe and went downe from the hyll: and the two tables of wytnesse were in his hande: and some tables were wyrtten on both the leaues, & were the worke of God, and the wyrtynge was the wyrtynge of God grauen in the tables. And when Josua hearde the noyse of the people, as they howted, he sayde vnto Moyses: there is a noyse of warre in the host. And he answered: it is not the crye of them that haue the mastery, nor of them that haue the worse: but I do heare the noyse of them that synge.

And it fortuneth, as he came nye vnto the hoste, he sawe the calfe and the daunsynge. & Moyses was wroth wroth hote, and he caste the tables out of his handes, and brake them beneth his feet. * And he toke the calfe which they had made, & burned it in the fyre, and stampede it vnto powder, and strowed it in the water, and made the chyldren of Israel drynke of it. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: what dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so grete a synne vpon them? And Aaron answered: let not the wrath of my Lorde ware ferece, thou knowest the people that they are cut set on myschefe: For they sayde vnto me: make vs gods to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moyses, the felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. And I sayde vnto them: let them have golde plucke it of, and bringe it me: and I dyd cast it into the fyre: and therof came out this calfe.

Moyses therefore sawe that the people were naked: and that Aaron had made them naked vnto theyr shame amonge theyr enemyes: and he wente and stode in the gate of the hoste, and sayde Vnto any man pertayne vnto the Lorde, lette hym come vnto me. And all the sonnes of Levi gathered them selues together, and came vnto hym. And he sayde vnto them. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, put euery man his swerde by his syde, and goo in and out, from gate to gate: thorowout the hoste, and slepe euery man, his brother and euery man his companion, and euery man his neyghboure. And the chyldren of Levi dyd as Moyses had sayde. And there fell of the people the same daye aboute thre thousand men. And Moyses sayde: syle your handes vnto the Lorde this daye, euery man vpon his sonne and vpon his brother: and that there maye be genen you a blessing this daye. And on the morowe it fortuneth tuned that Moles sayde vnto þ people: ye haue synned a grete synne. And now I wyl go vp vnto the Lorde: þf paraduventure I maye purchase an attonement for yowre synne. Moles therfore went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, thys people haue synned a great synne and haue made them goddes of golde. And now I praye the, either forgeue them their synne or (þf þ wylt not) * wyte me out of thy booke, which thou hast wytten. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moles: I wyl putte hym out of my booke that hath synned agaynst me. And now go thou, byngge the people vnto the place whiche I sayde vnto the. beholde, * myne angell shall go before the. Neuerthelater in the daye when I visit, I wyl visit theþ synne vpon them. And þ Lorde plagued the people, because they made the calte whych the Aaron made.

The xxiii. Chapter.

The Lorde sendeth an angell before his people. The Lorde denyeth to go by with the people. The people lament thre synne. Moles talketh with the Lorde.

Ad the Lorde sayde vnto Moles, departe and go hence: thou and the people, whiche thou hast broughte out of the lande of Egypte, vnto þ lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, sayinge: * vnto thy sede wyl I geue it: (and I wyl sende an angel before the and wyl cast out the Cananites, the Amorites, and the Hethites, the Heryzites, the Hutytes, and the Jebusytes) a lande þ floweth with mylke & hony. For I wyl not go amonge you my selfe. * for ye are a styffnecked people lest I consume the in the waye. And when the people hearde this encl tydinges, they sorowed: and no man put on his best rayment. And the Lorde spake vnto Moles saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye are a styffnecked people: I muste come once sodnly vpon you, and make an end of you. Therfore now put thy goodly rayment from the that I maye wete what to do vnto the. And the chyldren of Israel layde theþ goodly rayment from them, euen by the mount of Horeb.

And Moles toke the tabernacle, and pytched it wpythout the host a farr of from the hoste, & called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And so it came to passe that euery one which wolde pray vnto the Lorde, wente out vnto the tabernacle of wytnes, whiche was without the hoste. And it fortunied, that when Moles wente out vnto þ tabernacle, all the people rose vp and stode euery man at his tent doze: and looked after Moles vntill he was gone into the tabernacle. And as sone as Moles was entred into the tabernacle, the cloudy pyllet descended, and stode at þ doze of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moles. And all the people sawe þ cloudy pyllet stande at the tabernacle dooze, and they rose vp, and worshypped euery man in his tent doze.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moles: * face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his fiende: and he turned agayne into the hoste. And the chyldren of Israel his seruauit the sonne of Hun, departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moles sayde vnto þ Lorde: se, thou sayst vnto me: leade thys people furth, and thou hast not shewed me whom thou wylt sende with me. And thou hast sayde more ouer. I knowe the by name, and thou haste also founde grace in my syghte. Nowe therfore þf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, then shewe me thy waye, that I maye knowe the, and that I maye fynde grace in thy syght. And consyder also þ this nacyon, is thy people. And he sayde: my presence shall go with the, and I wyl geue the reste. He sayde vnto hym: If thy presence go not with me, carpe vs not hence. for howe shall it be knowen here, that I and the people haue founde fauoure in thy syght, but in that thou goest with vs? If thou go with vs, shal not I and thy people haue preempnence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth? And the Lorde sayde vnto Moles. I wyl do this also þ thou haste sayde, for thou haste founde grace in my syght, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde, I beseeche the shewe me thy glory. And he sayde: I wyl make all my good go before the, and I wyl be called in thys name of the Lorde before the * and wyl shewe merce to whome * I wyl shewe merce, & wyl haue compassyon on whome I wyl haue compassyon. And he sayd furthermore: thou mayst not see my face for * there shal no man see me, and lyue. And the Lorde sayde. beholde, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stande vpon a rocke: and whyle my glory goeth furth, I wyl put the in a cleft of the rocke: and wyl put myne hande vpon the whyle I passe by. And I wyl take awaye myne hande, and thou shalt see my backe partes: but my face shall not be sene.

The xxiiii. Chapter.

The tables are renewed. The mercy of God to haue mercy to the people is to be desired, and the people are to be also. Of theþ leues.

Ad the Lorde sayde vnto Moles: * heve the two tables of stone, lyke vnto the fyrste, and I wyl wyte vpon theym the wordes þ were in the fyrste tables whych þ brakest. And be ready in þ mornynge, that thou mayst come vpearly vnto the mounte of Sinai and stande there with me in þ top of the mount. There shal no man come vp with the, nether let any man be sene thowowout all the mounte, nether let the shepe nor oxen fede before the byll. And Moles heved two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrste, and rose vpearly in the mornynge, and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai, as the Lorde had comaunded hym: and toke

And all the company of the chyldren of Isra- ell departed frome the presence of Moyses. And euery one came (as many as theyr hertes cora- ged them, and as many as theyr spretes made them wyllynge) and broughte a present for the Lorde, to the makynge of the tabernacle of wyt- nesse, and for all his vses, and for the holy veste- mentes. And they came bothe men and women (euen as many as were wyllynge herted) and brought bracelets, and earynges, rynge, and chapnes, whiche Jewels were all of golde and al- the myn brought a waue offerynge of gold vnto the Lorde. And euery man wth whome was found pelow splyke, purple, skarlet, whyte splyke and goates heare and red skynnes of rammes, & tarsus skyns, brought them. All that dyd heare bp an oblation of gold and brasse, and brought an heue offerynge vnto the Lorde. And all men with whome was founde sethim woode for any maner worke of minystracion, brought it.

And all the women that were wylse herted dyd spynne with theyr handes, and broughte spin- worke both of pelow splyke, purple, skarlet, and whyte splyke. And all the women whome theyr owne herte moued, spynne goates heare wylse. And the Lorde brought onix stones, and stones to be set in the Ephod, and in the brestlap, and spyrre, and oyle for lyght, and for the annoyntynge oyle, and for the swete cense. And Moyses sayde vnto the chyldren of Isra- ell: beholde, *the Lorde hath called by name Be- zaleel the sonne of Uri the son of Hur of the tribe of Juda, and hath fylled hym with the spyrte of God, in wysdome and vnderstandynge, in know- ledge, and in all maner worke, to fynde out cu- rious workes whiche are made in golde, syluer, and brasse. In the crafte of stones to set them, & in carynge of woode to make any maner of Them hath he fylled with wysdome of herte, to worke all ma- ner of grauen, and scote, and nedle worke in pe- lowe splyke, and purple, in skarlet, & whyte splyke, and in weyng. And to do all maner of worke and scote seates.

The xxxvi Chapter.

Of the thynges that Bezaleel and Aholiab made.

And Bezaleel wrought, and Aholiab & all wylse harted men, to whom the Lorde gaue wysdome and vn- derstandynge, to knowe howe to worke all maner worke for the ser- uyce of the sanctuary, and all that the Lorde had commaunded. And Moyses called Bezaleel, Aho- liab and all the wylse herted men and suche as the Lorde had geuen wysdome vnto, and as many as their hertes couraged to come vnto that worke to worke it. And they receaued of Moyses all the present, whiche the chyldren of Israel had brought for the worke of the seruyce of the sanctuary, to make it. And besyde that they brought gyftes vnto it euery daye in the mornynge.

And all the wylse men that wroughte all the holy worke, came euery man frome hys worke whiche they made, and spake vnto Moyses, say- inge, the people byng to muche and more then ynough, for the seruyce & worke whiche the Lorde hath commaunded to be made. And then Mo- ses gaue a commaundement, and they caused it to be proclamed thorowout the hoost sayinge, let that neyther man nor woman prepare any more worke for the present of the sanctuary: and so the people were forbydden to byng: for the stuffe they had was sufficient for all the worke, to make it, and to muche. * All the wylse harted men ther- fore, and they that wrought for the habitacon, made ten curtaynes of whyte twined splyke, pe- lowe splyke, purple and skarlet: with ppyctures of brodyed worke made he them. The lengthe of one curtayne was xxviii cubytes, and the bredth foure, and the curtaynes were all of one splyke.

And he coupled fyue curtaynes by them selues, and other fyue by them selues. And he made low- pes of pelow splyke alonge by the edge of one cur- tayne, euen in the seluage of the couplynge cur- tayne. And lyke wylse he made on the spde of the couplynge curtayne on the other spde. Fyftye lowpes made he in the one curtayn, and fyftye in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other spde: and the lowpes helde one curtayne to ano- ther. And he made fyftye rynge of golde, and coupled the curtaynes one to another wth the rynge, and so was it made one dwelling place.

* And he made a leuen curtayne of goates heare, to be a tent ouer the tabernacle. The length of a curtayne, had thirtie cubytes and was four cubytes brode, and they all cleuen of one splyke. And he coupled fyue curtaynes by them selues, and fyve by them selues, and he made fyftye low- pes alonge by the border of the utmost couplyng curtayne, and fyftye in the edge of the other cou- plyng curtayne. * That they might be coupled together.

And

C And he made fiftie ryrnges of brasse to couple þe tent together, that it might be one. And he made a couerpyng vpon the tent of raine skynnes red, and yet another of tarus skynnes aboute that.

* And he made standyngc bordes (for the tabernacle) of Sethum woode. The length of a bozde was ten cubytes, the bredth one cubyte & an halfe. One bozde had two fete, whereby they were ioyued one to another. And thus made he for all the bordes of þe tabernacle. And he made twentye bordes for the south syde of the habitacpon, and forty sockets of syluer vnder the twentye bordes, two sockettes vnder one bozde, for hys two fete, and two sockettes vnder another bozde for hys two fete. (where the sockets of the spheres are in the corners) And for the other syde of þe dwellinge whiche is toward þe north, he made twentye bordes, and they: forty sockettes of syluer two sockettes vnder one bozde, and two sockettes vnder the other. And toward the west ende of the tabernacle, (that is to saye, at that ende of the tabernacle which enclpyeth toward the see) he made fyre bordes, and two other bordes made he in the corners of the habitacpon, for eyther syde, and they were ioyued close beneth & aboue with a clampe and thus they dyd to both the corners. And there were eyght bordes and syrtene sockettes of syluer: vnder euery bozde two sockettes.

D And he made barres of Sethum woode, fyue for the bordes of the tabernacle in the one syde: and fyue for the bordes of the tabernacle in the other syde: and fyue barres for the bordes of the habitacpon in the west ende. (Toward the see) And he made the myddelst barre to thore thoro the bordes: euen from the one ende to the other, & overlape the bordes with golde, and made ryrnges of golde to thruste the barres thoro we, and couered the barres with golde. And he made an hangyng of pelow sylke, purple, skarlet, and whyte twyned sylke, euen wpyth ppyctures made he it of brodyed worke. And made therunto four pylers of Sethum wood, and overlape them with golde. They: knoppes were also of golde, and he caste for them four sockets of syluer. And he made an hangyng for the Tabernacle dore: of pelow sylke, purple, skarlet, and with whyte twyned sylke of neole worke. And the fyue pylers of it with they: knoppes, and overlape the knoppes of them and the whopes with golde. They: fyue sockettes also were of brasse.

The xxxvii. Chapter.

The arke of testyment. The mercy seate. The table. The candlestyk. The spyches. The altar & the incense.

And Bezaleel made þe arke of Sethum wood, two cubytes & an halfe longe, and a cubyte & a halfe brode, and a cubite and a halfe hie and overlape it with fyne golde wpythin and without, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde about, and caste for it foure ryrnges of golde for the foure corners of it two ryrnges for the one syde, and two for the other, & made barres of Sethum wood, and couered them wpyth golde, and put the barres in the ryrnges alonge by the syde of the arke, to beare it withall.

And he made the mercy seate (that is to saye, the goodes and mercyng place) of pure gold: two cubytes and a halfe was the lengthe therof, and one cubyte and a halfe the breadth: and he made two Cherubyns of thpycke golde vpon the two endes of the mercy seate. One Cherub on the one ende, and another Cherub on the other ende.

Euen of the mercy seate made he the Cherubyns: namely, in the endes therof. And the Cherubyns spred oute they: wynges aboue anhyr, and couered the mercy seate therewpyth. And they: faces were one to another: euen to þe mercy seate warde, were the faces of the Cherubyns. * And he made the table of Sethum wood, two cubites was the length therof, and a cubite the bredth, and a cubyte and a halfe the heyghe of it. And he overlape it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made therto an whope of an fande brende, rounde about & made vpon the whope a crowne of golde rounde about, and caste for it foure ryrnges of golde, and put the ryrnges in the four corners that were in the four fetes therof. Euen hard by the whope were the ryrnges, into the whiche the barres were put, to beare the table withall. And he made the barres of Sethum woode, and couered them with golde to beare the table withall, and made the vessels (for the table) of pure golde: the dysches, spones, flat peeces, and pottes to powre withall. * And he made the candel stycke of pure gold: euen of one pece made he the candel stycke. For his fete, his wastre, hys cuppes, hys knoppes, and hys floures, were of one pece. Syxe braunches proccadyng out of the sydes thereof, thre oute of the one syde, and thre oute of the other. And in one braunche thre cuppes made lyke vnto almondes wpyth knoppes & floures: and in another braunche thre cups made lyke almondes with knoppes and floures.

And so thoro wote the syxe braunches that proceeded out of the candel stycke. And vpon the candel stycke selfe were foure cuppes after the facyon of almondes, wpyth knoppes and floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes and the braunches proceeded out of it, & it was all one pece of pure thpycke golde. And he made hys seuen lampes with þe tounge and snuffers therof, of pure golde. Euen of arhundred weyghe of pure golde, made he it wpyth all the vessels therof. And he made the cens altar of Sethum wood. The length of it was a cubyte, and the bredth a cubyte, for it was four square, and two cubytes hie, with hornes proccadyng out of it. And he couered it with pure gold, both the toppe and the sydes therof round about, and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde aboute. And he made two ryrnges of golde for it, euen vnder the crowne therof in the two corners of it and in the two sydes therof to put barres in, for to beare it withall: and made the barres of Sethum wood and overlape them with golde. And he made the holy anoyntynge oyle, and the swete pure incense after the apotecaryes crafte.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

The

The altar of burnt offering. The brasen laver. The summe of that the people offered.

Exo. xxviii

And he made the burnt offering altar of Sethim wood, fyue cubytes was the length therof, and fyue cubytes the bredth: euen. iiii. square & iii. cubytes hie. And he made vnto it hornes in the four corners of it procedyng out of it and he ouerlaid it wth brasle. And he made of the vessels of the altar the cauldrons, chowls, basyns, flesholes, and cole pannes. All the vessels therof made he of brasle. And he made a brasen greddyen of networke vnto the altar, round aboute a lowe beneth vnto the myddes of the altar, and cast foure rpynges of brasle for the four endes of the greddyen to put barres in. And he made the barres of Sethim wood, and couered them with brasle, and put the barres into y<sup>e</sup> rpynges in the four corners of the altar, to beare it withal and made the altar holowe with in the boardes. And he made the lauer of brasle, and the fote of it also of brasle in the syght of them that byd watch at the doore of the tabernacle of wptnesse. And he made the courte on the south syde, and the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, haupnge an hundred cubytes.

The pylles were twenty, and they<sup>e</sup> brasen sockettes twenty. But the knoppes of the pylles, and they<sup>e</sup> whopes were of syluer. And on the north syde, the hangynges were an hundred cubytes. They<sup>e</sup> pylles were twenty, and they<sup>e</sup> sockettes of brasle twenty. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pylles were of syluer. On the west syde, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes, ten pylles and they<sup>e</sup> ten sockettes. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pylles were of syluer. And towarde the east syde, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes the hangynges of the one syde of the gate, were fyftene cubytes longe, wth thre pylles, and thre sockettes. And of the other syde of the courte gate were hangynges also of fyftene cubytes longe, with thre pylles and thre sockettes.

All the hangynges of y<sup>e</sup> courte round about were of whyte twyned sylke: but the sockettes of the pylles were of brasle: and the knoppes, and the whopes of the pylles were of syluer, & y<sup>e</sup> couering of the heades was of syluer, and all y<sup>e</sup> pylles of the courte were whoped aboute with syluer. And the hangyng of the gate of the courte was nedle worke, of pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke, xx. cubytes longe, and fyue in the bredth, ouer agaynst the hangynges of the courte. And they<sup>e</sup> pylles were foure, and they<sup>e</sup> foure sockettes of brasle: and the knoppes of syluer, and the heades ouerlaid with syluer, and whoped aboute wth syluer, & all the pynes of the tabernacle and of the courte rounde aboute, were of brasle. This is the sum of the habitacyon of witnes, as it was counted accordyng to the comaundemente of Moyses for the offyce of the Leuites by the hande of Jethamar sonne to Aaron the yrcast. And bezaeel y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Aza the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Iuda, made all y<sup>e</sup> the Lord comaunded Moyses, and with him was Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a cunninge grauer and a worker of nedle worke in pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. All the golde that was occupied for all the worke of the holy place was the golde of the waue offeringe, euen. xxx. hundred weyght, and seven hundred and. xxx. sycles, accordyng to the sycle of the Sanctuarie. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was fyue score hundred weyght, & a thousande seven hundred and. lxxv. sycles, after the sycle of the Sanctuarie.

For euery man an halfe weyght, euen halfe a sycle after the sycle of the Sanctuarie, for all them that wente to be nombred frome. xx. yere olde and aboue, euen for fyre hundred thousand and thre thousand and fyue hundred and. l. men.

And of the fyue score hundred weyght of syluer, were cast the sockettes of the sanctuarie, and the sockettes of the vayne, an hundred sockettes of fyue score hundred weyght an hundred weyght to euery socket. And of the thousande seven hundred and. lxx. sycles, he made knoppes to the pillars, and ouerlaid the heades and whoped the<sup>e</sup> (with syluer). And the brasle of the waue offering was lxx hundred weyght, and two thousand, & an hundred sycles. And therewith he made y<sup>e</sup> sockettes to the doore of the tabernacle of wptnesse, and the brasen altare and the brasen greddyen for it, wth all the vessels of the altar, and the sockettes of the court round about, and y<sup>e</sup> sockettes for the courte gate, and all the pynes of y<sup>e</sup> habitacyon, & all the pynes of y<sup>e</sup> court round aboute.

The xxxix. Chapter.

And of the pelowe sylke, purple, and scarlet, they made the vestimentes of ministrye to do seruyce in the holy place, and made the holy garments for Aaron, as the Lord comaunded Moyses. And he made the Ephod of golde, pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they byd beate the gold into thynne plates, and cut it into wyers: to worke it in the pelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and in the fyne whyte, with byrded worke. And they made two sydes for it, to close them vp by the two edges. And the byrdyng of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after y<sup>e</sup> same worke: of gold pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lord comaunded Moyses.

And they wrought Onix stones closed in outches of golde, and graued as sygnettes are grauen with the names of the chyldren of Israel, & put them on the shulders of y<sup>e</sup> Ephod, that they shulde be stones for a remembraunce of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lord comaunded Moyses. And he made the brestlap of conyng worke and lyke the worke of the Ephod euen of golde pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet and twyned whyte sylke. It was foure square, and they made the brestlapp double, an hande bredth longe, and an hande bredth broade.

And they fylled it wth foure rowes of stones. The fyrste rowe, a Sardios, a Topas and Et Smaragdus of an eme

raude.
for a cap:
bunale.

* Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Rubpe, a Saphir and a Dymonde: in the thyrde rowe, Liguros, an Ichat, & an Amatist: in the fourth rowe, a turcas, an Onix, and a Jaspis. And they were closed in ouches of golde in theyr inclosers. And the twelue stones were grauen as sygnetes with the names of the chyldren of Israell. every stone with hys name, accordynge to the twelue tribes. And they made vpon the brestlappe two fastenynge cheynes of wretchen worke and purt golde. And they made two hokes of golde, and two golderynges: and put the two rynges in þe two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the brestlappe.

And the two endes of the two cheynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shulders of the Ephod vpon the fore fronte of it. And they made two rynges of golde, and putte them on the two corners of the brestlappe vpon the edge of it, whiche was on the insyde by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two spdes of the Ephod, beneth on the fore syde of it and ouer agaynst his selc w above vpon the bropdryng of the Ephod, & they straped the brestlappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of pelow sylke that it myghte be vpon the bropdryng of the Ephod, and that the brestlappe shulde not be low- sed from of the Ephod as the Lorde comaunded Moyses. And he made the tynple vnto the Ephod of wouen worke, altogether of pelow sylk and there was an hole in the myddest of the tynple, as the coler of a parlet, w a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it shulde not rent.

And in the tynple they made hemmes wth poingranates, of pelowe sylke, purple scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them amonge the poingranates rounde about vpon the edge of þe tynple: a bell and a poingranate, a bell and a poingranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the tynple to mynster in, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worke for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and lynen byches of twyned whyt and a gpyrell of twyned whyte, pelowe sylke, purple and scarlet. euen of needle worke, as the Lorde comaunded Moyses. And they made the plate for the holy crowne of fyne golde, & wrote vpon it wth grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tyed vnto it a lace of pelowe sylke to fasten it an hye vpon the mytre, as the Lorde comaunded Moyses.

Thus was all the worke of the habitacyn and of the Tabernacle of wytnesse fynished. And the chyldren of Israell dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde had comaunded Moyses: euen so dyd they. And they brought the habitacyn vnto Moyses, the tente and all hys apparcl, but- tons, bordes, barres pylers, and sockettes, the couerynge of rammys saynes redden, and the cou- ynge of tartus saynes, and the hangynge vayle, the arke of wytnesse and the barres ther of, and the mercy seate: the table, and all the vesselles therof, and the shew brate: the pure candellsticke, with the lampes therof. euen with the lampes to be prepared, and all the vesselles therof, and the oyle for lyght: the golden aultar and the anoyntyng oyle, and the swete cens, and the hangynge of the Tabernacle doore, and the brasen aultar wth hys gredpyren of brasse, his barres and all hys vesselles, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynge of the courte with hys pyl- lers and sockettes: the hangynge to the courte gate, and hys pynnes and coordes, and all the vessel of the scrupce of the habitacyn for the Tabernacle of wytnesse: the mynstryng ves- tymentes to serue in the holy place, and the ho- ly vestementes for Aaron the Prcaste, and hys sonnes rapmentes to mynster in: accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so the chyldren of Israell made all the worke. And Moyses behelde all the worke, and se: they had done it euen as the Lorde commaunded: euen so had they done, and Moyses blessed them.

The xl. Chapter.

The tabernacle is reared vp. The gloze of the Lorde ap- peareth in a cloude couerynge the tabernacle.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, And thou shalt see the glory of the Lorde, and thou shalt hear his voice: but thou shalt not go out of the habitation and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put therein the arke of wytnesse, and couer the arke wth the vayle, and bynge in the table, and apparell it accor- dyng to the order thereof. And thou shalt bynge in the candellsticke, and lyghte his lam- pes, and sette the cense aultare of golde before the Arke of wytnesse, and put the hangynge at the doore of the habitacyn.

And sette the burnte offerynge aultare be- fore the doore of the habitacyn and Taberna- cle of wytnesse, and sette the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of wytnesse and the aultar, and put water therein, and make the courte rounde a- bout, and hange vp the hangynge at the courte gate. * And thou shalt take the anoyntyng oyle, and anoynte the habitacyn, and all that is therein, and hallowe it wth all the vesselles therof, that it maye be holy. And thou shalt a- noynte the aultar of the burnt offerynge and all his vesselles, and sanctifye the aultar: that it may be an aultar moste holy.

And thou shalt anoynte also the lauer and his fote, and sanctifye it. And thou shalt byng Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doore of the Ta- bernacle of wytnesse, and walsh them wth water. And thou shalt put vpon Aaron the ho- ly vestymentes, and anoynte hym, and sanctifye hym that he maye mynster vnto me. And thou shalt bynge hys sonnes, and clothe them wth garmentes, and anoynte them as thou didest a- noynte theyre father, that they maye mynster vnto me. For theyr anoyntyng shall be an euer- lastynge presthode vnto them thowout theyr generacyons. * And Moyses dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde comaunded hym: euen so dyd he. Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp the fyrst fyfte daie in the fyrst moneth in þe seconde yere. And Moſes reared vp the tabernacle and faſt- ned hys ſockettes, and ſet vp the boordes therof, and put in the barres of it and reared vp hys pyl- lers, and ſprede abrode the tent ouer the habita- cion, and put the conerpnge of the tente an hye about it, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And he toke the teſtimony, and put it in the Arke, and ſette the barres to the Arke, and put the merſeaite an hye vpon the Arke, & brought the arke into the habitacion, and hanged vp the vayle, and covered the Arke of wytnelle, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And he put the table in the tabernacle of wytnelle in the North ſyde of the habitacion, (but without the vayle) and ſette the breade in order before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde hadde com- maunded Moſes. And he put the candelſtycke in the Tabernacle of wytnelle ouer agaynſt the table to ward the ſouth ſyde of the habitacion, and ſette vp the lampes before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And he put the golden altar in the Taber- nacle of wytnelle before the vayle, and bzente ſwete cenſe thereon, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes. And he hanged vp the hangynge at the dore of the habitacion, and ſette the burnt offeringe altar by the entrepnce in of the habi- tacion of the Tabernacle of wytnelle, and offer- red burnt offeringes and meate offeringes ther- on, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

And he ſette the laver betwene the Taber- nacle of wytnelle and the altare, and powred water therein, to waſhe withall. And Moſes, Aaron and hys ſonnes, waſhed theyre handes and theyre feete thereat: when they went into the Tabernacle of wytnelle, and when they wente to the altare: they waſhed them ſelues, as the Lorde commaunded Moſes. And he reared vp the court rounde about the habitacion and the altare, and ſette vp an hangynge at the coarte gate: and ſo Moſes ſpyſhed the worke.

And the cloude covered the Tabernacle of wytnelle, and the gloze of the Lorde fylled the habitacion. And Moſes coulde not entre into the tabernacle of wytnelle, becauſe the cloude a- brode thereon, and the gloze of the Lorde fylled the habitacion. (For the cloude had covered all.)

And when the cloude was taken vp from of the habitacion, þe chyldren of Iſraell toke theyre iorneyes thowwe out theyre armyes. And when the cloude was not taken vp, they iorneyed not tyll it was taken vp for the cloude of the Lorde was vpon the habitacion by daie, and fyre by nyghte: in the ſyghte of all the houſe of Iſraell, thowwe out all theyre armyes.

The order of the burnt offeringes.

And þe Lord called Moſes, & ſpake vnto hym out of the Tabernacle of wytnelle, ſaying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Iſraell, & thou ſhalt ſaye vnto the. If a man of you bring a ſacrifice vnto þe Lorde þe ſhal bring pour ſacrifice from amonge theſe catel, euen from amonge the oren & the ſhepe. And let the preast offer it, and the preast shall take hys hande full of it, for a remembrance therof, and burne it vpon the Altar, to be a sacrifice for the Lorde, it is a synne offering. And the preast shall make an attonement for hym as thou chynge hys synne that he hath sinned in one of these, and it shall be forgiven. And the remnaunt shall be the preastes, as a meate offering.

The offering for synnes which are done willingly. The lawe of the burnt offering. The fyre must abyde evermore vpon the altar. The offerings of Aaron, and his sonnes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: yf a soule synne and trespass agaynst the Lorde, and denye vnto hys neyghbour yf whiche was taken vnto kepe, or that was put into hys handes, or doeth by violence robbery or wrong vnto his neyghbour, or yf he haue found that which was loste, and denyeth it, and sweareth falsely, vpon what soeuer thyng it be that a man doth, and synneth therein: Yf he haue so synned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently a waye, or the wronge whiche he doth or that which was deliuered vnto kepe or the lost thyng which he founde, and all that about whiche he hath sworne falsely, he shall restore it agayne in the whole summe, and shall adde the fyfte part more thereto, and geue it vnto hym to whome it pertaineth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespass, and let hym bryng for his trespass vnto the Lorde a ram without blemme out of the flocke (that is esteemed wurt a trespass offering) vnto the preast.

And the preast shall make an attonement for hym, before the Lorde, and it shall be forgiven hym, what soeuer thyng it be that he hath done and trespassed therein. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge this is the lawe of the burnt offering.

And the preast shall put on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his fleshe, and take awaye the ashes vpon the which the fyre consumed the burnt sacrifice in the altar, and he shall put them beside the altar, and put off his raymente, and put on other, and carry the ashes out without the host vnto a cleane place. The fyre vpon the altar shall burne still, and neuer be put out. But the preast shall lape wood on it euery day in the morning, and put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne thereon the fatte of the peace offerings. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the altar, and neuer go out.

* This is the lawe of the meate offering: whiche Aarons sonnes shall bryng before the Lorde, euen before the altar and one of them shall take his handfull of the flour of the meate offering and of the oyle and all the frankensences whych is vpon the meate offering, and shall burne it vnto a remembrance vpon the altar for a sweet sauoure, euen a memoriall of it vnto the Lorde.

The vii. Chapter.

¶ Of the offeringes of the peace, and of the offeringes of the sinne, and of the offeringes of the trespass. The fat and the bloude maye not be eaten.

This is the lawe of trespass offeringe it is moste holy. In the place where they kyl the burnt offeringe, shall they kyl the trespass offeringe also, and his bloude shall be sprynkle rounde aboute vpon þe aultar. All the fatte therof shall they offer: the rumpe and the fatte therof that couereth the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, and the fat that is on them and vpon the loynes: and the abundance that is on the luer shalt thou take away with the kydneyes, and the Priest shall burne the vpon the aultar, to be a sacrifice vnto the Lord for it is a trespass offeringe. All the males amonge the Priestes shall eat thereof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synne offeringe is, so is the trespass offeringe, one lawe serueth for both, and it shall be the priestes that reconcile therewith. And the Priest that offereth any mans burnt offeringe, shall haue the skynne of the burnt offeringe whiche he hath offered.

And all the meate offeringe that is baken in the oven and that is drelled vpon the gredden, and

And every meate offeringe that is mingled wyth oyle and that is drye, shall pertayne vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as muche as another. If he offer it to geue thanks, he shall bringe vnto his thankoffringe swete cakes mingled w oyle and swete wafers anoynted wyth oyle, & cakes myngled wyth oyle of fyne flour fryed. He shall bringe his offeringe vpon cakes of leuened breade for his peace offeringes to geue thanks: and of all the sacrifice he shall offer one for an heuicofferinge vnto the Lord, and it shall be the Priestes that sprynkled the bloude of the peace offeringes. And the fleshe of the thanke offeringe in his peace offeringes, shall be eaten the same daye that it is offered. And let hym laye vpon no thyng of it vntill the morowe. But if he offer his sacrifice by reason of a vowe, or of his owne free wyll, it shall be eaten the same daye that he offereth his sacrifice.

And if ought remayne vntill the morowe, it maye be eaten but as much of the offered fleshe as remayneth vnto þe thyrde daye, shall be burnt with fyre. And if any of the fleshe of his peace offeringes be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offereth it obtayne no fauoure, neyther shall it be rekened vnto hym, but shall be an abhominacion. Therefore the soule that eateth of it shall beare his synne. And the fleshe that toucheth any vncleane thyng, shall not be eaten, but burnt with fyre: and all that be cleane shall eat the fleshe. But if any soule eat of the fleshe of the peace offeringe that pertayneth vnto the Lord haung his vncleanness vpon hym the same soule shall perperie frome amonge his people. Moreover, the soule that doth touche any vncleane thyng, that is of the vncleanness of man, or of any vncleane beast, or any abhominacion that is vncleane, and then eat of the fleshe of the peace offeringe whiche pertayneth vnto the Lord, that soule shall perperie from his people. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses: sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. * Ye shall eat no manner fatte of oxen, of shepe, and of goates: neuer thelater the fatte of the beast that dyeth alone, and the fatte of that whiche is tome with wyld beasts, shall be occupied in any maner of vse, but ye shall in no wyse eat of it. For who so ever eateth the fat of the beast of whiche men vse to bringe an offeringe vnto the Lord, that soule that eateth it shall perperie from his people. Moreover, ye shall eat no manner of bloude, whether it be of foule or of beast. What soener soule it be that eateth any manner of bloude, the same soule shall perperie from his people. And the Lord talked with Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye. he that bringeth his peace offeringe vnto the Lord, let hym bringe his gyfte vnto the Lord of his peace offeringe let his owne handes bringe the offeringes of þe Lord: euen the fat with the brest shall he bringe that the brest may be waned for a waue offeringe before the Lord.

And the priest shall burne the fat vpon the altar, and the breast shall be Aarons and his sonnes

And the ryght shoulder shall be geue vnto the Priest, for an heue offering, of your peace offerings. The same that offereth the bloude of the peace offerings and the fat, amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryghte shoulder for his parte, for the * wauebreast and the heue shoulder haue I taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of theyr peace offerings, and haue geuen it vnto Aaron and vnto his sonnes: by a statute for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anointynge of Aaron and the anointynge of his sonnes in the sacrifices of the Lord, in the daye when he offered them to be priests vnto the Lord. And these be the sacrifices whych the Lord commaunded to be geuen them, (in the daye of theyr anointing) of the chyldren of Israel, by a statute for euer in theyr generations. This is the lawe of the burnt offering and of the meat offering, and of the sacrifice for synne and trespass, for consecracyon and for the peace offering, whych the Lord commaunded Moses in the mounte of Synay, when he commaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer their sacrifices vnto the Lord in the wilderness of Synay.

The viii. Chapter.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge take * Aaron and his sonnes with him, and the vestures and the anointynge oyle, and a ponge ore for synne, and two rammes, & a balnet with swete breade and gather thou all the congregacyon together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Moses dyd as the Lord commaunded hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Moses layde vnto the congregacyon this is the thyng whiche the Lord commaunded to be done. And Moses brought Aaron and his sonnes and washed them with water, and put vpon hym the albe, and girded him with a gyrdle, and put vpon hym the tunicle, & of pailow spike and put the Ephod thereon, which he girded with the bzorded gyrdle that was in the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym the wyth. And he put the breastlappe thereon, and put in the breastlappe Urim and Thummim. And he put the myter vpon his heade, and put vpon the myter, (euen vpon the forefront of his face) the golden plate of the holy crowne, as the Lord commaunded Moses. * And Moses took the anointynge oyle, and anointed the Tabernacle and all that was therein, and sanctified them, and spynkled therof vpon the altar seuen tymes, and anointed the altar and all his vessels, the laver and his fote, to sanctifye them. And he powred of the anointynge oyle vpon Aarons head, and anointed hym, to sanctifye hym. And Moses brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and girded them with gyrdels, and put bonettes vpon theyr heades as the Lord commaunded Moses. * And he brought the ponge ore for synne. And Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the head of the ponge ore that was for synne. And Moses slewe hy in, and took of the bloude whych he put vpon the hornes of the altar rounde aboute with his synger, and purified it, and powred the bloude vnto the bosome of the altar, and sanctified it, and reconcyled it. And he took all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the abundaunce of the luer, and the two kydneyes, and theyr fat, and Moses burned it vpon the altar. But the ponge ore and his hyde, his fleshe and his dung, he burnt with fyre without the hooste, as the Lord commaunded Moses. And he brought the ram for the burnt offering, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the head of the ram, whych Moses kyled, and spynkled the bloude vpon the altar rounde about, and Moses cut the ram in peeces and burnt the head, the peeces & the fat, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and Moses burnt the ram euer vpon the altar, for a burnt sacrifice that it myght be a swete sauoure, and an offering vnto the Lord, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

* And he took the fatte and the rumpe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the abundaunce of the luer, and the two kydneyes with theyr fat, and the ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete breade that was before the Lord, he took one swete cake of oyled breade, & one wafer, and put them on the fat and vpon the right shoulder: and put altogether vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his sonnes handes, and waied it a waue offering before the Lord. And Moses took them from of theyr handes, and burnt them vpon the altar, euen vpon the burnt offeringe altar: for it was the sacrifice of consecracyon, for a swete sauoure and sacrifice vnto the Lord. * And Moses took the breast and waied it for a waue offering before the Lord, for it was of the ram of the consecracyon, and it was Moses parte, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And Moses took of the anointynge oyle, and of the bloude whych was vpon the altar, and spynkled it vpon Aaron and vpon his vestmentes, vpon his sonnes, and on his sonnes vestmentes with hym, and sanctified Aaron, his vestures, and his sonnes, and his sonnes vestures with hym. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and his sonnes: boyle the flesh in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there * eate it with swete breade that is in the basket of consecracyon, as the Lord commaunded, sayinge. Aaron and his sonnes shall shall eate it: and that whiche remaineth of the breadye, shall ye burne with fyre. And ye shall not departe from the doore of the tabernacle of wy-nesse seuen dayes, vntyll the dayes of your consecracyon be at an ende. For seuen dayes shall ye fyll your hande as he dyd this daye: euen so y Lorde hath comaunded to doo, to reconyle you withall. Therefore shall ye abyde in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse daye and nyght seue dayes longe: and kepe the watche of the Lorde, and ye shall not dye: for so I am commaunded.

And so Aaron & his sons dyd all thynges which the Lorde comaunded by the hande of Moyses.

The ix. Chapter.

The first offeringes of Aaron. Aaron blesteth the people the glorie of the Lorde is shewed.

And it fortuneth that in y<sup>e</sup> eighth day Moses called Aaron and hys son-nes, and the elders of Israell: and sayde vnto Aaron: take the a calfe, a pong one out of the dione, for syn and a ram for a burnt offering: both without ble mythe, and bypunge them before the Lorde. And vnto the chyldren of Israell thou shalt speake, sayinge: take ye an he goate for synne, & a calfe, and a lambe both two of a yere old, without ble myth for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a ram for peace offeringes, to offer before the Lorde, & a meate offering mingled with oyle for to day the Lorde wyll appere vnto you.

And they brought that (whych Moses commaunded) before the tabernacle of wytnes, and all the congregacyon came and stode before the Lorde. And Moses sayde: this is the thyng, whiche the Lorde comaunded that ye shulde do:
and the glorie of the Lorde shall appere vnto
you. * And Moses sayde vnto Aaron go vnto the aultar and offer thy sacrifice for synne, and make an attonement for the and for the people: and thou shalt offer the offering of the people, to reconyle them, as the Lorde comaunded.

Aaron therefore wente vnto the aultar, and slew the calfe which he had for synne. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the bloude vnto hym, and he dypte his synger in the bloude, and put it vpon y<sup>e</sup> hornes of the aultar, & powred the blood vnto the botome of the aultar. But the fat and the two kydneyes and the abundaunce of the lyuer of the synne offering, he burnt vpon the aulter as the Lorde comaunded Moyses. The fleshe and the hyde he burnt wth fyre withoute the hoste. And he slew the burnt offering, * & Aarons sons brought vnto hym the blood, whych he sprynkled rounde aboute vpon the aultar.

And they brought the burnt offering vnto hym with the peeces therof, and the head and he burnt it vpon the aultar, and dyd washe the inward-des and the legs, & burnt them vpon the burnt offering on the aultar. And then he brought the peoples offering takynge the goate that y<sup>e</sup> people had for the sacrifice of synne, and slew it & offered it for synne, as he dyd the fyrste. And brought the burnt offering, and offered it as the maner was, * and brought the meate offering, and fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon y<sup>e</sup> aultar, besyde the burnt sacrifice of y<sup>e</sup> morning.

He slew also the ore and the ram for y<sup>e</sup> peace offering, that the people had for them selues: & Aarons sonnes brought vnto hym the bloude, whych he sprynkled vpon the aultar rounde about, and toke the fatte of the ore and of y<sup>e</sup> ram the rumpe, and the fat that couereth the inward-des and the kydneyes and the abundaunce of the lyuer: and they put the fat vpon the brestes, and he burnt the fat vpon the aultar: but the bzestes and the ryght shulders Aaron waied for a waue offering before the Lorde, as the Lorde comaunded Moyses. And Aaron lyfte vp hys hande ouer the people, and blessed them, & came downe from offering of the synne offering, burnt offerings and peace offeringes. And Moyses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of wytnes and came out, and blessed the people, and the glorie of the Lorde appeared vnto all the people.

* And there came a fyre out from before y<sup>e</sup> Lorde and consumed vpon the aultar y<sup>e</sup> burnt offering and the fat. Whiche when all the people sawe, they gaue thanks, and fell on theyr faces.

The x. Chapter.

Nadab and Abihu are slayne. Israell mourneth for them the pyrales are layd open wth.

And Nadab and Abihu, the son-nes of Aaron, toke either of them his celsor, and put fyre therein, and putte cens therevpon, and offered straunge fyre before the Lorde, * whiche he comaunded them not and there went a fyre out from the Lorde, and consumed them, and they dyed before the Lorde.
Then Moses sayde vnto Aaron: thys is it that the Lorde spake, sayinge: I wyll be sanctified in them that come nymme and before all the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron held hys peace. And Moyses called Elisael and Elisapha the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, & sayde vnto them: come on, carpe your brethren from y<sup>e</sup> holp place out of the hoste. And they went to the and carped them in theyr albes out of the hoste, as Moyses had sayde. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his son-nes: vncouer not your heades: neither rent your clothes, lest ye dye, and lest wrath come vpon al the people. But let your brethren y<sup>e</sup> hole house of Israell bewepe the burning which y<sup>e</sup> Lorde hath kyndled. And go not ye out from the doore of y<sup>e</sup> tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoi-as Moyses sayde. And the Lorde spake vnto Aa-ton, sayinge: Thou shalt not drynke wyne and stronge drynke, thou and thy sons that are with the: when ye go into the tabernacle of witness, lest ye dye. Let it be a lawe for euer thowout your generacions, and that ye maye put difference betwene holy and unholy, betwene cleane and uncleane, and that ye maye teach the chyldren of Israel all the statutes which the Lorde hath spoken vnto them by the hande of Moyses. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes that were left: take the meate offeringe that remaineth of the sacrifices of the Lorde, and eat it wout leuen besyde the altar, for it is most holy: ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thy duty & thy sons duty of the sacrifices of the Lord for so I am commaunded. And the wauchzest & heue shulder shall ye eat in a cleane place: thou and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the. For they be thy duty and thy sonnes duty geuen out of the peace offeringes of the chyldren of Israel. The breichulder and the wauchzest shall they bring in with the sacrifices of the fat, to waue it before the Lord, and it shall be thine and thy sons with the by a lawe for euer as the Lord hath commaunded.

And Moyses sought the goate that was offered for syn, and se, it was burnte. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar the sons of Aaron, whiche were left alpye, sayinge: wherefore haue ye not eaten the synne offeringe in the holy place, seynge it is most holy: and God hath geuen it you, to beare the synne of the congregacion, to make agreement for them before the Lord. Beholde, the blood of it was not brought in within the holy place: ye shulde haue eaten in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron sayde vnto Moyses: behold, this daye haue they offered their synne offeringe & they burnt offering before the Lord, & it is chaunced me after this maner. And yet I had eaten the sacrifice to day, shulde it haue bene accepted in the sight of the Lord? And whē Moyses hearde that, he was contente.

The xi. Chapter.

Of beastes whiche be cleane, and whiche be vncleane.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses & Aaron, and sayd vnto them: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say: these are the beastes whiche ye shall eat, amonge all the cattell that are on the earth: what soeuer parteth the hofe, and deuydeth it into two clawes, and chaweth cud amonge the beastes, that shall ye eat. Neuertheless, these shall ye not eat, of them that chewe cud, and deuydeth the hooves: as is the Camell, whiche chaweth cud, but he deuydeth not the hofe: therefore is he vncleane vnto you, euen so the conye, whiche chaweth the cud but deuydeth not the hofe: he is vncleane to you. And the hare, though he chaweth the cud, yet because he deuydeth not the hofe, he is therefore vncleane to you. And agayne, the swyne though he deuyde the hofe into two clawes, yet he chaweth not the cud: he is vncleane to you. Of theyr fleshe shall ye not eat, and theyr carcases shall ye not touche but lette them be vncleane to you.

These shall ye eat of all that are in the waters: what soeuer hath fynnes and scales in the waters, sces and ryuers, that shall ye eat. And all that haue not fynnes and scales in the see, and ryuers, of all that moue and lyue in the waters, let them be abhominacion vnto you: Ye shall not eat of theyr fleshe, but abhorre theyr carcases. Let all that haue no fynnes nor scales in the waters, be abhominable vnto you.

These are they, whiche ye shall abhorre amonge the foules, and that oughte not to be eaten, for they are an abhominacion. The eagle, the golpauke, and the cormoraunte, the vultur, and the kpte after his kynde, and all rauens after theyr kynde: the estriche, the nyghte crowe, the cockowe, and the owle after his kynde, the falcon, the stozke, the greete owle, the backe, the pelreane, the ppe: the heron, the Jape after his kynde, the lapwinge and the swalowe. Let all foules that crepe and goo vpon all foure, be an abhominacion vnto you.

Yet these maye ye eat, of euery creyng thing that hath wynges and go vpon four fete: euen those that haue knees about vpon theyr fete, to leape withal vpon the earth, euen these of the ye maye eat: the Arde after his kynde: the Sealaam after his kynde: the Hargol after his kynde and the Hagab after his kynde. All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shall be abhominacion vnto you. In suche ye be vncleane, and who soeuer toucheth the carcase of them, shall be vncleane vnto the euen: and who soeuer beareth the carcase of them, shall wash his clothes and be vncleane vntill euen.

And euery beaste that hath hoofe and deuydeth it not into two clawes, nor chaweth cud, such are vncleane vnto you: euery one that toucheth them, shall be vncleane. And what soeuer goeth vpon his handes amonge all maner beastes that go on all foure fete: such are vncleane vnto you and who so doth touche their carcase shall be vncleane vntill the euen. And he that beareth the carcase of them, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen, for such are vncleane vnto you. And let these also be vncleane to you amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the earth: the weasel, and the mouse, and the toode, after theyr kynde, the hedgehog, the skelio, the lacerre, the snayle, and the molle: these are vncleane to you amonge all that crepe: who soeuer doth touche them when they be deade, shall be vncleane vntill the euen. And what soeuer any of the dead carcases of them doth fall vpon, shall be vncleane: whether it be vessel of wood, or raiment, or skynne, or bagge, or what soeuer vessel it be that any worke is wrought in. And it must be plunged in the water, and it shall be vncleane vntill the euen, and so shall it be censed.

All maner of earthen vessel wherunto any of them falleth, shall be vncleane, with all that is therein: and if it shall be broken. All maner meate also is vncleane to be eaten if any such water come vpon, it shall be vncleane. And all maner drynke that is vncleane to be dronke in all maner such vessels shall be vncleane. And euery thyng that theyr theze carcase falleth vpon, shall be vncleane. Whether it be ouen or kettell, let it be broken. For they are vncleane, and shall be vncleane vnto you: Neuerthelater, yet the fountaynes and welles and collectyon of waters shall be cleane styll. And who so toucheth theze carcases, shall be vncleane. If the deade carcase of any such fall vpon any lede vled to sowe, it shall yet be cleane styll. but and if any water be powred vpon the lede, and a deade carcase fall thereon, it shall be vncleane vnto you. If any beast of whiche ye maye eat, dye and any man touch the deade carcase therof, he shall be vncleane vntill the euen he that eateth of the deade carcase of it, shall wash his clothes and be vncleane vntill the euen. And he also that beareth the carcase of it, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill euen.

Let euery creppynge thyng that crepeth vpon the earth be an abhominacion, and not be eaten. What soeuer goeth vpon the brest and what soeuer goeth vpon foure, or that hath moo fete amonge ail creppynge thynges that crepe vpon the earth, of that ye eate not, for they are abhominable. Ye shall not make your soules abhominable wyth nothynge that crepeth, neyther make your selues vncleane wyth them: that ye shoulde be despyled therby. For I am the Lord your God. Ye sanctified therefore, and ye shall be holy, for I am holy. and ye shall not despyle your soules wyth any maner of creppynge thyng, that crepeth vpon the earth. For I am the Lord that brought you out of the lande of Egypt, to be your God. Ye shall be holy therefore, for I am holy. This is the lawe of bestes and foules, and of euery lypynge creature that moueth in the waters, and of euery creature that crepeth vpon the earth, & there maye be a difference betwene the vncleane and cleane, and betwene the beast that maye be eaten, and the beast that ought not to be eaten.

A lawe howe women shoulde be purged after theyr deliuerance.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: if a woman hath conceived, and borne a manchylde, she shall be vncleane seven dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is put a part in tyme of her naturall disease. And in the eyght day the fleshe of the chyldes & foreskynne shall be cut awaye. And she shall then contynue in the bloude of her purifying thre and thyrtye dayes. She shall touche no halowed thyng, nor come in to the sanctuary, vntill the tyme of her purifying be out. If she beare a mayde chylde, she shall be vncleane two weekes, as when she hath her naturall dyscase. And she shall contynue in the bloud of her purifying thre score and fyve dayes.

* And when the dayes of her purifying are out whether it be for a sonne or for a daughter, she shall bring a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offering, and a yonge pygeon or a turtill done for synne vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes and vnto the preast: which shall offer them before the Lord, and make an attonement for her, and she shall be purged of the yssue of her bloude. * And this is the lawe for her that hath borne a male or female. But and if she be not able to bring a lambe, she shall bring two turtleys or two yonge pigeons: the one for a burnt offering, and the other for syn. And the preast shall make an attonement for her, & she shall be cleane.

The. xiii. Chapter.

The preastes shall iudge who are Lepers.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: when there appeareth a risynge in any mans fleshe, whether a scabbe, or a glisterynge whyte: and the plage of leprosy be in the skynne of his fleshe, he shall be brought vnto Aaron the preast, or vnto one of his sonnes the preastes. and the preast shall loke on the soze in the skynne of his fleshe.

And when the heare in the soze is turned vnto whyte, and the soze also seme to be lower then the skynne of his fleshe it shall be a plage of leprosy and the preastes shall loke on him, and iudge him vncleane. If there be but a whyte plecthe in the skynne of his fleshe, and seme not to be lower then the skynne, nor the heare therof is turned vnto whyte, the preast shall shut hym vp seven dayes. And the preast shall loke vpon hym agayne the seuenth daye. And if the plage seme to hym to abyde styll, and the plage growe not in the skyn the preast shall shut hym vp yet seven dayes more. And the preast shall loke on hym agayne the seuenth daye. When if the plage be darker, and not growen in the skynne, the preast shall iudge hym cleane, for it is but a scurfe. And he shall wash his clothes, and be cleane. But and if the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the preast, and iudged cleane, he shall be sene of the preast agayne. If the preast se that the scabbe be growen abroad in the skynne, the preast shall make hym vncleane for it is a leprosy.

When the plage of the leprosy is in a man, he shall be brought vnto the preast, and the preast shall se hym. And if the risynge be whyte in the skynne, and haue made the heare whyte, & there be rawe fleshe in the soze it shall be an olde leprosy in the skyn of his fleshe. And the preast shall make hym vncleane, and shall not shut hym vp: for he is vncleane. If a leprosy breake out abroad in the skynne, and couer all the skynne, from his head to his fote, where soeuer the preast loketh, and the preast loke vpon hym. And if the leprosy haue couered all his fleshe, he shall iudge the plage to be cleane, because it is all turned into whynesse, and he shall be cleane. But and if there be rawe fleshe on hym when he is sene, he shall be vncleane.

And the preast shall se the rawe fleshe, and declare hym to be vncleane. For the rawe fleshe is vncleane, for it is a leprosy. Or if he saw fleshe departe agayne and chaunge vnto whyte he shall come to the preast, and the preast shall se hym and beholde. If the soze be chaunged vnto whyte (and couer the whole man) the preast shall iudge the plage cleane and he shall be cleane. If he fleshe also in whose skynne there is a hyle and is healed, and in the place of the hyle there appeare a whyte

And therefore the preast shal iudge hym vncleane, seyng it is the plage of leprosy. But yf þe preast loke on it and there be no whyte heare in the bygght spot, and be no lower then þe other skynne, but be darker, the preast shal shut hym vpon seven dayes. And the Preat shal loke on hym the seventh daye: And yf it be growen abroad in the skynne, the preast shal iudge hym vncleane, seyng it is the plage of leprosy. And yf the spot stande still in it, and growe not in the skynne, but is darke, it is a risyng of the burnyng, and the Preat shal therefore declare hym cleane, seyng it is the pynte of the burnyng.

E If a man or woman hath a soze vpon þe head or the bearde, the preast shal se it. And yf it appere lower then the skynne, and there be in it a pelow heare: & thynke more then it was wont to be) the preast shal iudge hym vncleane, seyng that the same fretyngge is a token of leprosy vpon þe heade or beard. And yf the preast loke on the soze of the pynte, and it seme not lower then þe skyn, and that the heare is not blacke, the preast shal shutte vpon the fretyngge soze seven dayes. And in the seventh daye the preast shal loke on the soze and yf the soze be not growen, and there be in it no pelow heare, and the soze seme not lower then the skynne, he shalbe shauen: but the place of the soze shal be not shaued, and the preast shal shut vpon the soze seven dayes mo. And in the seventh daye the preast shal loke on the soze: And yf the soze be not growen in the skynne, nor seme lower then the other skynne, the Preat shal cense hym, and he shal washe his clothes, & be cleane. But yf the soze growe in the fleshe after his censing, the preast shal loke on hym.

A And yf the soze be growen in the skynne, the preast shal not seke for pelow heare, for he is vncleane. But yf he se the pynte stande still, and that there is blacke heare growne vpon therin, the soze is healed, and he shalbe cleane, and the preast shal declare hym to be cleane. Yf there be whyte spottes in the skynne of the fleshe of man or woman, the preast shal loke vpon it. And yf the spottes in the skynne of the fleshe be somewhat darke and whyte withall, or be more be sure, that it is no leprosy: it is a freckell growyng in the fleshe. Therefore is he cleane. And the man whose head is destitute of heare, (wherby he is made balde) is cleane. And he that hath his heare out in his forehead, is forehead balde and cleane. If there be in the bald head or balde forehead, a whyte reddyshe soze scabbe, there is leprosy sponge vpon in his bald head or bald forehead.

And the Preat shal loke vpon hym, and yf the risyng of the soze be whyte reddyshe in his bald head or bald forehead after the manner of leprosy which is in the skynne of the fleshe, the he is a leperous man and vncleane. And the preast shal make hym vncleane, for the plage thereof is in his head. The leper in whome the plage is shal haue his clothes rent, and his head bare, & shal put a couerpyng vpon his lyppe, and shalbe called vncleane and despyled. And as long as þe dyscase lasteth vpon hym, he shalbe despyled and vncleane he shal dwel alone, euen without the hoost shal his habitarion be. The cloth that the plage of leprosy is in, whither it be linnen or wollen, whither it be in the warpe or woofe of linnen or of wollen ether in a skyn or any thyng made of skynne, yf the dyscase be pale or somewhat reddyshe in the cloth or skynne whether it be in the warpe or woofe, or any thyng that is made of skyn, then it is a plage of leprosy and shalbe shewed vnto the preast.

The Preat therefore shal se the plage, and shut it vpon seven dayes, and loke on the plage the seventh day. Which yf it be increased in þe cloth (whether it be in þe warpe or woofe, or in a skyn) or in any thyng that is made of skynne, it is the leprosy of a fretyngge soze: it is vncleane and that cloth shalbe burnt, ether warpe or woofe whether it be wollen or linnen, or any thyng that is made of skynne, wherin the plage is, for it is a fretyngge leprosy, it shalbe burnt in the fyre. If the preast se that the plage is not growen in the cloth ether in the warpe or woofe, or in what soeuer thyng of skynne it be, the preast shal commaund them to wash the thyng wherin þe plage is, and he shal shut it vpon seven dayes mo. And the Preat shal loke on the plage agayne, after that it is washed. And yf the plage haue not changed his colour, and is spred no further abroad, it is vncleane. Thou shalt burne it in the fyre, for it is a frette inwarde: in parte or in all together. And yf the preast se that the plage is darker after that it is washed, he shal rente it out of the cloth, or out of the skyn, or out of the warpe, or out of the woofe. And yf it appere any more in the cloth, ether in the warpe or in woofe, or in any thyng made of skynne) it is a warpyngge plage. Thou shalt burne the plage that is in it. And ouer the cloth, ether warpe or woofe or what soeuer thyng of skyn it be whiche thou hast washed, yf þe plage be departed thence from, it shal be washed once agayne: and then shal it be cleane. This is the lawe of the plage of leprosy in a cloth whether it be wollen or linnen ether in the warpe or woofe, or in any thyng of skynnes, to make it cleane or vncleane.

The xiiij. Chapter.

Mat. 11. 1. 2.
and 18. 1. 2.

¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying * this is the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing. He shall be brought unto the priest, and the priest shall go out without the host, and look upon him. And if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper, then shall the priest command that he which is to be cleansed, bring two living birds and cleanse, and cedar wood and purple cloth, and psope. And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel, and upon running water. And he shall take the living bird with the cedar wood, the purple and the psope, and shall dip them and the living bird in the blood of the slain bird, upon the running water, & sprinkle upon him (that must be cleansed of his leprosy) seven times, and cleanse him, and shall let the living bird go free into the field.

And he that is cleansed, shall wash his clothes, and have of all his beard, and wash him self in water, that he may be clean. And after that shall he come into the host, and shall tarry without his tent seven days, but in the seventh day he shall have of all his beard, namely, his beard, his beard, and his eyebrows. even all his beard shall be shaven of. And he shall wash his clothes and his flesh in water, & he shall be clean.

In the eighth day he shall take two lambs without blemish, and an ewe lamb of a year old without blemish, and three tenth deals of fine flour for a meat offering mingled with oyle, and a logge of oyle. And the priest that maketh him clean, shall bring the man which is to be made clean and those things, before the Lord, even before the door of the tabernacle of witness. And the priest shall take one lamb, & offer him for trespass, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lord. And he shall lay the lamb in the place where the spinn offering and the burnt offering are slain. even in the holy place. For as the spinn offering is, even so is the trespass offering the priestes: for it is most holy. And the priest shall take of the blood of the trespass offering, and put it upon the top of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

And the priest shall offer the spinn offering and make an attonement for him that is to be cleansed, for his uncleanness. And then shall he kill the burnt offering, and the priest shall offer the burnt offering and the meat offering upon the altar: and the priest shall make an attonement for him, and he shall be clean. * If he be poor, and can not get so much, he shall take one lamb for a trespass offering to waue it for his cleansing, and a tenth deal of fine flour mingled with oyle for a meat offering, and a logge of oyle, and two turtle doves or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get, wherof the one shall be for spinn, and the other for a burnt offering. And he shall bring them the eighth day for his cleansing unto the priest before the door of the tabernacle of witness before the Lord.

And the priest shall take the lamb that is for the trespass, and a logge of oyle, and shall waue them before the Lord. And he shall kill the lamb for the trespass, and the priest shall take of the blood of the trespass offering, and put it upon the top of his right ear that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot. And the priest shall powre of the oyle into his right hand, and the priest shall with his finger sprinkle of the oyle that is in his left hand, seven times before the Lord. And the priest shall put of the oyle that is in his hand upon the top of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, even in the place where the blood of the trespass offering was put.

And the rest of the oyle that is in the priestes hand, he shall put upon the head of him that is to be cleansed: that he may make an attonement for him before the Lord. And he shall offer one of the turtle doves or of the young pigeons, such as he can get, the one for a spinn offering, and the other for a burnt offering with the meat offering. And the priest shall make an attonement for him that is to be cleansed before the Lord. This is the law of him in whom is the plague of leprosy, and whose hand is not able to get that which pertaineth to his cleansing. And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron saying, when ye be come unto the land of Canaan which I give you in possession.

And if I put the plague of leprosy in a house of the land of your possession, he that oweth the house shall come, and tell the priest, saying, me thinketh that there is as it were a leprosy in the house. And the priest shall command them to empty the house before the priest go into it to see the plague: that all that is in the house be not made unclean, and then must the priest go into the house. If the priest also see that the plague is in the walls of the house, and that there be holow strakes pale or red which seeme to be lower then the wall it self, the priest shall go out at the house doores, and shut up the house seven days. And the priest shall come againe the seventh day, and if he see that the plague be increased in the walls of the house, the priest shall command them to take away the stones in which the plague is, and let them caste them into a foule place without the cytie, and he shal commaunde the house to be scraped within rounde aboute, & powre out the duste, that they scrape of, wpthout the cytie into a foule place.

A And they shal take other stones, and putte them in the places of those stones, & other mortar, to plaster the house withall. And if the plague come agayne and breake out in the house, after that he hath taken awaye the stones and scraped the walles of the house, and after he hath playstred the house a newe, the preast shal come and se it. And if he perceaue that the plague hath growen further in the house, it is a fretting leprosy in the house. It is therefore vncleane. And he shal breake downe the house. And the stones of it, and the timber therof, and all the mortar of the house, shal he carpe out of the cytie vnto a foule place. Moreover, he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut vp, shal be vncleane vntill the euen. He that slepeth in the house shal washe his clothes, he lyke wylle that eateth in the house, shal washe his clothes.

G And if the preast shal come and se, that the plague hath spread no further in the house, after it is newe plastered, the preast shal iudge that house cleane, because the plague is healed. And let hym take to cleanse the house withall: two hyzdes, cedar wood, purple cloth and ysope. And he shal kylle out of the hyzdes in an earthen vessel, and vpon runninge water: and take the cedar wood, and the ysope, and the purple with the luyng hyzde, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne hyzde, and in the running water, & spraye like the house seven tymes, & cleanse the house wth the bloude of the hyzde and wth the runninge water, with the luyng hyzde, wth the cedar wood and the ysope, and the purple cloth. But he shal let the luyng hyzde lye out of the towne into a brode felde, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shal be cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plague of leprosy and brealyng out and of the leprosy of cloth and house for a swellinge for a scabbe, and for a whyle blister. To teach when it must be made vncleane and cleane. This is the lawe of leprosy.

The manner of purginge the vncleane both of men and women.

A And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, and Aaron saying Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them Who soeuer hath a runnyng pssue out of his fleshe, is vncleane by reason of his pssue. And this shal be the token of his vncleanness in his pssue: when he is vncleane. If his fleshe runne, or if his fleshe congele by the reason of his pssue, then is it vncleanness. Every couche wher on he lyeth that hath the pssue, is vncleane, and every thyng wher on he lyeth, is vncleane: Who soeuer toucheth his couche, shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

And he that lyeth on any thyng wher on he sat that hath the pssue, shal washe his clothes and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill the euen. He that toucheth the fleshe of hym that hath the pssue, shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vnto the euen. If he also that hath the pssue, spit vpon hym that is cleane, he shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill euen. And what horse harness so euer he rydeth vpon that hath the pssue, shal be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, shal be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any suche thynges, shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And who so euer he toucheth that hath the pssue (he haue not spraye washed his handes in water) shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vnto the euen. * The vessel of earth that he toucheth, wher hath the pssue, shal be broken: and all vessels of wood shal be rynsed in water.

When he also that hath any pssue, is cleansed of his pssue, he shal number seven dayes for his cleansing, and washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in running water, and so shal he be cleane.

And the eyght daye he shal take vnto hym two turtill doves or two ponge pygeons, and come before the Lorde vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and geue them vnto the preast. And the preast shal offer them, the one for a syn offering, and the other for burnt offering: and the preast shal make an attonement for hym before the Lorde, as concerning his pssue. If any mans seide departe from hym in his slepe, he shal washe his fleshe in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And all the clothes and all the fardres wher in is such seide of slepe, shal be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And if he that hath such an pssue of seide, do lye with a woman, they shal both washe them selues with water, and be vncleane vntill euen.

E If a womans naturall course of bloude doo runne, she shal be put a parte seven dayes: whoso euer toucheth her, shal be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth vpon, in the tyme of her naturall dyscase, shal be vncleane lyke any euery thyng also that she lyeth vpon, is vncleane. Who soeuer toucheth her bed, shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe wth water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: And who so euer toucheth any thyng that she sat vpon, shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so that whether he touch her couch, or any vessel wher on she hath lyen, he shal be vncleane vnto the euen. * And if a man lye with her, and her vncleanness come vpon hym he shal be vncleane seven dayes, and all the couch wher on he lyeth shal be vncleane.

spitteth vpon, shalbe vncleane, as is her vncleanness when she is put a parte. And who so euer toucheth any of these, shalbe vncleane, and shal washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto euen. And after that she is censed of her pisse, she shall counte her seven dayes, and after that, she shalbe cleane. In the eyghte daye she shall take vnto her two turtys or two ponge pygeons, and brynge them vnto the prest before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnes. And the prest shall offer the one for a synne offering, and the other for a burnt offering: and make an attonement for her before the Lorde, as concernynge the pisse of her vncleanness. Therfore shall he separe the chyldren of Israell from thep vncleanness, that they dye not in thep vncleanness: yf they despye my habitacion that is amonge them. This is the law of hym that hath a runnyng pisse, and of hym whose sede runneth from hym in his slepe, & is defiled therin, and of her, that (for her natural disease) is put apart, and of who so euer hath a runnyng pisse. Whether it be man or woman, and of hym that lyeth with her which is vncleane.

The xvi. Chapter.

What Aaron must do. The cleansing of the sanctuary, of the feast of the cleansing. Aaron consecrath the synners of the chyldren of Israell.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, after the death of the two sonnes of Aaron, when they offered before the Lorde, and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses: speake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all tymes into the holy place wthin the vayle before the mercyseate, which is vpon the arke, that he dye not. For I wyll appeare in the cloud vpon the mercyseate. But with thes thynges shall Aaron come into the holy place: euen wth a bullocke for synne, and with a ram for a burnt offering. He shal put the holy linnen albe vpon hym, and shal haue a linnen byrche vpon his fleshe, and shalbe girded with a linnen gyrdell, and put the linnen mytre vpon his head: these are holy garments. therfore shall he washe his fleshe in water, when he doth put them on. And he shal take of the myltitude of the chyldren of Israell, two he goates for synne, and a ram for a burnt offering. And Aaron shall offer hys bullocke for synne, & make an attonement for hym, and for his house. And he shall take the two goates, & present them before the Lorde at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two goates: one lotte shalbe for the Lorde, and the other for the scapegoate. And Aaron shall brynge the goate vpon which the Lordes lot fel, and offer hym for synne. But the goate on which the lotte fell to scape, shalbe set alpye before the Lorde, to reconyle wth, & to let hym go (as a scape goate) ffe into the wyl-dernesse. And Aaron shall brynge his bullocke for syn, and reconyle for hym selfe, and for hys house, and shall kyll his bullocke for synne.

And he shall take a censet full of burnynge coles out of the aultar before the Lorde, & shall spyll his handfull of swete cens beaten small, and brynge them wthin the vayle, and put the cens vpon the fyre before the Lorde: that the cloude of the cens maye couer the mercyseate that is vpon the wytnes, and that he dye not. And he shal take of the bloude of the bullocke, and spyn-kele it wth his synger vpon the mercyseate eastwarde: and before the mercyseate shall he spyn-kele of the bloude wth his synger seven tymes. Then shall he kyll the goote that is the peoples synne offering, and brynge his bloud wthin the vayle, and do wth that bloude, as he dyd wth the bloude of the bullocke, spynklynge it vpon the mercyseate, and before the mercyseate. And he shall reconyle the holy place from the vncleannesses of the chyldren of Israell, and from thep trespasses in all thep synnes. And so shall he do for the tabernacle of wytnesse that is set among them, euen amonge thep vncleanness.

* And let there be no bodye in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, vntyll he come out. And lette hym make an attonement for hym selfe & for his household, and for all the myltitude of Israell. And he shall goo out vnto the aultar that is before the Lorde, and reconyle vpon it: & shal take of the bloud of the bullocke, and of the bloud of the goate, and put it vpon the hornes of the aultar rounde aboute, and spynkele of the bloude vpon it wth his synger seven tymes, and cense it, and halow it from the vncleannesses of the chyldren of Israell. And when he hath made an ende of reconcilynge the holy place, and the tabernacle of wytnes, and the aultar, he shall brynge the lpye goote: and Aaron shal put both his handes vpon the heade of the lpye goote, & confesse ouer hym all the mysdedes of the chyldren of Israell, and all thep trespasses, in all thep synnes, puttyng them vpon the head of the goate, and send hym awayne (by the hande of a conuenient man) into the wyl-dernesse. And the goate shal beare vpon hym all thep mysdedes vnto the wyl-dernes, and he shal let the goate go free into the wyl-dernes. And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of wytnesse, & put of the linnen clothes which he put on (when he wente in into the holy place) and leaue them there. And let hym washe hys fleshe wth water in the holy place, and put on his owne raiment, and then come out, and offer his burnt offering and the burnt offering of the people, and make an attonement for hym selfe, and for the people, and the fat of the synne offering shall he burne vpon the aultar.

And he that carryed forth the goote to Azazel, shall washe his clothes, and bath his fleshe in water, and then come into the host. And the bullocke which is for synne, and the goote that is for synne, (whose bloude was brought in, to cense the holy place) shall one carry out without the host to be burnt in the fyre, wth thep synnes, thep fleshe and thep dunge. And he that burneth them shall washe his clothes, and bath hys fleshe in water, and then come into the host. And this shalbe an ordynaunce for euer vnto you that in the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, ye humble your soules, & do no worke at all, whether it be one of your selues or a stranger that sojourneth amonge you, for that daye shall the prest make an attonement for you to cleanse you and that ye may be cleane from all your synnes before the Lorde. Let it be a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules, by an ordynance for ever. And the prest that is appointed, and whose hande was consecrated (to minister in his fathers steade) shall make the attonement, and shall put on the linnen clothes and holy vestimentes, and recovle the holy sanctuarie and the Tabernacle of witness, and shall cleanse the altar, and make an attonement then for the prestes and for all the people of the congregation. And this shall be an everlastynge ordynance vnto you, that he make an attonement for the chyl dren of Israel for all their synnes once a yere: and he dyd as the Lorde commaunded.

The xvii. Chapter.

All sacrifice must be brought to the doore of the tabernacle. No heuple maye they not offer.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying speake vnto Aaron to his sons and vnto all the chyl dren of Israel, & say vnto the: This is the thing which the Lord hath charged, saying what man soever of the house of Israel killeth an ore, or lambe, or goate in the host, or killeth it out of the host, & bringeth it not vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, to offer an offering vnto the Lord before the dwelling place of the Lorde, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shed blood, and that man shall be rooted out from amonge his people. Wherfore, when the chyl dren of Israel bring their offerings, that they offer in the wyde felde, they shal bring them vnto the Lord: even vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness to the prest, to offer them for peace offerings vnto the Lorde. And the prest must sprinkle the bloude vpon the altar of the Lorde which is before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and burne the fat for a sweete savour vnto the Lorde. And lette them no more offer their offerings vnto drupis, after whom they haue gone a whoringe. This shall be an ordynance for ever vnto the in their generations.

And thou shalt say vnto them: what soever man it be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn amonge you that offereth a burnt offering or sacrifice, and bringeth it not vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness to offer it vnto the Lorde, that man shall perishe from amonge his people. And what soever man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers which sojourn amonge you, that eateth any manner of bloude, I will set my face agaynst that soule which eateth bloude, & will destroy hym from amonge his people. for the lyfe of the fleshe is in the blood and I haue given it vnto you vpon the altar, to make an attonement for your soules, for bloude shall make an attonement for the soule. And therefore I sayde vnto the chyl dren of Israel let no soule of you eat bloude. Nether let any stranger sojourn amonge you, eat bloude.

And what soever man it be of the chyl dren of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you, which hunteth & catcheth any beast or foule that maye be eaten, let hym powre out the bloude therof, and couer it with earth, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in the bloude of it, therefore I sayde vnto the chyl dren of Israel: ye shall eat the bloude of no manner of fleshe for the lyfe of all fleshe is the bloude therof: who so euer eateth it, shall perishe. And euer soule that eateth it which dyed alone, or that which was torne wylde beastes, whether it be one of your selues or a stranger, he shall washe his clothes, & bath hym selfe in water, and be uncleane vnto yeuen and then shall he be cleane. If he washe therein not nor bath his fleshe, he shall beare his synne.

What degrees of kynred maye marie together.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying speake vnto the chyl dren of Israel, and say vnto them: I am the Lorde your God. After the doyngs of the lande of Egypt: wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not do: and after the doyngs of the lande of Canaan, whither I wyl bring you shall ye not do, nether walke in their ordynances, but do after my iudgementes, and kepe my ceremonyes, to walke therein: I am the Lorde your God. Ye shall kepe therefore myne ordynances, and my iudgementes: which if a man do, he shall lyue in them. I am the Lorde.

Se that none go to his nyghest kynred, for to uncover theyr secrets. I am the Lorde. * The secrettes of thy father, and the secrettes of thy mother, shalt thou not uncover: for she is thy mother, therefore shalt thou not discover her secrettes. * The secrettes of thy fathers wyfe shalt thou not discover, for it is thy fathers secrettes. * Thou shalt not discover the pryuyte of thy sister, the daughter of thy father or of thy mother whether she be borne at home or without. Thou shalt not uncover the secrettes of thy sons daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne owne pryuyte. Thou shalt not uncover the secrettes of thy fathers wyfes daughter, which was begotten of thy father, and is thy sister: thou shalt not discover her secrettes. * Thou shalt not uncover the secrettes of thy fathers sister, for she is thy fathers nexte kyn woman. Thou shalt not discover the secrettes of thy mothers sister, for she is thy mothers nexte kyn woman. Thou shalt not uncover the secrettes of thy fathers brother: that is, thou shalt not go into his wyfe, which is thyne aunte.

Thou shalt not discover the secrettes of thy daughter in lawe: for she is thy sonnes wyfe: therefore shalt thou not uncover her secrettes. * Thou shalt not vnbale the secrettes of thy brothers wyfe, for that is thy brothers pryuyte. Thou shalt not discover the pryuytes of thy wyfe and her daughter, nether shalt thou take her sonnes daughter, or her daughters daughter, to uncover their secrettes: for they are her nexte kyn and it were wyckednes. * Thou shalt not take a wyfe and her sister also, to veyre her, that thou woldest

Wouldest vncouer her secretes as longe as she lyneth. * Thou shalt also not go vnto a woman to vncouer her pryncipe, as longe as she is put a parte for her vncleanness. * Moreover, thou shalt not lye with thy neyghbours wyfe, to despyle her with sede. Thou shalt also not geue of thy sede to offer it vnto * Moloch neyther shalt thou despile the name of thy God. I am y<sup>e</sup> Lorde * Thou shalt not lye with mankynde as wyth woman kynde, for it is abhominacyon. * Thou shalt lye with no maner of beast to despile thy selfe therewith, neyther shall any woman stande before a beast, to lye downe therto, for it is abhominacyon. Ye shall not despile your selues in any of these thynges, wherin also the nacjons are despyled which I cast out before you: Where thow the lande is despyled, and I wyll byset the wyckednesse therof vpon it, yee and the land it selfe hath caste out her inhabitants. * Ye shall kepe therfore myne ordynances, and my iudgementes, and comyt none of these abhominacyons: neyther any of you nor any straunger that sojourneth amonge you (for all these abhominacions haue the men of the land done which were there before you, and the lande is defiled) I shal not the lande spe we you out also (ye despile it) as it spued out the people that were before you:
For who so euer shall comyt any of these abho-minacions, the same soules that comyt them, shall perishe from amonge theyr people. Therfore shall ye kepe my watche, that ye comyt not one of these abhominable customes which were connycted before you: and that ye despile not your selues therein. I am the Lorde your God.

The xix. Chapter.

A repeticon of lawes pertaynyng to the ten comman-dementes. A conspideracon for the poore: wylche craue as for goden.

In the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge. Speake vnto all y<sup>e</sup> multitude of the chyldren of Israhell, & saye vnto them: * Ye shalbe holy, for I the Lorde your God am holy Ye shall feare euery man his father and his mother, and kepe my Sabbothes. I am the Lorde your God. Ye shall not turne vnto ydolles, nor make you goddes of metal. I am the Lorde your God. If ye offer a peace offering vnto the Lorde ye shall offer it y<sup>e</sup> ye may be accepted. * It shalbe eaten the same daye ye offer it. & on the morowe And yf oughte remayne vntyll the thyrde daye, it shalbe burnt in the fyre. And yf it be eaten the thyrde daye, it is vncleane and not accepted. He that eateth it, shal beare his syn, because he hath despyled the halowed thyng of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, and that soule shal perishe frome amonge hys people.

* When ye reape downe the rypple corne of your lande, ye shall not reape downe y<sup>e</sup> vtmost border of your felde, neyther shalte thou gather that which is lefte behind in thy haruest. Thou shalt not plucke in all thy vyneparde cleane, neyther gather in the grapes that are ouerscaped. But thou shalt leaue them for the poore and strann-ger. I am the Lorde your God.

* Ye shall not steale, neyther lye, neyther deale falsly one wyth another. * Ye shall not swear by my name in vayne. neyther shalt thou despile the name of thy God. I am the Lorde.

Thou shalt not doo thy neyghboure wronge, neyther robbe hym violently, * neyther shall the workmans labour abyde with the vntyll the morning. Thou shalt not curse the deasse, * neyther put a stumblinge blocke before the blynde: but shalt feare thy God. I am y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. Ye shall do no vntygheousnes in iudgement. * Thou shalt not fauoure the poore: nor honour I myghty, but in ryghteousnesse shalt y<sup>e</sup> iudge thy neyghbour.

Thou shalt not goo vp and downe as a pre-up accuser amonge thy people, neyther shalt thou stande agaynst the bloude of thy neygh-bour. I am the Lorde. * Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thyne harte, but shalt in any wise * rebuke thy neyghbour: that thou beare not synne for hys sake. * Thou shalt not auenge thy selfe, nor be myndefull of wronge agaynst the chyldren of my people: * but shalt loue thy neyghbour euen as thy selfe. I am y<sup>e</sup> Lorde.

Ye shall kepe myne ordynances. Thou shalt not lette cattell gender wyth a contrarye kynde, neyther sowe thy felde with mingled sede neyther shalt thou put on any garment of lynnen and wollen. Who so euer lyeth and med-leth wyth a woman that is a bonde mayde, neuer thelesse appoynted to a husbnde, but not re-demed, nor freedom geuen her, she shalbe scourged wyth a lathen whyppe, and they shal not dye, because she was not free. And he shall byng for his trespass vnto the Lorde: before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, a ram for a tres-passe offeringe. And the Priest shall make an attonement for hym with the ramme whiche is for the trespass before the Lorde, concernynge hys synne whiche he hath doone, and the synne whiche he hath doone, shall be forgiven hym.

When ye come to the lande, and haue planted all maner of trees conueniente to be eaten of, ye shall putte awaye the foreskyne of eue-ry one wyth the frute therof: euen thre yere shal they be vncircumcised vnto you, and shall not be eaten of. But in the fourth yere all the frute of them shal be holy, and commendable to the Lorde. In the fyfte yere shal ye eate of the frute of them, and ye maye gather in the increase of them. I am the Lorde your God.

* Ye shall not eate vpon bloude, neyther shal ye vse wytheecraft, nor obserue tynges. * Ye

Thou shalt not make thy doughter comen, that thou woldest cause her to be an whore. lest the lande also fall to whoredome, & be full of wyckednesse. Ye shall kepe my sabboths and feare my sanctuarie: I am the Lorde. Ye shall not regarde them that worke with spytes * neyther seke after sothslayers to be despyled by them: I am the Lorde your God.

* Thou shalt ryse vp before the horehed, and reuerente the face of the olde man, and drede thy God. I am the Lorde. If a straunger sojourneth with the in your lande, ye shall not vex hym. * But the straunger that dwelleth with you, shall be as one of your selues, and thou shalt loue hym as thy selfe, for ye were strangers in the lande of Egypte. The xx. Chapter.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge. Thy shalt thou saye to the chyldren of Israel, whoso euer he be of the chyldren of Israel or of the strangers that dwell in Israel, that geteth of his seide vnto * Moloch, let hym be slayne: the people of the lande shall stone hym. And I wyll set my face agaynst that man and wyll destroye hym frome amonge his people because he hath geuen of his seide vnto Moloch, for to despyle my sanctuarie, and to polute my holy name. And though that the people of the lande hyde theyr eyes from the man that geteth of his seide vnto Moloch, and kyl hym not I wyll putte my face agaynst that man, and agaynst his kynred, and wyll destroye hym, and all that goo a whorunge after hym to comyt whordome with Moloch, from amonge theyre people. If a soule turne hym selfe after suche as worke with spytes, and after sothslayers, to goo a whorunge after them, I wyll put my face agaynst that soule, and wyll destroye hym from amonge his people. Sanctifye your selues therfore: and be holy, for I am the Lorde your God, kepe ye myne ordynances, and do them. I am the Lorde whiche doth sanctifye you.

* Who so euer he be, that curseth his father or his mother, lette hym dye: for he hath cursed his father and mother, his bloude be vpon hym. * And the man that breaketh wedlocke with another mans wyfe: euen he that breaketh wedlocke with his neyghbours wyfe let hym be slayne both the aduouter and the aduoutresse. And the man that lyeth with his fathers wyfe, and vncouereth his fathers secretes, let them both dye theyr bloude be vpon them. * If a man lye with his doughter in lawe, lette theym dye bothe of them: they haue wrought a bhomynacyon, theyr bloude be vpon them. * If a man also lye with a man kynde: after the maner as wyth woman kynde they haue both committed abhomynacyon, let them dye. Theyr bloude be vpon them. And yf a man take a wyfe and her mother also, it is wyckednesse. They shall be burnt with fyre both he and she, that there be no wyckednesse amonge you. And yf a man lye with a beast, let hym dye, and ye shall slee the beste also.

If a woman go vnto any beast, & lye downe thereto thou shalt kyl the woman and the best also, let them dye, theyr bloude be vpon them.

If a man take his syster, his fathers doughter: or his mothers doughter, and se her secretes and she his secretes, it is a shamefull thyng. They shall perishe in the syght of theyr people, he hath vncouered his systers secretes, he shall beate his synne. * If a man lye with a woman harynge her naturall displease, and vncouer her secretes, and open her fountayne, and she also open the fountayne of her bloude, they shall both perishe from amonge theyr people. * Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy mothers syster, * nor of thy fathers syster, for he that dothe so, hath vncouered his nexte kynne: they shall beate theyr mysdoinge. If a man lye with his vncles wyfe, and vncouer his vncles secretes they shall beate theyr synne, and shall dye chyldlesse.

If a man take his brothers wyfe, it is an vnclean thyng, he hath vncouered his brothers secretes, they shall be chyldlesse. * Ye shall kepe therfore all myne ordynances and all my iudgements, and do them that the lande whither I bring you to dwell therein, spewe you not out: Ye shall not walke in the maners of thys nacyon whiche I caste out before you. For they committed all these thynges, * and therfore I abhorred them. But I haue sayde vnto you: ye shall enioye theyr lande, and I wyll geue it vnto you to possesse it, euen a lande that floweth with mylke and honney. I am the Lorde your God, whiche haue seperated you from other nacions, * and therfore shall ye put difference betwene cleane bestes and vncleane, betwene vncleane foules and cleane. Ye shall not despyle your foules in bestes and foules, & in all maner creeping thynges that the ground byregeth: with whiche I haue seperated from you as vncleane. Therfore shall ye be holy vnto me, for I am holy, and haue seuered you from other nacions that ye shoulde be myne. * If there be a man or woman that worketh with a spyte, or that is a sothslayer, lette them dye. When shall stone them with stones, theyr bloude be vpon them.

The xxi. Chapter.

¶ And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses, speake vnto the prestes the sonnes of Aaron, and saye vnto them. Let none be despyled vpon a soule amonge his people but vpon his kynsmans: is nye vnto hym vpon his father, & his mother, vpon son and doughter, and his brother, and on his

is nye vnto hym vpon his father, & his mother, vpon son and doughter, and his brother, and on his

his sister a mayde that is nye vnto hym, whom no man hath knowen, vpon her shal he be defiled. But he shall not be defiled vpon hym that hath auctorite among his people, to polute him selfe for hym. Let them not make baldnes vpon their head, nor shawe of the lockes of their beard nor make any markes in their fleshe. They shal be holy vnto the Lord, and not polute his name of the Lord God, for the sacrifices of the Lord which are as the bread of the Lord they do offer: therfore they shal be holy. * Let not take a wyfe that is an adoultresse, or poluted, nor put from her husband for such a one is holy vnto his god. Thou shalt sanctifie hym therfore, for he offereth vpon the bread of the Lord: he shal therfore be holy vnto the Lord, for I the Lord which sanctifie you am holy. If a Priestes daughter fall to play the whore, she poluteth her father: therfore must she be burnt with fyre. He that is the hie priest amonge his brethren, vpon whose head an oyle was poured, & that consecrated his handes to put the vestmentes, shall not uncover his head, nor rent his clothes. * neither go to any dead body, nor make hym selfe vncleane on his father or his mother, neyther shall go out of the sanctuary, nor polute the holy place of his God for the cronne of the anoynting oyle of his god, is vpon hym I am the Lord. * he shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe, but a wydow, a deuorced woman, or an harlot, shall he not marie. But shall take a mayde of his owne people to wyfe. Neither shall he defyle his seide amonge his people: for I am the Lord which sanctifie hym.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and saie. Who so euer of thy seide in the generacions hath any deformitie, let him not preace for to offer bread vnto his God, * for who so euer hath any blemyshe, shall not come nece: as yf he be blynde or lame, or that hath a brused nose, or that hath any myschayen membre, or is broken footed, or broken handed or haue no heare on his eye browes, or haue a web or other blemyshe in his eyes, or be maunge, or skauld, or hath his stones broken. No man that hath a blemyshe, and is of the seide of Aaron the Priest, shall come nye to offer the sacrifices of the Lord. When he hath a deformite, let him not preace to offer the bread of his God. Lette hym eate the bread of his God euen of the moste holy and of the holy: Onely lette hym not go in vnto the vyle, nor come nye the altar, when he is deformed that he polute not my sanctuary, for I am the Lord that sanctifie them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes, & vnto all the chyldren of Israel.

The xxii. Chapter.

Who ought to aduoyne from eatinge the thynges that were offered. How, what and when they shulde be offered.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto Aaron & his sonnes, that they be seperated from the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel, and that they polute not my holy name in those thynges, which they halowe vnto me: I am the Lord. Saie vnto them:

who so euer he be of all your seide amonge your generacions after you, that goeth vnto the holy thynges which the chyldren of Israel halowe vnto the Lord, haue ye his vncleanness vpon hym: that soule shall perishe frome oute of my syghte. I am the Lord.

And who so toucheth any man that is vncleane ouer the soule of the deade, or a man whose seide runneth frome hym in his sleepe, or who so euer toucheth any worme, wherby he maye be made vncleane, or a man, of whom he maye take vncleanness, what so euer vncleanness he hath, the same soule that hath touched any such, shal be vncleane vntill euen, and shall not eate of the holy thynges, vntill he haue washed his fleshe with water. And when the sunne is downe he shall be cleane, and shall atterwarde eate of the holy thynges: for as muche as it is hys tode.

* Of a beaste that dyeth alone, or is rente wyth double beastes wherby he maye be defyled, he shall not eate. I am the Lord. Let them kepe therfore myne ordinaunce, leaue they for the same lade synne vpon them, and dye for it, yf they defyle it. I the Lord sanctifie them.

There shal no straunger eate of the holy thing neyther a geste of the Priestes, neyther shall any hyred seruante eate of the holy thyng. But yf the Priest be any soule with money, he shal eate of it, lyke as he that is borne in his house, shall eate of his bread. If the Priestes dowter also be marryed vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of the halowed hane offeringes. Nor with stande yf the Priestes daughter be a wydow or deuorced and haue no chyld, but is retourned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bread, as well as she dyd in her yowth. But there shall no straunger eate thereof. If a man eate of the holy thyng vnto wyte, he shall put the fylse parte thereof vnto, and geue it vnto the Priest with the halowed thyng. And the Priestes shall not defyle the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel, (which they offer vnto the Lord) to lade them selues with mysdoynge and trespass whyle they eate the holy thynges, for I the Lord doe allowe them. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and saie vnto them: what so euer he be of the house of Israel, or straunger in Israel, that wyl offer his sacrifice for all his bowes, and for all his frewyl offeringes which they wyl offer vnto the Lord for a burnt offering, he shall offer (to reconyle your selues) a male without blemyshe of the oxen, of the shepe, or of the goates. But what so euer hath a blemyshe, that shall ye not offer, for ye shall get no fauour ther wyth. And who so euer byngeth a peace offering vnto the Lord (accoordinge as he is appoynted), or a vowe, or a fre wyl offering, in ore or shepe that is a vowe oute deformed, he shal be accepted. There shal be also no blemyshe therein: blynde or broken, or wound.

And then thou shalt make a trumpe blowe: in the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, even in the daye of attonement shall ye make y<sup>e</sup> trumpe blowe, thowwe out all your lande. And thou shalt halowe that yere: even the fiftieth yere, and proclame libertye thowwe out the lande: vnto all the inhabyters thereof, for it shall be a yere of iudelpce vnto you, and ye shall retourne every man vnto his possession, and every man vnto his kynred agayne. A yere of iudelpce shall that fiftieth yere be vnto you. Ye shall not sow neyther reape that whiche groweth of it selfe, neyther gather the grapes that are lefte.

For that yere of Iudelpce shall be holy vnto you: but ye shall eate of the increase thereof oute of the felde. In the yere of this iudelpce ye shall retourne every man vnto his possession agayne. If thou selle st ought vnto thy neyghboure, or byest of thy neyghbours hande, ye shall not decrease one another: but accordyng to the nombre of yeres after the iudelpce yere thou shalt buye of thy neyghboure, and accordyng vnto the nombre of yeres and of the frutes, he shall sell vnto the. Accordyng vnto the multitude of yeres, he shall increase the price thereof, and accordyng to the fewnesse of yeres, he shall multiplye the price of it: for the nombre of frutes doeth he sell vnto the. * Whyscaue not ye therfore every man his neyghboure, but thou shalt feare thy God. For I am the Lord your God. Wherfore ye shall do after myne ordynances: & kepe my lawes, and do them, and ye shall dwell in the lande in safete. And the Lord shall geue her frute, and ye shall eate your frute and dwell therein in safete. And yf ye shall saye, what shall we eat the seventh yere, for we shall not sow, nor gather in our increase? I wyll sende my blessing vpon you in the sixte yere, and it shall bringe forth the frute for thre yeres: and ye shall sowe the eighth yere, and eate yet of olde corne vntill the ninth yere: even vntill her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde store. The lande shall not be solde to be waste: for * the lande is myne, and ye be but straungers and sojourners with me.

In all the lande of your possession, ye shall graunt a redemption for the lande. If thy brother * be waxed poore, and hath solde awaye of his possession, and yf any of his kynne come to redeme it, lette hym buye out that whiche his brother solde. And yf he haue no man to redeme it, let his hande get somuche as maye be sufficient to buye it out agayne, and lette hym counte howe longe it hath bene solde, and deliuer the rest vnto the man to whom he solde it, that he maye retourne to his possession agayne. But and yf his hande cannot get sufficient to restore to the other agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remaine in the hande of hym that hath bought it, vntill the yere of iudelpce: and in the iudelpce it shall come out, and he shall retourne vnto his possession agayne. And yf a man sell a house or a dwellinge within the walles of a cite, he maye buye it out agayne wthin a whole yere after it is solde: even any daye of the yere shall he redeme it agayne. But and yf he buye it not oute agayne wthin the space of a full yere, then the house that is in the walled Cytie, shall be stablyshed, and be his owne that boughte it, and his successours after hym, and shall not goo oute in the Iudelpce. But the houses of villages, whiche haue no walles rounde aboute them, are counted as the felde of the countre, and therfore they maye be boughte out agayne, and shall retourne in the iudelpce. Notwithstandinge, the Cyties of the Leuites, and the houses of the Cyties of the Leuites, and the houses of the Levites of the Levites possession, maye the Levites redeme at all seasons. And yf a man purchase ought of the Levites, the house that was solde and the Cytie of the Levites possession shall goo oute in the yere of Iudelpce for the houses of the Cyties of the Leuites, are the Levites possession among the chyldren of Israel. But the felde of the suburbs that is besyde the Cyties, maye not be solde: but is the Levites perpetuall possession.

If thy brother be waxen poore, and fallen in decaye with the, thou shalt releue hym, both the stranger and sojourner, that he maye lye with the. * And thou shalt take none vsury of hym, or vantage, but thou shalt feare thy God, that thy brother maye lye wth the. Thou shalt not geue hym thy money vpon vsury, nor lende hym thy corne for increase. I am the Lord your God, whiche broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, to geue you the lande of Canaan, and to be your God. * If thy brother that dwelleth by the, be waxen poore, and be solde vnto y<sup>e</sup> thou shalt not compell hym to the bondage of seruautes but as an hyred seruaunte, and as a sojourner he shall be with the, and shall serue the vnto the yere of Iudelpce, and then shall he departe from the: both he and his chyldren wth hym, and shall retourne vnto his owne kynred agayne: and vnto the possession of his fathers, for they are my seruautes, whiche I broughte out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not therfore be solde as bondemen. Thou shalt not raygne ouer him cruelly, but shalt feare thy God.

Thy bonde seruaunt, and thy bonde mayde: whiche thou shalt haue, shall be of the heathen, that are rounde aboute you: of them shall ye purchase seruautes and maydens, and of the chyldren of the straungers, that are sojourners amonge you, and of theire generacions that are wth you, whiche they begat in your lande.

These shall be your possession, and ye shall take them as inheritance for your chyldren after you, to possesse them, they shall be your bondemen for ever. But ouer your brethren the chyldren of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer another cruelly. If a sojourner or a stranger waxe rich by the, and thy brother y<sup>e</sup> dwelleth by hym waxe poore, and sell hym selfe vnto the stranger or to a sojourner by the, or to any of the straungers kyn, after that he is solde, he maye be redeemed agayne: one of his brethren or (that wyll) y<sup>e</sup>ther his uncle, or his uncles son maye buye hym oute: or any that is nye of hym vnto hym of his kynred, maye redeme hym: eyther of his hande can gette somuche, he maye be losed. The xxiiij Chapter.

The op. c. for the lampes. He that curseth must be stoned. He that killeth shall be hanged.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moles, sayinge * comaunde the chyldren of Israel that they byng vnto y<sup>e</sup> pure oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes, to cause the lampes to burne alwaye: without the vayle of wytnesse in the tabernacle of wytnesse that Aaron dresse them bothe eue and moorning before the Lorde alwayes. Let it be a lawe for euer in your generacions. He shall dresse the lampes vpon the pure candelsticke before the Lorde perpetually. And thou shalt take fyne floure, and bake twelue wassels thereof, two tenth deales shall be in one wassell. And thou shalt set them in two rowes syre on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lorde, and put pure frankensence vpon the rowes, that they may be breade of remembrance, and an offeringe to the Lorde. Euer Sabbath he shall put them in rowes before the Lorde euermore of the chyldren of Israel that they be offered for an euerlastyng couenaunt. * And they shall be Arons & his sons, which shall eat them in the holy place. For they are most holy vnto hym of the offerings of the Lorde by a perpetuall statute. And the son of an Israelitische wyfe, whose father was an Egyptian, went out amonge the chyldren of Israel. And this sonne of the Israelitische wyfe, and a man of Israel stroue together in the holte.

And the Israelitische womans sonne * blasphemed the name of the Lorde and: cursed, and they brought hym vnto Moles. Hys mothers name was Salomith, which was the daughter of Dibui: of the tribe of Dan: & they * put hym inward, that the mynde of the Lorde myghte be shewed them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moles sayinge. bringe the cursed speaker without the holte, and let all that heard hym, put theyr handes vpon his head, & let all the multitude stone hym. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, saying. Who soeuer curseth his God shall beare his synne. And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lorde, let hym be slayne, and all the multitude shall stone hym to death. Whether he be borne in the lande or a straunger, whē he blasphemeth the name of the Lorde, let hym be slayne. And * he that killeth any man, let hym dye the death. And he that killeth a beaste, let hym make hym good, soule for soule. And if a man mapne his neyghbour, as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym. broke for broke: eye for eye and toth for toth: euen as he hath harmed a man, so shall he be harmed agayne. And he that killeth a beaste, let hym paye for it: and he that killeth a man, let hym dye. Ye shall haue one manner of lawe: euen for the straunger as well as for one of your sciens, for I am the Lorde your God. And Moles tolde the chyldren of Israel, & they brought hym (that had cursed) out of the holte, and stoned hym with stones. And y<sup>e</sup> chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moles.

The xxv Chapter.

The Sabbath of the seuen perez and of the pere of subeity, whiche were called the tytyd perez.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moles in Mount Sinai, sayinge. speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when y<sup>e</sup> become into y<sup>e</sup> lande whiche I geue you, the lande shall rest, and kepe Sabbath vnto the Lorde. * Syre perez thou shalt sowe thy felde and syre pere thou shalt cut the vyneyard, and gather in the frute thereof. But the * seuenth pere shall be a Sabbath of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Sabbath it shall be: thou shalt neyther sowe thy felde, nor cut thy vyneparde. That whiche groweth of the owne accorde thou shalt not reape, neyther gather the grapes that thou hast left behynde, for it is a pere of rest vnto the lande. And the rest of the lande shall be meate for you: euen for the, for thy seruaunt and for thy mayde for thy hyred seruaunt, and for y<sup>e</sup> straunger that sojourneth with the and for thy cattell, and for the beastes that are in the lande, shall all the increase thereof be meate.

And thou shalt nombe seuen Sabbathes of perez vnto the, euen seuen tymes seuen perez and the space of the seuen Sabbathes of perez, shall be vnto the nyne and fyttye peare.

f. iii. And

And they that are left of you, walpyne awaye in theyr unrighteousnes, euen in theyr enemies lande, and in the mysdedes of theyr fathers shal they consume. And they shal confesse theyr mysdedes and the mysdedes of theyr fathers for their trespass, whiche they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walked contrary vnto me. Therefore, I also wyl walke contrary vnto them, and wyl brynge them into the lande of theyr enemyes. And then at the lest wyl they vnturne to me, and shal be tamed, and they shal make attonement for theyr mysdedes. And I wyl remember my couenant with Jacob, and my bond with Isaac, and myne appoyntment with Abraham wyl I remember, and wyl thinke on the lande. The lande shal be left of them, and shal enioye her Sabbothes whyle she lyeth waste without them. And they shal make an attonement for theyr mysdedes, because they despyed my lawes, and because they refused myne ordynances: And yet for all that when they be in the lande of theyr enemyes, I wyl not caste them awaye, neither wyl I abhorre them, to destroye them utterly, and to breake myne appoyntment with them: for I am the Lord theyr God. I wyl for theyr sakes remember the couenante made vnto theyr fathers whom I brought them out of the land of Egypt in the syght of the hethen, that I myght be sayd god. I am the Lord. These are my ordynances, and iudgements, and lawes whiche the Lord made betwene hym and the chyliden of Israel in mount Synai, by the hand of Moyses.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Of dyuers vowes, and of sythes.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge. Speake vnto the chyliden of Israel and saye vnto them: If any man wyl geue a synghet bow vnto the Lord, accordyng to the value of the soules, the value of the male frome twenty pere olde vnto syrtie shal be fyfte. And if it be a female, the value shal be thirtie sycles. And from fyue pears to twenty, the male shal be set at twenty sycles, and the female at x. sycles. And from a moneth vnto fyue pere, the male shal be set at fyue sycles of syluer, and the female at thre. And he that is syrtie pere olde, & aboue, shal be valued at fyfene sycles, and the woman at ten. But if he be so poore so to be set he shal presente hym selfe before the preast, and the preast shal value hym accordyng as the hand of hym that vowed is able to gette, euen so shal the preast value hym. If it be a beast of which men brynge an offering vnto the Lord: all that any man geueth of such vnto the Lord shal be counted holy. He shal not altare it nor chaunge it a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And if he chaunge beast for beast, then both the same beast and it also wherwith it was chaunged shal be holy. If it be any maner of vnclean beast, of which men doo not offer a sacrifice vnto the Lord, he shal set the beast before the preast, and the preast shal value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the preast setteth it, so shal it be. But if he wyl bye it agayne, he shal geue the fyfte parte more about that it was set at. If any man dedycate his house to be holy vnto the Lord, the preast shal set it, whether it be good or bad, and as the preast hath set it, so shal the value be. And whē he that sanctified it wyl redeme his house, lette hym geue the fyfte parte of the money that it was iudged at thereto, and it shal be his.

If a man halowe a pece of his enhereted land vnto the Lord: it shal be set accordyng to the value thereof. If it beare an homer of barley it shal be set at fyfte sycles of syluer. If he halowe his felde immediatly from the pere of iubilee, it shal be worth accordyng as it is esteemed. But and if he halowe his felde after the iubilee, the preast shal reken the money accordyng to the number of the yeres that remaine vnto the pears of iubilee folowynge, & therafter it shal be lower set.

If he that consecrated the felde, wyl redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyfte parte of the pryce that it was set at therunto, & it shal be his. And if he wyl not redeme the felde, but selleth the felde to another man, he shal not redeme it no more. But when the felde goth out in the pere of iubilee, it shal be holy vnto the Lord, euen as a felde that is utterly put away, and it shal be the preastes possession. If a man sanctifye vnto the Lord a felde whiche he hath bought, and is not of his enheritaunce, the preast shal reken vnto hym what it is worth vnto the pere of iubilee, & he shal geue the pryce that it is set at, the same daye, as a thyng consecrated vnto the Lord.

And in the pere of iubilee, the felde shal retorne vnto hym whose enheritaunce of land it is. And all settinge shal be accordyng to the syple of the sanctuary. One syple conteyneth twenty halfe-pens. But the fyrst borne of the beastes that is appoynted vnto the Lord, may no man sanctifye, whether it be ore or shepe, for it is the Lordes already. If it be an vnclean beast, he shal redeme it, as it is set at, and geue the fyfte parte more thereto: Or if it be not redemed, it shal be solde, accordyng to the value. Notwithstandynge, no damned thyng that a man putteth from hym & dedicateth vnto the Lord of all his good (whether it be man or beast or land of his enheritaunce) may be solde or redemed: for euery thyng so put away is most holy vnto the Lord. Let no damned thyng that a man seperateth: be redemed, but dye the death. Euery tyth of the land which is of the side of the land, or of the frute of the trees is the Lordes, and is sanctified vnto the Lord. And if a man wyl redeme ought of his tythes: let hym adde the fyfte parte thereto. And euery tyth of ore and of shepe and of euery beast that goth vnder the rod, euen euery tenth shal be holy vnto the Lord. He shal not loke if it be good or bad, nor chaunge it. Els if he chaunge it, both it, and what was chaunged withal, shal be halowed vnto the Lord, and may not be redemed. These are the commaundmentes which the Lord comaunded by Moyses vnto the chyliden of Israel in mount Synai.

The offyce of the chyldren of Gabaath in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, is most holy. And when the host remoueth, Aaron and his sonnes shall come and take downe the vagle, that hangeth betwene & wrappe the arke of wytnesse in it. and shall put thereon a couerpyng of tarus skynnes, and shall sprede vpon it a clothe that is altogether of pelowe sylke, and put in the barres therof. And vpon the quene table, they shall sprede a broade cloth of pelowe sylke, and put thereon the dysches, spones, flatperes, and pots to powre with, and there shall be breade thereon continually: and they shall sprede vpon them a couerpyng of purple, and couer the same with a couerpyng of tarus skynnes and put in the barres therof. And they shall take a clothe of pelowe sylke, and couer the candelstykke of lpyght, wyth his lampes, tonges, and snuffers, and all the oyle vessels: which they occuppe about it, and they shall put both it, and all the vessel therof wythin a couerpyng of tarus skynnes, and put it vpon a barre. And vpon the golden aultar they shall sprede a cloth of pelowe sylke, and couer it with a couerpyng of tarus skynnes, and put in the barres

And when Aaron and hys sonnes haue made an ende of couerpyng the holy thynges, and all the vessels of the sanctuarpe (agaynst that the hooke remoue) then the sons of Gabaath shall come in for to beare, but they shall not touch any holy thyng, least they dye. And this is the charge of the sonnes of Gabaath in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And to the offyce of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the prest pertayneth the oyle for the lpyght, the swete cense, the dayly meate offeringe, and the anoyntynge oyle, and the ouerspyght of all the tabernacle, and of all that therein is, both in the sanctuarpe and in all the vessels therof. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: Ye shall not destroye the trybe of the kynred of the Gabaathites, frome amonge the Leuites. But thus do vnto them, that they maye lyeue and not dye, when they goo vnto the most holy thynges: Let Aaron and hys sonnes goo in, and take them downe, to euery one after his scrupce, and after his charge. But let them not go in, to se when the holy thynges are solpen vp, lest they dye. This is the nombre of the kynredes of Gaba- tites, namely, all that myght do seruyce in the taber- nacle of witness, which Moyses and Aaron dyd nombre accordyng to the comaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moyses. These are y nom- bres of the sonnes of Gerson thowwe out thep kynredes and houses of thep fathers, from the yre yere vnto fyfye all that were able to go forth to the warre, for to do seruyce in the taber- nacle of witness. The. v Chapter.

This chapter sheweth of thep seruyce of thep sonnes of Moyses, and of thep seruyce of thep sonnes of Aaron, and of thep seruyce of thep sonnes of Merari.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they put out of y holte, euery leper & eu-ry one that hath any pisse, and whosoeuer is despy- led vpon a soule. Both male and female shall ye put out: euen oute of the holte shall ye put them, that they despyle not the tentes amonge which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the holte, euen as the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be a man or woman. If they haue comytted any synne that a man doth, & haue trespassed agaynst the Lorde, that soule hath done amysse: Therfore they shall knowlege thep synne in whiche they haue done, and let hym restore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and putte the spere parte of it moze thereto, and geue it vnto hym whom he hath trespassed agaynst.

But and yf there be not a man to restore the hurte vnto, nor a kynsman of his, lette the tres- pace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the prestes, besyde the ram of the attonement, wherby an attonement shall be made for hym. And euery beuoffering that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel whiche they bypnyng vnto y prest, shall be his, and euery mans halowed thynges shall be his: and what so euer any man geueth the prest, it shall be his. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them. If any mans wyfe go asyde & trespace agaynst hym, so that another man lye with her fleshy, & it be hyd from the eyes of her husbande, & is not come to lpght that she is despyled, and there is no witness agaynst her, neyther she taken with y maner, and the spere of gelousye cometh vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer hys wyfe, whiche is despyled: or yf the spere of gelousye cometh vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer hys wyfe, whiche is yet vndespyled: then let the man bypnyng his wyfe vnto the prest, and bypnyng wyth her an offering for her: the tenth parte of an Ephah of barlyc meale, but let hym put none oyle vpon it, nor put frankencens theron: for it is an offe- ryng of gelousye, an offering for a remembrance causyng the synne to be thought vpon.

And the prest shall bypnyng her, and let her befoze the Lorde, and let hym take holy water in an erthen vessel, and of the dust that is in the floore of the habitacyon, and put it into the wa- ter. And let the prest let the woman befoze the Lorde, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memorayl of y offering in her handes which is the gelousye offering, and the prest shall haue bytter and cursed water in his hande, & the prest shall charge her, and saye vnto the woman. If no man haue lpen wyth the, neyther haue gone asyde to vncleynesse without thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of this bytter & cursed wa- ters. But and yf thou haue gone asyde behynde thyne husbande, and art despyled, and some other man hath lpen with the besyde thyne husbande, and the prest shall charge the woman with an horrible curse, and the prest shall saye vnto the woman the Lorde make the to be an abhomi- nacyon and a curse amonge the people when the Lorde

Lorde dothe make thy thyre rotte, and thy belly swell: These cursed waters go into the bowels of the, that they maye make thy belly swell, and thy thyre rotte, and let the woman sape, Amen, Amen. And let the preast wyte these curses: And when they be clenfed, let hym caste them in to bytter waters, and geue the woman those bitter and cursed waters to drynke, that those cursed and bytter waters maye enter into her. And then the preast shall take the gelously offerynge out of the womans hand, and waue it before the Lorde, and byng it vnto the aultar and y preast shall take an handfull of the offerpng for a memozall, and burne it vpon the aultar, and then make the woman drynke the water: and when he hath made the woman drynke the waters, (yf she be defyled and haue trespassed agaynst her husbände:) then shall the cursed and bytter waters go into her, and her belly shall swell, and her thyre shall rot, and the woman shall be a curse among her people. And yf the woman be not defyled but is cleane, she shall haue no harme, but shall conceaue and beare. This is the lawe of gelousye, when a wyfe goeth asyde behynde her husbände, and is defyled, or when the sperte of gelowsye cometh vpon a man and he beynge gelowse ouer his wyfe, doth byng her before the Lorde. And the preast shall do accordynge vnto all this lawe, and the man shall be gyttlesse, and the woman shall beare her synne.

The vii Chapter.

The lawe of abstinence. The drynke of the people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge speake vnto the chyldren of Isræll, and sape vnto them: whē either man or woman doth seperate them selues to vowe a vowe of an abstepner, and appoynt the selues vnto the Lorde he shall seperate hym selfe from wyne & strong drynke, and shall drynke no vyneagre of wyne or of stronge drynke, nor shall drynke what soeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shall eate no freshe grapes neyther yet dyped. As longe as his abstinence endureth, shall he eate nothynge that is made of the vyne tre, or of the carnels, or of the huske of the grape. And as longe as he voweth, and is seperated, there shall no rasure come vpon his heade. but vntyl his dayes be oute, in the which he seperateth hym selfe vnto the Lorde, he shall be holy, and shall let the lockes of his heare growe. As longe as he consecrateth hymselfe vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no dead body: he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the death of his father, mother, brother, or sister: because that the vowe of the abstinence of his God is vpon his heade. All the dayes of his abstinence he is holy vnto the Lorde. And yf it fortune that any man by chaunce be suddenly before him, the heade of his abstinence shall be defyled, and he shall waue his heade the dayes of his clensynge even the seuenth daye he shall haue it. And the eyght daye he shall bynge two turtels or two pounge pygeons to the preast, before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the preast shall offer the one for synne, and the other for a burnt offerpng, & make an attonement for hym as concerninge that he synned vpon a soule, & shall halowe his heade the same daye, and he shall consecrate hym selfe vnto the Lorde the tyme of his abstinence) and shall bynge a lambe of a yere olde for trespass: but the dayes that were before are lost, because his abstinence was defyled. This is the lawe of the abstepner, when the tyme of his abstinence is out, he shall be brought vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bynge his offerpng vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without blempe for a burnt offerpng, and a she lambe of a yere olde without blempe for synne, a ram without blempe also for a peace offerpng, and a basket of swete breade euen cakes of fyne floure myngled wth oyle, and wafters of swete breade anoynted with oyle, wth theyr meat offerpnges and drynke offerpnges.

And the preast shall bynge hym before the Lorde, and offer his syn offerpng and his burnt offerpng and shall offer the ram for a peace offerpng vnto the Lorde, with the basket of swete breade, and the preast shall offer also his meate offerpng and his drynke offerpng. And he shall haue the head of the abstepner in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse: euen the head of his abstinence, and shall take the heare of his sober head and put it in the fyre, whiche is vnder the peace offerpng. And the preast shall take the soden shulder of the ram, and one swete cake out of the basket, and one swete wafer also, and put them vpon the handes of the abstepner after he hath shauen his abstinence of, and the preast shall take them of hym, and waue them before the Lorde. And these holy thynges shall be the preastes wth the wauchers and beue shulder, and then the abstepner maye drynke wyne. This is the lawe of the abstepner whiche hath vowed his offerpng vnto the Lorde for his consecracyon: & esydes those thynges that his hande can get, according to the vowe whiche he vowed, euen so he muste do after the lawe of his abstinence. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge speake vnto Aaron and his sons, sayinge: of this wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Isræll, and sape vnto them.

The Lorde blesse the, and kepe the.

The Lorde make his face shyne vpon the and be merciful vnto the. The Lord lyfte vp his countenance vpon the, and geue the peace. And they shall put my name vpon the chyldren of Isræll, and I wyll blesse them.

Therfore shall they blowe with them, that all the multitude maye resorte to the before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And if they blowe but one trumpet, then the prynces which are heades ouer the thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. But if ye trumpe, the hostes that lye on the east partes shall go forward. And if ye trumpe the seconde tyme, the hoste that lye on the south syde shall take theyr iourney. For they shall trumpe when they take theyr iourneyes. But when the congregacyon is to be gathered together, they shall blowe only, and not trumpe. And the sonnes of Aaron the Priest shall blowe with theyr trumpettes, and ye shall haue theym as a lawe for euer in your generacyons.

And if ye go to warre in your lande agaynst gi your

Also in the daye of your gladnesse, and in your feast dayes, and in the begynnyng of your monethes, ye shall blowe the trumpettes ouer your burnt sacrifices and peaceofferings, that they may be a remembrance for you before your God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to passe the twentieth daye of the seconde moneth in the second yere, that the cloude was taken up frome of the habitacon of the people. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iorney out of the deserte of Sinai, and the cloude rested in the wyldernesse of Pharan. And the fyrst toke theyr iorney at the mouth of the Lorde, by the hande of Moyses. In the fyrst place went the standarde of the host of Juda, accordyng to their armyes whose captayne was Nabalson the sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the host of the tribe of the chyldren of Issachar, was Nathanael the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the host of the tribe of the chyldren of Zabulon, was Eliab the sonne of Heleu. And ouer the host of the tribe of the chyldren of Simeon was Salamiel the sonne of Sur. And ouer the host of the tribe of the chyldren of Gad was Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. The Gathites also went forward & bare the sanctuary, and the other dyd set up the habitacion agaynst theyr came. And the standarde of the host of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth accordyng to theyr armyes whose captayne was Elisama the sonne of Amud. Obayne, leaue vs not: for thou knowest our manshons in the wyldernesse: & thou hast bene to vs in steade of eyes. And if thou go with vs loke what good wylle the Lorde sheweth vnto vs the same wylle we shewe vnto the.

The .xi. Chapter.

The people murmured. They aspye fleshe. They lacke manna. The wandering faphe of Moyses. The Lord denieth the burden of Moyses to launce of his vncle. & they praye. He capneth quaples. The first canenere are punyshed.

And it fortuned, that whā the people dyd wickedly, it was a displeasure in the eares of the Lorde. And when the Lorde heard it, his countenance was prouoked to wrath, & the fyre of the Lorde burnt amonge the, and consumed them that were the bettermost of the host. And the people cried vnto Moyses. And whā Moyses made intercessiō vnto the Lorde, the fyre quēched. And the name of the place was called Chaberab, because the fyre of the Lorde burnt amonge the.

And the rascal people that was amonge them, fell a lustyng, and turned the selues and wepte (euen as dyd also the chyldren of Israel) & sayd: who shall geue vs fleshe to eate? we remembre the fleshe which we dyd eate in Egypt for naught and the cucumbers and melons, lekes, onyons & garleke. But now our soule is dryed awaye, for we can se nothyng els, saue Manna.

The Manna was as coriander seede, and the taste of it was lyke Hedellys. And the people went aboute and gathered it, & ground it in mpyles, or bet it in morters, & baked it in pannes, & made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an ople cake. And whē the dewe fel downe vpon the host in the nyght, the Manna fell vpon it.

And when Moyses herde the people wepte thowout theyr householdes, every man in the doore of his tente, the face of the Lorde was prouoked vnto wrath exceedingly. and it grieved Moyses also. And Moyses sayd vnto the Lorde: wherfore hast thou dealt cruelly with thy seruānt? And wherfore haue I not found fauour in thy syght, sayng that thou puttest the weyght of all this people vpon me: haue I conceived all this people? Or haue I begotten them: that I shuld say vnto me: carry them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckyng chylde, vnto the lande, whiche thou swarest vnto theyr fathers: where shuld I haue fleshe, to geue vnto all this people, which wepe before me, sayeng: geue vs fleshe that we may eate? I am not able to beare all this people alone, sayng it is to heuy for me. If thou deal thus with me, kyl me. I praye the, if I haue founde fauour in thy syght, that I se not my wretchednesse.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses, *gather vnto me .lxx. men of the elders of Israel, whych knowest, that they are the elders of the people & officers ouer ouer them and thou shalt brynge them vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that they maye stande there with the: And I wyll come downe, and talke with the there, and take of þe sprete which is vpon the, and putte vpon them, and they shal beare the burthen of the people with þe, lest thou be constreyned to beare it alone.

Exo. xvi. e

And saye thou vnto the people be halowed agaynste to morowe, and ye shall eate fleshe: for ydur whynnyng is in the eares of the Lorde, se- pnyng ye saye: who shall geue vs fleshe to eate? we were happye in Egypte: therfore the Lorde wyll geue you fleshe, and ye shall eate. Ye shall not eate one daye nor two, nor fyue dayes, ney- ther ten, nor twente dayes: but euen a moneth longe vntyll it come out at the nostrils of you: and make you to perbake, because that ye haue caste the Lorde asyde which is amonge you: I haue wepte before hym, sayinge: why came we thus out of Egypte? And Moles sayde. I spre hundred thousande foremen are there of the peo- ple, amonge whiche I am. And thou hast sayde I wyll geue them fleshe, that they maye eate a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the oxen be slayne for them, to fynde them: ether wal all the sphe of the see be gathered together for them to serue them? And the Lorde sayde vnto Moles: Shall the Lordes hande be wared? Thou shalt se now whether my worde shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

Exo. i. a. and. ii. a

And Moles went out, and tolde the people the sayinge of the Lorde, and gathered the. lxx. elders of the people, and set them rounde about the tabernacle. And the Lorde came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of þe sprete that was vpon him, and gaue it vnto the. lxx. el- ders. And it fortuned, that when the sprete res- ted vpon them, they prophesied, and dyd not ceasse. But there remayned two of the men in þe hoste: the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad. And the sprete rested vpon them, and they were of them þe were wyrt- ten, and went not out vnto the tabernacle, but prophesied in the host. And there ranne a yonge man, and tolde Moles and sayde Eldad & Me- dad do prophesie in the hoste. And Iosua the son of Nun the seruaunte of Moles one of his yong- men, answered and sayde: master Moles, for- byd them. And Moles sayde vnto hym enuyest thou for my sake? Holde God that all the Lor- des people coulde prophesie, and that the Lorde wolde put his sprete vpon them. And Moles gat hym into the hoste, he and the elders of Is- rael. And there went forth a wynde from the Lorde and brought quayles from the see: and let them fall aboute the hoste, euen a dayes tour- ney rounde aboute on euery syde of the host, and on (they dyd fynde in the ayre) as it were two cubytes hye ouer the earth. And the people stode vp, and all that daye and all that nyght, and on the mo- row they gathered quayles. And he that gathe- red a lytle, gathered ten homers full. And they spred them abrode rounde aboute the hoste.

¶ And Miriam and Aaron spake a- gainst Moles, because of the wo- man of Inde which he had taken: for he had taken to wyfe one of In- de. And they sayde hath the Lorde in dede spokē only thow Moles: hath he not spoken also by vs? And the Lorde heard it. But Moles was a very meke man, aboue all þe men of the earth. And the Lorde spake at once vnto Moles vnto Aaron and to Miriam, come out ye thre vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, & they came out all thre. And the Lorde came downe in the pylle of the cloude, and stode in the dore of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam. And they went out both of them. And he said heare my wordes. If there be a prophete of þe Lorde amonge you, I wyll be knowen of hym in a visyon and wyll speake vnto hym in slepe. My seruaunt Moles is not so, which is faytfull in al myne house. Vnto hym wyl I speake mouth to mouth in a visyon: but in rydels and sunnyp- tudes doth not he se the Lorde. Wherefore then were ye not afrayde to speake agaynste my ser- uaunt Moles? And the Lorde was moued vnto wrath agaynst them, and he went his way and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And he holde Miriam was become leprous, as it were snowe. And Aaron loked vpon Miriam & he- holde, she was leprous, and Aaron sayde vnto Moles I beseeche the my Lorde, put not the syn vpon vs, which we haue folyschly comytted and sinned. ¶ Certaine men are sent to search the lande of Canaan.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moles, saying: Send men out to search the land of Ca- naan which I geue vnto þe children of Is- rael of euery trybe of thei- fathers I wyll sende a man, and let them all be suche as are rulers a- monge them. And Moles at the commaunde- ment of þe Lorde sent forth out of the wilderness of Pharan such men as were all heades of þe chil- dren of Israel: Thei- names are these. Of the trybe of Ruben, Shammua the sonne of Zacur.

Deute. i. a gii Of the

Of the trybe of Simeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori. Of the trybe of Iuda, Calbi the sonne of Jephune. Of the trybe of Iachar, Igeal the son of Josiph. Of the trybe of Ephraim, Osea the sonne of Nun. Of the trybe of Ben Iamin, Palti the sonne of Raphu. Of the trybe of Zabulon, Adiel the sonne of Hodi. Of the trybe of Joseph, namely of the trybe of Manasse, Gad-di the sonne of Susi. Of the trybe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Semali. Of the trybe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. Of the trybe of Reputali, Nabbi the sonne of Naphtali. Of the trybe of Gad, Onel the sonne of Machi. These are the names of the men, whiche Moses sent to spye out the lande. And Moses called the name of Osea the sonne of Nun, Josua.

25 And Moses sent them forth to spye out the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you vp this waye southwarde, that ye maye go vp into the hye countrey, and se the lande what manner thynge it is, and the people y<sup>e</sup> dwelleth therein: whether they be stronge or weake, ether few or many, and what the lande is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad: and what maner of cities they be, that they dwell in, whether they dwell in tentes or walled towne: and what maner of lande it is: whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. Be of a good corage, and bypne of the frute of y<sup>e</sup> lande. And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrst ripe. And so they went vp, and searched out the lande from the wyldernesse of zin vnto Rehob, as men come to Hemath, and they ascended vnto the south, and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was and Sesai and Thalmam, the sonnes of Enack. Hebron was buyt seuen yere before ioan in Egypte. And they came vnto the ryuer of Escol, and cut downe there a braunche wth one clouster of grapes and twayne bare it vpon a staffe: and they broughte also of the pomegranates and of the fygges. And the place was called the ryuer Escoll: because of the clouster of grapes whiche the chyldren of Israel cut downe thence. And they touched backe agayne frome searchyng of the lande after forty dayes. And they wente and came to Moses and Aaron and vnto all the myltitude of the chyldren of Israel in the wyldernesse of Pharan: whiche is Cadis, and brought them worde, and also vnto all the congregacyon, and shewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde hym, and sayde: we came vnto the lande whither thou sendest vs, and surely it floweth wth mylke and honye: and here is of the frute of it. Nevertheless, the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cities are walled and exceeding great: and moreover, we sawe the chyldren of Enack there. The Amalechites dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethites, Jebusites, and the Amorites dwell in the mountaynes, and the Cananites dwell by the see, and by the coste of Iordan.

26 And Caleb spyled y<sup>e</sup> people that murmured vnto Moses, saying: we wyl go vp, and conquere it: for we be able to overcome it. But the men that wente vp wth hym, sayde

We be not able to go vp agaynst the people: for they are stronger then we. And they brought vp an euil reposte of the lande which they had searched, sayinge: vnto the chyldren of Israel: the lande whiche we haue gone thorowe to searche it oute, is a lande that eateth vp the inhabitants thereof: and the people that we sawe in it, are men of a great stature. And there we sawe also gyauntes, the chyldren of Enack, whiche come of the gyauntes. And we seemed in our syght as it were grechoppers, and so we dyd in theyr syght.

The xiii. Chapter.

The people murmure agaynst God, and wolde haue stoned Moses and Aaron. The searchers of the lande speake ill of the lande. And the Lord speake to Moses.

1 And all the myltitude of the people cryed out, and wepte thorowoute that nyght, and all the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron. And the whole congregacyon sayde vnto them: wolde God that we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, ether that we had dyed in this wyldernesse. Wherefore hath the Lorde broughte vs vnto this lande: to fall vpon the swerde: and that our wyues, and our chyldren shulde be a praye? Were it not better that we returne vnto Egypt agayne? And they sayde one to another: We wyl make a captayne and returne vnto Egypte agayne.

But Moses and Aaron fell on theyr faces before all the congregacyon and myltitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb the sonne of Jephune, whiche were of them that searched the lande, rent theyr clothes, and spake vnto all the company of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande whiche we walked thorowe to searche it, is a very good lande. If the Lorde hath lust to vs, he wyl bringe vs into his lande and geue it vs, whiche is such a lande as floweth wth mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not ye agaynst the Lorde.

* Rep ther nede ye to feare the people of the lande for they are but breade for vs. Theyr shadowe is departed from them, and the Lorde is wth vs feare them not therfore.

But all they whiche were in that myltitude had stoned them with stones. And the glory of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde appeared in the Tabernacle of witness, before all the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: howe longe do this people prouoke me, and howe longe wyl it be yet they beleue me: for all the sygnes whiche I haue shewed amonge them? I wyl smyte them wth the pestilence and destroye them: and wyl make of the a greater nacyon and myghtyer then they.

And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people in thy myght from amonge them. And it wyl be tolde to the inhabytors of this lande also, for they haue hearde lyke wyse, that thou Lorde arte amonge this people: and y<sup>e</sup> thou Lorde arte sent face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pylle of a cloude, and in a pylle of fyre by nyghte.

If thou

If thou shalt kill all this people as they were but one man, then I nacpous which have heard the fame of the, wyl saye: The Lorde is not able to brynge in this people into the lande, whyche he sware vnto them: but hath slayne them in the wyldernesse. And nowe I beseech the, let the power of my Lorde be grete, accordynge as thou hast spoken: saying the Lorde is longe per he be angrie and full of merce, and suffereth iniquitye, and syn, and leaueth no man innocent, and visyteth the vnrightheousnesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren. in the thyrde and fourth generation: be merciful I beseech the vnto the synne of this people, accordynge vnto thy grete merce, as thou hast forgiven this people from Egypte, euen vntill nowe. And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgiven it, accordynge to thy request. But as trulpe as I lye, all the earth shalbe fylled with the glory of the Lorde. But all those men whyche haue sene my glory and my myracles whyche I dyd in Egypte and in the wyldernesse and haue tempted me nowe this ten tymes and wyl not herken vnto my voyce, shall not see the lande which I sware vnto thy fathers: neither shall any of them that prouoked me se it.

Not far. b.

But my seruante * Caleb wylth whome there was another maner of sperte: & because he hath folowed me vnto the vtmost, hym wyl I brynge into the lande which he hath walked in, and his sede shal inheret it, and also the Amalechites & Cananites which dwell in the playne countrey. To morow turne you, and get you into the wyldernesse: euen by the waye of the red see.

E And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: howe longe doth this euell multitude murmur agaynst me? I haue heard y murmurings of the chyldren of Israel, wylth the whyche they murmur agaynst me: Tell them therefore: As trulpe as I lye, sayeth the Lorde) I wyl doo vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in myne cares. Your carkasses shal lye in this wyldernesse. And all you that were tolde thowowoute your nombres, from twenty pere & aboue, (which haue murmured agaynst me) shall not come into y lande, ouer which I sware vnto myne hande, to make you dwell therein, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

But your chyldren, whyche ye sayde shulde be a praye, them I wyl brynge in, and they shal knowe the lande which ye haue refused, and your carkasses shal lye in this wyldernesse. And your chyldren shal wander in this wyldernesse, fortye peres, and suffer for your whoredome, vntill your carkasses be wasted in the wyldernesse, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye searched out the lande, euen fortye dayes. * euey daye for a pere shal ye beate your vnrightheousnesse euen fortye pere, and ye shal knowe my displeasure. I the Lorde haue sayde, that I wyl do it vnto all this euell congregacion that are gathered together agaynst me. For in this wyldernesse they shalbe consumed, and here they shal dye.

And the men whyche Moses sent to searche the lande, and which (when they came agayne) made all the people to murmur before him and brought by a sclander vpon y land, euen those men that dyd brynge vnto that sclander vpon it, as though it had bene euill, dyed in a great * plage before the Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Iephune whyche were of the men that wente to searche the lande, lyued still. And Moses tolde these saynges vnto all the chyldren of Israel, & the people toke great sorowe. And they rose vpearly in the morninge, & gatte them vnto the toppe of the mountayne, sayinge: * lo, we be here, and wyl goo vnto the place of which the Lorde sayde vnto vs, for we haue synned. And Moses sayde: wherfore wyl ye go on this maner, beyonde the worde of the Lorde? it wyl not come well to passe: go not vnto therfore: (for the Lorde is not amonge you) that ye be not slayne before your enemyes. For the Amalechites and the Cananites are there before you, and ye wyl fall vpon the swerde because ye are turned a waye from the Lorde, and the Lorde wyl not be wylth you.

But they presumed obstynatly to go vnto the hyl toppe. Neuerthelater, the Arke of the testamente of the Lorde, and Moses departed not out of the hoste. Then the Amalechites and the Cananites, whyche dwelte in that hyl came downe and smote them, and howed them, euen vnto Hozma.

The .xv. Chapter.

The Lorde spake offeringe of them that entre into the lande. & of punishment of him that synneth of arrogancy of pride

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * When ye be come into the lande of your habitacions, whyche I geue vnto you, and wyl offer an offeringe vnto the Lorde. Namely a burnt offeringe or a specfall sacrifice, ether of a vowe or of a wyllyng mind and in your pryncypall feastes, to make a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord of the oren or of y flocke.

1. cor. 1. d.

Then * lette hym that offereth his offeringe vnto the Lorde, brynge also a meat offeringe of a tenth deale of floure myngled with the fourth parte of an hyne of oyle, and the fourth parte of an hyne of wyne for a drynke offeringe, and offer with the burnt offeringe or any other offeringe when it is a lambe. Or if it be a ram, thou shalt offer for a meate offeringe, two tenth deales of floure myngle wylth the thyrde parte of an hyne of oyle: and for a drynke offeringe, thou shalt offer the thyrde parte of an hyne of wyne for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

1. cor. 1. d.

And when y offerest a bullocke for a burnt offeringe or for a specfall vowe or peace offeringe vnto the Lorde, let hym brynge with a bullocke a meate offeringe of thre tenth deales of floure myngled with halfe an hyne of oyle. And thou shalt brynge for a drynke offeringe: euen halfe an hyne of wyne, for an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto y Lorde. After this maner shal it be done for an ore, or for a ram, or for a lambe or a kyd. Loke what nombre thou makest in these, such a nombre shalte thou make in them also.

And accordynge to y nombre of such offerings g in thou

thou shalt increase the meat offeringes and the drynke offeringes. All that are of your selues shall do these thynges after this maner, to offer an offeringe of swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And yf a straunger sojourneth with you, or whosocuer be amonge you in your generacions, and wyll offer an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, euen as ye do, so he shall do. One oblatione shall be both for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. It shall be an oblatione for euer in your generacions, both vnto you and to the straunger before the Lorde.

One lawe and one maner shall serue, bothe for you and for the straunger that sojourneth with you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * When ye be come into the lande to the whiche I bringe you, then when ye wyll eat of the breade of the lande, ye shall take vp an heue offeringe vnto the Lorde.

E Ye shall take vp a cake of the fyrste of your dowe for an heue offeringe, * as ye do the heue offeringe of the barne, euen so ye shall heue it.

Of the fyrste of your dowe ye shall geue vnto the Lorde an heue offeringe in your generacions. And yf ye ouersee your selues, and obserue not all these commaundementes, which the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moyses, euen all that the Lorde hath commaunded you by the hande of Moyses frome the fyrste daye that the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and hence forth amonge your generacions. If it happen that ought is comyned ignorantly of the congregacion, all the multitude shall offer a bullocke for a burnt offeringe, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, with the meat offeringe and drynke offeringe thereto, accordyng to the maner, and an he goate for synne. And the prest shall make an attonement for all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them, for it is pynoraunce. And they shall bringe theyr offeringe for a sacrifice vnto the Lorde and theyr syn offeringe before the Lorde for theyr pynoraunce. And it shall be forgiven vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonge you: seynge all the people were in ignoraunce.

E * If any one soule synne thowowe ignoraunce he that bringe a she goate of a yere olde for syn. And the prest shall make an attonement for the soule that synned ignorantly, with the syn offeringe before the Lorde to reconcile hym, that it maye be forgiven hym. And bothe thou that arte borne of the chyldren of Israel, & the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue both one lawe, who so doth synne thowowe ignoraunce. But the soule that doth ought presumptuously, whither he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same blasphemeth the Lorde. And that soule shall be rodd out frome amonge his people, because he hath despyled the worde of the Lorde, and hath broken his commaundemente, & soule therfore shall perishe, and his synne shall be vpon hym. And whyle the chyldren of Israel were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man that gathered stekes vpon the * Sabbath daye.

And they that founde hym gatheringe stekes, brought hym vnto Moyses and Aaron, and vnto all the congregacion * and they put hym in ward, seynge it was not declared what shuld be done vnto hym. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Let the man dye: and let all the multitude stone hym with stones without the host. And all the multitude broughte hym withoute the hoste, and stoned hym with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and byd them that they make them gardes in the quarters of their garments thowout theyr generacions, and put vpon the garde of the quarters a rybande of purple syke. And the garde shall be vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye maye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lorde, and doo them, and that ye seeke not after your owne harte, or your owne eyes, after the whiche ye vse to go a whoringe: but ye shall remembre rather and doo all my commaundementes, and be holy vnto your God: I am the Lorde your God, which brought you out of the lande of Egypte, for to be your God: I am the Lorde your God.

The rebellion of Corah, Dathan and Abiram.

And * Corah the sonne of Iezhar, the sonne of Cabath, the son of Leui, and Dathan, and Abiram son of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: rose vp before Moyses, with other men of the chyldren of Israel, two hundred and fiftie, which were Captaynes of the multitude, grete and famous men in the congregacion: and they gathered theym selues together agaynst Moyses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them ye make much to do, seynge all the multitude are holy euerie one of them, and the Lorde is amonge them. Why heue ye your selues vp aboue the congregacion of the Lorde? And when Moyses hearde it, he fel vpon his face, and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his company, sayinge: to morowe the Lorde wyll shewe who are his, who is holy, and who oughte to appoche npe vnto hym, and who he hath chosyn to come to hym. This do therfore, take you spreys, both Corah and all his company and do spre therin, and put cens in them before the Lorde to morowe.

And the man whom the Lord doth chole, the same shall be holy. Ye make much to do, ye chyldren of Leui. And Moyses said vnto Corah: * heare ye chyldren of Leui: It is but a smal thyng vnto you that the God of Israel hath separated you from the multitude of Israel: and broughte you to hym self, to do the scrupce of the dwelling place of the Lorde, and to stand before the multitude and to minister vnto hym: he hath taken the to hym and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with the, and sette ye the office of the priest also: for whiche cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together agaynst þe Lorde. And what is Aaron, that ye murmur agaynst hym?

And Moses sente, and called Dathan, and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, whiche sayde: we wyll not come vp. Is it a smal thyng that thou hast brought vs out of a lande þe floweth with mylke and honye, to kylle vs in the wyldernesse, and to raygne ouer vs also? Hast thou brought vs vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and honye, and geuen vs inheritaunce of feldeg and vnyepardes? Wylt thou pull out þe eyes of these men: we wyll not come vp. And Moses waxed very angry, and sayde vnto the Lorde. Turne not thou vnto theyr offerpng. I haue not taken so muche as an alle from them, neyther haue I hurt any of them. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Wethou and all thy companye before the Lorde both thou, they, and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man hys censur, and put censur in them, that ye maye offer before the Lorde euery man of the two hundred and fiftye take hiscen souer, thou also Aaron, that euery one maye haue his censur. And they toke euery man his censur, and put fyre in them, and layde censur on, and stode in the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse with Moses and Aaron. And Corah gathered all the congregacion agaynst them vnto þe dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glorie of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacion. And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge sepetate your selues from amonge this congregacion, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpon theyr faces and sayde. *O most myghtye God of the spyetes of all flesh þe ouer man hath sinned, wylt thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge speake vnto the congregacion and saye: Get you awaye fro aboute the dwellinge of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moses rose vp, and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel folowed hym. And he spake vnto the congregacion, sayinge: departe frome the tentes of these wycked men, and touche nothyng of theyr lest ye paye in all theyr synnes. And so they gate them from the dwelling of Corah Dathan and Abiram on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stode in the dore of theyr tentes with theyr wyues, theyr sonnes, and theyr lytle chyldren. And Moses sayde: here by ye shall knowe that the Lorde hath sente me to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of myne owne mynde. If these men dye the comē death of all men: or þe they be vylted after the vylpracyon of all men, then the Lorde hath not sente me. Wnt and þe Lorde make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth, and swa-lowe them by wyth all that they haue: and they go downe quykly into hell. then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue prouoked þe Lorde.

And it fortunēd that as sone as he had made an end of speakyng all these wordes, *þe ground cloue a sunder that was vnder them: and þe earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them vp, and theyr houses, and all the men that were wyth Corah, and all theyr goodes. And they and all that they had, went downe alyue vnto hell, and the earth closed vpon them: and they perished from amonge the congregacion. And all Israel that were aboute them fled at the crye of them.

And they sayde: lest the earth swallowe vs vp also. And there came out a fyre from the Lorde, and consumed the two hundred and fiftye men that offered censur. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest that he take vnto the censers out of the burnyng and shatter the fyre here and there, for þe censers of these synners are halowed in theyr deatnes: and lette them make of them thynne beaten plates for a couerynge of the altare. For they offered them before the Lorde, and therefore they are halowed, & they shalbe a spygne vnto the chylden of Israel. And Eleazar þe priest toke the brassen censers whiche they that were burnt had offered, and brake them thynne for a couerynge of the altare, to be a remembraunce vnto the chylden of Israel, that no straunger whiche is not of the seide of Aaron, come nere to offer censur before the Lord, that it happen not vnto hym. lyke as vnto Corah and hys companye, as the Lorde sayde of hym by the hande of Moses. But on the morowe all the multitude of þe chylden of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, sayinge: ye haue kyted the people of the Lorde. And it fortunēd that when the multitude was gathered agaynst Moses and Aaron, they looked toward the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde <sup>when they were entered in</sup> the cloude couered it, and the glorie of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron came before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Gette you frome amonge this congregacion, that I maye consume them quickly. And they fel vpon theyr faces. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censur, and put fyre therein out of the altare, and poure on censur, and go quykly vnto the congregacion, that thou mayste obtayne the forgeneuesse for them. For there is wrathe gone oute from the Lorde, and there is a plage begonne.

And Aaron toke as Moses commaunded hym: and came into the myddes of the congregacion and behold, the plage was begonne amonge the people, and he put on censur, and made an attouement for the people. And when he stode betwene the deade and them that were alyue, the plage ceased. They that dyed in the plage were foure- tene thousande and seven hundred. besyde them that dyed aboute the busynesse of Corah. And Aaron went agayne vnto Moses before þe dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & the plage ceased.

Isa. xli. 6

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: and take of euery pryncce of them a rodde, after the houses of theyr fathers, euen twelue rodde: and wyte euery mans name vpon his rod. And wyte Aarons name vpon the rod of Leui: for euery rod is for an house of theyr fathers. And put them in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, euen in the place where I mete you. And the mans rod whome I chuse, shal blossom. And I wyl make ceasse from me the grudgynges of the chyldren of Israel wherby they grudge agaynst you.

And Moyses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and all þ prynces gaue hym euery pryncce ouer theyr fathers houses, a rodde, euen twelue rodde: and the rod of Aaron was amonge the rodde. And Moyses put the rodde before the Lorde, in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And on the morowe, Moyses went into the Tabernacle of wytnesse and beholde, * the rod of Aaron for the house of Leui was budded, & bare blossoms and almondes. And Moyses brought out all the rodde before the Lorde vnto all the chyldren of Israel and they looked vpon them, & toke euery man his rod. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: brynge Aarons rod agayne before the wytnesse to be kepte for a token of the chyldrens rebellon, and that theyr murmuring map cease from me, and that they dye not. And Moyses did as the Lorde commaunded hym, euen so dyd he. And the chyldren of Israel spake vnto Moyses sayinge. beholde, we are wasted awaye and consumed we all come to nought, whoso euer cometh nye the dwellinge of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we utterly consume awaye?

And the Lorde sayde vnto Aaron, & and thy sons and thy fathers house with the shall beare þ faute of that whiche is done amplye in the holpe place. And thou and thy sons with the shall beare the faute of that whiche is done amplye in your preasthode. * And thy brethren of the tribbe of Leui and of theyr fathers house: holde thou shalt take vnto the, that they maye be ioyned vnto the and minister vnto the: euen vnto the and thy sonnes wth the before the tabernacle of wytnesse. They shal wayte vpon the and vpon all the tabernacle: onely let them not come nye the vessels of the sanctuary and the aultar, that they and ye also dye not. And they shal be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse for all the seruyce of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therefore shall ye kepe the holy place and the aultar, that there fall no moze wrath vpon the chyldren of Israel: beholde, I haue taken your brethren the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, whiche as a gyfte of poures are geuen vnto the Lorde, to do þ seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse. Therefore shalt thou and thy sonnes with the take hede vnto your preastes office for all thynges that pertaine vnto the Aultar, and for all that are within the vayle. And se that ye serue: for I haue geuen your preastes offyce vnto you as a gyfte: and therefore the straunger that cometh nye, must be slayne. And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: beholde, I haue geuen the the keepinge of myne heue offerynges, of all the hallowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel. Euen vnto the, I haue geuen them for the anoynting and to thy sonnes, for a dutie for euer. This shal be thyne of most holy from the fyre of the aultar. All theyr sacrifices for all theyr meate offerynges, synofferpynges of trespassofferpynges, which they brynge vnto me, are most holy. It is thyne and thy sonnes. In the most holy place shalt thou eate it: and all that are cleane shall eate of it, let it be holy vnto the. And this also is thyne * the heue offerpynges of theyr gyftes, thozowe out all the waue offerpynges of the chyldren of Israel. I haue geuen them vnto the and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the, to be a dutie for euer, and all that are cleane in thy house, shal eate of it, all the fat of the oyle, and all the fat of the wyne and of the corne, which they shall offer vnto the Lorde for fyrst frutes, the same haue I geuen vnto the. And what so euer is fyrst frute in theyr lande whiche they brynge vnto the Lorde shal be thyne, & all that are cleane in thyne house shall eate of it. All dedicate thynges in Israel, shal be thyne. All that breaketh the matryce in all fleche that men brynge vnto the Lorde, whether it be of men or beastes, shal be thyne. Neuer thelater the fyrste borne of man shalt þ redeme: and the fyrste borne of vncleane beastes: shalt thou redeme lyke wyse. Those that are to be redemed, shalt thou redeme from the age of a moneth, for the value of þ moneth, namely for fyue cycles after the cycle of the sanctuarye. A cycle maketh twenty halspens. But the fyrste borne of oxen, shepe and goates shalt thou not redeme. For they are holy therefore thou shalt spraye theyr bloude vpon the aultar, and shalt burne theyr fat vpon the sacrifice for a swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And the fleche of them is thyne * as the wauebreast and the right shulder. These are thyne. All the holy heue offerpynges which þ chyldren of Israel offer vnto the Lorde, haue I geuen the, and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the, to be a dutie for euer, let it be a salted covenant for euer: before the Lorde, both vnto the and to thy seide wth the. And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron. * thou shalt haue none inheritaunce in theyr lande, neyther shalt thou haue any part amonge them. I am thy parte and thy inheritaunce amonge the chyldren of Israel. Beholde I haue geuen the chyldren of Leui all the tenth in Israel to inheryte, for the seruyce which they serue in the tabernacle of wytnesse. Neither must the chyldren of Israel henceforth come nye the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest they beare synne, and dye. But the Leuites shall do the seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse and beare theyr synne. It shal be a lawe for euer in your generacions that amonge the chyldren of Israel, they possesse none inheritaunce. But the tythes of the chyldren chylidren of Israel, which they paye as an heue offering vnto the Lorde, I haue geuen the Leuites to inheryte. And therfore I haue sayde vnto them. Amonge the chylidren of Israel ye shall possesse none enherytaunce. And the Lord spake vnto Moles, sayinge: speake vnto the Leuites: and saye vnto them, when ye take of the chylidren of Israel the tythes whiche I haue geuen you of them for your enherytaunce, ye shall take an heue offering of that same for the Lorde: euen the tenth parte of the tyth. And this your heue offering shalbe reckened vnto you, eue as though it were of the corne of the barne, or out of the fulnesse of the wyne presse. Of this maner ye shall therfore seprate an heue offering vnto the Lord of all your tythes whiche ye receyue of the chylidren of Israel, and ye shall geue therof vnto the Lorde an heue offeringe, whiche shall belonge to Aaron the preast. Of all your gyftes, ye shall take out all the Lordes heue offerings, euen the fat of the halowed thynges. Therfore thou shalt saye vnto them when ye haue taken away the fat of it from it it shalbe counted vnto the Leuites, as yf it were the increase of the corne floze, or the increase of the wyne presse. And ye shall eat it in all places, both ye and your householdes for it is your rewarde for your seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And ye shall beare no syn by the reason of it, when ye haue taken from it the fat of it: neyther shall ye vnhalowe the holy thynges of the chylidren of Israel, lest ye dye.

The xix. Chapter.

Of the red kowe. The lawe of hym that dyeth in the tabernacle, & of hym also that toucheth any vncleane thyng.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moles, and Aaron sayinge this is the ordynance of the lawe: whiche the Lorde hath commaunded, sayinge speake vnto the chylidren of Israel that they bryng the a red kowe wythout spot, and wherein is no blempe, and vpon whiche neuer came yoke. And ye shall geue her vnto Eleazar the preast, that he maye brynge her wythout the hoste, and cause her to be slayne before his face. And let Eleazar the preast take of her bloude with his synger, and spynckle it before the Tabernacle of wytnesse seuen tymes. And cause the kowe to be burnt in his syght with her skynne, flesh and bloude. And the dung of her shall be burnt also. And let the preaste take Cedar wood, and ylope and purple clothe, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. Then let the preast walsh his clothes, and he shall bath his flesh in water, and then come into the hoste and the preast shalbe vncleane vnto the euen.

And he that burneth her, shall walsh his clothes in water, and bath his flesh in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And a man yf is cleane shall take vp the ashes of the kowe, and put the without the hoste in a cleane place. And it shalbe kepte for the multitude of the chylidren of Israel for a spyncklynge water and for an attonement of synne. Therfore he that gathereth the ashes of the kowe, shall walsh his clothes, and remaine vncleane vntill euen. And this shalbe vnto the chylidren of Israel and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonge them, a statute for euer. * He that toucheth the dead bodie of any man, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And he shall purifye hym selfe with this water the thyrde daye and the seuenth daye, and he shalbe cleane.

But yf he purifye not hym selfe the thyrde daye and the seuenth daye, he shall not be cleane. Who so euer toucheth the corse of any man that is deade, and spynckleth not hym selfe, defyleth the dwelling of the Lorde, and that soule shalbe rote out of Israel, because the spyncklynge water was not spynckled vpon hym. he shalbe therfore vncleane, and his vncleennesse shall remaine vpon hym. This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tente: all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent shall be vncleane seuen dayes. And all the vesselles that be open whiche haue no lyd nor couerynge vpon them shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth one that is slayne with a sword in the felde, or a dead person, or a bone of a deade man, or a graue shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. Therfore, for an vncleane persone they shall take of the burnte ashes of the syn offeringe, and runnyng water shall be put thereto in a vessel. And let a cleane person take ylope and dippe it in the water, and spynckle it vpon the tent, and vpon all the vesselles, and on the soules that were there in, and vpon hym that touched a bone, or a slayne persone, or a dead body, or graue. And yf a cleane persone shall spynckle vpon yf vncleane the thyrde daye & the seuenth daye & the seuenth daye he shal purifye hym selfe, & walsh his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, & shalbe cleane at enen. But the man that is vncleane and spynckleth not hym selfe, yf same soule shalbe destroyed from amonge yf congregacion because he hath defyled the holy place of the Lorde and the spyncklynge water hath not bene spynckled vpon hym, therfore shall he remaine vncleane. And this shall be a perpetuall lawe vnto them. And he that spynckleth the spyncklynge water, shall walsh his clothes. And he that toucheth the spyncklynge water, shall be vncleane vntill euen. And what so euer the vncleane persone toucheth shall be vncleane. And the soule that toucheth it, shalbe vncleane vntill the euen.

The xx. Chapter.

Of the water of life. The people murmure. They haue water euen out of the rocke. How hampered the Israelites passage throught the red sea. The death of Aaron in whose counseleleazar succeeded.

And the chylidren of Israel came to the whole multitude into yf desert of Syn in yf fyrste moneth, & the people abode at Cadis. And there died Miriam, & was buried there. But ther was no water for yf multitude, & they gathered the felues together agaynst Moles and Aaron. And yf people chode with Moles, and spake, sayinge. byngge vs into this vnglacions place, whiche is no place of fede nor of fygges, nor vynes, nor of poyngranates, neyther is there any water to drynke. And Moyses and Aaron went from the congregacion vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and fel vpon theyr faces. <sup>And the Lord opened the Lord and sayde, I haue heare the crye of this people, and open them the treasure, even a fountayne of living water, that they maye be satisfied, and that they maye murmurage maye cease.</sup> And the glorie of the Lord appeared vnto them. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: take the rod, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacion together, and speake vnto the rocke before their eyes, and it shal geue forth his water. And thou shalt byngge them water out of the rocke, to geue the company drynke, and theyr bestes also. * And Moyses toke the rod from before the Lord, as he commaunded hym. And Moyses and Aaron gathered the congregacion together before the rocke, and Moyses sayde vnto them. heare ye rebellious, must we fet you water out of this rocke? And Moyses lyfte vp his hande, & with his rod he smote the rocke two tymes, & the water came out abundantly, and the multitude drank, and theyr bestes also. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron: because ye beleued me not, to sanctifye me in the eyes of the chyldren of Israel, therefore ye shall not byngge this congregacion into the lande whiche I haue geuen them. This is the water of stryfe, because the chyldren of Israel stroue with the Lord, and he was sanctified in them. * And Moyses sent messengers from Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayth thy brother Israel: Thou knowest all the trauayle that hath happened vs. Our fathers wente downe into Egypte, and we haue dwelte in Egypte a longe tyme, and the Egyptians vexed vs and our fathers. And when we cryed vnto the Lord, he hearde oure voyce, and sent an aungel, and hath fet vs by out of Egypt. And beholde we are in Cades, even in the vtermost cite of thy border. We wyl go now thowowe thy countre, but we wyl not go thowowe the felde of bynyardes, neyther wyl we drynke of the water of the fountaynes, we wyl go by the kynges hye waye, and neyther tourne vnto the ryght hande nor to the lefte, vntyll we be paste thy countre. And Edom answered hym.

Thou shalt not go by me: lest I come out agaynst the wyth the swerde. The chyldren of Israel sayde vnto hym. we wyl go by the beate waye and yf I and my cattell drynke of thy water, I wyl paye for it, I wyl but only (with out any harme) go thowowe on my fete. He answered: Thou shalt not go thowow. And Edom came out agaynst hym with moche people, and with a myghtye power. And thus Edom denyed to geue Israel passage thowowe his countrey wherfore Israel turned awaye from hym. And the chyldren of Israel departed from Cades, & came vnto mount Hore with all the congregacion. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron in mount Hore, harde by the coast of the land of Edom, sayinge. Aaron shal be gathered vnto his people, for he shall not come into the lande, whych I haue geuen vnto the chyldren of Israel, because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of stryfe. Take Aaron and Eleazar his son and byngge them by into mount Hore, and thou shalt streppe Aaron out of his vestimentes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and Aaron shall be gathered vnto his people and shall dye there. And Moyses dyd as the Lord commaunded and they went by into mount Hore in the syghte of all the multitude. And Moyses toke of Aarons clothes, and putte them vpon Eleazar his son, * & Aaron dyed there in the top of the mount. And Moyses and Eleazar came downe out of the mount. When all the multitude sawe that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron thyrty dayes, thowowt all the householdes of Israel.

The xxi. Chapter.

Israel vanquisheth kynge Arah. The fyre serpentes spys them. The kynges Schon & Og are overcome in battayle.

And when kynge Arah the Canaanite which dwelt towarde the south hearde tell that Israel came by the waye that the spies had founde out he fought agaynst Israel, and toke some of them prysoners. And Israel bowed a volue vnto the Lord, and sayde: If thou wylt deliuer this people into my hande, I wyl utterly destroye theyr cityes. And the Lord hearde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered them the Canaanites. And they destroyed them and theyr cityes, and called the name of the place Horma.

* And they departed from mount Hore by the waye of the red see to compasse the lande of Edom. And the soule of the people faynted by the waye. And the people spake agaynst God and agaynst Moyses: wherfore halt thou broughte vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernes for here is neyther breade nor water, and oure soule lotheth this lyght breade. * Wherfore the Lord sent fyre serpentes amonge the people whiche stonge them: and moche people of Israel dyed. Therefore the people came to Moyses & sayde. we haue sinned, for we haue spoken agaynst the Lord and agaynst the, * make intercession to the Lord, that he take awaye the serpentes from vs. And Moyses made intercession for the people. And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: make the a fyre serpent, and set it by for a sygne, that as many as are bytten, maye loke vpon it, and lyue. * And Moyses made a serpent of brasse, and set it by for a sygne. And when the serpentes had bitten any man, he behelde the serpente of brasse, and was healed. * And the chyldren of Israel departed thence, and pitched in

Obot

Oboth. And they departed from Oboth, & pitched at the heapes of Abarim: euen in the wyl-dernesse which is by the playne of Moab on the east syde. And they remoued thence, and pitched vpon the ruer of zarad. And they departed thence and pitched on the other syde of Arnon, which is in the wyl-dernesse, and cometh out of the co-ffes of the Amozites for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Amozites.

Wherfore it is spoken in the booke of the warre of the Lorde, what thyng he dyd in the red see, and in the ruer of Arnon. And the head of the ruer that goeth downe to the wellpunge of Ar, and stretcheth vnto the border of Moab, from thence it turneth vnto Beer. The same is Beer oz well wherof the Lord spake vnto Moyses ga-ther the people together, and I wyl geue them water. Then Israel sang this songe. Ar plep well, synge ye vnto hym. The princes dyg-ged thys well, the captaynes of the people dyg-ged it, with the teacher, and with theyr staues.

And from the wyl-dernesse they went to Matana, and from Matana to Rabahel, and from Rabahel to Bamoth, and from Bamoth to the valey that is in the felde of Moab, vnto the top of the hyll that apereth before Iesimon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Amozites, sayinge: * I wyl go thorow thy land we wyl not tourne into the felde oz vneparydes, neyther drynke of the waters of the wel-but we wyl go a longe by the kynges hye way vntill we be past thy countre. * But Sehon wolde geue Israel no licence to passe thorow hys countre, but gathered all hys people together and went out agaynst Israel into the wyl-dernesse. And he came to Iahesa and fought a-gaynst Israel. * And Israel smote hym in the edge of the sword, and conquered his land: fro Arnon vnto Iabok, and vnto the chyldren of Ammon. For the border of the chyldren of Ammon was stronge. And Israel toke all the cities, and dwelt in all the cities of the Amozites in Hesbon and in all the townes that longe therto. For Hesbon was the cite of Sehon the kynge of the Amozites, which fought before agaynst the kynge of the Moabites, and toke all hys lande out of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore they saye in the prouerbe: come to Hesbon, and let the cite of Sehon be buyt and repared: for there is a fyre gone out of Hesbon, and a flame from the cite of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar in Moab, and the inherytours of the hye places in Arnon. Wo be to the Moab. o people of Cha-mos, ye are vndone, he hath put hys sonnes to fright, and his daughters to captiuite vnto Se-hon the kynge of Amozites. Theyr empyre is losse from Hesbon vnto Dibon, and we made a wyl-dernesse euen vnto Hophah, which reacheth vnto Mediba. And thus Israel dwelt in the land of the Amozites. And Moyses sent to searche out Iazer, and they toke the towne be'onging ther-to, and roted out the Amozites that were therein.

* And they turned and wente vnto warde Ba-san. And Og the kynge of Basan came out a-gaynst them, he and all hys people to fight at Adri. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses, feare hym not, for I haue deliuered hym in thy hande and all his people, and his land. And thou shalt do to hym as thou dydest vnto Sehon the king of the Amozites which dwelt at Hesbon. They smote hym therfore, and hys sonnes, and all his people, vntill there was nothyng lefte hym.

And they conquered his lande.

The xxii. Chapter.

Ehyng Balac sendeth for Balaam (whose name in the Hebrew is Balaam, Balams alle. prayeth.

Ad the chyldren of Israel departed and pitched in the felde of Moab, on the other syde of Iordane, ouer agaynst Jericho. And Balac the sonne of ziphor sawe all that Israel was done to the Amozites: and the Moabites were sore afrayde of the people, because they were many, and stode in feare of the chyldren of Israel. And Moab sayde vnto the elders of Madian nowe what this company lycke vnto all that are rounde aboute vs, as an ore ly-keth vnto the graue of the felde. And Balac the sonne of ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme. He sente messengers therfore vnto Balaam the sonne of Beor in Bethor (which is by the ruer of the lande of the chyldren of Israel) to call hym, sayinge beholde, there is a people come out of Egypte, and beholde, they couer the face of the earth, and dwell ouer agaynst me.
Come nowe therfore, and curse thys people for my sake. For they are to myghte for me yf so peradventure I myghte be able to synge them to dryue them out of the lande. For I wote that he whome thou blessest, is blessed, and whome thou cursest, is cursed. And the elders of Moab and the elders of Madian departed, hauynge the re-warde of the southe saynge in theyr hande. And they came vnto Balaam, and tolde hym the wo-rdes of Balac. He answered them: saye here this nyght, and I wyl bynnege you worde, euen as the Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam: and sayde, what men are these with thee? And Balaam sayd vnto God: Balac the sonne of ziphor, kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayinge, behold, there is a people come out of Egypte and couereth the face of the earth: come nowe therfore and curse them for my sake, yf so peradventure I maye be able to overcome them in battell, and to dryue them oute. And God sayde vnto Balaam. So not thou with them, neyther curse the people, for they are blessed. And Balaam rose vp in the mornyng, and sayde vnto the Lordes of Balac get you vnto your lande for the Lorde wyl not suffer me to go with you. And the Lordes of Moab rose vp, and went vnto Balac and sayde Bala-am wolde not come with vs. And Balac sente agayne a greater company of Lordes and more honorable then they: which came to Balaam, and tolde hym: Thus sayth Balac the sonne of ziphor: ob, lette nothyng let the, but come vnto me, for I wyl greatly promote the vnto greaunto me, come I praye the, curse this people for my sake. And Balaam answered and sayde vnto the seruantes of Balac: * If Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer and golde, I can not go beyonde the worde of the Lorde my god, to do lesse or more. Howe therfore tarpe here this nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lorde wyll saye vnto me more. And God came vnto Balaam by nyght, and sayde vnto hym: If the men come to call the, ryse vp and go with them but loke what I saye vnto the, that shalt thou do. And Balaam rose vpearly, and saddled his asse, and went with the Lordes of Moab.

And the countenance of God was angrie because he w. nt. And the aungell of the Lorde stode in the waye agaynst hym, as he rode vpon his asse, and his two seruantes were with hym. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde stande in the waye, and haupng a swerde drawen in his hande, the asse turned asyde out of the waye, and wente out into the feide. And Balaam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

E But the aungell of the Lorde stode in a path betwene the bynepardes, and there was a wall on the one syde and another on the other. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, he wrenched vnto the wall, and thruste Balaams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And the aungell of the Lorde went further and stode in a narrowe place, where was no waye to turne, eether to the ryght hande or to the lyfte. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, he fell downe vnder Balaam. & Balaam was wroth, and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of the asse, and he sayd vnto Balaam what haue I done vnto the, that thou haite smytten me nowe thre tymes? And Balaam inryde vnto the asse: because thou hast mocked me I wolde also there were a swerd in myne hande, for euen nowe wolde I kyll the. And falsly sayde vnto Balaam am not I thine asse which thou hast rydden vpon sence þ wast borne vnto this daye: Was I euer went to doo so vnto the? he sayde: naye.

F And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balaam: and he sawe the aungell of the Lorde standynge in the waye, haupng a swerde drawen in his hande. He bowed hym selfe therfore, and fell flat on his face. And the Aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Wherefore hast thou smytten thynne asse thre tymes: beholde, I came out as an aduariare, because thou makest thy waye contrary vnto me, and the asse sawe me and wente backe from me thre tymes: oz elles yf we had not turned from me. (gryppng place to me þ rode in the waye) I had surely slayne the, and saved her aloue.

Balaam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: I haue sinned: for I wyl not that thou Rodest in the waye agaynst me. Howe therfore yf it dysplease the I wyl turne home agayne. The aungell sayde vnto Balaam, go wyth the men: but what I saye vnto the, that shalt thou speake. And so Balaam went with the Lordes of Balac. And when Balac heard that Balaam was come, he wente out to mete hym vnto a Cytie of Moab, which is in the border of Arnon, euen in the vtmost coast. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam byd I not send for the, to call the? And wherfore comest thou not vnto me: because I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? And Balaam made answer vnto Balac: Lo, I am come vnto the. And can I nowe save any thyng at all? The worde that God * putte in my mouth that shall I speake. And Balaam went wyth Balac, and they came vnto a citie of stretes.

And Balac offered oren and shepe, and sente as: rewards for Balaam and for the Lordes that were with hym. And on the morow Balac toke Balaam, and brought hym vp into þ hye place of Baal, that thence he myghte se the vttermoost parte of the people.

¶ The xliiij Chapter.

And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: I buyde me here seuen aultars, and prepare me here seuen oren and seuen rammes. And Balac byd agayne Balaam sayde. And Balac and Balaam offered on euery aultar, one ore and a ram. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Stand by the sacrifice, and I wyl go, yf happily the Lord wyll mete me: and what so euer he sheweth me, I wyl tell the, and he went forth alone. But and yf her father forbyd her the same daye that he heareth it, none other vowes nor bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shall be of value: and the Lorde shall forgue her, because her father forbade her. Yf she had an husbande when she vowed or pronounced ought out of her lippes, wherewith she bounde her soule, and her husband heard it and helde hye peace there at the same daye he hearde it, then her vowes and her bondes wherewith she bounde her soule shall stande in effecte. And yf her husbande forbade her the same daye that he hearde it, and made her vowe whiche she hath vpon her of none effecte, and released the openinge of her lippes wherewith she bounde her soule, the Lorde shall forgue her.

If she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an othe, and her husbande hearde it, and helde hye peace, and forbade her not, then all her vowes and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande dysanulled them, the same daye that he hearde them then nothyng that proceedeth out of her lippes in vowes and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule shall stande in effecte for her husbande hath allowed them. But yf he breake them, after that he hath hearde them, he shall beare her synne hym selfe. These are the ordynaunces which the Lorde commaunded Moses, betwene a man and his wyfe and betwene the father and hye daughter, bryngge yet a damysell in her fathers house.

The xxxi. Chapter.

The Madianytes and Balaam are slayne. The praye is equallye diuided. A present geuen of Israel.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: * avenge the chyldren of Israel of the Madianytes, and afterward shalt thou be gathered vnto thy people. And Moses spake vnto the folke, sayinge: Harnesse some of you vnto warre, and let them goo vpon the Madianytes, and avenge the Lorde of the Madianytes. Let ther be cholen a thousand out of euery trybe of Israel, that eue of all the trybes ye maye send some to the warre. And there were taken out of the thousands of Israel, twelue thousande prepared vnto warre, of euery trybe a thousande.

And Moses sente them to the warre, euen a thousande of euery trybe, and wyth them, Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the Priest, and the thylle vessels, and the trumpets to blowe were in his hande. And they warred agaynst the Madianytes, as the Lorde comaunded Moses, and slue all the males. And they slue the kynges of Madian amonge other that were slaine: Name ly, Eui and Rekem, Zur and Hur and Reba five kynges of Madian with Balaam, the sonne of Beor, whome they slue with the swerde. And the chyldren of Israel toke all the women of Madian prisoners, and theyre chyldren, and spoyled all their catel, and all theyre flockes, and all their goodes. And they burnt all theyre cities wher-in they dwelte, and all theyre castels with fyre.

And they toke all the spoyles and all that they coulde cathe both of men and beastes. And they brought the captiues and that whiche they had taken and the spoyles vnto Moses and Eleazar the Priest, and vnto the company of the chyldren of Israel, euen vnto the hoste that were in the felde of Moab by Jordan, ouer agaynst Jericho. And Moses and Eleazar the Priest, and all the lordes of the congregacion went out of the host agaynst them. And Moses was angrie wyth the officers of the hoste, wyth the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, whiche came from the warre and battayle. And Moses sayde vnto them: haue ye saued all the women alpye? beholde, these caused the chyldren of Israel to rowe the counsell of * Balaam, to comyt trespass agaynst the Lorde, in the busynesse of Peor, and there folowed a plague amonge the congregacion of the Lorde. Nowe therfore, * slaye all the men chyldren, and the women that haue lyen with men fleshy. But all the women chyldren that haue not lien with men, kepe alpye for your selues. And ye shall remayne without the hoste seuen dayes, all that haue kyllid any persone: * and all that haue touched any deade body, and purifye both your selues and your prisoners the thyrde daye and the seuenth. And spraye all your raimentes and all that is made of skynnes and all worke of gootes heare, and all thynges made of wood.

And Eleazar the Priest sayde vnto the men of warre, whiche came from the battayle: this is the ordynaunce of the lawe whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses, Golde syluer, brasse, and yron, tynne, and leade, and all that maye abyde the fyre, ye shall make it goo thowge the fyre, and it shall be cleane. Neuerthelesse, it shall be sprayed wyth spraye of water. And all that suffereth not the fyre, ye shall make goo thowge the water. And washe your clothes the seuenth daye, and ye shall be cleane.

And afterwarde come into the host. And the Lorde

Loorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take þe sum of the praye that was taken both of the women and of catell, thou and Eleazar the preast, and þe auncient fathers of the congregacion. And deuyde it into two partes betwene them that toke the warre vpon them, and went out to battayle and all the congregacion. And take a porcyon vnto the Loorde of the men of war, which went out to battayle: one soule of fyue hundred, both of the women, and of the oxen, and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of the half and geue it vnto Eleazar the preast, as an heue-offerynge of the Loorde.

E And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, thou shalt take one porcyon of fyfte, of the women, of the oxen, of the asses, and of þe shepe, and of all maner of bestes: and geue them vnto the Leuites, whiche wayte vpon the habitacion of the Loorde. And Moses and Eleazar the preast dyd as the Loorde commaunded Moses. And the bothe, and the praye whiche the men of warre had caughte, was fyue hundred thousande, and lxxv. thousande shepe: and lxxii. thousande oxen lxi thousande asses and xxxii. thousande soules of women, that had lyen by no man. And the halfe whiche was the parte of them that wente out to warre was thre hundred thousande and seven and thirty thousande & fyue hundred shepe. And the Loordes parte of the shepe was fyue hundred and lxxv. And the oxen were xxxvi. thousande, of whiche the Loordes parte was lxxii.

F And the asses were xxx. thousande and fyue hundred, of whiche the Loordes parte was lxi. And the soules of women were xvi. thousande, of whiche the Loordes parte was xxxii. soules. And Moses gaue that summe whiche was the Loordes heue-offerynge, vnto Eleazar the preast as the Loorde commaunded Moses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israel whiche Moses separated from the men of warre, that is to wete the halfe that pertayned vnto the congregacion, was thre hundred thousande, and xxi. thousande and fyue hundred shepe: and xxxvi. thousande oxen: and xxx. thousande asses, and fyue hundred and xvi. thousande soules of women. And Moses toke of this halfe that pertayned vnto the chyldren of Israel, one porcyon of fyfte, bothe of the women and of the catell, and gaue them vnto the Leuites, whiche wayted vpon the habitacion of the Loorde, as the Loorde commaunded Moses. And the officers of thousandes of the hoste, the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and the captaynes ouer the hundredes came forthe, and sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruantes haue taken the sum of the men of warre whiche are vnder our auctorite, and there lacketh not one man of vs.

G We haue therfore brought a presente vnto the Loorde what euery man founde of iewelles of golde, cheynes, bracelets, rpynges, eare rpynges and spangelles, to make an attonement for oure soules before the Loorde. And Moses and Eleazar toke the golde of them, iewelles of all maner of shynynge. And all the golde of the heue-offerynge that they brened vp to the Loorde, (of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes) was fyrtene thousande seven hundred and fyfte cycles, for the men of warre had spoyled euery man for hym selfe. And Moses and Eleazar the preast, toke the golde of the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and of the captaynes ouer the hundredes, and broughte it in to the Tabernacle of witness, for a memoypall of the chyldren of Israel before the Loorde.

The xxxii. Chapter.

C To Ruben and Gad and to half the tribe of Manasse, is promised the possession beyond Jordan, & allwarde.

The chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad had an exceeding great multitude of catell. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and þe lande of Silad, that it was an apte place for catell, the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad came and spake vnto Moses and Eleazar the preast, and vnto the Loordes of the congregacion, sayinge: The lande of Itaroth and Dibon Jazer, and Nemrah, Hesbon and Elealeh, Sabah and Bebo and Beon. whiche countrey the Lord smote before the congregacion of Israel is a lande mete for catell, and we thy seruantes haue catell. wherfore (sayd they) if we haue founde grace in thy syghte, let this lande be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and bypnye vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moses sayde vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben shall poure brethren go to warre and ye shall sytte here: Wherfore dyscourage ye the hartes of the chyldren of Israel þe they shulde not goo ouer into the lande, whiche the Loorde hath geuen them? * Thus dyd your fathers when I sent them from Cades Barne to see the lande. For when they went vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escor, and sawe the lande: they dyscourage the hartes of the chyldren of Israel, that they shoulde not goo into the lande, whiche the Loorde hath geuen them.

And the Loorde was wrothe the same tyme, and sware, saying * None of the men that came oute of Egypte frome twenty yere olde and above, shall see the lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isabac, and Jacob, because they haue not wholye folowed me saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Kenesyte, and Josua the sonne of Nun for they haue folowed the Loorde. And the Loorde was angrie with Israel and made them wander in the wyldernesse forty yere, vntyl all the generacion that had done euell in the syghte of the Loorde were consumed.

And beholde, ye are rysen vp in your fathers steade, as an increase of synful men, to augment the fierce wrath of the Loorde, towarde Israel. For if ye turne away fro after hym, he wyl yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, and ye shall destroye all this folke. And they wente nere hym and sayde: We wyl buyde shepe foldes here for our shepe and for our catell, & we wyl be ready armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntyl we haue brought the vnto their place.

And our chyliden (and what so ever we maye have) shall dwell in the fenced cityes, because of the inhabyters of the lande. We wyl not retorne vnto our houses, vntill the chyliden of Israel haue enhereted, euery man bys enherptaunce. Acyther wyl we enheret with them on yonder syde Jordan forwarde, because our enherptaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moses sayde vnto them: yf ye wyl do this thyng, and go harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and wyl go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lorde, vntill he haue caste oute his enemyes before hym and vntill þe lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shal retorne and be without spynne before the Lorde, and before Israel, and this lande shall be your posselion before the Lorde. But and yf ye wyl not do so, beholde, ye haue spynned agaynst the Lorde: be sure your spynne wyl spinde you out.

Nowe therfore, buyde cityes for your chyliden, and foldes for your shepe, and doo that ye haue spoken. The chyliden of Gad and the chyliden of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge the seruantes wyl do as my Lorde commaundet. Our chyliden, our wyues, our shepe, and our castell shall remayne here in the cyties of Gilead, But * the seruantes wyl goo all harnessed to warre, and vnto battayle before the Lorde, as my Lorde sayth. And for theiſe sakes Moses commaunded Eleazar the Priest, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncyente fathers of the tribes of the chyliden of Israel: & Moses saið vnto them: Yf the chyliden of Gad and the chyliden of Ruben wyl go with you ouer Jordan, all prepared to fyght before the Lorde, then whē the lande is subdued before you, ye shall geue them the lande of Gilead to possesse: but and yf they wyl not go ouer with you in harnesse, they shall haue theyre posselions amonge you in the lande of Canaan.

And the chyliden of Gad and the chyliden of Ruben answered, sayinge: As the Lorde hath sayde vnto thy seruantes, so wyl we doo.

* We wyl goo batelless before the Lorde into the lande of Canaan: that the posselion of our enherptaunce maye be on this syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto þe chyliden of Gad, and to the chyliden of Ruben, & vnto halfe the tribe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kyngdome of Sehon kyng of the Amozites, and the kyngdome of Og kyng of Basan, the lande wyl the cityes therof in the colles and Cityes of the countrey rounde aboute: And the chyliden of Gad buylt Dibon, and Ataroth, and Aroer, and Arroth, Sophan Jafer, and Jegabba, Bethnimes, and Betharan, fenced Cityes, and they buylt foldes for the shepe.

And the chyliden of Ruben buylt Hesbon, Eleale, Kirparhaun, Nebo, Baal, Meon, and turned theyre names, and Sibama also: & gaue other names vnto the cityes whiche they buylded. And the chyliden of Machir: the sonne of Manasse went to Gilead, & toke it and put oute the Amozites that dwelte therein. And Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse se, and he dwelte therein. And * Zahir the son of Manasse went to take the small townes therof, and called them Manoth Jair. And Robah took and toke Kenath, and the townes liggng therto and called it Robath, after his owne name.

Euerie one shall geue of his cyties vnto the Leuites accordyng to the enherytaunce whiche he enheryteth. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them * when ye be come ouer Jordan into þ lande of Canaan, ye shall appoynte you Cyties to be Cyties of refuge, for you. that he whiche sleeth a soule vnwares: maye flye thither. And of these syre fre Cyties whiche ye shall geue, ye shall geue thre on this syde Jordane, and thre in the lande of Canaan. And these syre fre cyties shall be a refuge bothe for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you: that all they whiche kyll any personne vnwares, maye flye thither.

* And if any man smyte another w an instrumente of yron that he dye, then is he a murderer, and shall dye for it. If he smyte hym with a throwyng stone that a man maye dye with, and if he dye, he that smote hym is a murderer, let the same murderer be slayne therfore. Or if he smyte hym wth a hande weapon of wood that a man dye wth then if he dye, he is a murderer, lette the murderer be slayne therfore.

The Justyce of bloude shall slaye the murderer: when he meteth hym, he maye slaye him. But if he thruste at hym * of hate, or hurle at hym with lapinge of wayte, þ he dye, or smyte hym wth his hande of enuye, that he dye, he that smote hym, shall dye, for he is a murderer. The Justyce of bloude shall slepe the murderer as soone as he fyndeth hym.

But and if he pushed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or caste at hym wth any maner of thyng, and not of lapinge of wayte: or caste any maner of stone at hym, that a man maye dye wth) and save hym not. And he caste it vpon hym and he dye, and was not his enemye, neyther soughte hym any harme. Then the Congregacyon shall iudge betwene the sleper and the executer of bloude in suche cases. Also ye shall take no money of hym that is fledde to a free Cite, that he shoulde come agayne, and dwell in the lande, before the deathe of the hye Prcast. And so that ye polute not the lande whiche ye shall dwell in: for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lande can none other wise be clensed of the bloude that is shedde therein, but by the bloude of hym that shedde bloude. Defyle not therfore the lande whiche ye shall inhabit, for I am in the myddes thereof: Euen I the Lorde dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

The. xxxvi. Chapter.

And the auncient fathers of the chyldren of Gilead the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldre of Joseph, came forth and spake before Moses & the prynces and auncient fathers of þ chyldren of Israel and sayde: * The Lorde commaunded my Lorde, to geue the lande to enheryte by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And my Lorde commaunded in Goddes behalfe, to geue the enherptaunce of *zelaphead oure brother vnto hys doughters. Whome yf any of the sonnes of the other trybes of Israel take to wyues, then shall they enherptaunce be taken frome the enherptaunce of oure fathers, and shall be put vnto the enherptaunce of the trybe whiche they are receyued into: and shall be taken frome the lotte of oure enherptaunce. And when the yere of Jubelye of the chyldren of Israel cometh, then shall they enherptaunce be putte vnto the enherptaunce of the trybe wherinto they are receyued: and so shall they enherptaunce be taken awaye from the enherptaunce of the trybe of oure fathers.

B And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel: accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, saying: the chyldren of the trybe of Joseph haue sayde wel. This therfore doeth the Lorde commaunde the doughters of zelaphead, sayinge: * lette them be wyues to whome they them self thynke beste, onely to the kynred and trybe of theyr father shall they mary, so shall not the enherptaunce of the chyldren of Israel remoue fro trybe to trybe, when the chyldren of Israel abyde euery man in the enherptaunce of y trybe of hys fathers.

C And euery doughter that possesseth any enherptaunce in any trybe of the chyldren of Israel, shall be wyfe vnto one whiche is of the kynred of the trybe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euery man the enherptaunce of his father: Neether oughte the enherptaunce to goo from one trybe to another: but euery one of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel must abyde in hys owne enherptaunce.

D And as the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so dyde the doughters of zelaphead. And Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, & Milcha, & Noa were maryed vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, whiche were of the kynredde of the chyldren of Israel: the sonne of Joseph, and so they enherptaunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of theyr father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded by the hande of Moses, vnto the chyldren of Israel in the felde of Moab: by Jordane ouer agaynst Iericho.

Moses, called in the Hebrue: Ellehad-Debarim, and in the Latyn, Deuteronomium.

The first Chapter.

A briefe rehearsal of thynges done before.

These be the wordes which Moses spake vnto all Israel, on y other syde Jordan in the wyldernesse: in the playne ouer agaynst y red see, betwene Pharam and Chophel, Laban, Hazerot, & Disahab, eleuen dayes iurney from Horeb vnto Eades barne, by mount Seir. And it fortuneth the fyrste daye of the eleuenth moneth in y fortyeth yere, y Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel accordynge vnto al that the Lord had giuen hym in commaundement vnto them, after that he had smitten y Sehon y kynge of the Amorites whiche dwelt in Heshon, and y kynge of Kasan whiche dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai. On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab beganne Moses to declare thys lawe, saying: the Lorde our God spake vnto vs in Horeb, sayinge: ye haue dwelt longe ynough in this mounte, departe therfore and take poure iourney, and goo vnto the hill of the Amorites, and vnto all places nye therunto: both vnto the playne and hylles and dales: to the south, to the sees syde, to the lande of Canaan and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates.

Beholde, I haue let that lande before you: y gom and y possesse the lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto your fathers Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, to geue vnto them and theyr sede after them. And I spake vnto you the same reasyn, sayinge: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplyed you: and beholde, ye are this daye as the starrs of heuen in nombre (the Lorde God of poure fathers make you a thousand tymes so many mo as ye ar, and blesse you as he hath promysed you howe can y my selfe alone beare the cumbrance charge and strepe that is amonge you: y ynge (from amonge you) men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge, and experte, accordynge to poure trybes, and I wyll make them rulers ouer you.

And ye answered me and sayde: that whiche thou haste spoken is good for vs to doo. And so oute of your trybes I toke the captaynes, (men of wysdome: and that were experte) and made them rulers ouer you, captaynes ouer thousandes and

E And I charged your Judges that same tyme sayinge: heare the cause of youre brethren, and heare the small as well as the greete, and be afraid of no man, for the iudgement is Goddes. And the cause that is to \* harde for you, bringe vnto me, and I wyll heare it. And I commaunded you the same reason, all the thynges whiche ye shulde do. And when we departed from Horeb, we wente thowme all that greete and terrible wylbernesse, as ye haue sene alonge by the way of the hyl of the Amozites, as  $\beta$  Lorde our God commaunded vs, and came to Cadis Barne.

Ex. xlii. d.

D And I sayde vnto you Ye are come vnto the hyl of the Amozites, whiche the Lorde our God wyl geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande before the: go vp and conquer it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the: \* feare not, nether be discoraged. But ye came vnto me every one and sayde: \* we wyll sende men before vs, to searche vs out the lande and to bring vs worde agayne, what waye we must go vp by, and vnto what Cyties we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euerye trybe one. Which departed, and went vp into the hye countrey, and came vnto the ryuer Escol, & searched it out, and toke of the frute of the lande:  $\alpha$  (to de:

clare the plenteousnesse thereof) in theyr handes, and brought it vnto vs, and broughte vs worde agayne, and sayde: It is a good lande, whiche the Lorde our God dothe geue vs.

E Notwithstandynge, ye wolde not consent to go vp, but were disobeyent vnto the mouth of the Lorde your God, and murmured in your tentes, and sayde: because the Lorde hateth vs, therefore hath he broughte vs out of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs into the hande of the Amozites, and to destroye vs. Howe shall we go vp? Our brethren haue discoraged oure hertes, sayinge: \* the people is greater and taller then we, and haue Cyties greete and walled euen vnto heauen, and moreover we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there. And I sayde vnto you: drede not nor be afraid of them. The Lord your God whiche goeth before you, he shall fyght for you, accordynge to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypt before your eyes. In the wylbernesse also thou haste sene howe that the Lorde thy God bare the, euen as a man doth beare his sonne in all the waye whiche ye haue gone by, vntill ye came vnto this place. And yet in this thyng ye dyd not beleue the Lorde your God. He went in the waye before you to searche you out a place to ppytche your tentes in, \* in fyre by nyght,  $\beta$  ye myght se what way to go, & in a cloude by day.

* the Lorde was angry wth me, lyke wyle for your sakes, sayinge: thou also shalt not go in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun whiche

Wolden hym therefore, for he shall cause Israel to inheret  $\beta$  lande. \* Moreover, your chylidren whiche ye sayde shulde be a praye, & your sonnes whiche in that daye had no knowledge betwene good & euil, they shall go in thither, and vnto them wyll I geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne your faces, and take your iourney in to the wylbernesse: euen by the waye of the red see. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: \* We haue sinned agaynst the Lorde: we wyll go vp and fyghte, accordynge to all that the Lorde our God commaunded vs.

And when ye had gyrded on euerye man hym weapons of warre, beholde, ye were redy to go vp into the hyl. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: saye vnto them that they go not vp, & that they fyght not, for I am not amonge you: lest ye fall before your enemyes. I tolde you therefore, and ye wolde not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and went presumptuously vp into the hyl. And the Amozites whiche dwelt in that hyl came out agaynst you, and chased you (as bees vs) to do: and smote you in Seir, euen vnto Horeb. And ye came agayne, and wepte before the Lorde: but  $\beta$  Lorde wolde not heare your voyce nor geue you audience. \* And so ye abode in Cadis a longe reason, accordynge vnto the tyme  $\beta$  ye remayned in other places.

The ii. Chapter.

$\alpha$  That whiche was done from the tyme they departed fro Cadis Barne, vnto the dale agaynst the kynge Sehon  $\beta$

When we \* turned our face, and toke our iourney into the wylbernesse, euen by the waye of the red see, as the Lorde spake vnto me. And we compassed mount Seir a longe tyme. And the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge. Ye haue compassed this mountayne longe ynough, turne you northwarde. And warne thou the people, sayinge: ye shall go thowme the cosse of your brethren the chylidren of Esau whiche dwell in Seir, and they shall be afraid of you: Take ye good hede vnto your selues therefore. Ye shall not prouoke them, for I wyll not geue you of theyr lande, no not so much as a fote bredth, \* because I haue geuen mount Seir vnto Esau to possesse, ye shall be meate of them for money to cate, and ye shall procure water of them for money to drynke. For the Lorde thy God hath blessed the in all  $\beta$  workes of thy hande. He knewe thy enterpryse into this greete wylbernesse this fortye yeres, and the Lord thy God hath bene wth  $\beta$ , so that thou hast lacked nothyng. And when we were departed from our brethren the chylidren of Esau whiche dwell in Seir, the playne waye from Elath and from Ezion Gaber, we turned and went by the waye of the wylbernesse of Moab. And the Lorde sayd vnto

Num. xxi. a.

unto me: * Thou shalt not fyght agaynst the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to batell, for I wyl not geue the of theyr lande to possesse because I haue geuen Ar vnto þ chylidren of Loth to possesse. The terryble people the * Emims dwelt therein in tymes past, a people greate, manyp and tall, as the Enakims whych also were taken for gyautes as the Enakims whom the Moabites call Emims. The Horims dwelte in Seir before tyme, whose possessyon the chylidren of Esau occupied, and destroyed them before them, and dwelte in theyr steade: as Israell dyd vnto the lande of bys possessyon, whych the Lorde gaue them.

Nowe tyme vp, sayde I and get you ouer the ryuer zared and we went ouer the ryuer zared. The space in which we came from Eades barne vntill we were come ouer the ryuer zared was: xxxviii. yerres, vntill all the generacyon of the men of warre were wasted out from among the host, as the Lorde sware vnto them. * For in dede the hande of the Lorde was agaynst them, to destroy them from amonge the hoste, tyl they were consumed. And so it came to passe, that all the men of war were consumed and deade from amonge the people. And the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou shalt go thozowe Ar the cost of Moab this daye: and when thou comest nye vnto the chylidren of Ammon, thou shalt not lay sege vnto them, nor moue warre agaynst them.

For I wyl not geue the of the lande of the chylidren of Ammon a possessyon but I haue geuen it vnto the chylidren of Loth to possesse.

That also is taken for a lande of gyautes, and gyautes dwelte therein in olde tyme whom the Ammonites call zanzunims. * A people that was great, manyp and tall, as the Enakims.

But the Lorde destroyed them before them, and they succeeded them in the inheritaunce & dwelt in theyr steade: as he dyd for þ chylidren of Esau * whiche dwel in Seir when he destroyed þ horims before them they conquered theyr possessyon, and dwelte in theyr steade vnto this daye.

And the Xunims which dwelte in Hazerim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims which came out of Caphthor destroyed them & dwelt in theyr steade

Ryse vp therfore, and take your iourney ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen into thy hande Schon þ Amorite kyng of Heshon, and his lande. Go to therfore and conquer, and prouoke hym to batell. This daye wyl I begynne to send the feare and drede of the, vpon all nacjons that are vnder all the heuen: so that they whiche here speake of the wal tremble and quake before þ. And so I sent messengers out of the wyldernes of Redemoth vnto Schon kyng of Heshon, wyth wordes of peace, sayinge: * I wyl go thozowe thy lande I wyl go a longe by the hye waye: I wyl neyther tyme vnto þ ryght hande nor to the lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money for to eate, and geue me water for money for to drynke: Only graunt me, that I may go thozowe on my fote as the chylidren of Esau whiche dwel in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntill I be come ouer Jordane, into the lande whych the Lorde our God geueth vs. But Schon the kyng of Heshon wolde not let vs passe by hym, for the Lord thy God hardened his spete, and made his hert tough, because he wolde deliuer hym into thy hande, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Schon and his land before the: go to and conquere, and possesse his lande.

* Then both Schon and al his people came out agaynst vs to fyght at Jaza. And the Lorde set hym before vs, and we smote hym and his sons and all his people. And we toke all his cyties the same ceason and slewe the men, women, and chylidren of all the cyties, & let nothyng remayne save the cattel only we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cyties which we toke from Arer which is by the byrnie of the ryuer of Arnon, and from the cite that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one cite to strong for vs. The Lorde our God deliuered all vnto vs. vnto the land of the chylidren of Ammon thou camst not, nor vnto euery place of the ryuer Jabbok, nor vnto the cyties in the mountaynes, nor vnto whatsoeuer the Lord our God forbad vs.

The. lii. Chapter.

Thynge that chaunted from the bytchop of the two kynges Schon and Og vnto the iustice of Jozai in Amorites lande.

When we turned and wet by the way to Basa. * And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs, he and al his people to batell at Edrai. And þ Lord sayde vnto me feare hym not, for I wyl deliuer hym, and all his people, and his lande into thy hande, and thou shalt do vnto hym, as thou dydest vnto Schon kyng of the Amozites, whiche dwelt at Heshon. And so the Lorde our God deliuered into our handes, Og also the kyng of Basan and all his folke. And we smote hym, vntill none was lefte hym alpye. And he toke all his cyties the same ceason neyther was there a cite whiche we toke not from them) euen thre score cyties thozowe out all the regyon of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Basan. All these cyties also were made stronge wth hye walles, gates and barres, besyde vnwalled towres a great many. And we utterly destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Schon kyng of Heshon, byrnyng ynto noughte all the cyties, wyth men, women, and chylidren. But all the catel and the spoyle of the cyties, we caught for our selues.

And thus we toke the same ceason, out of the hande of two kynges of the Amozites, the lande that was on the other syde Jordan from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon which hermon the Sidons cal Sirion, and the Amozites call it Senir) all the cyties that laye in þ playne and all Gilead and all Basan vnto Salecha & Edrai, cyties of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For onely Og kyng of Basan remayned of the remnaunte of þ gyautes, whose bed was a bed of yron. And is it not so. at Rabah amonge the chylidren of Ammon: ix cubytes dothe þ length therof conteyne, and foure cubytes the bredth of þv it, after it after y<sup>e</sup> captiue of a man. And so we conquered this lande the same tyme, from Arcton whiche is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Silead, * and the cityes therof gaue I vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites. And the rest of Silead and all Basan of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe tꝛybe of Manasse: euen all the regyon of Argob with all Basan: whiche is called the lande of gꝛauntes. Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the regyon of Argob, vnto the costes of Seluri and Baachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan haueyth Jair vnto this daye. And I gaue Silead vnto Machir.

C And vnto the Rubenites & Gaddites I gaue halfe Silead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey and beyond, euen vnto the ryuer Jabbok, whiche is the border of the chyldren of Ammon: the playne also (of the wyldernes) and Jordan & the cost therof, from Ceneroth euen vnto the see whiche is in the playne, euen the salt see vnder y<sup>e</sup> springes of the byll, eastwarde. * And I commaunded you the same tyme sayinge: the Lord your God hath geuen you this lande to entope it: ye shall go harnessed before your brethren the chyldren of Israel all that are mete for the war. Your wyues onely, your chyldren, and your cattell (for I wote that ye haue muche cattell) shall abyde in your cityes, whiche I haue geuen you, vntill the Lord haue geuen rest vnto your brethren as well as vnto you, and vntill they also haue conquered the lande, whiche the Lord your God hath geuen them beyonde Jordan: and then shall ye retourne agayne, euery man vnto his possellion whiche I haue geuen you.

D * And I warned Josua the same tyme, saying: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lord your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so shall he do vnto all kyngdoms whither thou goest. Ye shall not feare them, for the Lord your God, he shall fyghe for you. And I besought the Lord the same tyme, sayinge. O Lord God, y<sup>e</sup> haue begonne to shewe thy seruauent thy greatnesse and thy myghty hande, for elles where is there a God in heuen or in earth, that can do after thy workes, and after thy power: let me go out and se the good lande that is beyonde Jordan that goodly mountayne, and Libanon.

* But the Lord was angrye wth me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me. And the Lord sayde vnto me: be content, speake no more vnto me of this matter. * Set the vp into y<sup>e</sup> top of the byll, and lyfte vp thyne eyes westwarde, northwarde, southwarde, and eastwarde, and behold it with thyne eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordan. But charge Josua and courage hym, and bolden hym. * For he shall go before this people, and he shall deuſe vnto them the lande whiche thou shalt se. And so we abode in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Moꝛ.

The .iii. Chapter.

¶ An other waye to geue vnto the people, y<sup>e</sup> may ges may not be made to worship. The the cytes of refuge.

Ad nowe hearken O Israel vnto the ordynances and lawes whiche I teache you for to doo them, that so ye maye lyue and go in and conquer the lande, whiche the Lord God of your fathers geueth you. * Ye shall put no thynge vnto the worde whiche I commaund you, neyther do ought there from, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lord your God whiche I commaunde you. Your eyes haue sene what the Lord dyd vnto Baal Peor: * for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lord your God hath destroyed from amonge you. But ye that cleaue vnto the Lord your God, as alwaye euery one of you this day. Behold, I haue taught you ordynances and lawes, such as the Lord my God commaunded me, that ye shulde do euen so in the lande, whither ye go to possesse it. Kepe them therfore and do them, for that is your wysdome and vnderstandyng in the syght of the nacpons: that they may heare all these ordynances, and saye: Surely it is a wyse and vnderstandyng people: it is a greete nacpon.

For what other nacpon is so greete, y<sup>e</sup> Goddes come sonne vnto: as the Lord our God is? vnto hym: Ye and what nacpon is so greete, that hath ordynances and lawes so ryghteous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye. Take hede to thy selfe therfore, & kepe thy soule diligently, that y<sup>e</sup> forge not the thynges which thyne eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but * teache them thy sonnes and thy sonnes sonnes. Specially the daye that thou standest before the Lord thy God in Moꝛeb, when the Lord sayde vnto me: gather me the people together, & I wyl make them heare my wordes, that they maye learne to feare me all the dayes y<sup>e</sup> they shall lyue vpon the earth: * and that they maye teach theyr chyldren: ye came: and stode also vnder the byll and the byll burnt with fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, and there was darchnesse, cloudes, and myst. And the Lord spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre, and ye hearde the voyce of the wordes: * but sawe no Image, sawe heard a voyce onely. And he declared vnto you his covenauent whiche he commaunded you to do, euen ten verses whiche he wote vpon two tables of stone. And the Lord commaunded me that same ceason, that I shoulde teache you ordynances and lawes, whiche ye oughte to do in the lande whither ye go to possesse it.

C Take therfore good hede vnto your selues, as pertaynyng vnto your soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage in the daye that the Lord spake vnto you in Moꝛeb out of the myddes of the fyre: lest ye marre your selues and make you a graue ymage and ypycture of any maner of fygure: the lykenesse of man or woman, the lykenesse of any maner of beaſt that is on earth, or the lykenesse of any maner fethered foule that flyeth in y<sup>e</sup> ayre or the lykenesse of any maner woꝛme that crepeth on the earth, or the lykenesse of any maner fyſhe that is in the waters beneth the earth.

Furthermore, the Lorde was angrye with me for your wordes, and swaie that I shulde not go ouer Iordane, and that I shulde not go in vnto that good lande, whiche the Lord thy God geueth the to enherptaunce. * But I must dye in this lande, and shall not go ouer Iordan. But ye shall go ouer, & conqure that good lande. And the Lorde shall scatter you amonge the nacjons, and ye shall be left fewe in nombre amonge the people, whither the Lorde shall bypunge you and there ye shall serue goddes which are the worke of mans hande, wood and stone, whiche neyther se, nor heare, nor cate, nor smell. * And there thou shalt seeke the Lorde thy God, and shalt fynd hym, yf thou seeke hym with all thyne herte, and wpth all thy soule. When thou arte in tribulacion, & when all these thynges (that be here spoken of) are come vpon the euen in the later dayes, yf thou shalt retorne agayne to the Lorde thy God, and be obedyent vnto his voyce. And because he loued thy fathers, he chose the: sede after them, and broughte the out in his syght, and with his myghtye power cut of * Egypte forthrust out nacjons great and myghtye then thou, before the, and to bypunge y in, and to geue the the: lande to enherptaunce: as it is come to passe this daye.

Understande therefore this daye, and tourne it into thyne harte, that the Lorde, he is God in heuen aboue, and vpon the earth beneth neither is there any other. Thou shalt kepe therfore his ordynaunces, and his commaundementes whiche I commaund the this daye, that it maye go wel with the and with thy chyldren after the, and y thou mayst prolonge thy dayes vpon the earth, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the thy lyfelonge. * Then Moses leuered thre cytes on the other syde Iordan toward the sonne risinge: y he shoulde speke thither, whiche had kyled his neyghboure vniuerses, & hated hym not in tyme past, and therefore shuld speake vnto one of y same cytes, and spue: Namely Bezer in the wyldernesse: euen in the playne countre of the trybe of Ruben: & Ramoth in Gilead of the trybe of Gad and Golan in Basan of y trybe of Manasse.

And so this is the lawe which Moses set before the chyldren of Israel. These are the wytnesse, statutes, and ordynaunces, which Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel after they came out of Egypte, on the other syde Iordan, in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Deor, in the lande of Sehon kynge of the Amozites whiche dwelt at Hesbon: whom Moses and the chyldren of Israel smote, after they were come out of Egypte and conquered his lande, and the lande of Og, kynge of Basan two kynges of the Amozites, whiche were on the other syde Iordan toward the sonne risinge: frome Aruer whiche is by the banke of the riuier Arnon, vnto Mount Sion: whiche is Hermon, and all the playne on the other syde Iordan eastward: euen vnto y see, which is in the playne vnder the spynges of the byll.

The v. Chapter.

The first commaundementes.

Deu. v. 1 And Moses called all Israel, & sayde vnto them. Heare O Israel the ordynaunces & lawes whiche I speake in your eares this daye, that ye may learne them, and fulfill them in dede. The Lorde our God made an appoyntment with vs in Horeb. The Lorde made not this boude with our fathers, but with vs: euen wpth vs, whiche are all here aloue this daye. The Lorde talked with you face to face in the mount, out of the myddes of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lorde and you the same tyme, and shewed you y worde of the Lorde. For ye were as trayde at the syght of the fyre, & went not vp into the mount, and he sayde. * I am the Lorde thy God, whiche broughte the out of the lande of Egypt from the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my presence.

* Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of any maner of lykenesse that is in heuen aboue, & that is in the earth beneth, and that is in the waters beneth the earth. Thou shalt neyther bowe thy

If the commaundementes whiche I commaunde the this daye, shalpe kepe for to do them þe ye maye lyue: and multiplie and go in, and possesse the lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto your fathers. And thou shalt thynke on al the waye whiche the Lorde thy God led the this fortye yere in the wyldernesse, for to humble the and to proue the, and to wete what was in thine herte, whether thou woldest kepe his commaundementes or no. He * humbled the, and suffered the to hunger, and fed the with Manna, whiche neyther thou nor thy fathers knewe of, to make the to knowe, þe a man doth not lyue by breade onely: but by every word that proceedeth oute of the mouth of the Lorde, both a man lyue.

This also shalt thou consyder in thynne herte that as a man nurtereth his son, euen so þe Lorde thy God nurtereth the. Therefore shalt þe kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and feare hym. For the Lorde thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande in the whiche are ryuers of water and fountaynes and springes that spring out of valeys and hylles: a lande wherin is wheate and barley, vineyardes, figgetrees, and pomgranates: a lande wherin is oyle olue and honey: a lande wherin thou shalt eate bread wout skarcenes, neyther shalt thou lacke any thyng: a lande * whole stones are piron, and oute of whose hylles thou shalt dygge brasle. When thou hast eaten therfore and fylled thy selfe, thou shalt blesse the Lorde thy God in that good lande, which he hath geuen the.

Beware that thou forget not the Lorde thy God, that thou woldest not kepe his commaundementes, his lawes & his ordynaunces whiche I commaunde the this daye * yee, and when thou haste eaten and fylled thy selfe, and haste buylte goodly houses and dwelte therein, and when thy bestes, and thy shepe are waxed many, and thy syluer and gold is multiplid, and all that thou haste is increased, then beware lest thynne harte ryle and thou forget the Lorde thy God, whiche broughte the out of the lande of Egypte, & from the house of bondage, and which was thy guide in the greates and terriblye wyldernesse (wherin were) fyre serpentes, scorppions, and drought without any water. But he brought out water for the, euen out of the rocke of synte he fed the in the wyldernesse with Manna, whiche thy fathers knewe not, euen for to humble the, and to proue the, and that he myght so doo the good at thy latter ende. Lest thou shuldest saie in thynne herte * my power and the myghte of myne owne hande hath prepared me this abundaunce: But remember the Lorde thy God, howe that it is he whiche giveth the power to get the substaunce, for to make good the promise whiche he sware vnto thy fathers, as this daye dothe wytnesse.

And if thou forget the Lorde thy God, and walke after straunge * goddes, and serue them, and worship the, I testifie vnto you this daye þe shal surely perishe. As the nacions which the Lorde destroyeth before you, euen so ye shall perishe because ye wolde not be obedyence vnto þe voyce of the Lorde your God.

Che. ix. Chapter.

They are sayd to be in the lande of Canaan.

Care O Israell, thou passest ouer Jordan this daye, to go in, and conquer nacions greater and myghtier then thy selfe: Cityes greates and walled vnto heuen, a * people great and tall, euen the chyldren of þe Enakims, which thou knowest of, and of whom thou hast heard saie, who wyl stande before the chyldren of Enakim? Understande therefore this daye, that the Lorde thy God is euen he whiche goeth ouer before the as a * (courage and), a consuming fyre he shall destroye them and he shall bringe them downe before thy face. He shall cast them out and bringe them to naught quickly, as the Lorde hath sayde vnto the. Speake not thou in thynne harte (after that the Lorde thy God hath caste them out before the, sayinge for my rightousnesse the Lorde hath broughte me in, to possesse this lande. Fawe: but for the wyckednesse of these nacions the Lorde hath caste them out before the. It is not for thy rightousnes sake, or for thy righte harte, that thou goest to possesse thery lande. * But for the wyckednesse of these nacions, the Lorde thy God doth cast them out before the, euen to perfourme the worde whiche the Lorde thy God sware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob.

Understande therefore that it is not for thy rightousnes sake, that the Lorde thy God doeth geue the this good lande to possesse it, leying thou arte a styfnecked people. Remember and forget not, howe thou prouokedst the Lorde thy God in the wyldernesse, sence the daye that thou dydest departe out of the lande of Egypte vntil ye cam vnto this place ye haue rebelled against the Lorde. * Also in horeb ye angered the Lorde, so that the Lorde was wroth with you, euen to haue destroyed you, when I was gone vp in to the mounte, to receaue the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntemente, whiche the Lorde made with you. And I abode in the hyl forty dayes and forty nyghtes, when I nether dyd eat bread nor drinke water. * And the Lorde deliuered me two tables of stone, wyrtten wyth the fynger of God, and in them was accordyng to all the wordes whiche the Lorde sayde vnto you in the mounte out of the myddest of the fyre in the daye of the gatherynge together.

And when the forty dayes and forty nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me þe two tables of stone, the tables of the couenant and þe Lorde sayde vnto me. * Up and get the downe quicklye from hence, for thy people whiche thou hast broughte out of Egypte, haue marred all. They are turned attonce out of þe waye, which I com-

I commaunded them, and haue made them a molten ymage. Furthermore, the Lorde spake vnto me, saying: I haue sene this people, and beholde it is a stiffnecked people, let me alone, that I may destroye them, and put out the name of them fro vnder heauen, and I wyll make of thee a myghty nation, and greater then they be.

And I turned me, and came downe from the hyll (euen from the hyll that burnte with fyre, & the two tables of the appoyntment were in my handes. And I looked, and beholde ye had synned agaynst the Lorde your God, and had made you a molten calfe, and had turned attonce oute of the waye whiche the Lorde had commaunded you. * And I toke the two tables and cast them oute of my two handes, and brake them before your eyes. * And I fell downe flatte before the Lorde euen as at the fyrste tyme, & forty dayes, and forty nyghtes I dyd nether eate breade nor drinke water, because of all your synnes, which ye synned in oopenge wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde in that ye prouoked hym vnto wrath. For I was afrayd that for the wrath and fearfulness wherewith the Lorde was moued agaynst you, he wolde haue destroyed you. But the Lorde heard me at that tyme also.

The Lorde was very angry with Aaron also euen to haue destroyed him, & I made intercession for Aaron also the same tyme. And I toke your synne * the calfe whiche ye had made, and burnt him with fyre, and stamped him & grounde hym agood, euen vnto small duste. And I caste the duste thereof into the broke, that descended oute of the mounte. Also at the burnynge * at the temptacion, and at the sepulchres of luste ye angred the Lorde, lyke wyse when the Lorde sente you from Cades Barne, saying: go vp and conquer the lande whiche I haue geuen you * ye disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde your God, and nether beleued hym, nor harkened vnto his voyce. Ye haue bene dysobedient vnto the Lorde, sence the daye that I knewe you.

And I fell downe flat before the Lorde forty dayes and forty nyghtes which I laye there for the Lorde sayde, that he wolde destroye you. I made intercession therfore vnto the Lorde, & sayde: * O Lorde God, destroye not thy people and thyne inheritaunce, whiche thou haste deliuered thowoe thy greatnesse and which thou haste brought out of Egypte thowoe a myghty hand. Remember thy seruauntes Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and loke not to the stubbornesse of this people, nor to theyr wyckednes and synne lest the lande whence thou broughtest the saye: The Lorde is not able to byrge them into the lande whiche he promysed them: and because he hated them, therfore hath he carped the oute, to slaye them in the wyldernes. Beholde, they are thy people, & thyne inheritaunce which thou broughtest oute in thy myghty power and in thy stretched oute arme.

The .x. Chapter.

The reueryng of the tables. An exhortacion to geue hede to the lawe.

At the same reason the Lorde saide vnto me, * hewe the two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrste, and come vp vnto me into the mounte, and make the an arke of wood, and I wyl wyte in the tables, the wordes that were in the fyrste tables whiche thou brakest, and thou shalt put the in the arke. And I made an arke of sethem wood and hewed two tables of stone * lyke vnto the fyrste, and went vp vnto the mountayne, hauing the two tables in myne hande.

And he wrote in the tables * accordynge to the fyrste wytyng (the ten verses whiche the Lorde spake vnto you in the mounte oute of the myddes of the fyre, in the daye of the gatherynge together) and the Lorde gaue them vnto me. And I departed, and cam downe from the hyll, and put the tables in the arke which I had made: & there they be, as the Lorde commaunded me.

* And I taried in the mount, euen as at the fyrste tyme forty dayes and forty nyghtes, and the Lorde hekened vnto me at that tyme also, and the Lorde wolde not destroye the. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: vp, and go forth in the iourneys before the people, that they maye go in and conquer the lande whiche I swaie vnto theyr fathers, to geue vnto the. And nowe Israel, what doth the Lorde thy God requyre of the * but to feare the Lorde thy God, and to walke in all his wayes, to loue hym, and to serue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte and with all thy soule. Namely, that thou kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde, and his ordynaunces whiche I commaunde the this daye, for thy welth.

Beholde, heauen and the heauen of heauens is the Lorde thy God, and the earth with all that therein is: Not withstandynge, the Lorde had a luste vnto thy fathers to loue them, & chose theyr sede after them, euen you, aboue all nacions, as thou seest this daye.

* Circumcise therfore the foreskyn of your herte, and be no more styfnecked. For the Lorde your God, is God of goddes, and Lorde of lordes, a great God a myghty & a terrible: which regardeth no mans personne nor taketh gyfte. He doth ryght vnto the fatherlesse and wydowe and loueth the straunger, to geue hym fode and rayment. * Loue ye therfore the straunger also: for ye were strangers your selues in the lande of Egypte. * Thou shalt feare the Lorde thy God, and hym, onely: shalt thou serue, to hym shalt shalte thou cleue, and sweate by his name: he is thy prayse and thy God, that hath done for thee these great and terrible thynges, whiche thyne eyes haue sene. Thy fathers wente downe into Egypte with lxx. soules, and nowe the Lorde thy God hath made the and multiplied the, as the * starres of heauen.

The. xi. Chapter.

An exhortacion to regard the lawe.

Wherfore thou shalte loue the Lorde thy God and kepe his obseruances his ordynances, his lawes, and his commaundementes alwaye. Cal to your mynde this daye that whiche your chyldren haue neyther knowen nor sene: euen the hartout of the Lorde your God, his greatnesse, his myghty hande, and his stretched out arme, his myracles, and his actes whiche he dyd in the myddes of Egypte, euen vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte and vnto all his lande: & what he dyd vnto the hoste of Egypte, vnto theyr horses and charettes: howe he broughte the water of the red see vpon them: as they chased you beynde, and howe the Lorde hath broughte them to naught vnto this daye, and what he dyd vnto you in the wyldernesse, vntyll ye came vnto this place. and what he dyd vnto * Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab the son of Ruben, how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them wyth theyr householdes and theyr tentes, and all theyr substance that was in theyr possession, in the myddes of Israell.

Doutlesse, your eyes haue sene all the great actes of the Lorde whiche he dyd. Wherfore shal ye kepe all the commaundementes, whiche I commaunde you this daye, that ye maye be stronge: and go in and conquer the lande whether ye goo to possesse it, and yf ye maye prolonge your dayes in the lande whiche the Lorde swate vnto your fathers, to geue vnto them and to theyr scede, a lande that floweth wyth mylke and honye. For * the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypte that ye came out of where thou sowedst thy scede: & watered it wth thy fete as a garden of hearbes but y<sup>e</sup> lande wher ye go ouer to possesse it, is a lande that hath hylles and valleyes, and drynket water of the rayne of heauen. This lande doth the Lorde thy God care for, and the eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, from the begynnyng of y<sup>e</sup> yere, vnto the ende of the yere.

If ye shall hearken therfore vnto my Commaundementes, whiche I commaunde you this daye, that ye loue the Lorde your God and serue hym with all your hart, and with all your soule * I also wyll geue rayne vnto your lande in due season. the fyrste rayne and the latter, that thou mayest gather in thy corne, thy wyne, and thyne oyle. And I wyll sende grasse in thy felde for thy catel that thou mayest eate, and fyll thy selfe. But beware that your harte deceaue you not. & ye turne asyde, and serue straunge goddes, and worship them, and then the Lorde being wroth agaynst you, * shal v<sup>er</sup> the heauen, that there be no raine, and that your lande yeelde not her frute and lesse ye peryshe quicklye frome of the good lande, whiche the Lorde geueth you.

Therfore shall ye putte vpon these my wordes in your harte and in your soule, and bynd them for a sygne vpon your hande, that they maye be as a warnyng betwene your eyes, and ye shall * teach them your chyldren that they maye talke of them, when thou spyttest in thine house & when thou walkest by the waye: when y<sup>e</sup> lyest downe, and when thou rysest vp: y<sup>e</sup>re, and y<sup>e</sup> shalt wypte them vpon the doze postes of thyne house, and vpon thy gates, that your dayes maye be multiplied, and the dayes of your chyldren in y<sup>e</sup> lande whiche the Lorde swate vnto your fathers to geue them, as longe as the dayes of heauen laste vpon the earth. For yf ye kepe all these commaundementes, whiche I commaunde you so that ye do them: I amely, that ye loue the Lorde your God and walke in all his wayes and cleue vnto hym. Then wyll the Lorde caste oute all these nacions before you, and ye shalbe the heyres of great nacions and of them that are myghtyer then your selues. * All the places whereon the soles of your fete shall treade, shalbe yours: euen from the wyldernesse and from Libanon, & from the ynter Euphrates, euen vnto the uttermost see, shall your coste be. There shall no man be able to stande before you: for the Lorde your God shall caste the feare and drede of you vpon all the lande that ye shall tread vpon, as he hath sayde vnto you.

Beholde, I set before you this daye a blessinge and a curse: a blessinge: yf ye obey the commaundementes of the Lorde your God whiche I commaunde you this daye. And a curse yf ye wyll not obey the commaundementes of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde your God: but turne out of the waye, whiche I commaunde you this daye, to go after straunge goddes, whiche ye haue not knowen. When the Lorde thy God therfore hath broughte the into the lande, whether thou goest to possesse it, thou shalt put the * blessinge vpon mount Garisim, and the curse vpon mount Ebal, whiche mountaynes are on the other syde Jordan on y<sup>e</sup> backe syde of the waye towarde the goynge downe of the sonne, in the lande of the Cananites whiche dwell in the playne ouer agaynst Gilgal helyde the grone of Moyses. For ye shall passe ouer Jordan, to go in and possesse the lande, whiche the Lorde your God geueth you, & ye shall conquer it, and dwell therein. Take hede therfore that ye doo all the commaundementes and lawes, whiche I sette before you this daye.

The. xii. Chapter.

Exhortacion to destroye the altars of the heathen, and to serue the Lorde your God.

from them: but shalt helpe him to heue him vp a gayne. The woman shal not weare that which pertaineth vnto the man, nether shal a man put on womans raiment. For all that do so, ar abhominacyon vnto the Lorde thy God. If þ chaunce and take the ponge to the, that thou mayst prof-per and prolonge thy dayes. When þ buydest a newe house: thou shalt make a batlemente on þ rouse, that þ lade not bloud vpon thine house, if any man fall therof. * Thou shalt not sowe thy bynepard wth byuerse seedes: lest the frute of þ seedes which thou hast sowne, and the frute of thy byneparde be despiled. Thou shalt not plowe wth an ore & an asse together. Thou shalt not weare a garment made of woll and flaxe together.

Thou shalt make þ gardes (in the hems) vpon the four quarters of thy vesture, wherewith thou couerest thy selfe. If a man take a wyfe, and when he hath lpen with her, hate her, & laye quamefull thynges vnto her charge, & bypnyng van euil name vpon her, & say: I toke this wyfe, and when I came to her, I found her not a mayde.
Then shal the father of the damsel and þ mother vnto the elders of the cite in the gate. And the damsels father shal saye vnto the elders: I gaue my daughter vnto this man to wyfe, and he ha-teth her: and lo, he layeth quamefull thynges v-to her charge, saying: I found not thy daughter a mayde. And yet these ar þ tokens of my dought-ters virginite. And they shal sprede the vesture before the elders of the cite. And the elders of þ cite shal take that man and chastyce hym, and neare hym in an hundred cycles of spuer, and geue them vnto the father of the damsel, because he hath brought vp an euil name vpon a mayde of Israel. And she shal be his wyfe, and he maye not put her awaye all his dayes. But and if the thyng be of a surety, that the damsel be not found a virgyn, they shal bypnyng the damsel to the doze of her fathers house, & the men of that cite shal stone her wth stones to deathe, because she hath wroughte follie in Israel, to playe the whoze in her fathers house.

And so thou shalt put euell awaye from the. Exo. xx. b.

* If a man be founde lying with a woman that hath a wedded husbände, they shal dye ether other of them: bathe the man that laye wth the wyfe, and also the wyfe: and so thou shalt put awaye euell from Israel. If a mayde be handfasted vnto an husband, and then a man fynde her in the towne and lye with her, ye shal bypnyng the both out vnto the gates of the same cite, & shal stone them with stones to deathe. The damsel, because she cryed not, beinge in the cite. And the man: because he hath humbled his neyghbours wyfe, and þ shalt put awaye euil from the. But if a man fynde a betrothed damsel in the felde, & force her, and lye wth her: Then the man that laye with her shal dye alone: but vnto the damsell þ shalt do no harme: because there is in the damsel no cause of deathe. For as when a man ryseth a-gaynst his neyghbour and slepeth hym, eue so is this matter. For he found her in the felde, & the betrothed damsel cryed, and there was no man to succoure her. * If a man fynde a mayde that is not betrothed, and take her, and lye with her, & they be founde: Then the man that laye with her shal geue vnto the damsel's father fyfteen cycles of spuer. And she shal be his wyfe, because he hath humbled her and he may not put her awaye all his dayes. * A man shal take his fathers wyfe, nor vniheale his fathers couerynge.

Deuozement is permitted. He that is newly married shall not be compelled to go to warre.

I When a man hath taken a wyfe and married her, yf she fynde no fauour in his eyes, because he hath espyed some vncleues in her. * Then let him write her a bpll of deuozement, and put it in her hande, & send her out of his house. And when she is departed out of his house, let her goo, and be another mans wyfe. And yf þ seconde husband hate her, let hym wyte her also a letter of deuozement, and put it in her hand, & send her out of his house or yf the second man dye which toke her to wyfe her first man which sent her away, may not take her agayne to be his wyfe, after þ she is despyled. For þ is abhominacyō in the syght of the lord. And thou shalt not cause the lande to syn, which the Lorde thy God shall geue the to enheret.

* When a man taketh a newe wyfe, he shall not go a warfare, neither shalbe charged w any busynes but shalbe free at home one yere, and reioyse with his wyfe which he hath taken. * No man shall take the netter or the vpper mylstone to pledge, for then he shall hurt a mans lyfe. * If any man be founde stealyng any of his brethren the chyldren of Israel, & abuseth hym, or selleth hym, the thefe shal dye. And thou shalt put euil away from the. Take hede to thy selfe as concerning the plague of leprosy, that þ obserue diligently. And ye shal do accordyng to all þ the prestes of þ Leuites shal teach you. Euen as I commaunded the, so ye shal obserue to do. Remembre what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto * Miriam by the way after y pe were come out of Egypt. When thou dost lend thy brother any thing þ shalt not go into his house to fetch a pledge from thence: but shalt stande wout, and þ man that borrowed it of the, shal bring the pledge out vnto the: Furthermore, yf it be a poore body, þ shalt not slepe with his pledge, but deliuer him þ pledge agayn when the son goeth downe, þ he may slepe in his owne raiment, and blesse the. And it shalbe rightuousnesse vnto the, before the Lorde thy God.

* Thou shalt not defraude an hyred seruaunt that is neddy and poore, whether he be of thy brethren, or of the straungers that are in thy lande within thy gates. * But shalt geue him his hyre the same day and let not the son go downe thereon. For he is neddy, and therewith susteyneth his lyfe, lest he cry agaynst the vnto the Lorde, and it be syn vnto the. * The fathers shal not dye for the chyldren, nor the chyldren for y fathers: but euery man shal die for his owne syn. Thou shalt not bynder the ryght of the straunger nor of the fatherles, nor take a widows rapmyet to pledg. But remember that þ wast a seruaunt in Egypt and how the Lord thy God deliuered the thence. When þ beatest downe thyne olyue tree, thou shalt not turne agayne to gather vp that þ leftest behind the: but it shalbe for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wydow. When thou gatherest thy vyneyard, thou shalt not gather the grapes cleane after the: but leaue them for the straunger, the fatherlesse, & the wydowe. And remember that thou also wast a seruaunt in the lande of Egypt and therefore I commande the to do this thyng.

The promyses of the blessynges vnto them that regarde the comaundementes, and the curses to the contrarye

If thou shalt hearken diligently vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God and observe and do all his comaundementes, which I comaunde the this daye. The Lord wyl set the on hygh about all the nacyns of the earth. And all these blessynges shall come on the, and ouertake the, yf thou shalt hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God. Blessed shalt thou be in the towne, & blessed in the felde: blessed shalt be the frute of thy body, and the frute of thy ground, and the frute of thy catel, & increase of thyne oren, and the flockes of thy shepe: blessed shalt be thy basket & thy store: Blessed shalt thou be, when thou goest out, and blessed when thou comest in. The Lord shall geue ouer thyne enemyes that tye agaynst y<sup>e</sup>, that they may fall before thy face. They shall come out agaynst y<sup>e</sup> one way, and flye before the seuen waies. The Lord shall put the blessyng vpon y<sup>e</sup> in thy store houses, and in all that thou settest thyne hande to, & wyl blesse the in all the lande whiche the Lord thy God geueth the. The Lord shall make the an holy people vnto hym selfe, as he hath sworn vnto the yf thou shalt kepe the comaundementes of the Lord thy God, and walke in his wayes.

And all nacyns of the earth shall se that the name of the Lord, is called vpon ouer the, & they shall be afrayde of the. And the Lord shall make the plenteous in goods, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy cattell, and in the frute of thy ground, in the lande which the Lord swore vnto thy fathers, to geue the. The Lord shall open vnto the his good treasure, & euery y<sup>e</sup> shal geue rayne vnto thy land in due season, & to blesse all the labours of thy hande. And thou shalt lende vnto many nacyns, but shalt not borrowe thy selfe. And the Lord shall set the before & not behynde, and thou shalt be aboue only, and not beneath yf thou shalt hearken vnto the comaundementes of the Lord thy God, which I comaunde y<sup>e</sup> this day, to kepe and to do the. And se that thou shouldest not asyde fro any of these wordes, whiche I comaunde the this day, ether to the ryght hand or to the left, that thou wouldest go after strange gods to serue them. But and yf thou wylt not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe and to do all his comaundementes and his ordynaunces which I comaunde the this day: all these curses shall come vpon the, and ouertake the. Cursed shalt thou be in the towne, & cursed in the felde: cursed shalt thy basket be, & thy store. Cursed shalt be the frute of thy body, and y<sup>e</sup> frute of thy lande, and the frute of thyne oren, and the flockes of thy shepe. Cursed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and cursed when thou goest out. The Lord shall sende vpon the cursyng, destruction, and rebuke, in all that thou settest thy hande to: & that thou doest, vntill he destroye the, & bringe the to nought quickly. because of the wyckednesse of thyne unyngs, and because thou hast forsaken me. The Lord shall make y<sup>e</sup> pestilence cleue vnto the, vntill he haue consumed the from y<sup>e</sup> lande, whither thou goest to enioye. The Lord shall synne the with swellynge, with feuer, with burning burning, and with the sword, with wetting and with blasting. And they shall follow the until thou perishest. * And the heaven that is over thy head shall be brass, and the earth that is under thee, iron. The Lord shall turn the rayne of the land into powder and dust. even from heaven shall they come down upon thee, until thou be brought to nought. And the Lord shall plague before thine enemies. Thou shalt come out one way against them, and five several ways before them, and shalt be scattered among all the king-domes of the earth. And thy carcass shall be meate unto all manner fowles of the ayre, and unto the beasts of the earth, and no man shall fray them away. * The Lord will smite thee with botch of Egypte, and the Emardes, scalle, and maungynes, that thou mayst not be healed ther-of. And the Lord shall smite thee with madness, & blindnes, and dasyng of heart. Thou shalt grope at none dayes, as the blind gropeth in darkness and shalt not prosper in thy wayes. Thou shalt be oppressed with wronge, & be polled evermore and no man shall succour thee. * Thou shalt be betroughed unto a wyfe, & another man shall lye with her. * Thou shalt buyd an house, and not dwel therein. Thou shalt also plant a vineyard and shalt not gather the grapes. Thyne ore shall be layne before thyne eyes, and thou shalt not eat therof. Thyne asse shall be violently taken away even before thy face, and shalt not be restored to the agayne. Thy shepe shall be geuen unto thine enemies, and no man shall rescue them.

Thy sonnes and thy daughters shall be geuen unto another nation, and thyne eyes shall se it, & dase upon them all the day longe, and there shall be no myghte in thyne hande. The frute of thy lande and all thy labours shall a nation whiche thou knowest not, eat, and thou shalt continually suffre violence only, & be oppressed alwaye so that thou shalt be cleane helpe thy selfe, for the syght of thyne eyes whiche thou shalt se.
The Lord shall smyte thee in the knees and legges, with a mischeuous botch that cannot be healed, even from the sole of thy foot unto the top of thy head. * The Lord shall bring thee & thy king (whiche thou shalt set over thee) unto a nacio, whiche neither thou nor thy fathers haue knownen, & ther thou shalt serue strange gods, euen wood and stone. And thou shalt be wonderd at, spoken of,
and talked at amonge all nations, whither the Lord shall carry thee. Thou shalt carry much lode unto the fildes and shalt gather but litle in, for grelhopers shall destroy it. Thou shalt plante a vineyard and dresse it, but shalt neither drynke of the wyne, neither gather the grapes, for wormes shall eat it. Thou shalt haue olyue trees thorowout all thy costes, but shalt not anoynte thy selfe with the oyle, for thine olyue trees shall be coted out. Thou shalt beget sons, and doughters, but shalt not haue them: for they shall be carried away captiue. All thy trees & frute of thy lande shall be marded with blasting. The stranger that is amonge you, shall clime about the upon hye, and thou shalt come downe beneth a low he shall leade thee, and thou shalt not leade hym:

he shall be before, and thou behynde. Moreover, all these curses shall come upon thee, and shall fo-llowe thee and ouertake thee, until thou be destroyed because thou hearkenest not unto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe his commaundementes, & his ordynaunces, whiche he commaunded thee, and they shall be upon thee as myracles and wonders and vpon thy fide for euer, because thou seruest not the Lord thy God with ioyfulnesse and with a good heart, when thou hadst aboundaunce of all thynges, therefore thou shalt serue thyne enemy whiche the Lord shall sende vpon thee: in hunger and thirst, in nakednes, and in nede of all thyng and he shall put a yoke of yron vpon thy necke until he haue brought thee to nought. And the Lord shall bring a nation vpon thee from far, and from the ende of the worlde as swifte as an Eagle fly-eth: a nation whose tonge thou shalt not under-stande: a harde fauoured nation, whiche shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion of the yonge. The same shall eat the frute of thy cattell, and the frute of thy lande until he haue destroyed thee: & shall leaue the nethe corne, wyne, nor oyle, neither the increase of thine oxen nor of thy flocke of thy shepe. until he haue brought the to nought. And he shall kepe thee in all thy citties, until he haue cast downe thy hye wals & stronge holdes, wherein thou trustedst, thorowout all the lande. And he shall beseege thee in all thy citties thorowout all thy lande, whiche the Lord thy God hath geuen thee. * And thou shalt eat the frute of thyne owne body the flesch of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, whiche the Lord thy God hath geuen thee in that straitnes and sege wherwith thyne enemy shall beseege thee: so that it shall greue the man (that is tender and exceeding delicate amonge you,) to loke on his brother and vpon his wyfe that lyeth in his bosome, and on his remnant of his chyldren, whiche he hath yet left for feare of geuyng vnto any of them of his of his chyldren, whiche he shall eat, because he hath nothyng left hym in that straitnesse and sege, wherewith thyne enemy shall beseege thee in all thy citties. Yee, and the woman that is so tender and delicate, she dare not aduenture to set the sole of her fote vpon the ground, (for softnes and ten-dernes) shall be greued to loke on her husbnde she lyeth in her bosome, and on her sonne and on her doughter and on her after byrth that is to comwhiche she shall beare: for whiche all thynges lacke she shall eat them secretly, in the sege and strait-nes, wherewith thyne enemy shall beseege thee in thy citties. * If thou wilt not kepe and do al the wordes of this law (that are wyrtten in this booke) and feare this glorious and fearful name of the Lord thy God: the Lord will sende vnto thee and thy fide, great plagges and of longe continuance, cruel sykneses and of longe duraunce.

Moreover, he will bring vpon thee all the diseases of Egypte, and those whiche thou wast afraid of shall cleane vnto thee. And all manner syk-nesses, and all manner plagges whiche are not wyrt-

6 The words of Robert Lang.

leben

When all these wordes are come vpon the, the blessing & the curse whiche I haue set before þe, thou shalt turne vnto thyne hert, amonge all the nacpions whyther the Lorde thy God hath thrust the, and come agayne vnto þe Lorde thy God, and hearken vnto his voyce in all these thynges that I commaunde the this daye: thou and thy chyliden with all thyne hert and all thy soule. And þe Lorde thy God wyl turne thy captiuite, and haue compassion vpon the, and wyl turne, and set the agayne from all the nacpions, amonge which the Lorde thy God shal haue scattered the. Though thou wast caste vnto the extreme partes of heauen, euen from thence wyl þe Lorde thy God gather the, and from thence wyl he fet the, and the Lorde thy God wyl bringe þe into the lande whiche thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt entoepe it.

And he wyl shewe the kyndnesse, and multiplye the aboute thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God wyl circumsyle thyne harte, and the verte of thy seide, that thou mayst loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne herte, and all thy soule that thou mayst lpyne. And the Lorde thy God wyl put all these curses vpon thyne enemies, & on them that hate the, and that persecute the. But thou shalt turne, and hearken vnto þe voyce of the Lorde, and do all his commaundementes, whiche I commaunde the this daye. And þe Lorde thy God wyl make the plenteous in all the workes of thyne hande, in the frute of thy bodie, and in the frute of thy cattell, and in the frute of thy lande for thy welth. * For the Lorde wyl turne agayne and reioyce ouer the to do þe good, as he reioysed ouer thy fathers. If þe hearken onely vnto the voice of the Lorde thy God to kepe his commaundementes and his ordinaunces which are written in the booke of thys lawe, and if þe turne vnto the Lorde thy God with all thine hert and all thy soule. * For the commaundement which I commaunde the this daye, is not sepetated from the, neyther farre of.

It is not in heuen, that thou nedest to saye: who shall go vp for vs to heuen, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it? Neyther is it beyonde the see, that thou shouldest saye: who shall go ouer the see for vs, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it, and doo it? But the worde is very nye vnto the euen in thy mouth and in thyne herte, that thou do it. * Beholde I haue set before the this daye lyfe and good, death and euell: For where as I commaunde the this daye, to loue the Lorde thy God, to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, his ordynauces, and his lawes (yf thou so do) thou shalt lpyne and multiplye, and the Lorde thy god shall blesse the in the lande, whyther thou goest to possesse it. But and yf thyne hert turne away so that thou wylt not heare but shalt go astray and worshyp strange goddes, and serue them, I pronounce vnto pou also thys daye yf ye shall surely perishe, & that ye shal not prolonge poure dayes vpon the lande whither thou passest ouer Jordan to possesse it. * I call heauen and earth to recorde thys daye agaynst pou, that I haue set before pou lyfe and death, blessing and cursynge. Therefore chose lyfe, that both thou & thy seide maye lpyne, that thou mayst loue the Lorde thy God, and be obedyent to his voyce, & cleane vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe, and the lengthe of thy dayes, that thou mayst dwell vpon þe earth whiche the Lorde swate vnto thy fathers: Abrahama, Isahac and Jacob to geue them.

The. lxxi. Chapter.

Moses being ready to dye, desired Josua to rule the people in his steade. This booke Deuteronomie is written and layde in the Tabernacle betwix the Arke. The Acutes are charged to read it to the people.

And Moses went & spake these wordes vnto all Israell, and sayde vnto them, I am an hundred and twentye yere olde thys daye, and can nomore go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayde vnto me: thou shalt not go ouer this Jordan. The Lorde thy God he wyl go ouer before the, and he wyl destrope these nacpions before þe and thou shalt conquer them. * And Josua, he shall go before the, as the Lorde hath sayde. And the Lorde shal doo vnto them, as he dyd to * Achon and Og kynges of the Amorites and vnto the lande of them: whome he destroyed. And the Lorde shal geue them ouer before your face that ye maye do vnto them accordyng vnto all the commaundementes which I haue commaunded pou. Plucke vp your hartes therfore, and be stronge, drede not, nor be afraide of them for the Lorde thy God hym selfe doth go with þe. He shall not fayle the, nor forsake the.

And Moses called vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym in the syght of all Israell, * Be stronge & bolde, for thou must go with this people vnto þe lande whiche the Lorde hath sworne vnto thy fathers, to geue them, and thou shalt geue it the to enheret. And the Lorde he doth go before the: he shall not fayle the, neyther forsake the: feare not therfore, nor be dysconforted: And Moses wrote this lawe, and deliuered it vnto the prelates the sonnes of Leuy (whiche bare the Arke of the testament of the Lorde) and vnto all þe elders of Israell, and Moses commaunded them, sayunge: * At the poynt of seuen yeres in the sollemnitye of the free yere, euen in the feast of tabernacles, when all Israell is come to appere before the Lorde thy God, in the place whiche he hath chosen, thou shalt reade thys lawe before all Israell in theyr eares. Gather the people together: men women, and chyliden, and þe straunger that is within thy gates, þe they maye heare and learne and feare the Lorde poure God, and kepe, and obserue all the wordes of thys lawe, and that theyr chyliden whiche know nothyng maye heare, and learne to feare the Lorde poure God, as longe as ye lpyne in the lande: whyther ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses Behold thy dayes are come, that thou must dye. Cal Josua therfore, and stande ye in the tabernacle of wytnesse that I maye geue hym a charge. And Moses, and Josua went, and stode in the tabernacle

Efn. 11. 1. And the Lord appeared in the tabernacle, even in the pillar of the cloude. And the * pillar of the cloude stood over the doore of the tabernacle. And the Lord sayde vnto Mo- ses beholde thou walte steppe wyth thy fathers, and this people wyl ryle vp, and go, a whoring after straunge gods of the lande: whither they go; and wyl forsake me, and breake y appoynt- ment, which I haue made with them.

E And the my wrath wyl ware whate agaynst them, and I wyl forsake them, and wyl hyde my face from them, and they shalbe consumed. And muche aduersyte and tribulacions shal come vpon them, so that then they wyl say: Are not thei troubles come vpon me, because God is not wyth me? And I also wyl surely hyde a- waye my face in that daye, for all the euils sake which they shal haue wrought, in that they are turned vnto straunge goddes. Howe therefore wyte ye this songe for you, & teache it the chyldren of Israel, and put it in theyr mouthes, that this songe may be my wytnes agaynst the chyldren of Israel. For I wyl bryng them into the lande whiche I sware vnto theyr fathers, that floweth wyth mylke and honye, and they shal rate, and fyl them selues, and ware fat, & turne vnto straunge Goddes, and serue them, & blas- pheme me, and breake my couenaunte. And the when muche myschefe and tribulacion is come vpon them, thys songe shal answere them as a wytnesse. For it shal not be forgotten out of y mouthes of theyr sede for I knowe theyr yma- ginacion, wher they go aboute euen now, be fore I haue brought them into the lande wherch I sware. & Moses therfore wrote this songe y same season & taught it the chyldren of Israel. And he gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge, & sayde: * be bolde & stronge, for thou shalt bryng the chyldren of Israel into the lande, whiche I sware vnto them, and I wyl be wyth the.

Deute 31. 1. And when Moses had made an ende of wy- tyng out of the wordes of thys lawe in a booke vnto the ende of them, Moses commaunded y Le- uites, whiche bare the arke of the testament of the Lord sayng take ye y booke of this lawe, & put it in the syde of y arke of the testament of the Lord your God y it may be there for a wytnes agaynst the: For I knowe thy stoburnes & thy wyffe necke: whyle I am yet alvye w you thys daye, ye haue bene disobedyent vnto the Lord: and howe much moze after my death?

Gather vnto me al the elders of your trybes, and your offycers, that I may speake these wor- des in theyr eares, & cal heuen, & earth to recorde agaynst them. For I am sure y after my death, ye wyl vterly be corrupt, & turne from y way which I haue commaunded you: and tribulacion wyl come vpon you in the latter dayes, because ye shal haue wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord, to prouoke hym thowowe the wor- kes of your handes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel: the wor- des of this songe, but yll he had ended them.

The xxii. Chapter.
The songe of Moses.

Eare O ye heuens, and * I shall I speake, and let the earthe heare the wordes of my mouthes. * My droppe shall droppe as doth y rayne, and my speache shall flowe as doth the streame, as y shower vpon the herbes, & as the droppes vpon the grasse. For I wyl call on the name of the Lord: & scrbye ye honoure vnto our God. * Perfecte is the worke of the most myghty God: for all hys wayes are iudgemente. He is a God of truthe, without wyckednesse: ryght- tuous, and iuste is he.

Howardly haue they done agaynst him tho rowe theyr deformities not his owne chyldren, but a wycked and frowarde generacion. Doe ye so rewarde the Lord, O foolys like nacyon and vnwyse: * Is not he thy father, and thyne ow- ner: hathe ye not made the, and ordeyned the? Remember the dayes of the worlde that is past: consyder y peres from tyme to tyme. * I like thy father, and he wyl shewe the: thy eldres, & they wyl tell the. When the most myghty deuyded y nacjons, and when he seperated the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nacjons fast by the myltitude of the chyldren of Israel.

For the Lordes parte is hys folke, and Ja- cob is the porcion of his enhectauce.

He founde hym in a deserte lande, in a boyde grounde, and in a roaryng wyldernesse. He led hym aboute, he gaue hym vnderstandynge, and kepte hym as the apple of his eye.

As an Eagle that stereth by her nest and flo- tereth ouer her yonge, & stretcheth out her wynges, so doth he take them vp, and beareth them on his shoulers. The Lord alone was his gyde and there was no straunge god wyth hym.

He carped hym vp to an hye lande, that he myght eate the increase of the feldeg. * And he fed hym wyth honye out of the rocke, and wyth oyle out of the most harde stone. With wytter of hyne, and mylke of the shepe, with fat of y lam- bes and of fat rammes and hegoates, wyth the fat of most plenteous wheate and that y myght- test drynke the most pure bloude of the grape.

But he that shulde haue bene vpright, when he waxed fatte, spurned wyth his hele.

Thou art wel fed, thou arte growen thicke thou art laden wyth fatnesse.

And he forsoke God hys maker, and regar- ded not the God of hys saluacion. They prouo- ked hym to anger wyth straunge Goddes: euen w abominacions prouoked they hym. * They offered vnto deuels, and not to God, euen to god- des whom they knew not: to newe goddes that came newly vp, whom theyr fathers feared not. Of God that begate the thou arte vnmynful, and hast forgotten God y made the. The Lord therefore sawe it, and was angry, because of the prouokynge of his sonnes and of his daughters.

And he sayde: I wyl hyde my face from the, and wyl se what theyre ende shal be. For they are a very frowarde generacion, chyldren in whom is no fapth. They haue angered me wyth that which is no god, & prouoked me wyth thei- vanities. * And I also wyl prouoke them wyth those

W hose whiche are no people, I wyll anger them with a foolyshe nacpon. * For fyre is kyndled in my wrath, and burneth vnto the botome of hel. And hath consumed the earth with her increase, and set a fyre the botomes of the mountaynes. I wyll heape impscheues vpon them, and wyll destroye them with myne arrowes.

They shalbe burnt wth hunger, and consumed with heate, and with byster destruction. * I wyll also sende the teeth of beastes vpon them, wth the furpousnesse of serpentes in the duste. Without forthe, shal the sword robbe them of theyr chyldren: and within in the chambre, feare both ponge men and ponge women, and the suckelinges wth the men of grape heades. I haue sayde: I wyll scatter them abroad, and make the remembraunce of them to cease frome amonge men. Where it not that I feared the wrath of the enemye, lest theyr aduersaries shulde utterly withdrawe them selues, and lest they shulde scape: our hys hand hath done all this, and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacpon without forecast, neyther is there any vnderstandyng in the. That they were wyle, & vnderstode thys, that they wolde consyder theyr latter ende.

Howe shulde one chase a thousand, & two put tent thousande to flight: except theyr maker had solde them, & except the Lord had shut them vpr.

For theyr God is not as our God, & our enemyes also their selues are Iudges.

For theyr wyne is of the vynegarde of Sodom, and of the feldest of Sodom: Theyr grapes are grapes of Gal, & theyr clusters be bitter.

Theyr wyne is the popson of draggons, and the cruell gall of aspes. Is not this layde in store with me, and sealed vp amonge my treasures?

* Vengeance is mine, and I wyl rewarde thete fete shal lyde in due tyme. For the daye of their destruction is at hande, and the bynges y shal come vpon them, make haste.

* For the Lorde shal iudge his people, & haue compassyon on hys seruantes, when he seeth y their power is gone, and that they be in a maner shut vp, or brought to naught and forsaken.

And he shal saye: where are theyr goddes? If theyr God in whome they trusted.

The fat of whose sacrifices they dyde eat and dranke the wyne of theyr bypnyche offerpnyges: let them ryle vp and helpe you, and be your protection.

He nowe knowe that I, * I alone am God, & there is none but I. * I kyl, & wyll make alpye: I wounde, and I wyl heale. * neyther is there any that can deliuer oute of my hande.

For I wyll lyfte vp myne hande to heauen, and wyll saye: I lyue euer.

E If I whet the edge of my swerde, and myne hande take holde to do iustyce, I wyll recompence vengeance on myne enemyes, and wyl rewarde them that hate me.

I wyll make myne arrowes droncke wth bloude, & my swerde shal cate fleshe, & that for the bloude of the slayne, and for their captiuite, sens the begynnyng of the wrath of the enemye.

* Byspeke ye betwen his people, for he wyll avenge the bloude of his seruantes, and wyll avenge hym of his aduersaries, and wyl be mercyfull vnto his lande, and to his people.

And Moses came and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, he and Joshua the son of Nun. And Moses spake all these wordes vnto the ende to all the people of Israel and sayde vnto them: * Set your hartes vnto all the wordes which I testifie vnto you this day: and ye shal comaunde them vnto your chyldren, that they maye obserue and do all the wordes of this lawe. And let it not be a wayne worde vnto you: for in it is your lyfe, & thowme thys worde ye shal prolonge youre dayes in the lande whither ye go ouer Jordan to conquire it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses the selfe same daye, sayinge: get the vp into this mountayne Abarim, whiche is in the lande of Moab: ouer agaynst Jericho. And beholde the lande of Canaan, whiche I geue vnto the chyldren of Israel to possesse: And dye in the mounte whiche thou goest vp vnto, and thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people. * As Aaron thy brother dyed in mount Hor, and was gathered vnto hys people, because ye trespassed agaynst me amonge the chyldren of Israel, * at the waters of strife, at Cadis in the wyldernes of zin: for ye sanctified me not amonge the chyldren of Israel. Thou shalt therfore se the lande before the, and shalt not go thither, vnto the lande which I geue the chyldren of Israel.

De. xxxij. Chapter.

Moses blyng blessed all the tribes of Israel.

This is the blessing wherwyt Moses the man of God blessed the chyldren of Israel before his death, & said: * The Lorde came from Sinai, and shewed his beames: from Seir vnto them, and appeared from mounte Paran, and he came with thousandes of sayntes, and in hys ryght hande a lawe of fyre for them. And he loued the people. * All hys sayntes also are in thy handes. They were smytten to go after thy fete, and to receyue of thy wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe to be an enherytaunce of the congregacion of Jacob. And he was in Israel kynge when the heades of the people, and the trybes of Israel were gathered together.

Let Ruben lyue, and not dye: and he seue in noblie. Thys same also happen to Iuda. And he sayde: heare Lorde, the voyce of Iuda, and bypnyge hym vnto hys people: hys handes shalbe good ynough for hym, yf thou heale hym agaynst hys enemyes.

And vnto Levi he sayde. Thumim and Urim shalbe with the, & with enery one that is godlye in the. Thou dydest proue hym also in the tentacion, and stryuedest wth hym at the waters of strife. He that hath saide vnto his father and to his mother: I haue not sene hym. And he that knewe not hys byethrenne, nor knewe his owne chyldren, those are they that haue obserued thy worde, and shal kepe thy couenaunt. They shal teache Jacob thy iudgements, and Israel thy lawe.

lawe. They shall put cens before thy nose, and the burnt sacrifice vpon thyne Altare. Blesse the Lord thy God, and accept the worke of his handes, smyte þe lopnes of them that spe agaynst hym, and of them that hate hym, that they ryle not agayne.

C And of Ben Jamin he sayde. The Lordes derlyng shall dwell in safety vpon hym and the Lord shall couer hym all the daye longe, and he shall dwell betwene thyng shoulders.

E And of Joseph he sayde. blessed of the Lord is his lande for the frutes of heuen. thowowe the dewe and springes that lye beneth, and for the swete frutes of the encrease of the sunne, & rype frutes of the Moone: for the fyfte frutes of the pyncepsall mountaynes, and for the frutes that the hylles bynge forth for ever and for the frutes of the earthe, and fulnesse therof and for the good wyll of hym that dwelt in the same. E And the blessing come vpon the heade of Joseph, and vpon the toppe of the heade of hym that was separated frome amonge thyng brethren. thyng fyfte borne ore hath bewte, and his hornes are as þe hornes of an Antelope. And with them he shall tremble the nacpons together, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. These are also the many thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousandes of Manasse. And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyce Zabulon in thy goynge oute, and thou Issachar in thy tentes.

They shall call the people vnto the hill and there they shall offer offerynge of ryghteousnesse. For they shall luke of the aboundaunce of the see, and of treasure hyd in the lande.

D And vnto Gad he sayde. blessed be þe crowner maker Gad: he dwelleth as a Lyon, that catcheth the armie with the head. he lawe therefore thyng begynnyng, and that there was a porcyon there to hyde the lawe geuer, and he came with the heades of the people, and created the ryghtuousnesse of the Lord, and thyng Judgements with Israel.

And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a Lyons whelp, he shall flowe from Basan.

And vnto Nephtali he sayde: Nephtali hath aboundaunce of Gods good pleasure, and is fylled with the blessing of the Lord, and shall haue his possessions towarde the south west.

And vnto Asser he sayde: Asser shall be blessed with chyldren he shall be acceptable vnto his brethren, and shall byppe his fate in oyle. Thyng dwellynge he pzon and byaste, and thyng age be as thyng pourthe.

There is none lyke vnto the God of Israel: which though he sit vpon the heauen as vpon a horse, yet is he thyng helpe, whose glory is in the celestial plates. The eternal God is thyng refuge and vnder the armes of the euertlastynge God: walte thou lye he shall cast out the enemy before the, and saye. destroye. Israel then shall dwell in safety, and alone. And the eye of Jacob shall be vpon a lande of corne and wyne, and his heauens shall droppe the dewe. happy art thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the people that art laued in the Lord, whiche is the hyde of thyng helpe, and swearde of thyng glory. Thyng enemies haue lost theyng strength to the warde, and thou shalt treade vpon the heyght of them.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Moses dyeth. Israel wepeth. Josua succeedeth in Moses rowme.

A And Moses went from the playne of Moab vnto mount Abaron vnto the toppe of the hill that is ouer agaynst Jericho. And the Lord shewed hym all the lande of Gilead, euen vnto Dan, and all nephtaly and the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the lande of Iuda euen vnto the vtmost see, and the South and the regyon of the playne of Jericho the Cytrie of palm trees, euen vnto zoar. And the Lord sayde vnto hym: This is the lande whiche I swaie vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob sayynge I wyl geue it vnto thyng sede, I haue caused the also to se it with thyng eyes, but thou shalt not go ouer thither.

E So Moses the seruant of the Lord dyed there in the lande of Moab, accordynge to the worde of the Lord. And he buried hym in a valley in the land of Moab ouer agaynst the house of Deor, but no man knoweth of thyng sepulchre vnto this daye. Moses was an hundred and twentye yere olde when he dyed: thyng eye was not dimme, nor thyng naturall coloure abated. And the chyldren of Israel wepte for Moses in the playne of Moab thyng dayes. And the dayes of weppynge and moarnynge for Moses, were ended.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was ful of the sperte of wysdome: for Moses had put his handes vpon hym. And the chyldren of Israel were obedient vnto hym, and dyd as the Lord commaunded Moses. And there arose not a prophete lence in Israel like vnto Moses, whome the Lord knewe face to face, accordynge vnto all the myracles and wonders whiche the Lord sent hym to do in the lande of Egypte, vnto Pharaon and all thyng seruantes and before all his lande and accordynge to all that myghty hand and all the great vispons, whiche Moses shewed in the syght of all Israel.

The first Chapter.

The Lorde cou rageb Josua to invade the lande of promysse, and commaundeth hym continually to reade Deuteronomie.

After the death of Moyses the servaunt of the Lorde, it hap pened also y the Lorde spake unto Josua y sonne of Nun, Moyses mynister sayng. Mo les my servaunte is dead.

Nowe therefore vp & go ouer Jordā thou & al this people, vnto the lande whych I geue vnto the chyldren of Israel. * All the places that y sooles of poure fete shall treade vpon haue I geuen you as I sayde vnto Moyses from the wyloernes and this Libanon vnto the greater ruer Euphrates. all the lande of the herbites, euen vnto the greatesse towarde the goyng downe of the sonne, whal be your coaste. There shall not a man be able to wythstande the all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was wyth Moyses so wyll I be wyth the, & and wyll not fayll the, nor forsake the. * Be stronge therfore and bolde for vnto this people. Halt thou deupde the lande whych I sware vnto thy fathers to geue them. Welpe be thou stronge and as bolde as thou canste, that thou mayst obserue and do accordyng to al the lawe, whych Moyses my servaunte commaunded the. * Tourne therfrom nether to the ryght hande, nor to the lefte that thou mayest do wylle in al that thou takest in hande. * let not the booke of thys lawe departe oute of thy mouth: But recozde therein daye and nyghte that thou mayest obserue, and do accordyng to all that is wyrtten therein. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperouse, & then thou shalt do wylle. Haue not I commaunded the, that thou shouldest be stronge and hardy and not fearener be saynte harted? For I the Lorde thy God am wyth the, whither soeuer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the offycers of the people, sayng: So thozowe the myddes of the hooste, and commaunde the people, sayng pre pare you vntayles. for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer thys Jordā, to go in & enioye y lande, whych y Lord your god geueth you to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the trybe of Manasses spake Josua sayng:

* Remember the worde, whych Moyses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you, sayng:

the Lorde poure God hath geuen you reaste, and hath geuen you thys lande: Poure wyues, poure chyldren, and poure catell shall remayne in the lande whych Moyses gaue you on thys syde Jordane: but ye shall go before your brethren, armed all y be men of warre, and helpe them vntyll the Lorde haue geuen poure brethren reast, as he hath you, and vntyll they also haue obtayned the lande, whych the Lorde poure God geueth them. And then shall ye retuene vnto the lande of poure posselion and enioye it, whych the lande Moyses the Lordes seruaunt gaue you on thys syde Jordane towarde the sonne rysyng. And they answered Josua sayng: * All that thou hast commaunded vs, we wyll do, and whither soeuer thou sendest vs, we wyll go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moyses in all thynges so wyll we obey the, only the Lorde thy God be wyth the as he was wyth Moyses. And whosoever he be that doth disobey thy mouth & wyll not hearken vnto thy wordes in all y thou commaundest hym, let hym dye: Onlye be strong & of good courage.

The ii. Chapter.

Josua sendeth spyes to Jericho, wherby were hyd of Rahab.

And Josua the sonne of Nun sent out of Jericho settim twome to spye secretly sayng go and vewe the lande and also Jericho. And they went, and came into a harlotes house, named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kyng of Jericho and sayd: Beholde, ther came men in hyther to nyghte, of the chyldren of Israel, to spye oute the countrepe.

And the kyng of Jericho sent vnto Rahab sayng: bypunge for the the men that are come to the, and whych are entred into thyne house for they be come to seache oute all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men & and hyd them. And sayde thus in dede there came men vnto me, but I wylle not whence they were. And about the tyme of the shutting of the gate whē it was darcke, the men went out, whither the men went I wote not: folowe ye after them quychlye, for ye shall ouer take them. But she brought them vp to the roffe of the house, & hid them wyth the stalkes of flaxe, whych she had lpyng abroad vpon the rooffe. And the men of the cite pursued after the, y wape to Jordā, eue vnto the serpe, & as lone as they whych pursued after them were gone oute, they shut the gate.

And oz euer they were a slepe, she came vp vnto them vpon the roffe, and sayde vnto the men: I knowe y the Lorde hath geuen you the lande, & for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and the enhabytors of the lande saynt at the presence of you. For we haue hearde, howe the Lord & dried vp the water of the reed see before you, whē you came out of Egypte and what you dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amozites, that were on the other syde Jordā. * Sehon, & Og, whom ye vtterlye destroyed. And as lone as we had hearde thys thynges on (we were for a caph, &) oure hertes dyd faynte. And there remayned no more courage in any man at the presence of you. For the Lord your God, he is the God in heauen aboue, and in earth beneath.

Now therefore (I praye you) sweare vnto me Deute 1.7. * by the Lorde, that as I haue shewed you mercy, ye shall also shewe mercye vnto my fathers house, & geue me a true token. And that ye shall saue alpye, both my father, and my mother, my bryethren, and my sisters, and all that they haue.
And ye shall deliuer our soules from death.

And the men answered her: oure lyues for you to dye, yf ye utter not thys oure busynes. And Josua. vi. c when the Lorde hath geuen vs the lande * we wylle deale mercifully and truly wyth the. And then he let the downe by a coarde, * thowhe a wyndowe: for her house was by the towne wal.
And she dwelte by the towne wall. And she said vnto them, gette you into the mountayne, lest the pursuers mete you, and hyde poure selues there thre dayes vntill the pursuers be retou-ned, and then shall ye go your owne waye.

And the men sayde vnto her we wylle be bla-melesse of this thy othe, whyche thou hast made vs sweare. Behold, when we come into the lande, thou shalt bynd thys purple coarde in the wynd-dowe, whych thou latteste vs downe by. And thou shalt byng thy father & thy mother, thy bryethren & all thy fathers householde, euen into thy house.

And then whosoeuer dothe go out at the dores of thy house, into the street, hys bloud shall be vpon hys owne heade, and we wylle gylelesse. And whosoeuer shall be with the in the house hys bloud shall be on oure heade, yf any mannes hande touche hym: And yf thou utter these oure wordes, we wylle quite of thy oth whych thou hast made vs sweare. And he sayde. accordynge vnto poure wordes, so be it: and he sent them a waye to departe. And he bounde the purple coarde in the wyndowe.

And they departed, and came into the moun-taine, and there abode thre dayes, vntill the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought them thowow out all the waye but founde them not. And the tow men returned, and descended from the mountayne and passed ouer, and came to Josua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that had chaunced them. And they sayd vnto Josua: the Lorde truly hath deliuered into oure handes all the lande, and all the inhabitants of the contreye saynt at the presence of vs.

The. iii. Chapter.

And Josua wyth the people passe ouer Jordan.

And Josua rose early: & they remoued from Bethim, and came to Jordan, he and all the chyldren of Israel, and lodged there, before they wente ouer.

And after thre dayes it fortuneth, that the officers wente thowowe ouer the hoothe, and commaunded the people sayinge when ye se the arke of the testamente of the Lorde poure God and the prestes that are Leuites bearynge it: ye shall departe from your place, and go after it. So per that ther shall be a space betwene you and it, aboute a two thousande cubytes by measure.

And ye shall not comenye vnto it, that ye maye knowe the waye, by whyche ye muste go: for ye haue not gone thys waye in tymes past.

be ware, that ye appoche not nye hys arke. And Josua sayd vnto the people: Sanctifie your selues, for to morow the Lord shall do wonders amonge you.

And Josua spake vnto the prestes, sayinge: Take vp the arke of the couenaunte and go before the people. And they toke vp the arke of the Testament and went before the people.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: this daye wylle I begynne to magnifie the in the syghte of all Israel, that they maye knowe howe that as I was wyth Moses so wylle I be wyth the.
And thou shalt commaunde the prestes that beare the arke of the couenaunte sayinge: when ye are come to the edge of the waters of Jorda, ye shall stande still in it.

And Josua sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel:
come hyther, and heare the wordes of the Lorde poure God. And Josua sayde: hereby ye shall knowe that the lpyngge God is amonge you, and that he wylle wythout fayle caste out before you, the Cananites, and the Hethithes, the He-uytes, the Pherezites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, and the Jebusites: Beholde, the arke of the apoyntement of the Lorde of all the worlde goeth before you into Jordan. Nowe therfore take from among you twelue men out of the trybes of Israel out of euery trybe a man.

And as sone as the sooles of the fete of the prestes (that beare the arke of the Lorde the Gouernoure of all the worlde) treade in the waters of Jordan, the waters of Jordan shall be deuyded: and the waters that come from aboue, shall stande still vpon an heape. And it fortuneth, that when the people were departed fro their tentes to go ouer Jordan, the prestes bearynge the arke of the apoyntement wente before the people. And as sone as they that bare the arke came vnto Jordan, and the fete of the prestes that bare the arke were dyped in the bym of the water, the waters of Jordan clefte to fyll all hys bankes all the tyme of haruest, the waters also that came downe from aboue, dyd rylle vp vpon an heape as great as a mountayne. And they departed farre from the citye of Adā, that was besyde Jartan. And the waters that were beneth towarde the see of the wylernes, fell away and departed into the salt see, & the people wente ryght ouer agaynst Jericho. And the prestes that bare the arke of the apoyntement of the Lorde, stode drie within Jordan ready prepared, and all the Israelites wente ouer thowowe the drye, vntill all the people were gone cleane ouer thowowe Jordan.

The. iii. Chapter.

And Josua crosse vp twelue stones in Jordan.

And it fortuneth, that when the people were all gone ouer Jordan, the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: Take you twelue men out of the people out of euery trybe a man. And commaunde you the sayinge: take you hence oute of the myddes of Jordan (euen out of the place where the prestes stode in a redynes) twelue stones (of the moone harden) stones, which ye shall take a waye wyth you, and leaue them in the place, where you shall lodge thys nyghte.

And

And Josua called þ twelve mē, whych he had prepared of the chyldren of Israel, oute of euery trybe a mā, & Josua sayde vnto the: get you before the arke of the Lorde youre God, euen thorow the myddes of Jordan & take vpeuery man of you a stone vpon his shulder accordynge vnto the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, that thys maye be a sygne amonge you. That when your chyldren aske theþ fathers in tyme to come, sayng what meane these stones wpon / ye maye answere them howe þ the waters of Jordane deuided at þ presence of þ arke of the appoyntement of the Lorde. For whan it wente ouer Jordan, the waters of Jordane deuided. And these stones are become a memoꝝ pall vnto the chyldren of Israel for euer.

23 And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so as Josua commaunded, and toke vp * twelve stones oute of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lord sayd vnto Josua, accordynge to the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel and caried them awaye wth them vnto þ place where they lodged, and layed them downe there. And Josua set vpeuery stone also in the myddes of Jordan, in þ place where the fete of þ prestes whych bare the arke of the testament, stode.

And there haue they contynued vnto thys day. For the prestes whych bare the arke stode in þ myddes of Jordan, vntyl all was fynished that the Lorde commaunded Josua to saye vnto the people, accordynge to all that Moses charged Josua. And the people hastened and wēt ouer. It fortuneth also, that whan all the people were cleane ouer, the arke of the Lorde wente ouer also, and the prestes before the people. * And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldre of Gad, and half the trybe of Manasses went before the chyldren of Israel armed, as Moses charged the. Eue foure þ thousande prepared for warre, wente before the Lorde vnto battel, thorowe þ playne of Jericho. & þ dape the Lord magnified Josua in the syghte of all Israel, & they feared hym, as they feared Moses all dayes of his lyf.

And the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayng: commaunde the prestes that beare the arke of wytnesse, to come vp oute of Jordan. Josua therfore commaunded the prestes, sayng: Come ye vp oute of Jordan. And when the prestes that bare the arke of the appoyntement of the Lorde were come vp oute of the myddes of Jordā, and as sone as the sooles of the prestes fete were set on the drye lande, þ waters of Jordane retourned agayne vnto theþ place, and went ouer all their bankes as they dyd before. And the people came vp out of Jordane þ tenth daye of the fyrst moneth, and pytched in Gilgal, euē in the east border of the cytie Jericho.

And the twelve stones whych they toke out of Jordan, dyd Josua pytche in Gilgal. And he spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayng: * If your chyldre aske theþ fathers in tyme to come & saye what meane these stones: ye shall shewe youre chyldren, and saye, Israel came ouer this Jordan on drye lande. For the Lorde your God dyed vpon the water of Jordane before you, vntyl ye were gone ouer, as the Lorde youre God dyd þ red see * whych he dyed vpon before vs, tyll we wer gon ouer þ al þ people of þ world maye knowe þ hande of þ Lorde, how myghtie it is, & that ye myght feare þ Lord your God for euer.

The v. Chapter.
The Canaanites are a feare.

And it fortuneth that whē all þ kyn- ges of þ Amorites whych are be- ponde Jordan westward, & all the kinges of þ Canaanites whych wer by þ see, hearde howe þ Lorde had dyed vpon þ waters of Jordā before þ chyldre of Israel vntil they wer gone ouer, * their hartes faynted for feare. And ther was no spiete in the any more for þ presence of þ chyldren of Israel. That same tyme the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: * Make þ sharpe knyues (of stone) and go to a gap & circuncise þ chyldre of Israel þ secōde tyme. And Josua made him sharpe knyues, of stone and circuncised the chyldren of Israel in the toppe of the foresaynes. And this is the cause why Josua circuncised all the people that came out of Egypt: Namely, such as were males because that all the men of warre, died in the wilderness by þ waye, after they came out of Egypt. For all the people that came out were circuncised. But all the people that were borne in the wilderness by the waye after they came out of Egypt, were not circuncised. For the chyldre of Israel walked forty yeres in þ wilderness, tyll all the people of the men of warre that came oute of Egypt were consumed because they hardened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde.

Wherfore the Lorde sware, that he wolde not shewe them the lande * whych the Lorde sware vnto theþ fathers, that he wolde geue vs, euē a lande: that shewe thowch mylke & hony. And their chyldre whō he set vp in theþ steade, them Josua circuncised: for they were vncircuncised, because they circuncised them not by þ waye.

And when they had circuncised al þ people they abode styll together in þ hoost tyl they were whole. And þ Lord sayde vnto Josua, this dape I haue take awaye þ shame of Egypt fro you: wherfore þ name of the same place is called Gilgal vnto this day. And þ chyldre of Israel abode in Gilgal * & helde the feast of passeouer þ foure- tene daye of the moneth at euen in the playne of Jericho. And they dyd eate of þ corne of þ lande on þ morowe after passeouer (wete cakes & pached corne in þ selfe same dape. For þ * Manna cealed on þ morowe after they had begonne to eate of the corne of þ lande, nether had the chyldren of Israel Manna any more, but dyd eate of the corne of the lande of Canaan that yere.

And it fortuneth that when Josua was nye to Jericho, he lyft vpon his eyes and looked: and beholde, there stode a man agaynst hym, harnynge a shewarde drawn in his hande. And Josua wente vnto hym, and sayde vnto hym: arte thou on oure syde or on oure aduersaryes.

And he sayde: Naye, but as a captayne of the hoost of the Lord am I now come. And Josua fell on his face to þ earth, & dyd reuerence, & sayd A ui vnto unto hym, what sayth my Lorde vnto hys seruaunte? And the captayne of the Lordes hoste sayde vnto Josua, * do thy wo of thy fote, for þ place wherō þ standest. is holy. And Josua did so ¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ The walles of Jericho fall, and it is destroyed.

And Jericho was shut vp, & locked because of the chyldren of Israell nether myght any man go out or in. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua. behold, I haue geuen into thyne hande Jericho and her kyng and the stronge men of warre.

And ye shall compasse the cytie, all ye that be men of warre, & go rounde aboute it once and so shall you do syre dayes. And seuen preastes shal beare before the Arke, seuen trompettes of rammes hornes. (that be bish in the synagoge.) And the seuenth daye, ye shal compasse þ cytie seuen tymes, & the preastes shal blowe wyth the trompettes.

And when they make a longe blaske wyth the rammes horne, & ye heare the sounde of þ horne, all the people shal shoute wyth a great shoute.
And then shal the wall of the cytie fall downe, & the people shal ascend vp, every man streyght before him. And Josua the sonne of Nun, called þ preastes & sayd vnto them take vp þ arke of þ appoyment, & let seuen preastes beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arke of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the people, go & compasse the cytie and let hym þ is harnesssed, go before the arke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seuen preastes bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes, & went forth before the arke of the Lorde and blew wyth the trompettes, and the arke of the connaunte of the Lorde folowed them.

And all the men of armes wēt before the prestes, that blew wyth the trompettes, and the cominen people came after the arke: & the prestes that went blew wyth trompettes. And Josua commaunded the people saying: Ye shall not shoute, ner make any noyse wyth poure voyce, neither shall any worde proceede oute of poure mouthe, vntyl the daye I byd you shoute, then shal ye shoute. And so the arke of the Lorde co-passed the cytie, and wente about it once. & they retourned into the host, and lodged there.

And Josua rose early in the morning, and the preastes toke vp the arke of þ Lorde, and seuen preastes bare seuen trompettes of rammes hor-nes, and went before the arke of the Lorde, and blew wyth the trompettes. And all the men of armes went before them, but the cominen people came after the arke of the Lord, which went before w the blowing of the trompettes. And þ secōde day they compassed þ citie once, & retourned agayne into þ hoste, and so they byd syre dayes.

And whē the seuenth daye came, they rose early:
even w the dawninge of the daye, & compassed the citie after the same maner seuen tymes only that daye they compassed the citie seuen tymes.

E And at the seuenth tyme, when the preastes blew w the trompettes, Josua sayde vnto the people, shoute, for the Lord hath geuen you the citie. And the cytie shalbe damned both it and al that are therein, vnto the Lorde: onlye Rahab þ harlot shal lyue, and all that are with her in the house, because she * byd the messengers that we sent. And in any wyse be ye warre of the excommunicate thynges, lest ye make poure selues excommunicate, and take of the excommunicate thynges, and make the hoste of Israell excommunicate and trouble it. But all the syluer, golde, vesselles of brasse, and yron shalbe consecrate vnto the Lorde, and shall come into hys tresurpe.

And the people shouted, and blew wyth tū-pettes. And when the people hearde the sounde of þ trompe, they shouted wyth a great shoute:
and the wal fell downe, so that the people wēt vp into the citie, every man streyght before him and toke the cytie. And they utterly destroyed all that was in the cytie bothe man and woman, younge and olde, ore shepe and asse, wyth the edge of the swerde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that had spied out the contrey: * goo into the harlottes house, and byng out thence the woman, and all that she hath, * as ye sware to her. And the yōgmen that were spyes, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father and mother and her brethren, and all that she had. And they broughte out all her kynrede, and put them wythout the hoste of Israell.

And they burnt the cytie wyth fyre, and all that was therein. Only the syluer and the golde, the vessells of brasse and yron they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Lorde. * And Josua saued Rahab the harlotte, and her fathers hou-sholde, and all that she had, and she dwelt in Israell, euen vnto this daye because she bid þ messengers, whych Josua sent to spye out Jericho.

And Josua sware at that tyme, sayinge cursed be the man before the Lorde, that riseth vp, and byldeth this cytie Jericho: he shall laye the foundarpon * in his eldest sonne, and in his yōggest soune shall he set vp the gates of it. And so the Lorde was with Josua, and hys fame was noysed thowowe out all landes.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ What is spied out. & can be done.

At pet the chyldren of Israell trespassed in the * excommunicate thynges. And * Acan the sonne of Carin, the sonne of Zabdi the sonne of Zareth of the trybe of Jud a toke of the excommunicate thynges.
And þ wrath of þ Lord waxed whote agaynst the chyldren of Israell.

And Josua sent mē frō Jericho to Hai, which is helpe Bethauē, on the east side of Bethel, and spake vnto the, saying: get you vp, & be we þ cou-treys. And þ men wēt vp, & spied out Hai. And retourned to Josua, & sayd vnto hym, let not all þ people go vp, but lette as it were a two or thre thousāde mē goo vp, & smite Hai & make not al þ people to labour thether, for they are but fewe.

And so there went vp thether of the people, about a thre thousande men, & they fled before þ men of Hai. And the men of Hai smote of them vpon a thyrtye and syre men: for they chased them from before þ gate euen vnto Sebarim, & smote them

When smote them in the gopnge donne. Wherefore, the herkes of the people * for feare, melted awaye lyke water. And Josua rente hys clothes, and fell to the earthe vpon hys face before the arcke of the Lord, vntyll the euen tyme, he & the elders of Israel, and put earth vpon theyr beddes.

Dente. ix. d And Josua sayde * Alas, O Lord God, wherefore haste thou broughte this people ouer Jordan, to deliuer vs into y hande of the Amorites, and to destroye vs: wolde to God we had bene content, & dwelt on the other syde Jordan.
Oh Lord what shall I saye, when Israel turneth theyr backs before theyr enemyes: Surely the Cananites, and al the inhabitants of the Lande shall heare of it, & shall conspire agaynst vs, & destroye the name of vs out of the worlde:
And what wylt thou do vnto thy myghtye name?

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua, get the vp: wherefore lyst thou thus vpon thy face? Israel hath sinned, and they haue transgressed myne appoyntement, whiche I commaunded them for they haue taken of the excommunicate thinges, and haue stolen, and dissembled, and put them vnto theyr owne stuffe. And therefore is it that y chyliden of Israel cannot stande before theyr enemyes, but shall turne their backs before their enemyes because they be excommunicate. Nether wyl I be wyth you any moare, excepte ye rote out the excommunicate from amonge you.

Exod. xix. a * Cyp therefore, and sanctifie the people, and saye: sanctifie poure selues agaynst to morowe for so sayde the Lord God of Israel There is a damned thyng amonge you (O Israel) & therefore, ye cannot stande agaynst poure enemyes, vntyll ye haue put the dāned thyng fro amonge you. To morowe morynge therefore ye shall be brought accorpyng to poure tribes. And y tribe whych the Lord taketh, shall come accorpyng to the kyndred thereof. And the kyndred which the Lord shall fynde gyltye, shall come by howhol-des. And the howholde whych the Lord shall finde faulte, shall come man by man. And he y is founde in y excommunicacyon, shall be buent w fyre he & al y he hath, because he hath trasgessed y couenaunt of y Lord & wrought folye in Israel.

And so Josua rose vperly in the morning and brought Israel by theyr tribes: & the trybe of Juda was caught. And he broughte y kyndredes of Juda, and toke the kyndred of the zarahites.
And he brought the kyndred of y zarahites, man by man, and zabdi was caught. And he broughte hys howholde man by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmy, the sonne of zabdi, the sonne of zareth in the trybe of Juda was caught.

I And Josua sayde vnto Acan my sonne: I beseeche the, geue gloire to the Lord God of Israel, and geue hym prayse, and shewe me what thou haste done, hyde it not from me.

And Acan answered Josua, and sayde of a truthe I haue sinned agaynst the Lord God of Israel, & thus and thus haue I done. I sawe amonge the spoyle a goodlye Babylonyshe garment and two hundred sicles of syluer, & a tonge of golde of fyfte fyces weyghte, and I coueted them, and toke them. And behold they lye hid in y earth in my tente and the syluer is ther vnder.

And so Josua sent messengers: whych whan they ranne vnto his tent, beholde, they were hyd in hys tent, and the syluer there vnder.

Wherefore, they toke them out of the myddest of hys tent and broughte them vnto Josua, and vnto all the chyliden of Israel, and layed them out before the Lord.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of zareth and the syluer, and the garment, & the tonge of golde, and hys sonnes and hys daughters, hys ozen, & hys asses, hys shepe, and hys tent and all that he had: and all Israel with hym brought them vnto the valepe of Acor.

And Josua sayde: In as moche as thou haste troubled vs, the Lord shall trouble the this daye. And all Israel stoned hym wyth stones, and burned them wyth fyre, and ouerwhelmed them wyth stones. And they caste vpon hym a great heape of stones vnto this daye. And so the Lord turned from the wrath of hys indi-gnacyon. And the name of the place is called the valepe of Acor vnto this daye.

¶ The viii. Chapter.

¶ The serge & wyppynge of Hai. The kyng therof is hagid. Josua setteth vp an altare. He blessed the people.

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: I * feare not, neither be thou faynte herted. Take all y men of warre wyth the and vp, and get the to hai. Beholde, I haue geuen into thy hande, the kyng of hai, and hys people, hys ctye and hys lande.

And thou shalt do to hai and her kyng, as thou dydest vnto * Jericho and her kyng. Re-uertbeleste, the spoyle and * catell therof, shall ye take vnto poure selues: And laye a watch vnto the towne, on the backsyde therof.

And so Josua arose, and all the men of warre to go vp agaynst hai. And Josua chose oute thyrty thousande stronge men of warre, and sent them awaye by nyghte. And he commaunded them, sayinge, beholde, ye shall laye awaye vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. So not be farre from the ctye but be all readye.

And I and all the people that are wyth me, wyl appoche vnto the ctye. And when they come out agaynst vs, as they dyd at the fyrste tyme, then will we flee before the. For they wyl come out after vs and we wyl bring them out of the ctye. For they wyl saye: they flee before vs as at the fyrste tyme and we wyl flee before them. In the meane tyme shall ye ryle vp from lyng awaye & destroye y ctye: For the Lord your God wyl deliuer it into your hande. And whā ye haue taken y ctye, ye shall set it on fyre.

Accorpyng to the commaundement of the Lord shall ye do: beholde, I haue charged you.
Josua therefore sent them forth, and they wente to lye awaye, and abode betwene Bethel and hai, on the west syde of the ctye of hai. But Josua lodged that nyght amonge the people.

And Josua rose vperly in the morynge, and nombred the people and went vp he & the elders of Israel before the people agaynst hai. And all the men

the men of warre that were with hym, went vp and dyenye, and came agaynst the ctye, & pitched on the north syde of hai. And there was a valeye betwene them & hai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousande me, & put them to lye a wayte, betwene Bethell and hai, on the west syde of the cite. And they put the people, cutt all þe hoste that were on the northsyde, agaynst the ctye, & the lyeys awayte on the west. And Josua walked the same night in the myddes of the valeye. And it fortuneth, that whē the kyng of hai sawe it, they hastid & rose vpearlye, and the men of þe ctye wente oute agaynst Israel to battell. he and all hys people at a tyme apoynted, even before the playne, and wylt not that there were lyeys awayte on the backesyde of the ctye.

And Josua and all Israel layned them selues to be put to the worse before them and fled towarde the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne were called together, to folowe after them. And they folowed after Josua and were drawen awaye from the ctye. And there was not a man left in hai and in Bethell, that went not out after Israel. And they left the ctye open, and folowed after Israel.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: stretch out the spere þis in thyne hande towarde hai, for I wyl geue it into thy hand. And Josua stretched out the spere that he had in hys hande, towarde the ctye. And the lyeys awayte arose quyklye out of theyr place, and ran onne as Josua had stretched oute hys hande, and they entred into the ctye and toke it, and hastid, & set the cite on fyre. And when þe men of hai looked backe after them, they sawe þe smoke of the cite ascende vpe to heauē. And they had no clyure to fyre, epthee this waye or þe, & the people þe fled to the wyldernesse, turned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

And when Josua and all Israel sawe that the lyeys awayte had taken the ctye, & that the smoke of it ascended, they turned agayne & layed on the men of hai. And the other ensued out of þe ctye agaynst them. And so were they in þe myddest of Israel: for these were on the one syde of them, and the rest on the other syde. * And they layed vpon them, so that they let none of them eschape, nor remayne. And the kyng of hai they toke alpye, & brought hym to Josua. And when Israel had made an ende of slayinge, all the inhabytors of hai in þe felde of þe wyldernesse, wher they chased them, & when they were all fallen on the edge of þe swerde, vntyll they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto hai, & smote it in the edge of the swerde. And all that fell that daye, bothe of men and women, were twelue thousande, even all the men of hai.

For Josua plucked not his hande backe agayne which he stretched out vpe þe spere, vntyll he had utterly destroyed all the inhabytors of hai. * Onely the cattell and the spoyle of þe ctye, Israel toke vnto the selues, accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde, whych he commaunded Josua. And Josua set hai on fyre, and made it an hepe for euer, and a wyldernesse, even vnto this daye. And the kyng of hai he hanged on a tree,

Then Josua * buylt an altare vnto the Lorde God of Israel, in mounte Ebal, as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded the chyldre of Israel, and as it is wyrtten in the booke of þe lawe of Moses: an altare of whole stones, ouer whych no man hath lyft any tole of yron. And they sacrificed thereon burnt sacrifices vnto the Lorde, & offered peaceoffringes. And he wrot there vpon þe stones, & rehearsed all of þe lawe of Moses, & wrote it in þe presence of the chyldre of Israel.

And all Israel and the elders therof, and theyr offycers & Judges stode, parte on this syde the arke, and part on that syde, before the prestes that were Leuytes, whych bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde as well the straunger, as they that were borne amonge them, halfe of them on the forefront of mount Sarezin, & halfe of them on þe forefront of mount Ebal: as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde had commaunded before that they shoulde blesse the people Israel. Afterwarde, he red all the wordes of the lawe, the blespynges and cursynges, accordyng to all that is wyrtten in the booke of the lawe: And there was not one worde of all that Moses commaunded whych Josua red not before al the congregacion of Israel. And they sayde vnto Josua: we are thy seruantes. And Josua sayde vnto them agayne: what are ye? and whence come ye? They answered hym: Fro a very farre countrey thy seruantes are come, for the name of the Lorde thy God: for we haue heard þe fame of the power of hym, & all that he dyd in Egypte, & all that he dyd to the two

And it fortuneth, that when Adonizedech kyng of Ierusalē had heard how Josua had take Hai and had destroyed it, and howe that * as he had done to Jericho & her kyng, eue so he had done to Hai & her kyng, and howe þ enhabytours of Gibeon had made peace wyth Israel, and were amonge them, they feared ex-ceedynge, for Gibeon was a greate ctyte, as any ctyte of þ kyngdome, and was greater then Hai, and all the me therof were very myghtye.

Wherfore Adonizedech kyng of Ierusalē sent vnto Hoham kyng of hebron, and vnto Piria kyng of Jarmuth, & vnto Iaphia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kyng of Eglon, sayinge: Come vp vnto me, & helpe me, þ we maye synge and wyth þ chyldre of Israel. Wherfore the fyue kynges of the Amozites, the kyng of Ierusalē, the kyng of hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kyng of Eglon gathered them selues togyther: they w al their hostes and besieged Gibeon, & made warre agaynst it.

And the men of Gibeon sent vnto Josua, and to the hooste of Gilgal, sayinge: wythdraw we vs, to save vs & to helpe vs. For all the kynges of the Amozites whych dwell in the mountaynes, are gathered togyther agaynst vs.

And so Josua ascended from Gilgal, he and all the people of warre wyth hym, and all the men of myght, and the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: fear them not, for I haue deliuered them into thyne bande. A nyghter shall any of them stande agaynst the. Josua therfore came vnto them sodeynly, and went vp from Gilgal all nyghte.
And the Lord troubled them before Israel, and slew them wyth a greate slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them alonge the waye that goeth vp to Bethoron, and smote them to Elaka and Josua sayde coule great stones vpon the mouth of the caue, and set men by it, for to kepe them.

And stande ye not still, but folowe after your enemyes, and smyte all the hyndmost. And suffer them not to entre into theyr cities for y<sup>e</sup> Lord your God hath deliuered them into your hand. And it fortuned when Josua and the children of Israel had made an ende of slepyng them with an exceeding great slaughter tyll they were wasted, the reste that remainned of them, entred into walled cyties.

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Josua at Makeda in peace, neyther dyd any man moue his tonge agaynst the chyldren of Israel. Then sayde Josua open the mouth of the caue, and byng out these fyue kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto hym oute of the caue, euen the kyng of Ierusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachys, and the kyng of Eglon.

E And it fortuned, that when they broughte oute those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israel, and sayde vnto the chiefe of the men of warre, whiche went with hym: come nere, and put your syle vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put theyr syle vpon the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto them. Ye shall not feare nor be shamed: But be stronge and plucke vp your beretes, for thus shall the Lord do to all your enemyes agaynst whom ye fyghte.

And then Josua smote them, and slewe them, and hanged them on fyue trees. And they hanged still vpon the trees vntill the euenyng. And at the goyng downe of the sunne, it fortuned that Josua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the trees, and caste them into the caue, (where in they had bene hanged) and layed stones in the caues mouth, whiche remainne vntill this daye.

And that same daye Josua toke Makeda and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kyng thereof also destroyed he utterly, with all the soules that were therein, and let noughte remainne. And he dyd to the kyng of Makeda as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

Then Josua went from Makeda, and all Israel with hym vnto Libna, and fought agaynst Libna. And the Lord deliuered it and the kyng thereof into the hande of Israel: and he smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein. He let noughte remainne in it, but dyd vnto the kyng thereof as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

I And Josua departed from Libna, and all Israel with hym vnto Lachys, and besieged it, & assaulted it. And the Lord deliuered Lachys into the hande of Israel, whiche toke it the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, doyng accordyng to all, as he had done to y<sup>e</sup> cite of Libna.

Then Hozan kyng of Gaser came vp to helpe Lachys: And Josua smote hym and his people, vntill noughte remainned of hym.

And fro Lachys Josua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israel with hym, and they besieged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein he utterly destroyed the same daye, accordyng to all that he had done to Lachys.

And Josua departed vp from Eglon and all Israel with hym, vnto Hebron. And they fought agaynst it, and when they had taken it, they smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kyng thereof, and all the townes that perteyned to it, and all the soules that were therein, and he lefte nought remainnyng: but dyd accordyng to all as he had done to Eglon, and destroyed it utterly, and all the soules that were therein.

And Josua returned, and all Israel with hym to Dabir, and fought agaynst it. And when he had taken it, and the kyng thereof, and all the townes that perteyned thereto, they smote them with the edge of the swerde, and utterly destroyed all the soules that were therein, neyther let he oughte remainne. Euen as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kyng thereof, as he had done also to Libna and her kyng.

Josua therfore smote all the hill countreys, and the southe countreys, and the valleyes, and the hill sydes, & all theyr kynges, and let nought remainne of them, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as the Lord God of Israel commaunded. And Josua smote them from Iadabbarne vnto Asah, and all the countrey of Golan, euen vnto Sibeon. And those kynges and their lande dyd Josua take at one tyme: because the Lord God of Israel foughte for Israel. And Josua and all Israel returned vnto the hoste that was in Gilgal.

The .xi. Chapter.

The battayle of Josua with diuers kynges.

And it fortuned, that when Jabin kyng of Hazor had herde those thynges, he sent to Jobab kyng of Madon, & to y<sup>e</sup> kyng of Simron, & to the kyng of Achsaph, and vnto the kynges y<sup>e</sup> are by y<sup>e</sup> north in y<sup>e</sup> mountaynes, & playnes toward the south syde of Ceneroth, & in y<sup>e</sup> lowe countreys: & in the borders of Dor westwarde, & vnto the Cananites, both by east and west and vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, & Jebusites in the mountaynes: & vnto the Hivites y<sup>e</sup> were vnder Hermon in the lande of Mizpa: And they came out & all their hostes with them, a multitude of folke, eue as the sande that is on the see shoure in a greete nombere with horses & charrettes exceeding many. And all these kynges met togyther, and came and pitched togyther at the waters of Meron, for to fyghte agaynst Israel.

And y<sup>e</sup> Lord sayd vnto Josua: be not afrayde at the presence of the: for to morowe about this tyme wyl I deliuer them all slayne before Israel: thou shalt pough theyr horses, and burne theyr charrettes with fyre. And so Josua came, and all the men of warre with hym agaynst them by the waters of Meron, and sodenly fell vpon

And the Lorde deliuered them into the hande of Israel: and they smote them, and chaled them vnto greete Sidon, and vnto the whot waters, and vnto the valeye of Mizpa whych is Eastwarde: and smote them vntyll they had none remayning of the. And Josua did vnto the, as the Lorde bad him. he houghed their horses, and burnt theyr charrettes wyth fyre.

And Josua at that tyme turned backe, & toke Hazor, & smote the kyng therof wyth þe swearde. And Hazor befoze tyme was þe head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules that were therein wyth the edge of the swearde, vnterly destroyng all: & nothynge that breathed, was let remayn. And he burnt Hazor wyth fyre. And all the ctytes of those kynges, and all the kynges of them dyd Josua take, and smote the wyth þe edge of þe swearde, & vnterly destroyed the: as Moyses the seruaunt of þe Lorde commaunded.

But Israel burnt none of the ctytes that stode styll in their strenght, saue Hazor only that Josua buente. And all the spople of the sayde ctytes and the catel, the chyldren of Israel caught vnto them selues. And the men onely they smot wyth the edge of the swearde vntyll they had destroyed the, neyther left they oughte that had breath. As the Lorde commaunded Moyses his seruaunt, so did Moyses commaunde Josua, and euē so dyd Josua: so that he mynyed no worde of all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And so Josua toke all the lande, the hylls and all the south countrey, and all the lande of Golan, and the lowe countrey, and the playne, and the mountayne of Israel, and the lowe countrey of the same, euē from the mounte of parayne, that goeth vp to Seir vnto the playne of Gad in the valeye of Libanon, vnder mount hermon. And al the kynges of the same he toke, and smote them. And slewe them.

Josua made warre longe tyme wyth those kynges: neyther was there any ctye that made peace wyth the chyldren of Israel, saue those heretikes that inhabited Gibeon, and therfore all other they toke wyth battayle, for it came of the Lorde, whych dyd harden theyr hertes that they shulde come against Israel in battayle and that they shulde destroye them vnterly, and shew the no mercy, but to bring the to nought: As the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And that same season came Josua, and destroyed the Enakites oute of the mountaynes: Namely out of Hebron, Dabir, Anab, and oute of al the mountaynes of Iuda, and oute of al the mountaynes of Israel. And Josua destroyed them vnterly, wyth ther ctytes. There was not one Enakite left in the lande of the chyldren of Israel, onely in Asah, & Seth, and Ahdod, there remayned of them.

And Josua toke þe pole lande, accordyng to all þe Lorde sayde vnto Moyses, & Josua gaue it for a possession vnto Israel: accordyng to theyr partes & tribes: & the lande rested from warre.

And from the south all the lande of the Cananites, and the caue that is besyde the Sydonianes, euen vnto Apphek and to the borders of the Amorites. And the lande of Siblytes, and all Libanon, towarde the sunne rysing from the playne of Gad vnder mounte Hermod, vntyll a ma come to Hemath. all þe inhabitours of the hyll countrey from Libanon vnto þe whot waters and all the Sydonianes, will I cast out from befoze the chyldren of Israel: only se that thou in any wyse deuide it by lot vnto the Israelites, to inherite, as I haue commaunded the. Nowe therfore deuyde thys lande to inherite, vnto the nyne tribes and the halfe tribe of Manasses. For wyth the other halfe the Rubenites and the Gadites haue receyued theyr inheritaunce, which Moses gaue them beyonde Jordan eastwarde: eue as Moses the seruaunt of þe Lorde gaue them: from Aroer that lyeth on the byrin of the ryuer Arnon, and from the ctyte þe is in the myddest of the ryuer. And all the playn of Medeba vnto Dibon, and all the ctytes of Sehon kyng of the Amorites, whiche raygned in Heshon, euen vnto the bordre of the chyldren of Ammon: and Gilead, and the bordre of Geshuri and Machati, and all mounte Hermon, wyth all Basan vnto Salcah: eue all þe kyngdome of Og in Basan, which raygned in Ashtaroth and Edrai: whiche came remayned yet of the reste of the Gaintes. These dyd Moses synpte, and caste them oute.

Neuerthelesse, the chyldren of Israel expelled not the Geshurites and the Machathites: But þe Geshurites and the Machathites dwel among þe Israelites euen vntyll this dape. Vncly vnto the tribe of Leui, he gaue none inheritaunce: But the offsprynge of the Lorde God of Israel is theyr inheritaunce, as he sayde vnto them.

Moses gaue vnto the tribe of the chyldren of Ruben inheritaunce, accordynge to theyr kynredes. And theyr coast was fro Aroer that lyeth on the bancke of the ryuer Arnon, and from the ctyte that is in the myddest of the ryuer, and all the playne whiche is by Medeba, Heshon, with all theyr townes that lye in the playne: Dibon and the hyll places of Baall, and the house of Baalmeon and Jabazah, and Kedemoth and Hephrah Kuriathaim, Sabamath, and Zarath Zabar in the mounte of the valleie, the house of Droz, and the sprynges of the hylls and Bethphchor, and the sprynges of Phalgah: and Bethelmoth: and all the ctytes of the plaine. And all the kyngdome of Sehon kyng of the Amorites, whiche raygned in Heshon, whiche Moses smote: wyth the Lordes of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur and Hur and Reba, the which were dukes of Sehon, dwellinge in the countrey. And Balaam also the sonne of Beor the soothsayer, dyd the chyldren of Israel slaye wyth the swearde, amonge other of them that were slayne. And the border of the chyldren of Ruben was Jordan wyth the countrey that lyeth thereon. Thys was the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Ruben after theyr kynredes, ctytes and byllages perteynyng therto.

And Moses gaue inheritaunce vnto the tribe of Gad, euen vnto the chyldren of Gad he gaue by theyr kynredes. And theyr coastes were Jazer: and all the ctytes of Gilead and halfe the lande of the chyldren of Ammon vnto Aroer that lyeth befoze Rabba. And from Heshon vnto Ramoth, Hazyphah, and Betonun: and from Mahanaum vnto the borders of Libie. Thys is the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Gad, after theyr kynredes, their ctytes and byllages.

And Moses gaue inheritaunce vnto the halfe tribe of Manasses. And thys was the possession of the halfe tribe of Manasses by theyr kynredes. Theyr coaste was from Mahanaum, euen all Basan, and all the kyngdome of Og kyng of Basan, and all the townes of Jait whiche lye in Basan, euen threescore ctytes, and halfe Gilead, Ashtaroth, and Edrai, ctytes of the kyngdome of Og in Basan: whiche perteyne vnto the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasses, euen the halfe porcyon of the chyldren of Machir by theyr kynredes. These are the thynge whiche Moses dyd distribute in the felde of Moab on þe other syde Jordan ourt against Jericho eastwarde. But vnto the tribe of Leui, Moses gaue none inheritaunce for the Lorde God of Israel is theyr inheritaunce, as he sayde vnto them.

The xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Called requyryng the heretage that was promysed hem and Heshon was gyven hem.

And these are the countreys whiche the chyldren of Israel inherited in the lande of Canaan, which Eleazar the preste, and Josua the sonne of Nun and the auncient brades of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, distributed to them.

* For lot they receyued theyr possessions, as the Lorde commaunded, by the hande of Moses, to gyue vnto the nyne tribes, and vnto the halfe tribe. For Moses had gyven inheritaunce vnto two tribes and an halfe, on the other syde Jordan. But vnto the Leuites he gaue none inheritaunce amonge them. For the chyldren of Joseph were two tribes, Manasses and Ephraim. And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Leuites in the lande, save ctytes to dwell in, with the suburbs of the same, for their bestes and cattell. As the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so the chyldren of Israel dyd whiche they deuyled the lande.

And the chyldren of Iuda came vnto Josua in Gilgal.

The lotte of parte of Ephraim.

And the lotte of the chyldren of Joseph felle from Jordan by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho Eastewarde, and to the wyldernesse that goeth vp fro Jericho thowre oute mounte Bethel. and goeth oute from Bethel to Lug, and runneth a longe vnto the borders of Arcimataroth: and goeth downe agayne westwarde euen to the coaste of Japhlety, and vnto the coaste of Bethoron the nether, and to Sa-for, and the endes of theyr coastes leaue at the west see. And so the chyldren of Joseph Manasses and Ephraim toke theyr inheritaunce.

And the border of the chyldren of Ephraim was by their kynred. Theyr border on the eastsyde, was: Ataroth, Ador, euen vnto Bethhor the upper, and went out westwarde to Machmathah on the Northsyde, and returneth East-warde vnto Chaanath Silo, and past it on the Eastside vnto Zonoah, & went downe from Zonoah to Atharoth and Naarah, & came to Jericho, & went oute at Jordan. And theyr border went from Chaphuah westwarde vnto the r-uer kanah, & the endes were by west see. Thys is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Ephraim by theyr kynredes. And the separate cyties for the chyldren of Ephraim, were among by inheritaunce of the chyldren of Manasses eue

the cyties wpth theyr vyllages: And they draue not out the Cananites that dwell in Safor: but the Cananites dwell among the Ephraim vnto to thys daye, and serue vnder tribute.

The xvii Chapter.

The lotte of parte of the haire trybe of Manasses. The Cananites are become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses and Ephraim requyre a greater porcyon of heritage.

This was the lotte of the trybe of Ma-nasses, whyche was the eldest sonne of Joseph. And Machir the eldest sonne of Manasses whyche was the father of Gilead (and a man of warre) had Gilead and Basan. Thys was the possession of the rest of chyldren of Manasses by theyr kynredes: Namely, of the chyldren of Abiezer: the chyldren of Helek: the chyldren of Ariel: the chyldre of Shichem, the chyldren of Hepter the chyldren of Se-mida: for these were the male chyldren of Ma-nasses the sonnes of Joseph by theyr kynredes.

But Zelaphead the sonne of Hepter, the sonne of Gilead the sonne of Machir, & some of Ma-nasses, had no sonnes but daughters whose names are these. Dehela, Noa, Nagla, Melcha & Chirza: whyche came before Eleazar the preast, and before Josua the sonne of Nun, and before the Lordes sayng: the Lord commaunded Moses to geue vs an inheritaunce amonge our brethren. And therefore accordyng to the commaun-dement of the Lord, he gaue the an inheritaunce amonge the brethren of theyr father. And there felle ten porcyons to Manasses, besyde the lande of Gilead and Basan, which is on the other syde Jorda, because the daughters of Manasses dyd enheret amog his sonnes. And Manasses other sonnes, had the lande of Gilead.

And the coaste of Manasses was from Aser to Machmathah that lyeth before Sichem & went a longe on the ryght hande, euen vnto the enhabiters of Chaphuah, and the land of Chaphuah beloged to Manasses, which Chaphuah is besyde the border of Manasses, and besyde border of the chyldren of Ephraim. And by coast descended vnto the ruer Canah southward, eue to the ruer of the cytyes of Ephraim, and betwe the cytyes of Manasses. The coaste of Manasses wente also on the northsyde to the ri-uer, and the endes of it go out at the see, so that the south pertayned to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the see is his border. And they mette together in Aser northwarde, and in Asa-cat castwarde. And Manasses had in Asac and in Aser, Bethlean, and her townes: Zibla, and hyr townes: and the enhabitours of Dor, wpth the townes pertaynyng to the same, and the enhabitours of Endor wpth the townes of the same: and the enhabitours of Chaanath wpth her townes: and the enhabitours of Magedo wpth the townes of the same, euen thre co-treys. Yet the chyldren of Manasses coude not ouercome those cytyes. But the Cananites presumed to dwell in the same lande. Neuerthelesse, as lone as the chyldren of Israel were wared stronge, they put the Cananites vnder tribute, but expelled them not.

And by chyldren of Joseph spake vnto Josua sayng:

sayinge: why haste thou geuen me but one lotte and one porcyon to inheret, seying I am a great people, and for as moche as the Lord hath blessed me hitherto? And Josua answered them: yf thou be moche people, then gette the vp to the wodde contreye, and prepare for thy selfe there in the lande of the Phereites and of the Giauantes, yf mounte Ephraim be to narrowe for the. And the chyldren of Joseph sayde: The hyl is not ynough for vs: and all the Cananites that dwell in the lowe contreye haue charrettes of yron, and so haue they that enhabite Bethsean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwell in the valeye of Jezreel. And Josua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasses: ye be moche people, & haue great power, and shall not therefore haue one lotte. Therefore the hyl shall be poures, and ye shall cut downe the wod that is in it: and the endes of it shall be poures, yf ye caste out the Cananites whych haue yron charrettes, and are very stronge.

The xviij. Chapter.

¶ Certen are sent to deuide the lande to the other seven tribes. The lotte of the chyldren of Ben Iamin.

And the whole congregation of the chyldren of Israel came together at Silo, & set vp the tabernacle of witnesse ther, and the lande was in subieccyō before them. And there remayned among the chyldren of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet receaued theyr inheritaunce. And Josua sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel how long are ye so slacke to come, & possesse the lande which the Lord God of your fathers hath geue you? Geue out from among you for euery tribethre men, that I maye sende the. And that they maye ryle, and walke thorow the lande and distribute it accordyng to the inheritaunce therof, and come agayne to me.

But let them deuide it vnto them into seven partes. And Juda shall abyde in theyr coast on the south, and the house of Joseph shall stande in theyr coastes on the north. Describe ye the lande therefore into seven partes, and bringe the descriptione hether to me, & I shall cast lottes for you here before the Lord our God. * But the Leuites haue no part among you, for the priesthode of the Lord is their inheritaunce. * And Gad, & Ruben & halfe the tribe of Manasses haue receaued their inheritaunce beyonde Jordan eastwarde, which Moses the seruaunt of the Lord geaue them.

And the men arose, & wente theyr waye. And Josua charged them yf wēt to describe the lande sayinge departe, and go thorow the lande, and describe it, & come agayne to me, that I maye here cast lottes for you before the Lord in Silo.

And the men departed, & walked thorow the lande, and described it by cytyes into seuen partes in a booke, and retouened to Josua into the host at Silo. And Josua caste lottes for them in Silo before the Lord, and there Josua deuided the lande vnto the chyldren of Israel, to eue theyr porcyon. And the lotte of the tribe of the chyldren of Ben Iamin came vp accordyng to theyr kynredes. And the coaste of theyr lotte came betwene the chyldren of Juda and the chyldren of Joseph. And theyr north coast was from Jordan, and went vp to the syde of Jericho on the northsyde, and went vp thorow the mountaynes westwarde, and they ended at the wyldernes of Bethauen: and wente from thence toward Lus euen to the southsyde of Lus (the same is Bethel) & descended agayne to Atrothadar, vnto the hyl that lyeth on the southsyde of the nether Bethhoron. And the coast turneth thence and compasseth the corner of the see southward, euen from the hyl that lyeth before Bethhoron southward, & goeth oute at Iariathbaal whych is Iariath Jarim a cytie of the chyldren of Juda this is the weste quarter: and the south coaste goeth fro the edge of Iariath Jarim, and goeth oute westwarde, and thence it turneth to the water well of Nephtoth, and cometh downe agayne to the edge of the hyl, that lyeth before the valeye of the sonne of Hennon, euen in the valeye of the Giauantes northwarde and descendeth into the valeye of Hennon besyde Jebus southwarde, and goeth downe to the well of Rogell, and compasseth from the north, and goeth forth to the well of the sonne, and departeth fro thence to the places of Seloth, whych are toward the goynge vp vnto Adonim and goeth downe to the stone of Bohan the sonne of Ruben and then goeth alonge toward the syde of the playne northwarde: and goeth downe into the felde: and goeth alonge to the syde of Bethhaglab northwarde, and endureth at the poppe of the salt see north therfrom, euen at the south ende of Jordan. This is the southe coaste.

And Jordan kepeth in this coaste on the eastsyde, and this is the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Benjamin by theyr coastes rounde aboute thorow out theyr kynredes. These were the cyties of the tribes of the chyldren of Benjamin thorow out theyr kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglab, and the playne of Ram, Betharabah, Ramatim, & Bethel. Aium, Pharah, and Ophrah: Chepar Ammona, Ophni, and Gabai, twelue cyties with theyr villages. Sibeon, Ramah, & Beroth. Bazarah, Eaphairah, & Moza. Rekem, Jacephel, and Tharelah, zela, Eleph, and Jebusi, whych is Ierusalem, Sibeath, and Iariath, foure cyties with theyr villages. This is the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Benjamin thorow out theyr kynredes.

And the seconde lotte came out for the tribe of the chyldren of Zebulon by their kynredes. And theyr inheritaunce was in the myddes of the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Juda. And then the coast turneth to Ramah and to the stronge citie of Joz, and turneth to Hozah, and endeth at the see, by the possession of Achishbah: Amah also & Apher and Rohob . Jos. xxi. d * There shapd nothyng of all the good thynges, whiche the Lord had sayd vnto the house of Israel. But all came to passe.

The .xxii. Chapter.

¶ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are sent agayne to their possessions. They buyld an altare for a memo:all.

And Josua called vnto the Rubenytes, the Gaddites, & to the halfe tribe of Manasses, and sayde vnto them: * ye haue kept all that Moyses the seruaunt of the Lord commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you. ye haue not left your brethren of a longe season vnto this daye, but haue kept the commaundement of the Lord your God.

Deut. xxxi. f

And now that the Lord hath giuen rest vnto your brethren as he promysed them, therefore retorne ye and go to youre tentes, and vnto the land of your possession, which Moyses þe seruaunt of the Lord gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

Deute p. c.

But in any wyse take diligent hede, and do the commaundement and lawe, whiche Moyses the seruaunt of the Lord charged you: * that ye loue the Lord your God, and walke in al his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleaue vnto hym, and serue hym with all your hertes and all your soules. And so Josua blessed them and sent them awaye. And they went vnto theyr tentes.

23 Vnto the one halfe of the tribe of Manasses Moyses gaue the possessiō in Basan: and vnto the other halfe thereof gaue Josua amonge theyr brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And Josua sent them awaye also vnto their tentes, & blessed them, & sayde vnto them: retorne with moche riches vnto your tentes, and with a greaie multitude of catell, wth sylvyr & golde wth brasse, & yron, & with much raiment and deuide the spoyle of your enemyes wth your brethren.

Jas. xxi. d
Jas. xxi. e

And the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, & halfe þe tribe of Manasses, returned, and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Silo, whiche is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the contrey of Sihad to the land of theyr possession, whiche they had opeayned, accordyng to the word of the Lord by the hande of Moyses. And when they cam vnto the place of Selioth besyde Jordan (that is in the lande of Canaan) there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldre of Gad and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buylte an altare fast by Jordane, and that a great altare to se to. Whiche when the chyldren of Israel heard of, they sayde: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buylte an altare in the forefronte of þe lande of Canaan euen in Selioth besyde Jordan on the syde of þe chyldren of Israel. And whē the chyldren of Israel hearde of it, the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel gathered them together to Silo, to make battell agaynst them. And the chyldren of Israel sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into the land of Gilead, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the p<sup>re</sup>aste, and wth hym ten lordes, of euerye chiefe house a lord, thowseoute all the trybes of Israel, whiche were heades of theyr fathers householdes amonge the thousandes of Israel. And they went vnto the chyldren of Ruben, and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the chyldren of the halfe tribe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Gilead, and they spake wth them sayinge.

Thus saye the hole congregacyon of the Lord * what transgressyon is thys that ye haue trasgressed agaynst þe God of Israel, to turne awaye this daye from the Lord in that ye haue buylded you an altare for to rebelle thys daye agaynst the Lord? Is the * wycked dede of Beor to lyt- tel for vs, where of we are not yet cleynd vnto thys daye, and for the whiche the .i. was in the congregacyō of the people a plage of the Lord? Ye also are turned awaye thys daye from the Lord. And seynge ye rebelle to daye agaynst the Lord, it will come to passe, that to morowe he shall be wth you wth all the congregacyon of Israel. Notwthstandynge yf ye thynke, that the lande of your possession is vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of the Lord, where in the lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and take possessiō amonge vs. But transgresse not agaynst the Lord, nor prouoke vs, to buylde you any other aulter, saue the aulter of the Lord oure God * Wth not I can the sonne of zareth trespasse in the excommunicate thyng & wth that fell on all the congregacyon of Israel, whiche notwthstandynge that he was but one man, yet he alone perished not for hys wyckednesse?

Deut. xx. d

Deut. xx. e

Jos. xxi. a

Then the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasses answered, and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel: The God of goddes, the Lord God of goddes, euen the Lord he knoweth, and also shall Israel knowe. Yf it be to rebelle, or to transgresse agaynst the Lord, the thou Lord saue vs not this daye. Or elles yf we haue built vs an aulter to retorne fro folowynge þe Lord, or to offer theron burnt offerynge or meate offerynge, or to offer peace offerynges theron let the Lord requyre it, & (and thus) And yf we haue not rather done it of a carefulesse & of a sure occasiō sayinge: In tyme to come your chyldren myghte saye vnto oures: what haue ye to do wth the Lord God of Israel: the Lord hath made Jordan a border betwene vs and you (ye chyldren of Ruben & of Gad) ye haue no parte therfore in the Lord: and so shall your chyldre make oure chyldren cease from fearynge the Lord.

Deut. xx. e

Deut. xx. e

Therefore we (take better aduysment and) sayde: We will make vs an aulter, not for burnt offerynge, nor for sacryfyce, but for a * witnesse betwene vs & you, & oure generacyons after vs, þe we shulde serue the Lord, wth oure offerynges, sacryfyces and peace offerynges before him: & that your chyldren shulde not saye to oures in tyme tyne to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde.

Therefore sayde we, that yf they shulde so saye to vs or to oure generacions in tyme to come, y we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the fasshon of the aulter of the Lorde, whych our fathers made nether for burnt sacrifices, but for a wytnes betwene vs and you, God forbyd, that we shulde rebell agaynst the Lorde, and turne thys daye from after him, and builde any other aulter for burnt offerynges, oblacions, or sacrifices, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God, that is before hys tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the preaste, and the lordes of the congregacion & heades ouer the thousandes of Israel whych were wyth hym, heard these wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, and y chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well content. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preast sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the chyldren of Manasses: thys daye we perceaue, that the Lorde is amonge vs, because ye haue not done this trespass agaynst the Lorde: Howe ye haue rydde the chyldren of Israel out of the hande of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar y preast wyth the lordes retourned from the chyldren of Ruben, and from the chyldren of Gad out of the lande of Gilead vnto the lande of Canaan, to y chyldren of Israel, and brought them thys word agayne. And the sayinge pleased the chyldren of Israel, and they blessed God, & dyd not entende to go agaynst them in battel, and to destroye the land whych y chyldren of Ruben & Gad dwelt in. And y chyldre of Ruben & y chyldre of Gad called the aulter: Dure wytnesse, y the Lorde is God.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Y Josua exhorteth the people, that they shoulde not them selues to the Gentiles.

And it came to passe a longe season after that the Lorde had geuen rest vnto Israel fro all their enemyes rounde about, y Josua waxed olde, and was stricken in age. And Josua called for all Israel, & for their elders, their heades their iudges & officers, & sayd vnto the I am old & streke in age.

And ye haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto all these nacpons before you, howe the Lorde your God hath fought for you. Beholde, I haue subdued vnto you these nacions that remayne, to be an inheritaunce for your tribes, euen from Jordan, & (from the lande) of all the nacpons that I haue destroyed, euen vnto y great see westwarde. (And there remayne yet many nacpons.) And the Lorde your God shal expel the before you, and cast the from out of your syght, and ye shal conquere theyr lande, as the Lorde your God hath sayde vnto you.

So to therfore as strongly as ye may, that ye take hede & do all that is wyrtten in y booke of the lawe of Moles, & that ye bowe not asyde therfrom, to the ryghte hande or to the lefte and lest that whan ye come amonge these nacpons, (euen amonge these that are left w you) ye make mencyon or sweare by the names of theyr gods.

des & that ye nether serue them nor bowe youre selues vnto them. But that ye stycke faste vnto the Lorde your God, as ye haue done vnto thys daye. So shall the Lorde caste oute before you & greute nacpons and myghte, as no man hath bene able to stande before you hitherto.

* One man of you shal chafe a thousand. for y Lorde your God he fyghteth for you, as he hath promysed you. Take good hede therfore vnto your selues, that ye loue the Lorde your God.

Els, yf ye go backe and cleaue vnto the rest of these nacpons that remayne wyth you and shal make marriages wyth the, and go in vnto them, and they to you. be ye sure, that the Lorde your God wyll nomore caste oute all these nacpons from before you. * But they shal be snares and trappes vnto you and scourges in your sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntyll ye peryshe from of thys good lande, whych the Lorde your God hath geuen you.

And beholde, this daye, do I entre into y waye of all the worlde, and ye knowe in all youre hertes and in all youre soules, that nothyng hath fayled of all the good thynges which the Lorde your God promysed you: But all are come to passe, and nothing hath fayled therof. Therefore as all good thynges are come vpon you, whiche the Lorde your God promysed you, so shall the Lorde bypunge vpon you all euell, vntill he haue destroyed you fro of thys good lande, whych the Lorde your God hath geuen you, when ye haue transgressed the appoyntment of y Lorde your God, which he comaunded you: & haue gone and serued straunge goddes, and bowed your selues to them. Then shall the wyath of the Lorde ware whote vpon you and ye shal peryshe quyklye from of the good land, whych he hath geue you.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Y Josua exhorteth the people to the keepinge of the lawe. He byeth. The bones of Joseph are buried.

And Josua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Sichem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for theyr heades Iudges and officers, and they presented the selues before God. And Josua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. & your fathers dwelt on y other syde of the floude in olde tyme: eue I bareth the father of Abraham and of Nachor, and serued straunge goddes.

And I toke your father Abraham from the other syde of the floude, and broughte hym thowowe out all y lande of Canaan, and multiplied hys seed, and gaue hym Iahac.

And I gaue vnto Iahac, Jacob & Esau: And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir, to possesse it. But Jacob & his chyldre wet down into Egypt.

I sent Moles also & Aaron. And I plagued Egypt: & when I had so done among them, I brought you out, & I brought your fathers out of Egypt And as they cam vnto y see, y Egyptians folowed after your fathers wyth charrettes & horsmen vnto y red see. * And wha they cryed vnto y Lorde, the Lorde put darknesse betwene you and the Egyptians, and broughte the see vpo them, and conered them. And your eyes haue sene what I haue done to the Egyptians. And ye dwelt in the wylernes a longe season.

Num. xxi. d. And * I brought you into þe land of the Amorites, whych dwelt on þe other syde Jordane. And they fought wþ you. & I gaue them into your hand, that ye myght conquere their contre. And I destroyed them from out of your syght.

Num. xxi. a. Deut. xxxi. a. * Then Balak the sonne of ziphor, kynge of Moab arose and warred agaynst Israell, & sent and called Balaã the sonne of Beor for to curse you. But I wolde not kechen vnto Balaã, and therfore he rather blessed you. And so I deliuered you out of his hand. And ye went ouer Jordane, & came vnto Jericho, & the men of Jericho fought agaynst you: the Amorites, Phereaites, Canaanites, Hethithes, Girgosithe, Heuites, & Jebusites, & I deliuered them into your hande.

Deut. vii. f. And I sent * hornettes before you, whych cast them oute of youre syght: euen the two kynge of the Amorites: but not wþ your owne swerd, or wþ youre owne bowe. And I haue geuen you a lande, in whych ye dyd not laboure, and cyties whych ye buylte not, and whych ye dwell in: bynyardes also and olyue trees whych ye planted not, and wherof ye doe eate.

1ste. b. a. Jos. xii. c. * Now therfore feare the Lord, and serue hym in perfectencle and truthe: And put awaye the goddes, whych your fathers serued on the other syde of the floude, and in Egypte, and serue ye þe Lord. And yf it seme euell vnto you to serue the Lord, then chose you this day whō you wil serue whether þe goddes whych your fathers serued (þe were on the other syde of the floud) ether þe goddes of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell. As for me and my house, we wyl serue the Lord.

D The people answered and sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde forsake the Lord, & serue strange goddes. For þe Lord our God, he it is þe brought vs and oure fathers out of the lande of Egypte, and from the house of bondage, and whych dyd those great myracles in oure syght, & preserved vs in all the waye that we went, & amonge all þe nacions whych we cam thowow. And þe Lord dyd cast out before vs all þe nacions, specially þe Amorites whych dwelt in þe lande. And therfore wyl we also serue the Lord, for he is oure God.

E And Josua sayde vnto the people. Ye cannot serue þe Lord. for he is an holpe God, & a gelous God, & cannot beare youre iniquite & synne. Yf ye forsake the Lord & serue strange goddes, * he wyl turne & do you euell, & consume you, after that he hath done you good. And þe people sayde vnto Josua: naye, but we wyl serue the Lord.

And Josua sayde vnto the people. ye are wytnesses poure selues, that ye haue chosen you the Lord, to serue him: and they sayd: we are wytnesses. The put awaye (sayde he) the straunge goddes whych are amonge you, and bowe your hertes vnto þe Lord God of Israell. The people sayde vnto Josua: the Lord our God wyl we serue, & his voyce wyl we obeye. And so Josua * made a couenaunt wþ the people the same day, & set an ordynauce & law befoze them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in þe boke of þe lawe of God, and * toke a great stone, & pytched it on ende in the sayde place, euen vnder an oke that was in the sanctuarpe of the Lord. And Josua sayd vnto all the people behold: * this stone shalbe a witnesse vnto vs, for it hath hearde all the wordes of the Lord whych he spake wþ vs. It shalbe therfore a wytnesse vnto you, lest ye deny on (and dessemble wþ) youre God. And so Josua lette the people departe, euery man vnto his inheritaunce.

And after these thynges it came to passe, that Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruant of þe Lord dyed, beyng an hundred & ten yeres old. And they buried him in þe contrey of his * inheritaunce euen in Thānath Sareth, whych is in moite Ephraim, on the northsyde of the hyl of Gaas.

And Israell serued the Lord * all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that ouerlyued Josua, and whych had knowne all þe workes of þe Lord that he had done for Israell. And the * bones of Ioseph, whych the chyldren of Israell brought out of Egypt buried they in Sichem in a parcell of grounde whych Jacob bought of the sonnes of hemor þe father of Sichem, for an hundred pices of syluer, and it became the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Ioseph. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron died, whom they buried in a hyl that pertayned to Phineches his sonne, whych hyl was geuen him in mount Ephraim.

The fyrst Chapter.

After Josua was dead, Juda was constituted lord over the army.

After the deathe of Josua it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel asked y<sup>e</sup> Lorde sayinge who shall go vp for vs agaynst the Cananites, and who shall fyrste fyghte agaynst them. And the Lorde sayde Juda shall go vp, * be-holde I haue deliuered the land into his handes.

And Juda sayd vnto Simcon his brother com vp with me in my lotte y<sup>e</sup> we may fight agaynst the Cananites. And I lyke wyse wyl go wyth y<sup>e</sup> into thy lotte. And so Symeon went with him.

And Juda went vp and the Lorde deliuered the Cananites and Phereytes into theyr han-des. And they slew of them in Bezek ten thousand men. And they founde Adonibezek in Be-
zek. And they fought agaynst him, and slew the Cananites and Phereytes. But Adonibezek fled, and they folowed after hym, & caught him, & cut of his thombes and his greate toes. And Adonibezek sayd thye skore and ten kynges ha-uyng their thombes and greate toes cut of, gathered theyr meate vnder my table * as I haue done, so God hath done to me agayne. And they brought hym to Jerusalem, and there he dyed.

The chyldren of Juda foughte agaynst Jerusalem, and toke it * and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and set the cytie on fyre. Afterwarde y<sup>e</sup> chyldre of Juda went to fyght agaynst the Cananites, that dwelt in the mountayne, & towards the south, & in the lowe contreye. And Juda went agaynst the Cananites that dwelt in Hebron, whiche before tyme was called Kariath Arbe. And slew Delai, Abiman & Chal-mai. And from thence they went to the inhabiters of Dabir, whose name in old tyme was called Kariathsepher, (that is a cytie of letters.)

And Caleb sayde. * he that smyteth Kariath sepher, and taketh it, to hym wyl I geue Aclah my daughter to wyfe. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes Calebs younge brother toke it, to who he gaue Aclah his daughter to wyf, and as they wente, he counseled hym to aske of her father a felde. And then he lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She an-swerede vnto hym geue me a blessinge for thou hast geuen me a Southwarde (or d:pe) lande: geue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springes both aboue and beneth. And the children of the Kenite, Moses father in law wente vp * oute of the ctyte of * palme trees wyth the chyldren of Juda into the wyldernesse of Juda, that lyeth in the South of Arab, and they wente and dwelte amonge the people.

And Juda went wyth Simeon his brother, & and they slew the Cananites that enhabited Je-phath, and vtterly destroyed it, * and called y<sup>e</sup> name of the ctyte Horma. And at the laste Juda toke Arah wyth the coastes therof, and Alkalon wyth the coastes therof. And Aharab wyth the coastes therof. And the Lorde was wth Juda, & he conquered the mountaynes, but coude not dypue out the enhabiters of the valeyes, because they had charrettes of yron. And they gaue * hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayd: And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of * Enak.

* And the chyldren of Benjamin dyd not caste oute the Jebusites, that enhabited Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell wyth the chyldren of Benjamin in Jerusalem vnto this daye.

* And in lyke maner they that were of the house of Joseph wente vp to Bethel, & the Lorde was wyth the, & the house of Joseph serched out Bethel which before tyme was called Lus. And the spyres sawe a man come out of the ctyte, and they sayd vnto hym shewe vs the waye into the ctyte, * and we wyl shewe the mercy. And whā he had shewed them the waye into the citie, they smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, but let y<sup>e</sup> man and all his house go free. And the man wente into the lande of the Hethites, and buylt a ctyte, and called the name therof Lus whiche is the name therof vnto this daye.

* Neither dyd Manasses expelle Bethsam wher townes, Chaanach wher townes, y<sup>e</sup> enhabitoures of Dor wher townes, y<sup>e</sup> enhabitoures of Jebela wher townes neither y<sup>e</sup> enhabitoures of Magedo with her townes, but y<sup>e</sup> Cananites were hold to dwell in y<sup>e</sup> land. Whā it cam to passe y<sup>e</sup> as sone as Israel was wared, myghte, they put y<sup>e</sup> Cananites to tribute & expelled them not.

* In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Cananytes that dwelt in Gazer, but the Cana-nytes dwelte styl in Gazer amonge them.

Neither dyd Zabulon expell the enhabytoures of Kietron, neyther the enhabytoures of Rahalol. But the Cananytes dwelte amonge the,
and became tributaries.

Neither dyd Aser caste oute the enhabitou-res of Acho, neyther the enhabitoures of Zidon, and of Halab, Aczib, and Halbah, Aphek, Rec-of Kobob, but the Asrites dwelte amonge the Cananytes the enhabytoures of the lande, for they myght not dypue them out.

Neither dyd Repphalim dypue out the enhabitoures of Bethlames, nor y<sup>e</sup> enhabytoures of Bethanath

Bethanath, but dwelt amonge the Cananytes the inhabytours of the land. Neuerthelesse the inhabytours of Bethsames and of Bethanath became trybutaries vnto them.

And the Amozites troubled the chyldren of Dan in the mountaine, and suffered them not to come downe to the valeye: And the Amozites were content to dwell in mounte Heres <sup>(which is by interpretacion: a wynter place)</sup> in Hailon and in Salabum. And the hande of Joseph preyayled, so that they became tributaries and the coaste of the Amozites was from the goynge vp to Acrabum, and from the rocke vpwarde.

The ii. Chapter.

The Angell rebuketh the people, because they had made peace with the Cananytes. Idolatres are punished.

And the angell of the Lorde came by from Gilgal to Bochum, and sayd: I made you to goo out of Egypte, and haue brought you vnto this land whyche I sware vnto your fathers. * And I sayd: I wil not break myne appoyntment that I made with you. And ye also shall make no couenaunt with the inhabytours of this lande, but shall breake downe theyr altars. Neuertheles ye haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, why haue ye this done? wherefore, I haue lykewyse determined, that I wyl not cast them out before you but they shall be thornes vnto you, and theyr goddes shall be a snare vnto you. And whē the angel of the Lorde spake these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte: And called the name of the sayd place. * Bochum, and offered sacrifices vnto the Lorde.

A place of such an wyse

And when Josua had sente the people a waye, the chyldren of Israel went euery man into hys inheritaunce to possesse this lande. * And the people serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that ouerliued Josua, & had sene all the greates workes of the Lorde that he dyd for Israel: and Josua the sonne of Nun the seruante of the Lorde * dyed, when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whom they buryed in the coastes of hys inheritaunce: euen in Chamath hares in mounte Ephraim on the northsyde of the hyl Gaas. And euen so al that generacyon were put vnto theyr fathers, and there arose another generacion after them which neyther knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes whyche he had done for Israel.

And then the chyldren of Israel * dyd wickedly in the syght of the Lorde, and serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, which brought them out of the lande of Egypt, and folowed straunge goddes, euen of the goddes of the nacyns that were rounde about the, and bowed them selues vnto them, and angered the Lorde. They forsoke the Lorde, and serued Baal and Ashtaroth, and the wrath of the Lorde waxed hote agaynst Israel, and he deliuered them into the handes of raueners, that spoyled them, and solde them into the handes of theyr enemyes rounde aboute them, so that they had no power any longer to stande before their enemyes. But whither soeuer they wente oute, the hande of the Lorde was agaynst them with euell lucke, euen as the Lorde promised them, & as he sware vnto them. And he punished them sore.

Neuerthelesse the Lorde rayled vp Judges, whych deliuered them out of the handes of their oppzessers, & yet for al this they wolde not harken vnto their Judges. But rather wote a whoring after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in, obeyng the commaundementes of the Lorde: But they dyd not so.

And when the Lorde rayled them vp Judges, he was with the Judge, and deliuered them out of the hande of theyr enemyes all the dayes of the Judge: for the Lorde had compassion ouer theyr whornges, whych they had, by the reason of them that oppzessed them and vexed them: yet for all that * as long as the iudge was dead, they turned & dyd worse then theyr fathers, in folowynge straunge goddes, and in seruyng them, and ceased not from theyr owne inueniencyons, nor from theyr malicious waye.

And the wrath of the Lorde was moued against Israel, and he sayde: because this people hath transgressed myne appoyntment whyche I commaunded theyr fathers, and haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, I wyl hence forth not cast oute before the one man of the nacyns, which Josua lefte when he dyed, that throughe them I maye proue Israel, whether they wyl kepe the waye of the Lorde, and walke therein, as theyr fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde lefte those nacyns, and droue them not oute ymmediatly, neyther deliuered them into the hande of Josua.

The iii. Chapter.

Othniel deliuereth Israel. Ahud killeth hys gyfte son. Gaingar killeth the whornges.

These are the nacyns which the Lorde lefte, that he myght proue Israel by them: euen as many of Israel as had not knowen all the warres of Canaan: vncly for the lernynge of the generacion of the chyldren of Israel: that he also myghte teache them warre, in as muche as they that were before them, knew nothyng therof. Of those whiche he lefte, ther were syue lordes of the Philistines, & al the Cananytes, & the Sodomites, & the Heuites & Jebusites, & toke the daughters of Israel by force, whether they wolde herke vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded their fathers by the hande of Moses.

And the chyldren of Israel dwelt among the Cananytes, Hethites, Amozites, Pherezites, Heuites, & Jebusites, & toke the daughters of the to be their wyues, & gaue their owne daughters to theyr sonnes, & serued theyr goddes. And the chyldren of Israel dyd wickedly in the syght of the Lorde, & forgoat the Lorde theyr God and serued Baalim and Aseroth. Therefore the Lorde was angry wyth Israel, and deliuered them into the handes of Chusan Rishathaim kynge of Mesopotamia, Mesopotamia, and the chyldren of Israel serued Chusan Rishathaim. viii. peres.

And when the chyldre of Israel cryed vnto the Lord, the Lord styred vp a sauer, to the chyldre of Israel, & saued them: one Othniel the sonne of Kenes, Calebs yonger brother. And the spert of the Lord came vpon hym. And he iudged Israel & went out to war. And the Lord deliuered Chusan Rishathaim kyng of Mesopotamia into his hande, & his hande preuailed agaynst Chusan Rishathaim. And the lande had rest forty peres, & Othniel the sonne of Kenes died. And the chyldren of Israel went to agayne, and committed wickednes in the syght of the Lord. And the Lord strenghtened Eglon the kyng of the Moabites, agaynst the chyldre of Israel, because they had committed wickednes before the Lord. And this (Eglon gathered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and wente and smote Israel, & conquered the cytie of Beulme trees. And so the chyldren of Israel serued Eglon the kyng of Moab. xlii. peres. But when they cryed vnto the Lord, the Lord styred them vp a sauer. Abud the sonne of Gera the sonne of Gemni, a man that coulde do nothyng handsonly wpth his ryghte hande.

And by hym the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab. but Abud made hym a dagger wth two edges, of a cubyte length, and he dyd gyde it vnto his capment vpon his right thyghe, and caried the present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: And Eglon was a very fatte man. And it fortuneth that whē he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he hym selfe turned agayne (from the place of grauen pimages, that was by Silgal) and sayde: I haue a secret errande vnto the, O kyng. Whiche he sayde: kepe silence. And all that stode before hym, wente oute from hym.

And Abud came vnto him, & in a somer parler, whiche he had, sat he hym selfe alone. & Abud sayde: I haue a message vnto the fro God. And he arose oute of his seate. And Abud put forth his left hande, & toke the dagger fro his ryghte thyghe, and thrust it into his bely, and the harte wet in after the blade: And the fatte, closed the harte so that he myghte not drawe the dagger oute of his bely, but the dytche came out. Abud gat hym oute at a posterne doore, and shut the doores of the parler about hym, and locked them.

When he was gone out, his seruantes came, and when they sawe that the doores of the parler were locked, they sayde peradventure he couereth his fete in his somer chamber. And they taryed tyll they were ashamed, & beholde seying he opened not the doores of the parler, they toke a key, and opened them. And beholde, they: Lord was fallen downe dead on the earth. And Abud escaped (whyle they taryed) & was gone beyonde, to the place of the grauen pimages, and escaped into Scirath.

And when he was come, he blew a trompet in mount Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went downe with him from the hyl and he went before them. And he sayd vnto them, follow me:

for the Lord hath deliuered your enemyes the Moabites into your hand. And they descended after hym, and toke the passages of Iordā, toward Moab & suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites, the same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, which were all fatte and men of war and ther escaped not a man. * So Moab was subdued that daye, vnder the hand of Israel: and the lande had rest. lxx. peres.

Deute. ii. b

After hym was Saingar the sonne of Anath, which slew of the Philistines. vi. hundred men wpth an oxe goade, and deliuered Israel also.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Debora and Barak deliuer Israel: Sisara is killed of Iael.

And the chyldre of Israel began agayne to do wickedly in the syght of the Lord when Abud was dead. And the Lord sold them into the hande of Jabin kyng of Canaan, that reygned in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was called Sisara, which dwelte in Haroseth of the gentyles. And the chyldre of Israel cryed vnto the Lord for he had nyne hundred charrettes of yron, and twenty peres he troubled the chyldren of Israel very sore.

And Debora a prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth Iudged Israel the same tyme, and the same Debora dwelte vnder a paulme tree betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came vp to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, oute of Kedesh Nephtalim, and sayde vnto hym. Hath not the Lord God of Israel commaunded the, to leade wpth sayre wordes men to mount Ephraim, and take wth the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephtalim and of the chyldre of Zabulon: And I wyll bring vnto the to the ryuer Kison, Sisara, the captayne of warre vnto Jabin, wth his charrettes, and his people, and wyll deliuer hym into thyne handes. And Barak sayde vnto her. If thou wilt go wth me, I wyll go. But if thou wilt not come wth me, I wyll not go. She sayde: I wyll suerly go wth the, but thy iourney that thou takeste, shall not be for thyne honour, for the Lord shall sell Sisara into the hande of a woman. Debora went wth Barak to Kedesh. And Barak called Zabulon & Nephtalim to Kedesh, & led after hym ten thousande men: and Debora went wth hym.

Deute. xxxii. b

But Haber the Kenite (which was of the chyldre of Hobab the father in law of Moses, removed from the other Kenites, and pitched his tent wtyll the playne of Zaanan, whiche is by Kedesh.

Iudg. f. b.

And they shewed Sisara, that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mount Ephraim. And Sisara gathered together all his charrettes euen ix. hundred charrettes of yron, and all the people that were wth hym from Haroseth of the gentyles, vnto the riuer of Kison. And Debora layd vnto Barak. vp, for this is the day in which the Lord hath deliuered Sisara into thyne hand. Is not the Lord gone oute before thee? And so Barak went downe from mount Ephraim, and ten thousande men after hym.

But the Lord destroyed Sisara and all his charrettes, charrettes, and all his hoost with the edge of the swerde, befoze Barak so that Sisara lighted downe of his charret, and fled awaye on his fete. But Barak folowed after the charrettes & after the host, enen vnto haroleth of y gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, and there was not a man leaste. Howbeit Sisara fled awaye on hys fete to the tente of Jael the wyfe of Haber the kentyte: for there was peace betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the householde of Haber the Kenite.

And Jael wente out to mete Sisara, and sayde vnto him turne in my lord, turne into me, feare not. And whan he had turned in vnto her into her tent, she couered hym wyth a mantell.

D And he sayde vnto her, geue me a lytle water to dryncke, for I am thyrsty. And she opened a bottle of mylke, and gaue hym dryncke and couered hym. And agayne he sayde vnto her stāde in the doze of the tente, and whan any man doth come and enquire of y, whether ther be any man here, thou shalte saye: nape.

The Jael habers wyf toke a nape of y tente, & an hammer in her hand, and went softly vnto him, and smote the nape into the temples of his heade, & fastened it into the ground, for he slombyed sore, and was weyr. And so he dyed.

And beholde, as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came out to mete hym and sayde vnto him come, and I wyl shewe the the man, whom thou seekst. And when he came into her tente: behold, Sisara laye dead, and the nape was in hys temples. And so God brought Jabin the kynge of Canaan into subiection that day befoze the chyldren of Israell. And the hande of the chyldren of Israell prospered, and preyed agaynst Jabin the kynge of Canaan, vntill they had brought hym to nought.

The v. Chapter.

The songe and thankes geuyng of Deboza and Barak after the victorie.

When Deboza and Barak y sonne of Abinoam sang the same daye, sayinge: Praise ye the Lorde, for the auengyng of Israell, & for the people that became so wyllynge. Heare o ye kynges, hearken o ye prynces. I, euen I, wyl spunge vnto the Lorde. I wyl praise the Lorde God of Israell.

Lorde, * whan thou wentest oute of Seir, whā thou departedst oute of the felde of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heauens rayned: the cloudes also dropped water. * The mountaynes melted befoze the Lorde, euen as dyd Synai, befoze the Lorde God of Israell.

In the dayes of * Samgar the sonne of Anath, in the dayes of * Jael the hye wayes were vnuccupied. And y rouners of the pathes walked thorow by wayes.

The inhabytors of the townes were gone, they were gone in Israell, vntill Deboza came vp whych became vp a mother in Israell.

They chose newe Goddes, and then had they (the enemy) in y gates, though ther were shylde and speare. There was not a shylde or speare scene amonge fourty thousande of Israell.

My harte loneth the gouerners of Israell, and them that are wyllynge amonge the people. O prayse ye the Lorde.

Speake ye that ryde on sayre asses, & that syt vppermost in iudgement, & walke by y wayes.

At the cpenge of the archers amonge the drawers of water, there shall they speake of the ryghteousnes of the Lorde, hys ryghteousnesse in the unfenced places of Israell: then shall the people of the Lorde go downe to the gates.

Elp Deboza vp, get the vp, and spunge asonge:

* Arise Barak, and leade the captiue captiue, thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then shall they that remayne, haue dominion of the proudeste of the people (of Jabin:) The Lorde shall for my sake haue dominion ouer the myghtie. Out of * Ephraim was there a rote of them agaynst Amaleck, and after the Beniamin amonge thy people. Oute of Machir came rulers, and oute of Zabulon they that gouerne the penne of the wypter.

And of Issachar, ther were prynces w Deboza, Issachar also & Barak were sent on their fete into the valleye, whan in the departyng awaye of Ruben there were great men, and wyse of hert.

Why abodest thou amonge the shepe foldes, to heare y bleatynge of y flockes, & to separate thy selfe away wyth greate men & wyse of hert.

Gilead also abode beyonde Jordane: and why doth Dan remayne in hyppes?

Aler continued on the see shore, and taried in hys decayed places.

But the people of Zabulon haue reoperde theyr lynes euen vnto the deathe, lyke as dyd Nephthalim in the hye places of the felde.

The kynges came and fought, then foughte the kynges of Canaan in Chamah, by the waters of Megiddo, and wanne no money.

They fought from heauen, euen the starres in theyr courses fought agaynst Sisera.

The ryuer of Cydon remoued them, that ancient riuer, y ryuer Cydon: My soule shal treade (hym) downe myghtely.

Then were the horse hofes smytten a sunder by the meanes of the prauynge that theyr myghty men made.

Curse ye the ctye of Meros (sayde the angell of the Lorde) curse the inhabytours therof, because they came not to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde wyth the myghty.

Jael the wyfe of Haber the kentyte shall be blessed aboue other women, blessed shall she be aboue other women in the tente.

* He asked water, and she gaue hym mylke, she brought forth butter in a lordly bylke.

* She put hit hande to y nape, and hit ryght hande to the synthes hammer: wyth the hammer smote she Sisera, & smote hys heade, wounded hym, and pearced hys temples.

He bowed hym downe at hys fete, he fell downe and laye still: At hys fete he bowed hym downe, & fell. And when he had soncke downe, he laye still desolate.

The mother of Sisera looked out at a window, & cryed thorow the lattelle: Why is his charret so longe so longe a commynge: Why tarre the wheles of of his carttes?

All the wyse lades answered her, yea, & her owne wordes answered her selfe.

Surely they haue founde, they denye the spyles euery man hath a damsell or two: Sisera hath a praye of dyuers coloured garnettes euen a praye of rayment dyed wth sondry colours, and that are made of needle worke. raiment of dyuers colours & of needle worke whych is mete for hym that is chiefe in distri butynge of the spyles. So perthe all thynne enemies: O Lorde: but they that loue hym, let them be as the Sonne when he riseth in hys myght.

And the lande had rest fortye yeres.

Chap. vi.

Israel is oppressed of the Madianites: Gideon is sent to be their deliverer.

Jos. liii. a

And the chyldre of Israel *commpted wyckednes in the sight of the Lorde.

And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Madian seven yeres. And the bande of Madian preyed agayn. Israel and because of the Madianites, the chyldren of Israel made them denmes in the mountaynes and caues and stronge holdes. And woe Israel had sowne, the Madianites, the Amalechites & they of y cast countrey came vp together agayn them, and pyched they tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the earth, euen tyl thou come vnto Azah and leste no sustenance for Israel, neyther shepe, ore, or asse: for they went vp, they and theyr cattel, and came wth theyr tentes as a multitude of grethoppers, so that both they and also their camels were with out nombre. And they entred into the lande to destroye it. And so was Israel exceedingly im-perished in the sight of the Madianites, & cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde because of the Madianites, the Lorde sente vnto them a prophete, whych sayd vnto them. Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I fet you fro Egypt & brought you out of y house of bondage, and I red you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and out of the hande of all that oppressed you and cast the out before you, and gaue you theyr lande. And I sayd vnto you: I am y Lorde your God, *fear not the goddes of the Amorites in whose lande you dwell. But you haue not obeyed my voyce And the angell of the Lorde came, and late vnder an Oke whych was in Ephrah, that pertained vnto Joas the father of the Eserites. And his sonne Gideon pressed out wheate out of the eares in a presse, to hyde it from the Madianites: and the Angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, & sayd. The Lorde is wth the, thou mygh-tyn man of warre. And Gideon answered hym.

Whym Lorde, yf the Lorde be wth vs, why is all this come vpon vs? yea, and where be al his miracles whych our fathers tolde vs of, & said: Yf not the Lorde bypunge vs out of Egypt?
But now the Lorde hath forsaken vs, and de-liuered vs into the handes of the Madianites.

And the Lorde looked vpon hym, and sayd: Go hence in thys thy myght, and thou shalt deliuer

Israel out of the handes of the Madianites:

haue not I sent the? And he answered hym. O

Lorde, wher wth shal I saue Israel? Beholde, my kynred is poore in Manasses, & I am lytle in my fathers house. The Lorde sayd vnto hym

I wyll be wth the, and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered hym: O, yf I haue founde grace in thy sight, then shewe me a spgne, that it is thou that talkest wth me. Departe not hence, but yf

I come agayne vnto the, & tply I bypunge myne offspunge, and haue set it before the.

And he sayd: I wyll tarpe vntyll thou come agayne. And Gideon went in, and made ready a kyd, and swete kakes of an Ephra of floure, & put it wth the fleshe in a basnet, and put the broth in a pot, and brought it out vnto hym vnder the Oke, and presented it. And the angell of God sayd vnto hym. take the fleshe & the swete kakes, and laye them vpon thys rocke, & poure out the broth. And he dyd so. Then the angell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe that he helde in hys hande, and touched the fleshe and the swete kakes. And there arose vp fire out of the rocke, and consumed the fleshe and the swete ka-kes. But the angell of the Lorde vanished out of his sight. And when Gideon percepued that it was an angell of the Lorde, he sayd. Alas, O Lorde God, & haue I therefore sent an angell of the Lorde face to face, that I shulde dye? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym. peace be vnto the, fear not, thou shalt not dye. The Gideon made an aultare there vnto the Lorde, and called it: The Lorde of peace. And vnto thys daye it is yet in Ephrah, that pertayneth vnto y father of the Eserites. And it fortuneth that the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto hym: take a ponge bullocke out of thy fathers dreue, and another of vii. yeres olde, and destroye the aultare of Baal that thy father hath, and cut downe the grove that is by it, and make an aultare vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of thys rocke in a conuenient place. And take the seconde bullocke, and offer burnt sacrifice vpon the wood of the grove, whych thou shalt cut downe. The Gideon toke ten men of hys seruantes, and dyd as the Lorde bad hym. But because he durst not do it by daye for feare of hys fathers householde and of the men of the cytie, he dyd it by nyght.

And when the men of the cytie were vperly in the mornynge: Beholde, the aultare of Baal was broke, and the grove cut downe that was by it, and the seconde bullocke offered vpon the aultar that was made. And they sayde one to another: who hath done thys thyng? & when they enquired and asked, they sayd: Gideon the sonne of Joas hath done thys thyng. The the men of the cytie sayde vnto Joas. bypunge oute thy sonne, that he may dye, because he hath destroyed the aultare of Baal, and cut downe the grove that was by it. And Joas sayd vnto all that stode by him: wyl ye pleade Baals cause? or wyl ye be hys defenders? he that hath medled agaynst hym, let hym dye of the mornynge.

Jud. 1. 11. 12.

If he be a God let hym be auenged of hym that cast downe hys aulter. And from that day was Gedeon called: Jerobaal, because his father had sayde: Let Baal be auenged of hym, that hath broken downe hys aulter.

G All the Madianites therfore and the Amalekites and they of the east, were gathered together, and went, and pitched in the valey of Israel: but the spere of the Lorde came vpon Gedeon. * And he blew a trompet, & called: Abiezzer to follow him, & sent messengers thorow out al Manasses, & called the, which also dyd follow hym. And he sent messengers vnto Aser, Zabul & Nephtalim, and they came to mete hym.

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: wilt thou saue Israel in my hande, as thou hast sayd? Behold, I wyl put a fleece of wolle in y<sup>e</sup> threshing place. And yf the dewe come on the fleece onely, and it be drye vpon all the earth besyde then shall I be sure, that thou wylt saue Israel by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. For he rose vpearly on the morow, and thrust the fleece together, and wrong the dewe therout, & fylled a bowle of water: and Gedeon sayd agayne vnto God be not angry wth me, that I speake once more. For I wyl proue once agayne by the fleece. Let it be drye onely v<sup>o</sup> the fleece, and dewe vpon all y<sup>e</sup> grounde. And God dyd so that same nyght. For it was drye vpon the fleece only and there was dewe on all the grounde.

Jud. vii. 1

When Jerobaal (otherwise called Gedeon, & all the people that were with him) rose vpearly, and pitched besyde the wel of Harad, so that the hoste of y<sup>e</sup> Madianites were on y<sup>e</sup> Northsyde of y<sup>e</sup> Roche that boweth towarde the valley. And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon the people that are wth y<sup>e</sup> are to many for me to geue the Madianites into they<sup>r</sup> handes, lest Israel make they<sup>r</sup> vaunte agaynst me and saye. myne owne hande hath saued me. Howe therfore make a proclamation in the eares of y<sup>e</sup> people, & saye: * yf any mā drede y<sup>e</sup> be afterde, let him retorne. And y<sup>e</sup> people arose early. And there departed and returned of the people whiche were at mounte Silad. xxi. thousande, and there abode ten thousande.

Psalm. cxviii. 1. 2. 3.

And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: the people are yet to many, byng them downe vnto y<sup>e</sup> water, and I wyl tpe them vnto the there. And of whom I saye vnto the, this shall go wth y<sup>e</sup>, the same shall go wth the. And of whom I saye vnto the, this shall not go wth the, y<sup>e</sup> same shall not go. So he brought downe y<sup>e</sup> people vnto the water, and the Lord sayd vnto Gedeon: as many as lapped the water wth they<sup>r</sup> tonges as a dogge doth, them put by the selues, and so do them that knelt downe vpon they<sup>r</sup> knees to drinke. And the nombre of them that put their handes to they<sup>r</sup> mouthes and lapped, were. iii. hundred men. But all the remnant of the people knelt downe vpon their knees to drinke water. And the Lord sayd vnto Gedeon: By these three hundred men I lapped water, wil I saue you: & deliuer y<sup>e</sup> Madianites into thyne hande. And let al y<sup>e</sup> other people go euery mā vnto his place.

They therfore of the people toke vitayles wth them, and they<sup>r</sup> trompettes. And he sent all the reste of Israel, euery mā vnto hys tente, & comforted those three hundred wth hym. And y<sup>e</sup> host of Madian was bencht hym in a valeye. And it fortuned that the same nyghte the Lord sayde vnto hym: Arise, get the downe vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it into thyne hande. But yf thou feare to go downe, then go thou & Pharah thy ladde downe to the host, and thou shalt herken what they saye, and so shall thyne handes be stronge, to go downe vnto the hoste.

Then wente he downe and Pharah his ladde, euen harde vnto the men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites and all they of the East, lay a long in the valey, lyke a multitude of grasshoppers, and they<sup>r</sup> camelles were without nombre, euen as the lande by the see syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come Behold, there was a mā that tolde a dreame vnto hys neyghbour, and sayde: Beholde, I dreamed a dreame, & me thought that a lofe of barley breade, tumbled into the hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it yf it felle, and ouerturned it, that the tente laye a longe. And his felowe answered and sayde: this is nothyng elles saue the sweard of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel: for into his hand hath God deliuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon hadde the telling of y<sup>e</sup> dreame, and the interpretation of the same, he woz wth y<sup>e</sup>pped, and returned vnto the host of Israel: & sayd vp, for the Lord hath deliuered into your hand the hoste of Madian. And he deuyned y<sup>e</sup> three hundred men into three compaignes, and gaue euery mā a trompet in his hand, wth an empty ppycher, & lampes therein, & sayde vnto the. loke on me, & do likewise, that when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you: When I blowe wth a trompet and all that are wth me, blowe ye wth trompettes also on euery syde of the hoste, & say: here is the swearde of the Lord and of Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the three hundred men that were wth hym, came vnto the syde of the hoste in the begynnynge of the myddle watche, & repesed v<sup>o</sup> the watche men. And they blew wth their trompettes, and brake the pitchers that were in their handes. And all the three compaignes blew wth trompettes & brake the ppychers, & helde y<sup>e</sup> lampes in they<sup>r</sup> left handes, & the trompettes in they<sup>r</sup> right to blowe wthal. And they cryed: the swearde of the Lord & of Gedeon. And they stode still, euery man in hys place rounde about the hoste: And they within the hoste, ranne, and cryed and fled. And y<sup>e</sup> three hundred blew wth trompettes, & the Lord set euery māns swearde vpon his neyghbour, thorowe out all the hoste. And the host fled to Bethsitah, to zererath, and to the edge of the playne of Epholab vnto Eabath. And the men of Israel byng gathered together out of the trybe of Nephtalim, of Aser, & of all Manasses followed after y<sup>e</sup> Madianites.

And Gedeon sente messengers vnto all mounte Ephraim, saying: com downe agaynst the Madianites, and take before the the waters vnto Bethbarath and to Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together & toke the waters vnto Bethbarath, and to Jordā. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb, and folowed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and Zeb, to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

The. viii. Chapter.

And the men of Ephraim sayde vnto him why haste þu serued vs thus, thou calledst vs not, when thou wentest to fight wth the Madianites and they chode wth hym a

GOOD. (He had all most done hym violence.) And he sayd vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto pouces: is now a cluster of Ephraim better, then the wyne harvest of Abiezer? God hath deliuered into your handes þe Lordes of Madia, Oreb & Zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done? And then they spiritely abated from of hym, when he had sayde that. And Gedeon came to Jordan to passe ouer, he and the thre hundred men that were wth him, very saynte, and yet folowed the chace. And he sayd vnto the me of Socoth: geue I pray you cakes of breade vnto the people that folow me: for they be saynte, that I maye folowe after Zebath, and Zalmoua kunges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: are the handes of Zebath & Zalmoua nowe in thyne handes, that we shulde geue breade vnto thyne armie? Gedeon sayde, therfore when þe Lord hath deliuered Zebath and Zalmoua into myne hande, I wyl teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wyldernes and wth breeches. And he wente vp thence to Phanuel, and spake vnto them lykewyse. And the men of Phanuel answered hym, as dyd the men of Socoth. And he sayed also vnto the men of Phanuel when I come agayne in peace, I wil breake downe this towre. Zebath & Zalmoua were in Carkar, and they hostes wth them, vpon a xv thousande men, which were all þe were left of all þe hostes of the qte of Asht. For there was Rayne a hundred and twenty thousand me, that drew sweardes.

And Gedeon went thorow them þe dwelt in tabernacles on þe East syde of Robah & Jebah, & smote the host: for þe hoste dyd cast no perilles. And whan Zebath & Zalmoua fledde, he folowed after them, & toke þe two kunges of Madia, Zebath and Zalmoua, & discomforted all the hoste. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned fro battell, afore the sunne was downe, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, & enquired of him And he wrote of hym the lordes and elders of Socoth. lxxvii. men. And he came vnto the me of Socoth, and sayde: Beholde, here I haue Zebath and Zalmoua, with which ye dyd cast me in the tette, sayinge: are the handes of Zebath and Zalmoua alredy in thyne hande, that we shulde geue breade vnto thy sayntie men? And he toke the elders of the cyte, and thornes of the wyldernes and breeches, and made the men of Socoth to fele the. And he brake downe the towre of Phanuel, and slewe the men of the cyte.

And then sayde he vnto Zebath and Zalmoua, what maner of men were they whom ye slew at Chabor? and they answered: the lykenesse of the and them is all one, euen after the fasthyon of the chyldren of a kynge. And he sayde: they were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren. As truly as þe Lord spuech yf ye had saued they lyues, I wolde not slep you. And he sayde vnto Zether hys eldest sonne: vp and slepe them: But the lad dyd not hys swearde, for he feared, because he was yet yong. Then Zebath & Zalmoua sayde: Kysse thou, and faile vpon vs: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gedeon arose and slewe Zebath and Zalmoua, and toke awaye the ornaments, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon: Reygne þu ouer vs, bothe þe thy sonne & thy sonnes sonne, for þu hast deliuered vs out of þe pade of Madia. And Gedeon sayde vnto the: I wyl not reygne ouer you, neither shall my chyldre reygne ouer you, but the Lorde shall reygne ouer you.

And agayne Gedeon sayd vnto them: I wold desyre a certayne request of you, eue yf you wold geue me euery man the earynges of his praye. For they had golde earynges because they were Amaleites and they answered: We wyl geue the. And they spred a mantel, and dyd cast there in euery man the earynges of his praye: and the weyght of the golden earynges that he required was a thousande & seven hundred cycles of gold, besyde cheynes, pommanders and purple rayment that was on the kunges of Madian, & besyde the cheynes, that were about theyr camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, & put it in hys cyte Ephrah And all Israell went a whoring after it, in the saue place, whych the thynge became a ruyne vnto Gedeon and to his house. Thus was Madian brought low before the chyldre of Israel, so that they lyfte vp theyr heades no more. And þe countreye was in quietnes forty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaal þe sonne of Joas went, & dwelt in his owne house. And Gedeon had lxx. sonnes of hys body begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubine that was in Sichem, bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, in a good age, & was buried in the sepulchre of Joas hys father, euen in Ephrah, that perteyned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But it fortuneth, that as sone as Gedeon was dead, the chyldren of Israell turned awaye and wente a whoringe after Baalim, and made a counaunt wth Baal to be theyr God, and the chyldren of Israell thoughte not on the Lorde theyr god, whych had deliuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euery syde. Neether they wold theyr mercy on þe house of Jerobaal, otherwys called Gedeon, accordyng to all the goodnes whych he had shewed vnto Israell.

The. ix. Chapter.

Abimelech is made kynge.

Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal went to Sychem, vnto hys mothers brethren, and comuned with them & with all his mothers fathers kindred, saying sape I praye you, in the eares of all the inhabitants of Sychem: whether is better for you, & all the sonnes of Jerobaal (whych are. lxx. persons) reigne ouer you, eyther that one reygne ouer you: Remembre, that I am of your bone, and of your flesh. And hys mothers brethren spake of hym in the audience of the men of Sychem all these wordes, & they hartes were moued to folowe Abimelech. For they sayde he is our brother. And they gaue him. lxx. peces of syluer out of y<sup>e</sup> temple of Baal Berith. wher wyth Abimelech hyed wayne & lycht persons whych went with him. And he went vnto hys fathers house at Ephrah* and slewe all his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal: euen. lxx. persons wyth one stone notwithstanding, yet Joathā y<sup>e</sup> yongeste sonne of Jerobaal escaped for he hyd hym selfe: And all y<sup>e</sup> me of Syche gathered together, & al y<sup>e</sup> house of Hillo & came & made Abimelech kynge in y<sup>e</sup> playne, where y<sup>e</sup> great stone was by Syche.

st. pat. xxx. a

And when they tolde it to Joatham, he went and stode in the toppe of mount Garizim, & lycht up hys voyce, and cryed, and sayde vnto them: Herken vnto me you men of Sychem, that God make herken vnto you. * The trees went forth to anoynte a kynge ouer them, & sayde vnto the Olpue tree reygne thou ouer vs. But the olpue tree sayde vnto the Shulde I leane my fattenes, whych both goddes and men prayse in me, & go to be promoted ouer y<sup>e</sup> trees? And y<sup>e</sup> trees sayde to the fygge tree: come thou, and be kynge ouer vs. The fygge tree answered the. Shulde I forsake my sweetnes, and my good frute, & go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: come thou and be kynge ouer vs. The vyne sayde vnto them: Shulde I leane my wyne wher by I cheate both goddes and men, & go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayd all the trees vnto y<sup>e</sup> fyre bulbe: com thou & reygne ouer vs. And y<sup>e</sup> fyre bulbe sayd vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye will anoynt me kynge ouer you, then come, and put your trust vnder my shadowe. If no, the fyre come oute of the fyre bulbe, and waste the Cedre trees of Libanon.

iii. c. x. b.

C Nowe therefore, yf ye do truly & vncorruptly, to make Abimelech kynge and yf ye haue deale well with Jerobaal and hys house, & haue done vnto hym accordynge to the deservynge of hys handes, iudge ye. For eue he my father, fought for you, and aduentured hys lyfe and rydde you out of the hand of Adadian. And ye are risen up agaynst my fathers house this daye and haue sleyn hys chyldren, euen. lxx. persons wyth one stone, & haue made Abimelech y<sup>e</sup> sonne of his mayde seruant, kynge ouer the men of Sychem, because he is your brother yf ye then haue dealt truly & purely with Jerobaal & with his house this daye then reioyce ye with Abimelech, & let hym reioyce wyth you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I praye God a fyre may come out of Abimelech, and consume the men of Sychem & the house of Hillo. And that there may come a fyre from amonge the men of Sychem, and oute of y<sup>e</sup> house of Hillo, and consume Abimelech. And Joatham ranne away, and fledde, and went to Beer and dwelte there, for fear of Abimelech hys brother. When Abimelech had reygned thre yere, God sent a sperte of hate betwene Abimelech, and the me of Sychem. And the citezens of Sychem rayled vpon Abimelech, and wysshed that the wyckednes done to y<sup>e</sup>. lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal myght come on hym, & that God wolde lay the bloud of them vnto Abimelech the y<sup>e</sup> brother whych slewe them, and vpon the other men of Sychem whych apded him in y<sup>e</sup> kyllynge of hys brethren. And the citezens of Sychem set me to lay awayte for hym in the toppe of the mountaynes: whych men (whiche they called for hys commynge) robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

And Gaal the sonne of Abed came wyth hys brethren, and they gat them to Syche. And the men of Sychem put theyr confidence in him. And they went out into y<sup>e</sup> felde, & gathered in theyr grapes, and trode them, and made mery: & went into the house of theyr goddes, and byd eate and drinke, & cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Abed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sychem: that we shulde serue hym? Is he not y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Jerobaal? & zebul is his officer: Serue suche as come of y<sup>e</sup> hemoz the father of Sychem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue hym? wolde God thys people were vnder my hande, thā wolde I take Abimelech oute of the waye. And he spake agaynst Abimelech: make thyne hoste greater and go oute. And when zebul the ruler of the cite harde y<sup>e</sup> wordes of Gaal y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Abed, he was wrothe, & sent messengers vnto Abimelech pryuely, saying: behold, Gaal y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Abed and hys brethren be come to Sychem and beholde, they set the cite agaynst the. Nowe therefore up by nyght, thou & al the people that is wyth y<sup>e</sup>, and lye in wayte in y<sup>e</sup> felde. And rise early in the mornynge as soone as the sunne is up, and fall vpon the cite. And yf he and the people that is wyth hym, come out agaynst the, do to hym what thyne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose up, and all the people that were wyth hym by nyght. And they layd awayte agaynst Sychem in foure companies. And Gaal y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Abed went oute, and stode in the entrynge of the gate of the cite. And Abimelech rose up, & the folke y<sup>e</sup> were wyth him, from lpyng awayte. And when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to zebul beholde, ther come people downe from y<sup>e</sup> top of the mountaynes. And zebul sayde vnto hym: the shadow of y<sup>e</sup> hylls seme men vnto y<sup>e</sup> (as by y<sup>e</sup> route art y<sup>e</sup> discouered.) & Gaal answered agayne, and sayd se, ther come folke downe by the myddel of the land, & another company come a long by the playne of the charmays. Then sayd zebul vnto hym where is now thy mouth that sayde: what felowe is Abimelech, that we shuld serue him? Is not this the people that y<sup>e</sup> hast despised? Go out

And Abimelech, & the c<sup>o</sup>panies p<sup>r</sup> were wth hym, reached further, & stode in the entyrnge of the gate of the c<sup>yt</sup>ie. And p<sup>r</sup> two other c<sup>o</sup>panies ranne vpon all the people that were in p<sup>r</sup> feldes, & slewe them. And when Abimelech had fought agaynst the c<sup>yt</sup>ie all that daye, he toke it, & slew the people that was therein, & destroyed the c<sup>yt</sup>ie and lowed laith thow it. And when all the m<sup>e</sup> of the towre of Sichem heard that, they entred into a strong hold of p<sup>r</sup> house of their god Baal Berith, & where they made a bonne wth hym: & chere of vpon the place take the name, wth chere place was exceeding stronge.)

And it was tolde Abimelech, that all the m<sup>e</sup> of the towre of Sichem were gathered together, and Abimelech gat hym to mounte zelmo, both he and all the people that were with him, & toke axes wth hym & cut downe boues of trees, and toke the and bare them on his shulder, & sayd vnto the folke that were with hym: & what ye haue sene me do, speede poure selues, and do lyke wth as I haue done. And all the men p<sup>r</sup> were among the people, cut downe boues, & folowed Abimelech, & put them into the holde, and set the holde afyer by the. so that wth smoke and fyre) al p<sup>r</sup> m<sup>e</sup> of the towre of Sichem were slayne, vpon a thousande men and women.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez, and besegged it, & toke it. But there was a stronge towre wth in the cite, & thither ranne all the men and women, & all the chere that were in the c<sup>yt</sup>ie, and put it to the, & got them vpon (by the bulwarkes) to p<sup>r</sup> toppe of p<sup>r</sup> towre. And Abimelech cam vnto p<sup>r</sup> towre and fought agaynst it, & went hard vnto the doze of the towre to set it on fyre. And a certayne woman & caste a peece of a mylstone vpon hys heade, and all to brake hys brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto p<sup>r</sup> young man that bare his harnesse, and sayd vnto him: & drawe thy swearde & slee me, that men say not of me a woman slewe hym. And hys lad thruste hym thowowe and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was dead, they departed euery ma vnto hys owne house. And thus & the wthkednesse of Abimelech whych he dyd vnto hys father, in sleynge hys senentye brethren and therto all the wthkednesse of the men of Sichem, dyd God byynge vpon their heades. And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Jerobaal.

The .x. Chapter.

Thola and Jaie are Judges of Israel.

After Abimelech there arose, to defend Israel, one Thola (p<sup>r</sup> sonne of Phuah) his vnclesone, a ma of Isakar whych dwelt in Samir in mount Ephraim. And he iudged Israel .xiii. yere & dyed, & was buryed in Samir. And after hym arose Jaie a Gileadite, & iudged Israel .xii. yere. And he had thyrtye sonnes p<sup>r</sup> & rode on thyrtye Asse coltes, & they had thyrtye c<sup>yt</sup>ies, which are called p<sup>r</sup> townes of Jaie vnto this daye, & are p<sup>r</sup> lande of Gilead. And Jaie dyed & was buryed in Ramoth.

& And the chyldren of Israel wrought wthkednesse yet agayne, in the syght of the Lord, & serued Baalim & Ashtaroth, and the goddes of Syria, the goodes of Sidon, & the goddes of Moab, the goddes of the chyldren of Ammon, & the goddes of the Philistynes, and forsoke the Lord & serued not him. And the Lord was wroth wth Israel, & solde them into the handes of the Philistines, & into the handes of the chyldren of Ammon which fro that yere forth, p<sup>r</sup> yde & oppressed the chyldren of Israel. xviii. yere all that were on the other syde Jordan in p<sup>r</sup> lande of the Amorites whych is in Gilead. Moreover, p<sup>r</sup> chyldren of Ammon went ouer Jordan to fyght agaynst Juda, Ben Iamin, & the house of Ephraim so p<sup>r</sup> Israel was sore c<sup>o</sup>bred. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lord, saying: We haue synned agaynst the for we haue forsaken our owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And the Lord sayd vnto the chyldre of Israel dyd not y<sup>e</sup> Egypci<sup>s</sup> the Amourites, the chyldren of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Moabites oppresse pou: And ye cryed to me & I deliuered you out of theyr handes. And for all p<sup>r</sup> ye haue forsaken me, & serued straunge goddes, wherfore I will helpe pou nomore. Go and crye vnto the goddes whiche ye haue cholen and let them saue pou in the tyme of poure tribulacyon. And p<sup>r</sup> chyldre of Israel sayd vnto p<sup>r</sup> Lord: We haue synned: do p<sup>r</sup> vnto vs whatsoeuer please p<sup>r</sup> deliuer vs onely this day. And they put away p<sup>r</sup> straunge goddes from them & serued the Lord. And hys soule had pitie on p<sup>r</sup> miserie of Israel.

Then the chyldren of Ammon gathered together, and p<sup>r</sup>ched in Gilead. And the chyldren of Israel gathered them together, and p<sup>r</sup>ched in Mizpa. And the lordes of Gilead sayde eche to other: Whosoever wthl begynne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, the same shal be heade ouer all the enhabytors of Gilead.

The .xi. Chapter.

Jephthah driuereth Israel from the Ammonites.

And ther was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a stronge man, the sonne of an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah. And Gileads wyfe bare him sonnes, whiche when they were come to age thrust out Jephthah, and sayde vnto hym thou shalt not enheret in oure fathers house, for p<sup>r</sup> art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Jephthah fled from his brethren, and dwelt in p<sup>r</sup> land of Tob. And there gathered ydle (and thersche) men to Jephthah, and went out wth him. And it chaunced in processe of tyme that the chyldren of Ammon of oure handes, nether wolde he haue shewed vs all these thynges, nor wolde now he haue told vs any such. And the wyf bare a sonne, and called his name Samson. And the lady grewe, and the Lorde blessed hym. And the sprete of the Lorde beganne to moue hym in the hoste of Dan, be- t wene zaraah and Esthaol.

The xiii. Chapter.

The marriage of Samson. He killeth a lion. He playeth with a robbre. He killeth the Philistines. He taketh him a wife and taketh another.

Samson went downe to Thānath, and sawe a womā in Thānath of y<sup>e</sup> dought- ters of the Philistines, and he came vp, and tolde hys father and hys mother, & sayd: I haue sene a woman in Thānath of the doughters of y<sup>e</sup> Philistynes. And now geue me her to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayde vnto hym: Is ther neuer a woman among the doughters of thy brethren, and amonge all my people, but that thou muste go, and take a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistines? And Sam- son sayde vnto hys father: geue me this woman for she pleasech me well. But his father and mo- ther wyfte not that it was the Lordes doynge, & y<sup>e</sup> he sought an occasyon agaynst y<sup>e</sup> Philistines, for at y<sup>e</sup> tyme y<sup>e</sup> Philistines raigned ouer Irael.

Then wēt Samson & his father & his mother downe to Thānath, & came to the vncircumcised of Thānath. And behold, a pounce was lion roared vpon hym. And the spret of y<sup>e</sup> Lord came vpon hym. And he tare hym, as he wolde haue rent a kydder, and yet had nothyng in his hand, nether tolde hys father & mother what he had done. And he wēt downe, & talked wth the womā, which seemed well fauored in y<sup>e</sup> syght of Sāson.

And wythin a whyle space after as he wente thither agayne to take her to wyf, he turned out of the waye, to se y<sup>e</sup> carkasse of y<sup>e</sup> lion. And behold, ther was a swarme of bees and honp in the car- kasse of the lion. And he toke of the honp in his handes, and wente eatyng, & came to hys father and mother, and gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honp out of the carkasse of the lyon.

And so hys father came vnto the woman and Samson made ther a feast, for so vled the pong- ment to do. And whē they (the cyclopes of that place) sawe hym, they brought .xxx. companions to be wyth hym. And Samson sayd vnto the: I wyll nowe put forth a ryddle vnto you: And yf you can declare it me wythin .vii. dayes of the feast, and spnde it out, I wyll geue you .xxx. chynge, & .xxx. chaunge of garmetes: But and yf you can- not declare it me, then shal ye geue me .xxx. chyn- ges and .xxx. chaunge of garmetes. And they an- swered hym: put forth thy ryddle, that we maye heare it. And he sayde vnto them: Out of the ea- ter came meate: & out of the stronge came sweet- nes. And they coulde not in .iii. dayes expounde the riddle. And when y<sup>e</sup> seventh daye was come, they sayd vnto Sāsons wyfe: flater thyne hul- bande, on (and perswade hym) that he maye declare vs the ryddle, least we burne y<sup>e</sup> and thy fathers house wth fyre. Haue ye called vs hyther, to make vs beggers? And Sāmons wyfe wept before hym (complained) and sayd: Surely thou hatest me and lovest me not: for thou hast put forth a ryddle: vnto the chyldren of my folke and haste not tolde it me. And he sayde vnto her: Behold, I haue not tolde it my father and my mother, and shall I tell it the?

And Sāmons wyfe wepte before hym .vii. dayes, whyle the feast lasted. And the .vii. daye he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon hym. And she tolde it the chyldren of her folke. And y<sup>e</sup> men of the cytie sayde vnto hym y<sup>e</sup> seventh daye, before the sonne wente downe. What is sweeter then honp, & what is stronger then a lyon? Then sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed wyth my coulfe, ye had not founde out my ryddle. And the sprete of y<sup>e</sup> Lord came vpo hym. And he went downe to Askalō, & slewe thyrtye men of them, and spoyled them, & gaue chaunge of garmetes vnto them whych expounded the ryddle. And he was wroth, and wente vnto hys fathers house. But Sāmons wyfe was geuen for one of hys companions, that he had taken vnto hym.

The xv. Chapter.

Samson trech for his handes to the soe caples. Wech y<sup>e</sup> same bone of an alle he killeth a thousand men. Out of a greace to the in the talow, God gaue hym water.

It chaunced wythin a while after that Samson vspired hys wyfe wyth a kydder, sayng: I wyll go into my wyfe into y<sup>e</sup> chamber: but her father wolde not suffer hym to go in. And her father sayde: I thought that thou haddeste hated her, and therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy companions. Is not her ponger sister sayre then her? Take her in steade of the other. Samson sayde vnto the: How am I more blamelesse the the Philistines, & therfore wyll I do them displeasure.

And Samson went out, and caught thre hun- dred fores, and toke fyrebrandes, and fastened taylor to taylor, & put a fyrebrande in the myddes betwene two tayles. And whan he had set the brandes of fyre, he sent the oute, on (that they myghte come to the, whych went immediately) into y<sup>e</sup> standynge corne of the Philistines, and burnt vp bothe the reped corne and also the standynge, wyth te vncircumcised and olvers. Then y<sup>e</sup> Philistines sayd: Who hath done thys? And it was tolde them y<sup>e</sup> Samson the sonne in lawe of y<sup>e</sup> Thānite, be- cause he had taken hys wyfe, and geuen her to hys companion. And the Philistynes came vp and burnt her and her father wyth fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Though ye haue done thys, yet wyll I be auenged of you & then I wyll cease. And he smote them legges and thyrghs with a mightye plage. And then he went and dwelte in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistynes came vp, and pytched in Juda, & laye in (a place, that was afterwarde called) Lehy (that is a name bone, wher they had was fastened aboue.) And the men of Juda sayde, whych are ye com vp vnto vs? They answered: to bynd Sā- son are we come vp, and to do to hym as he hath done to vs. Then thre thousand men of Juda went downe to the caue of the rocke Etam, and sayd to Sāson: Wottest y<sup>e</sup> not y<sup>e</sup> the Philistines are are rulers ouer vs? Wherefore then hast thou done thus vnto vs? He answered the, * as they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto them.

And they sayd vnto him agayne: we are com downe to bynde the, and deliuer the into þe hād of the Philistines. And Samson sayd vnto the: <sup>or (þe prompte me)</sup> sweare vnto me, that ye shall not fall vpon me pour selues. They answered him, saying: No, but we wyll bynde the & deliuer the vnto theyr hādes. But we wil not kyll the. And they bounde hym with two newe cordes, and brought him from þe rocke. And whē he came to Lehi, þe Philistines counted agaynst hym. And the spyte of the Lord came vpon him, and þe cordes that were vpon his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt wth fyre, for the hādes loosed frō of his handes. And he founde a rotten sawe bone of an asse, and put for the his hande, and caught it, and slue a thousande men therewith.

And Samson sayd: wth the sawe of an asse haue I made hyppes of them: with the sawe of an asse haue I slayne a thousand men. And whē he had left speaking: he cast awaye the sawe bone out of his hande, and called the place: Ramath Lehi.

<sup>or (that is by interpretacion: the lyeing by or the sawe bone)</sup> And he was sore a thyrst, and called on þe Lord, and sayde: thou hast gyuen this great victorie, in the hande of thy seruante. And now I must dye for thyrst, and fall into the hādes of þe vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth þe was in the sawe, and there came water thereout. And when he had dronke his spyte came agayne, & he was refreshed, wherefore þe name thereof is called vnto this daye, the well of the caller on, which came of the sawe. And he iudged Israel in the dayes of the Philistines twentye yeres.

The .xviij. Chapter.

Samson lyeth by the gates of Gaza. He was deceived by Dalila. He putte downe the house vpon the Philistines, and dyed with them.

Other topes called Gaza.

Then went Samson to Azah, * and sawe there an harlot, & wth her vnto her. And it was tolde the Azathites: saying: Sāson is come hither. And they wth about, & layd wait for him there all night in þe gate of þe cite, & were styll all þe night, saying in þe morning when it is day we shall kyll him. And Sāson toke his rest tyl midnigh, & arose at midnigh, and toke the doores of þe gate of þe cite, & the two syde postes, & rent them of, with the barre and all, and put them vpon his shoulers, and caried th<sup>em</sup> in vnto the toppe of an hyl that is before Hebron.

And after th<sup>is</sup> it fortuneth, that by the ruer of Sorck, he loued a woman called Dalila: vnto whome came the lordes of the Philistines, and sayd vnto her: persuade hym, and se where in his great strength lyeth, and by what meane we maye overcome hym, that we maye bynde hym, to brynge hym vnder and enery one of vs shall geue the a leuen hundred seluerlinges.

And Dalila sayde to Samson: Oh, tell me where thy great strength lyeth, and howe thou myghtest be bounde, and brought vnder. Sāson answered vnto her: If they bynde me with seven greene wythes that were neuer dyed, I shall be weake as other men:

And then þe lordes of the Philistines brought her seven wythes that were yet greene and neuer dyed, and she bounde him therewith. And wth standyng she had men lyng in waye with her in the chaumbre. And she sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And immediately he brake the wythes as a stryng of towne <sup>or (that is twyned) breaketh</sup>, when it seleth fyre. And so his strength was not known.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: Se, thou hast mocked me & tolde me lyes. Nowe therfore tel me wherewith thou myghtest be bound. He answered her: yf they bynde me wth newe ropes þe neuer were occupied, I shall be weake, and as another man. Dalila therfore toke newe ropes, & bound him therewith, & sayd vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyes of waye in the chaumbre, & he brake th<sup>em</sup> in from of his armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalila sayd to Sāson, hitherto thou hast begyled me & tolde me lyes: yet tel me how thou myghtest be bounde. He sayde vnto her: If thou plattedest þe .vij. lockes of my heed wth an heere lace. And she fastened them with a nayle, and sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Sāson. And he awooke out of his slepe and plucked awaye the nayle that was in the plattynge with the heere lace. And she sayde vnto hym agayne: How canst thou saye that thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me? Beholde, thou hast mocked me this thre tymes, and hast not tolde me wherein thy great strength lyeth.

And as she laye vpon hym with her wordes continually vexing of him, his soule was enuied euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her all his herte, and sayd vnto her: there neuer shall be rasour vpon myne heed, for I haue bene an abscapner: <sup>or (that is to say consecrate)</sup> vnto God, euen from my mothers wombe therfore when I am shauen my strength wyll go from me, & I shall ware weake, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalila sawe that he hadde tolde her all his herte, she sente, and called for the lordes of the Philistines, saying: come vp yettisonnes, for he hath shewed me all his herte.

Then þe lordes of the Philistines came vnto her, & brought þe money in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her knees, & toke his shauen in her lap, and she let for a man, and he dyd shauie of the seven lockes of his heed, and began to bere him & his strength was gone from hym. And she sayd: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awooke out of his slepe, and sayde: I wyll go out now as at other tymes, and shall be my selfe, and he wyll not y<sup>e</sup> the Lord was departed from him. But the Philistines toke him, & put out his eyes, and brought hym downe to Azah and bounde hym with two fetters of brasse. And he dyd grynde in the prison house: howbeit the heere of his heed began to growe agayne after that he was shauen.

Then the lordes of the Philistines gathered the togyther for to offere a solempne offeryng vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayd:

our god hath deliuered Samson oute enemye into our handes. And when the people saw him they praised theyr god, for they sayde: our god hath deliuered into our handes our enemye and destroyer of our country, whiche slue manye of vs. And when theyr hertes were merue, it fortuned, that they sayde: sende for Samson, that he maye make vs laugh.

S And they set Samson out of the prison house, and he played before them, and they set hym betwene the pillers. And Samson sayd vnto the ladde that led hym by the hande: set me that I maye touche the pillers that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to them. And the house was full of men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the roote a thre thousande men and women that behelde whyle Samson played.

And Samson called vpon the Lorde, & sayd: O Lorde God thyngke vpon me, and strengthen me, at this tyme onely: O God that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my eyes. And Samson caught the two middle pillers on which the house stode, and on which it was bozne vp: the one in his right hand, & the other in his left, and sayde: my soule shall dye wth the Philistines, and bowed them wth all his myght. And the house fell vpon the lordes & vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deed whiche he did at his death were mo<sup>re</sup> then they which he did in his lyfe. And his brethren & all the house of his father came downe and toke hym vp, & broughte him and buryed hym betwene zarah and Estabol, in the burying place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Israel twentye yeres.

The xvii. Chapter.

Of Micah, whose mother made hym an ydole of syluer.

There was a man in mounte Ephraim named Micah, and he sayde vnto hys mother: the leue hundred syluerlinges that were taken from the about which thou curstest and spakest it in myne eares. Beholde, y<sup>e</sup> syluer is wth me, I toke it away. And his mother sayd: blessed be thou my son in y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. And whē he had restored the leuen hundred syluerlinges to his mother agayne, his mother sayd: I vowed y<sup>e</sup> syluer to the Lorde of myne hand for y<sup>e</sup> my son, y<sup>e</sup> thou shouldest make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Nowe therefore I will gyue it y<sup>e</sup> agayne. And whē he restored y<sup>e</sup> monye vnto his mother, his mother toke two hundred syluerlinges & gaue the to a goldsmith whiche made thereof a graue ymage, and an ymage of metall, and it was in the house of Micah. And the man Micah had a temple of goddes, and made an Ephod and Theraphim: (that is to saye a garment for the prest, and phylis.) And fylled the hand of one of his sones which became his prest. In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel, but euer y<sup>e</sup> mā dyd y<sup>e</sup> which was good in his own eyes.

And there was a yonge man out of Bethlehem Juda, of the kynred of Juda: which yonge man was a Leuite, and sojourned there. And y<sup>e</sup> man departed out of the cite of Bethlehe Juda, to good well where he coulde fynde a conuenient place. And he came to mount Ephraim to the house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayd vnto him: Whence comest thou? The Leuite answered hym: I am of Bethlehem Juda, and go to dwell where I may fynde a place (and whence I maye stype it to be for my prosper.) And Micah sayde agayne vnto hym: dwell with me and be vnto me a father and a prest. And I will gyue the ten syluerlinges by yere, two garnytes, and thy meate and drynke.

And the Leuite was content to dwell with the man, and was vnto him as one of his owne sonnes. And Micah consecrated the hand of the Leuite, and the yonge man became his prest, and was in the house of Micah. Then sayd Micah: now I am sure that the Lorde wyl be good vnto me: for I haue a Leuite to my prest.

The xviii. Chapter.

The children of Dan take the goddes and the prest of Micah away. They destroye Ais, and after burye it agayne.

In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought the an heritaunce to dwell in. For vnto y<sup>e</sup> tyme there fell none inheritance vnto them amonge y<sup>e</sup> tribe of Israel.

And y<sup>e</sup> children of Dan sent of theyr kynred, v. actiue mē in feates of warre out of their coostes, out of zarah & Estabol, to beue y<sup>e</sup> lād & seache it out, & sayd vnto them: go, & seache out y<sup>e</sup> lande. Which whē they came to mount Ephraim eue to y<sup>e</sup> house of Micah they lodged there. And when they were in y<sup>e</sup> house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of y<sup>e</sup> yonge mā the Leuite: and whē they turned in thither, they sayd vnto him: who brought the hither? what makest thou in this place? and what hast thou here? And he answered the: thus & thus dealeth Micah wth me, & hath hyred me, and I am become his prest. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: Aske counsaile now of God, that we maye knowe whether the waye whiche we go shall be prosperous or no. And the prest sayde vnto them: go in peace, for the Lorde gyddeth your waye which ye go.

warre. And they went vp and pitched in Mariath Jarim which is in Iuda. Wherfore they call the place, the hoost of Man vnto this daye: and it is on the backeside of Mariath Jarim: And they went thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to the house of Micah. The answered the fyue men þ went to spye out the countri of Laish and sayd vnto theyz bzethzen: wot ye not, that there is in these houses an Ephod, Cheraphim, a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall: Now therfore consydre what ye haue to do.

And they turned thitherwarde & came to the house of þ yonge man the Leuite, euen vnto the house of Micah, & saluted him peacably. And þ fyre hundred men gyrded w weapons of warre which were of the children of Man, stode by the entreynge of the gate. And the fyue men þ went to spye out the lande, went in thither and toke þ harned ymage and the Ephod, Cheraphim & the ymage of metall. And the prest stode in the entreynge of the gate w the fyre hundred men þ were armed vnto battayl, whyle the other wnt into Micahs house, and fet the harned ymage, the Ephod, Cheraphim and the ymage of metall.

Then sayd þ prest vnto the: what do ye? They answered him holde thy peace, laye thyn hand vpo the mouth, and come w vs to be our father and prest. It is better for the to be a prest vnto the house of one man then to be a prest vnto a tpye or kynred in Israel: And þ prest was glad and toke the Ephod and Cheraphim, and the grauen ymage, and wente with the people. And they turned & departed and put þ children the catel and theyz other substance befoze them.

And when they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men þ were in the houses, & in Micahs house, made out crye, & folowed after the children of Man, and called vnto them. And they turned theyz fyces, & sayde vnto Micah: what apleth the, that thou makest an out-crye? And he sayd: ye haue taken away my goddes which I made, and also the prest, and good your wayes with them. And what haue I more? howe then saye ye vnto me: what apleth the? And the chyldren of Man sayde vnto hym: let not thy voyce be hearde amonge vs, lest angre felowes ronne vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe with the lyues of thyn householde. And so the chyldren of Man went theyz wayes.

And whē Micah saw þ they wer to strong for hi, he turned, & wnt back vnto his house agayne. And they toke the thynges whiche Micah had made, and the prest which he had, and came vnto Laish, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mistrust, and smote them with the edge of the swearde, and burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, bycause Laish was farre from Sidon, and they had no meddlynge with any other man. And the cytie stode in the valleye that lyeth by Betherod.

And they bnilt them there a cite, and dwelt therein. * And called it Dan after the name of Dan theyz father whiche was borne vnto Israel. Howbeit, in very dede the name of the cytie was Laish at the begynnyng.

And the children of Dan set them vp the grauen ymage. And Jonathan the sonne of Gersō the sonne of Manasses & his sones were the prestes in þ tpye of Dan * vntyll they were caried away out of þ land captiue. And they set them vp the harned ymage whiche Micah made, all þ whyle that the house of God was in Silo.

The xix. Chapter.

Of the Temple, whose temple was by lapnoully killed in Sibra.

It chaunced in those dayes, whē there was no kynge in Israel, þ a certayne Leuite sojourning on the syde of mount Ephraim take to wyfe a concubine out of Bethlehe Iuda, & his concubine played the whore by him, and went away from him vnto her fathers house to Bethlehe Iuda, & there continued foure monethes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speake frendly vnto her, and to bryng her home agayne, haupng his lac with hym and a couple of asses.

And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damsell sawe hym, he reioysed of his comynge. And his father in lawe the damells father kepte hym. And the Leuite abode with hym thre dayes, and so they dydeate and drynke, and lodged there.

The fourth daye when they arose early in the morning, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damells father sayd vnto his sonne in lawe: co fort thyn hert with a morsell * of breed, & then go your way. And they sat downe, & dydeate & drynke bothe of them togyther. And the damells father sayde vnto the man: Be contente I praye the, and tarpe al nyght, and let thyn hert be merre. And when the man stode readye to depart, his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne, and tarpe all nyght there. And he arose vnto early the fyfth daye to departe, and the damells father sayde: comforte thyn herte: and they tarped vntyll after mydday. And they dydeate bothe of them togyther.

And when the man arose to departe w his concubine and his lad, his father in lawe the damells father sayd vnto him: beholde, the daye goeth fast awaye and draweth towarde euen, tarpe all night: at þ leest waye tarpe this daye here, þ thyn hert may be merre. And tomozow get you earlye vpon your waye, that thou mayest get the to thy tent. Nevertheless, the man wolde not tarpe, but arose & departed, & came as far as Jebus (which is at Ierusalem) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his lad with hym. And whē they were fast by Jebus the day was soze spent, and the yonge man sayde vnto his master: come I praye the, & let vs turne in, into this cytie of the Jebusites, and lodge all nyght there. His master answered him: we wpll not tourne in to a straunge cytie that are not of the chyldren of Israel: we wpll go forth to Gibea. And he sayde vnto his lad: goo forwarde, and we shall come to one of these places, to lodge al nyght either in Gibea or in Rama. And they went soze warde vpon theyz waye, and þ sunne went downe vpo them, when they were fast by Gibea which belongeth to them of Ben Jamin And they turned thitherward to go in a lodge all nyght in Sibea. And when he came he late him downe in a strete of the ctye, for there was no mā that toke them to lodgyng. And beholde there came an old man from his worke, out of y<sup>e</sup> felde at enen, which was also of mount Ephraim, and dwelt as a straūger in Sibea. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Jamin.

E And when he had lyfte up his eyes, he sawe a wayfaryng man in the stretes of y<sup>e</sup> ctye. And y<sup>e</sup> olde man sayd: whither goest thou? And whēce camest thou? He answered hym: we came from Bethlehē Juda, toward the syde of mount Ephraim fro thence am I, and I went to Bethlehēm Juda, & go now to the house of the Lord. And there is no mā that receyue me to house. We haue strawe & prouandze for our asses, and breed & wyne for me & thy handmayde, and for the lad that is wth thy seruānt: & we lack nothing.

The olde man sayd: peace be wth the, all y<sup>e</sup> thou lackest shalt thou fynde wth me. onely abyde not in y<sup>e</sup> strete all nyght, and so he brought him into his house, and gaue foddze vnto his asses. And they washed their feet & did eate & drynke. And as they were making their bertes merp, behold the men of the ctye which were wicked, beset y<sup>e</sup> house round about, and thrust at y<sup>e</sup> doze & spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: bring forth the man that came into thyne house that we maye knowe hym.

And the man of the house, the olde mā wēt out, and sayde vnto them: Oh maye my brethren do not so wickedly, seeing that this man is come into myne house. doo not so vnnete a thyng. Beholde, here is my daughter, a mayden, and this mans concubine, them wil I bring out now vnto you, and hūble them, and do wth them what semeth you good: but to this man do not so abhominable a thyng. But the mē wolde not hearken to him. And the mā toke his concubine, and brought her out vnto the, which knewe her and abused her all y<sup>e</sup> nyght, eue vnto y<sup>e</sup> morning. And when the daye began to spyng, they let her go.

And the came the woman in the dawning of the daye, and fell downe at y<sup>e</sup> doze of the mans house where her lord was: for it was daye. And her lord arose vp in the morninge, & opened the dozes of the house & wēt out to go his way. And Beholde, the woman, euen his concubine lay a longe befoze the doze of the house, and her handes stretched out vpon the thresholde. And he

he (charynge her to haue bene aske) sayd vnto her: vp and let vs be goig. But she answered not. The man he (perceyvinge that she was deed) toke her vp vpo an Asse, and stode vp, and gate hym vnto his owne home. And when he was come to his house, he toke a knyfe and caught his concubine and deuyded her with the bones into twelue peeces, and sēt her into all quarters of Israel. And all that sawe it sayde: there was no suche dede done oz seene syns the chyldren of Israel came out of Egypt vnto this daye, consydze the matter, take aduilement and save your myndes.

The xx Chapter.

The battayle of the Israelites agaynst the typhes of Ben Jamin, for the Leuite wyfe which was kylled.

Uhen all y<sup>e</sup> chyldren of Israel went out: and the congregacion was gathered together as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Beerseba, and vnto the lande of Gilead vnto the Lorde in Elisha, & there stode folke out of all quarters and of all the trybes of Israel, in the congregacion of the people of God foure hundred thousande footemen that drewe swerdes. And when the chyldren of Ben Jamin herde that the chyldren of Israel were gone vp to Elisha, and had sayde: O ye chyldren of Israel tell vs howe this wyckednesse happened.

And the Leuite the womans husbāde y<sup>e</sup> was slayne, answered and sayd, I came vnto Sibea that is in ben Jamin wth my concubine to lodge all nyght and the mē of Sibea arose agaynst me, & beset the house rounde about vpon me by nyght and thought to haue slayne me, & my concubine hane so forced y<sup>e</sup> she is deed. And I toke my concubine, and cut her in peeces, and sente her thorowout al y<sup>e</sup> landes of the enheritaunce of Israel. For they haue committed abhominacions folp in Israel. Behold, ye are al chyldre of Israel. Donde this matter, & gyue your aduise in the case.

And al the people arose as it had ben one mā, saying there shal not a mā of vs go to his tent, neither turne into his house. But this shal be it y<sup>e</sup> we wyl do to Sibea. We wil go vp by lotte agaynst it. And we wyl take ten men of the hundred thorowout all the trybes of Israel, and an hundred of the E, and a thousand out of x. E. to set bytyle for the people to make that they may go agaynst Sibea Ben Jamin, by cause of all the abhominacion, that they haue wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israel gathered together agaynst the ctye, knyt together as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Israel sent men thorowe all the trybe of Ben Jamin, saying: what wickednesse is this that is happened among you? Now thefore deliuer vs the mē, these chyldre of Belial which are in Sibea, y<sup>e</sup> we may slay the, & put a waye out from Israel.

Neuerthelater, the chyldren of Ben Jamin wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the y<sup>e</sup> brethren the chyldren of Israel: but gathered the selues together out of y<sup>e</sup> ctyes vnto Sibea, to com out and fyght agaynst the chyldren of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin were nombred at that tyme out of the ctyes xxvi. thousand mē that drewe swerdes, besyde the inhabitours of Sibea, which were nombred seven hundred cholf men. And amonge all these folke were seven hundred left handed men, which euerye one coulde spynge stones at an heer breadth, and not mylde. And the chyldren of Israel besyde Ben Jamin, were nombred foure hundred thousand men that drewe swerdes, and were all men of warre.

And the chyldre of Israel arose, & went vp to Bethel, & asked counsaile of God who should begin the battayle agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord sayde: Juda shal begyn. And the chyldre of Israel stode vpearly and besieged Sibea.

Gibeā. And the men of Israel went out to battell agaynste Ben Jamin, and the men of Israel put them selues in aray to fyghte agaynste them, besyde Gibeā. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out of Gibeā, and destroyed of the Israelites that daye. xxii. thousande men, and brought them to the earthe.

And the folke of the chyldren of Israel plucked vp theyr hertes, and went to agayn, & made battell in the same place where they dyd the fyrst daye. And the chyldren of Israel went vp and wepte before the Lorde vnto euen, and asked of the Lorde, sayinge. Shall we go agayne to battayle agaynste the chyldren of Ben Jamin oure brethren? And the Lorde sayde: go vp agaynste them. And the chyldren of Israel came out agaynste the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde day. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin wet agaynst them out of Gibeā, the second daye, and destroyed to the earthe of the chyldren of Israel once agayne. xxiij. thousande men that drew sweardes euery man of them. Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people wente vp and came vnto Bethel, and wepte and satte there before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burnt offerynges and peace offerynges before the Lorde. And the chyldren of Israel asked the Lorde for there was the arke of the apoyntment of God in those dayes. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, sonne of Aaron waytyng vpon it at that tyme, sayde. Shall I get me vp to go out any more to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin my brethren, or shal I cease? The Lorde sayde: go for to morowe I wyll deliuer them into your handes. And Israel set byars a wayte rounde about Gibeā. And the chyldren of Israel went vp agaynste the chyldren of Ben Jamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in aray agaynst Gibeā, as tyme before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out agaynste the people, and were drawen awaye from the citie. And they began to smyte of the people dead (as tyme before, by two bye wayes of whiche one goth vp to Bethel & the other to Gibeā thowow the felde) vpon a thyrtye myle of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin sayde. They are fallen before vs, as at the fyrste. But the chyldren of Israel sayde: let vs flye and plucke them awaye from the cypre, vnto the bye wayes.

And all the men of Israel rose vp out of theyr place, & put the selues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lyke wyle the lyers in wayte of Israel came forth out of theyr places, euē out of the medowes that were about Gibeā, & came agaynst Gibeā ten thousande chosen men out of all Israel, & there was a sore battell. But the other wyll not that so great euil was to nye the. And the Lord plagued Ben Jamin before Israel, & the chyldren of Israel destroyed of the Beniamites the same daye. xxv. thousande & an hundred myle, & drew sweardes euery one of them. And whā the chyldren of Ben Jamin saw that they were put to the worst the men of Israel gaue rōme to the Beniamites, because they trusted vnto the lyers in wayte which they had layd besyde Gibeā. And the lyers in wayte halted, and ranne vpon Gibeā, & went & smote all the cypre with the edge of the swearde. And an apoyntment had the men of Israel fro the lyers in wayte that they shulde make a great smoke wyle vp out of the cypre. And when the men of Israel stood in the battell Ben Jamin began to smyte deade of the chyldren of Israel, aboute a thyrtye personnes, and sayde: the other are put to the worse before vs, as in the fyrst battell. But whā there began to aryse out of the cypre a pyllet of smoke, the Beniamites looked backe: and beholde, the wastynge of the hole cypre began to ascende vp to heauen.

When the men of Israel also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamin were abashed, for they saw the euell apzched them. And therfore they turned theyr backs before the men of Israel vnto the waye that leadeh to the wilderness, but the men of warre ouertok the. And besyde that, they which came out of the citie, destroyed them in the middle of the. And thus they compassed the Beniamites about, & chased the to Menuba, & ouer rāne the to Gibeā on the east syde: & ther were slaine of Ben Jamin. xviij. thousande, which were all men of warre. And they turned & fled to the wilderness warde, & vnto the rocke of Rimmon. And the other shue by the waye of the rest of the, thre thousande men, & sticked vnto the, vntill they came to Gibeā, & shue two thousande men of the. So that all that were slayne the same daye of Ben Jamin were. xxv. thousande men & drew sweardes, which were all men of war: onely xl. hundred men turned & fled to the wilderness, vnto the rocke of Rimmon, & abode there. iij. monethes. And the men of Israel turned backe agayn vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin, & smote the with the edge of the swearde in the cypres, both man and beast and all that came to hande, and set on fyre all the cypres that they culde come by.

The xxi. Chapter.

The inhabitants of Gilead are utterly destroyed.

And euery mā of Israel sware i Mizpa, sayeng: there shal none of vs geue his daughter vnto any of the Ben Jamin to wyf. And the people came to Bethel & abode there tyll euen before God, and lyfte vp their voyces, & wepte sore, & sayd. O Lord God of Israel, wher is this chaunced in Israel, that there shulde be this daye one tribe lackynge in Israel? And on the morowe the people rose vp betyme, and made there an aultare and offered burnt offerynges and peace offerynges.

And the chyldren of Israel asked, who are they among all the trybes of Israel, that came not vp to the cōgregation vnto the Lorde: for they had made a greate othe concernyng him that came not vp to the Lord to Mizpa, sayeng: he shal surely dye. And the chyldren of Israel had pytie on Ben Jamin theyr brethren, & sayde: there is one trybe cut of fro Israel this daye: what shall we do vnto the remnant of them, that they maye haue wyues? we haue sworn by the Lorde: that we wyll not geue them of oure daughters to wyues. And they sayde: Is there any of the trybes of Israel, that came not vp to Mizpa to the Lorde? And behold, there came none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead vnto the hooste and congregacon.

The booke of Ruth

The fyrst Chapter.

Elimelech goeth with his wyfe and chyldren into the lande of Moab.

In the dayes of a certayne Judge when the iudges iudged there fell a darthe in the lande, and a certen mā of Bethlehem Juda wete for to sojourne in the countrey of Moab: he and his wyfe, and his two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelech, & the name of his wyfe, Naomi and the names of his two sonnes were, Mahlon and Chilion, and they were Ephraimites, out of Bethlehem Juda. And when they came into the lande of Moab, they continued there. And Elimelech Naomys husbände dyed, and she remayned wth her two sonnes whyle the wyues of the nations of the Moabites. The first name was Orpha, & the others Ruth: And they dwelled there about a ten yere. And Mahlon & Chilion dyed also euen both of them, and the woman was left desolate of her two sonnes & of her husbände. Then stode she vp with her daughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she had hard say in the countrey of Moab, how the Lorde had visited his people, & geue them breade. Wherefore she departed out of the place where she was, & her two daughters wth her. And they went on theyr way to returne vnto the land of Juda. And Naomi sayd vnto her two daughters in lawe: go & returne eche of you vnto your mothers house & the Lorde deale as kyndly wth you, as ye haue deale wth the dead: and wth me. And the Lorde geue you, if you may fynde rest, eueher of you in the house of her husbände. And whan she kyssed the, they lyft vp their voyce, & wepte, and sayde vnto her: we wyl go wth the vnto thy folke. And Naomi sayde: turne agayne my daughters: for what cause wil you go wth me? Are there any mo chyldren in my wombe, to be your husbandes? Turne agayne my daughters, & go: for I am to olde to haue an husbände. And yf I sayd, I haue hope, yf I toke a mā also this nyght: yee & though I had already borne sonnes, wolde ye stay after them, tyll they were of age: or wolde ye for them so longe refrayne fro takinge of husbandes? Not so my daughters: for it greuethe me muche for your sakes that the hande of the Lorde is gone out agaynst me.

And they lyfte vp theyr voyces, and wepte agayne, and Orpha kyssed her mother in lawe but Ruth abode still by her. And Naomi sayd: se, thy systyr in law is gone backe agayne vnto her people and vnto her goodes: returne thou after her. And Ruth answered entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne from after the: for whither thou goest, I wyl go also, and where thou dwellest, there I wyl dwell: thy people shal be my people, and thy god my god. Where thou dyest there wyl I dye, and there wyl I be buryed. The Lorde do so & for me, yf ought but death

For the people were vexed, and beholde: there were none of the inhabitants of Iabes Gilead ther. And sent theyther a multitude, euē xii. thousand men of the strongest of them, and commaunded them, saying go and slay the inhabitants of Iabes Gilead wth the edge of the swearde, both women and chyldren. * And this is it that ye shal do, vterly destroye all the males and all the women that haue lyen by men. And they founde amonge the inhabitants of Iabes Gilead foure hundred damocelles, virgyns, that had knowen no man, by lyenge wth any male. And they brought them vnto the boote to Silo, whiche is in the lande of Canaan.

And the hole congregacion sent and spake wth the chyldre of Ben Jamin y<sup>e</sup> were in the Roche of Rimmon, and called peace ably vnto them: and Ben Jamin came agayne at that time, and they gaue them wyues whiche they had laued alpye of the wemē of Iabes Gilead. But they sufficed them not. And the people had compassion on Ben Jamin, because that God had made a gappe in the trybes of Israell. And then the elders of the congregacion, sayd: what shal we do to the remnant of them, to get them wyues, seying al the wyues, of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde: there muste be an enherytaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin, that a trybe be not destroyed oute of Israell: howbeit, we may not geue them wyues of oure daughters. For the chyldren of Israell had swoyne, saying: cutted be he, that geueth a wyfe to Ben Jamin.

Then they sayde: beholde, there is a feaste of the Lorde perly in Silo, whiche is on the north syde of Bethel, and on the east syde of the waye that goeth from Bethel to Sichē & south from Libanon. Therefore they commaunded the chyldren of Ben Jamin, sayinge: go & lye in wayte in the vineyardes. And whan ye se the daughters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye oute of the vineyardes, and catche you euery man a wyfe of the daughters of Ben Jamin. And whan theyr fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we wyl saye vnto them haue pytie on vs for theyr sakes, because we refused not to eche mā his wyfe in tyme of warre. Neether haue ye geuen vnto them, that ye shuld lpyne at this tyme.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd euen so: and toke them wyues accordyng to the nombre of them that daunced, whom they caught. And they went, and returned vnto theyr enheritaunce, & repayred the cities and dwelt in them.

And the chyldren of Israel departed thence at that tyme, and wente euery man to his trybe, and to his kyndred, & went out from thence euery man to his enheritaunce. * In those dayes there was no kyng in Israell but euery man dyd that whiche seemed ryght in his owne eyes.

And so they wet both, vntil they came to Beth-the womē sayd is not thys Naomi? And she an-to Bethlehe, in p begynnyng of Barley haruest.

The ii. Chapter.

Booz gathereth corne in the felde of Naomi.

And Naomis husband had a kynsmā of strength and myght, which was of p kynred of Elimelec named Booz.
And Ruth the Moabiteſſe sayde vnto Naomi: let me go to the felde, and gather ea-res of corne. <sup>(suche as the reapers leaue after any mā</sup> <sup>in whose syght, I fynde grace. And she sayd vn-</sup> to her: go my doughter. And she went and came to the felde, and gathered after the reapers, and her chaunce was, that the same felde perteyned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elime-lec. And behold, Booz came from Bethlehem, & sayde vnto the reapers: the Lorde be wyth you.
And they answered hym: the Lorde blesse the.
When sayd Booz vnto his pong man that stode by the reapers: Whose damosell is thys? And p ponge man that stode by the reapers answered, & sayde: it is p Moabytyſh damosell, p came w Naomi out of p cōtreyp of Moab. & she sayd vnto vs: Oh let me lease & gather after the reapers the Tares that remaine: and so she came, & hadde continued euen from the mornynge vnto now, & saue that she tarped a lytle in the house.

She sayd Booz vnto Ruth hearest thou my doughter: go to no nother felde to gather, neither go from hence: but abyde here by my maydens.
Let thyne eyes be on the felde p they may reape, & go thou after p maydens: haue I not charged the ponge men, that they shall do the no hurte?
Moreover, whē p art a thyrt, go vnto p vessels & dypke of p which p laddes haue drawen. Thē she fell on her face and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and sayd vnto him: how is it p I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and that thou shuldest knowe me, sayyng I am an aliaunt?

And Booz answered & sayde vnto her: all is told & shewed me. p thou hast done vnto thy mother in law, sence p death of thyne husband, how thou haste leste thy father & thy mother, and the lande where thou wast borne, & art come vnto a nacion whych thou knewest not in tyme passed.
The lorde quyte thy worke, and a full rewarde be geuen the of the Lorde God of Isracil. vnder whose wynges thou art come to abyde. Then she sayde: let me fynde fauour in thy syghte my lorde, thou that haste comforted me, and spoken partely vnto thy mayde, whych yet am not like vnto one of thy maydens. Booz sayde vnto her agayne. in tyme of resecyon comethou hyther, and eate of the breade, and dyp thy loppe in the vyneger. And she satte downe by the reapers, & he reached her parched corne of the whych she byd eate, and was suffised, and leste parte. And when she was rysen vp to gather, Booz commaunded his ponge men, sayyng: let her gather euen amonge the heapes, & forbide her not. And leauē her some of the sheues for p nonce and let it lye, p she maye gather it vp, & <sup>(wythout shame)</sup> rebuke her not. And so she gathered in the felde, vntyl euen, & threſhed that she had gathered, & it was in measure vpon an Ephah <sup>(p is thre bushels)</sup> of barley. And she toke it vp, and went into the cytye: & whā her mother in lawe had sene what she had gathered, she plucked out also, and gaue to her that she had receyued, when she had eaten ynough. And her mother in lawe sayd vnto her: where haste thou gathered to daye: and where wroughtest thou: blessed be he, that knewe the.

And she shewed her mother in lawe howe she had wrought wyth hym and sayde: the mannes name wyth whom I wrought to daye is Booz. And Naomi sayd vnto her doughter in lawe: blessed be he of the Lorde, for he ceaseth not to do good to the lyuyng and to the dead. And Naomi sayd agayne vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, & of our nerte kynne. And Ruth the Moabite sayd: he sayde vnto me also. Thou shalt be wyth my pong men, vntyl they haue ended al my haruest.
And Naomi answered vnto Ruth her doughter in lawe: it is best my doughter that thou go out wyth hys maydens, that they fall not vpon the in any other felde. And so she kepte her by the maydens of Booz, to gather, vnto the ende of barley haruest, and of wheate haruest also: and dwelt wyth her mother in lawe.

The iii. Chapter.

Booz reapech at Booz fete, and is knowne by his woman.

When Naomi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my doughter shal I not seke raiste for the, p thou mayst prosper?
And is not Booz our kynsmā, wyth whose maydens p wast? Behold, he wenoweth barley to night in the threslyng floure: washe thy selfe therfore, and anoynte the, and put thy raymēt vpo the, & get p downe to p barne. But let not a mā knowe of p, vntyl he haue leste eatyng & dypnyng. And whē he goeth to sleape, marke the place where he layeth hym downe, & then go & lyfte vp the clothes, that are on hys fete, & laye the downe there, and so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. And she answered her: all that thou bydest me, I wyll do. And so she went downe vnto the barne, & byd accordyng to all that her mother in lawe badde her.

And when Booz had eaten and droncken, and made him mery, & was gone in, to lye down besyde p heape of corne, she came softly, & lyfte vp the clothes of his fete, & layd her downe. And at mydnight the man was a frapde & groped. And beholde, a woman laye at his fete. And he sayd: what art thou? she answered: I am Ruth thyne handmayd

handmayde sprecade thy wyng ouer thyne hand: mayde, for þu art the nerte of the kynne. he sayd: blessed be thou in the Lorde my daughter, for þu hast shewed more goodnes in the later ende, than at þe begynnynge, in as much as thou folowdest not yong men, whether they were poore or riche. And nowe my daughter feare not, I wyll do to þe all þe thou requyrest, for al þe cite of my people dothe knowe, that þu art a womā of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nert kynne howbeit, there is one nyer than I. Carrye thys nyght. And when moornyng is come, if he wil marrye the, it is good, so let hym do. But and if he wyll not haue the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth I wyll haue the: I ye styll vntyll the moornyng. And she arose vp before one coude knowe another. And he sayde: let no man knowe, that there came any woman into the barne. And he sayde agayne byng the mantell that thou hast vpon the, and hold it vp. And whan she helde it vp, he mette in syre measures of barley, and layde it on her. And she gat her into the cite, & whan she came in to her mother in law, she sayd how is it to the my daughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And sayde also: these syre measures of barley gaue he me, & sayd þu shalt not come empty vnto thy mother in lawe. & she sayde the my daughter, syt styll, vntyll þu knowe howe þe matter wyll chaunce. For the mā wyll not be in rest, vntyll he haue synyshed þe thyng this same daye.

The.iii. Chapter.

Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whom he begetteth Obed.

When went Booz vnto þe gate & sat him downe there. & beholde the kynsman of which Booz spake, cam by. & into whō he layde come and syt downe here, and called hym by hys name. And he turned in, & sat downe. And he toke ten men of the elders of þe cite, & sayd: syt ye downe here. And they sat downe. And he sayde vnto the kynsman: Naomi that is come agayne out of the countrey of Moab: wil sel a parcel of land, which was our brother Elimelech. And I thought to do þe to wet, & byd the bye it before þe inhabitours & elders of my people. If thou be disposed to redeme it, do: but & if thou wylte not purchase it, then tell me, that I maye knowe. For there is none to chalenge it, save thou, and I next the. And the other answered, I wyll purchase it.

Then sayde Booz, what day þu byest the felde of the hande of Naomi, þu muste take also Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of the dead, to stee vpon the name of þe deade vpon hys enheritaunce. The kynsman answered: I cannot purchase it, for marryng of myne owne enheritaunce: take þe my ryght to þe, for I cannot purchase it. Nowe this was þe maner of olde tyme in Israel concerninge purches & chaunging, for to stablish al thing: þe a man muste plucke of his shooe and geue it hys neighbour, & this was a sure witnesse in Israel.

Therefore þe kynsman sayde to Booz: Wye it thou: & so byue of his shooe. And Booz sayd vnto þe elders & vnto all þe people: ye are wytnesses this day, þe I haue bought al þe was Elimelech,

& all that was Chilion & Mahlons, of the hande of Naomi. And mozeouer, Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahlon, haue I purchased to be my wyfe, to stee vpon the name of the dead vpon hys enheritaunce, and that this name be not put out from amonge hys brethren, and from the gate of hys place: ye are wytnesses thys daye.

And all the people that were in the gate, & the elders sayde: we are wytnesses: the Lorde make the woman that is come into thyne house, lyke Rachel and Lea, whiche twayne dyd byrde þe house of Israel: do þe also valeauntly in Ephraim, and be famouse in Bethlechem. Thy house be lyke the house of Pharez: whom Thamar bare vnto Iuda, euen of the sede whiche the Lorde shall geue the of thys pouge woman.

And so Booz toke Ruth, & she was his wyfe. And whan he went in vnto her, the Lord gaue, & she conceived, & bare a sonne. And the women layde vnto Naomi: blessed be the Lord, þe which hath not left the wythout a kynsman, to haue a name in Israel, and that shall bynge thy lyfe agayne, & cherishe thyne old age. For thy daughter in lawe whiche loueth the, hath borne vnto hym. & she is better to the than seuen sonnes. And Naomi toke the chyld, and layed it in her lappe, & became nourse vnto it. And her neyghbour gaue it a name, saying: the re is a chyld borne to Naomi, & called it Obed the same is the father of Isai, the father of Dauid. These are the generacions of Pharez: Pharez begat Hezron: Hezron begat Ram, Ram begat Amminadab, Amminadab begat Mahlon, Mahlon begat Salmon, Salmon begat Booz, Booz begat Obed, Obed begat Isai, Isai begat Dauid.

praye and to offere vnto þe Lord of hostes in Silo, where were the two sonnes of Eli (Hophny & Phinehas) the Lordes preastes. And it fell on a solempne daye, that Elkana offered, and gaue to Phinehas his wyfe and to all her sonnes and daughters porcyons. But vnto Hanna he gaue a porcion with a heuy chere, for he loued Hanna, & the Lord had made her barren. And her enemy (Phinehas) vered her sore continually, to moue her, because the Lord had made her barren. And so dyd she yere by yere as ofte as she wot vp to þe house of the Lord. And so chafed her, whyche wept, & dyd not eate. Elkanah sayd to Hanna, why wepest thou: and why eatest thou not: & why is thyne herte troubled: am I better to þe, then ten sonnes? So Hanna rose vp after þe they had eaten & droncke in Silo. And Eli the preaste satte vpon a stole by one of the fyre postes of the temple of þe Lord. And she was troubled in her mynde, & prayed vnto þe Lord, & mente sore, & vowed a vowe, & sayd.

Lord of hostes, yf thou wolt loke on þe trouble of thine handmayd & remembre me, & not forget thine handmayd but geue vnto thyne handmayd a man child: I wil geue him vnto þe Lord all þe dayes of his lyfe, & ther shal no raser come vpon his head. And as she continued praying before the Lord, it fortuned þe Eli marked her mouth. For Hanna spake in her herte, & her lippes dyd but moue onely, but her voyce was not hard and therefore Eli thought she had bene dronke, and he sayde vnto her: howe longe wylt thou be dronken: put awaye from the the wyne þe thou hast. Hanna answered and sayde not so my lord, I am a woman of a sorowfull herte: I haue dronke neither wyne nor stroge dryncke, but haue & powdered out my soule before the Lord. Count not thyne handmayde to be lyke a daughter of Belial, for out of the aboundance of my heuyenes and grete haue I spoken byther to.

Eli answered her agayne: and sayde, go in peace the God of Israel graunt the thy petition, that thou hast asked of hym. She sayd let thine handmayd fynde grace in thy syght. And so the woman went her waye, and dyd eat, and toke no more so sad. And they rose vp earlye, & worshipped before the Lord, and then returned, and came to theyr house to Ramath. And when Elkana knewe Hanna his wyfe, the Lord remembred her, for in proceffe of tyme it came to passe, that she conceived, and bare a sonne, and called his name Samuel sayinge: because I haue asked hym of the Lord. And Elkana and all hys house wente vp to offer vnto the Lord, the offeringe due for the feast, and also hys vowe: Nevertheless, Hanna wot not vp but sayd vnto her husband: I wyl tary vntyl the lad be weyned, & then I wyl bring hym that he maye appeare before the Lord, and there abyde for ever. Elkana her husbände answered her: do what semeth the best tary at home, vntyl thou hast weyned him, and I beseeche þe Lord, to make good his saying. And so the womā abode, & gaue ver sonne sucke vntyll she weyned hym. And when she had weyned hym she toke him w her, with thre bullockes and an Epha of flour, and a bottle of wyne, and brought hym vnto the house of the Lord in Silo, and þe chylde was yet but tendre of age. And they slue a bullocke, & brought in the lad to Eli, and she sayd. Oh my lord as truly as thy soule liueth my lord, I am þe womā þe stode before þe here prayenge vnto the lord. For thys ladde I prayed, and the Lord hath geuen me my desyre whych I asked of hym. & therfore I haue geuen him vnto the Lord, as longe as he is mete for þe Lord. And they worshipped the Lord there.

The ii. Chapter.

The songe of Hanna The offeringe of the sonnes of Eli.

And Hanna prayed and sayd: myne herte reioyseth in the Lord, and myne borne is exalted in the Lord. My mouth is open ouer myne enemyes, for I reioyce in thy saluacyon. There is none so holy as the Lord, for without the, is nothing. Neither is ther any of strenght as is our God. Take not to muche proudeyette olde thinges depart out of youre mouthes for the Lord is a God of knowledge, & hys purposes come to passe. The bowe wyth the myghtye men are broken: & they that were weake haue gyde them selues wyth strenght. They that were full, haue hyed oute them selues for breade, and they that were hungry, cease so to be, tyl the baren hath borne leue: and he that had many chyldren, is wared feble. * The Lord killeth, & maketh a lyue byngeth downe to the graue & fetcheth vp agayne. The Lord maketh poore, and maketh ryche. bringeth lowe, and heueth vp on hye. * he repleth vp the poore out of the duste, and lyfteth vp the beggar from the donghyll, to set them amonge princes, and to enheret them with the seate of glory. For the pylers of the earth are the Lordes, & he hath set the rounde worlde vpon the. he wyl kepe þe fete of hys sayntes, & the wycked shall kepe silence in darcknesse, and * in hys owne myghte shall no man be stronge. The Lordes aduersaryes shall be destroyed of hym: and out of heauē shall be thunder vpon every one of them: The Lord shall iudge the endes of the worlde, and shall geue myghte vnto hys kynge, and exalte the borne of hys anointed. And Elkana wente to Ramath to hys house, and the ladde dyd minister vnto the Lord before Eli the preaste.

But þe sonnes of Eli were chyldren of Belial, and knewe not the Lord. And the preastes made a law for þe people, & whensoeuer any man offered any offeringe, the preastes lad came, whyle þe fleshe was a settyng and a flesheoke wyth thre tette in his handes, and thrust it into the panne: kettie, caldren or potte. And all þe flesheoke brought vp, that the preaste toke away. And so they dyd vnto all the Israelites, that came thither to Silo. Yea, and therto, before they burnt the fatte, the preastes lad came and sayde to the man that offered: geue fleshe that I maye dresse it for the preaste, for he wyl not haue sodden fleshe of the, but raw. And yf any man sayd vnto hym: let them burne the fat accordyng to the daye, and then take as muche as thyne herte desireth: The ladde wolde answer him, yea, thou Thalt gyue it me nothe: and yf thou wylte not, I wyll take it with violence. And the spynne of the ponge men was very greate before the Lorde. For men abhorred the offrynge of the Lorde.

But the chyld Samuel ministered before the Lorde, gyrded about with a linnen Ephod. Moreover, his mother made hym a lytle cote, and brought it to hym from yere to yere, when he came vp with her husbnde, to offre the offrynge in the solempne feastes: and Eli blessed Elkana and his wife, and sayd the Lorde gyue the seed of this woman, for the petecyd that she asked of the Lorde. And they went vnto theyr owne home. And the Lorde vylited Hanna, so that she conceived, and bare thre sonnes, and two daughters. And the chyld Samuel grete before the Lorde.

Eli was very olde, and hearde all that hys sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, and how they laye with the women that wayted at the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he sayd vnto them: why do ye suche thynges? For of all these people, I heare euylly reportes of you. Oh, naye, my sonnes: for it is no good report that I heare howe that ye make the Lordes people to trespassse. If one man synne agaynst an other, dayes men may be iudges: but if a man synne agaynst the Lorde, who wyll be his dapsman? Notwithstandynge, they hearkened not vnto the voyce of theyr father, bycause the Lorde wolde slaye them. The chyld Samuel profyted * & grewe and was in fauour both with the Lorde, and al so with men.

And there came a man of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto hym: thus sayeth the Lorde dyd not I apere vnto the house of thy father whē they were in Egypte, subiecte vnto Pharaors house: And I chose thy father out of all the trybes of Israel to be my prest, to offre vnto myne aultare, and to burne incense, * & to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the burnt offrynges of the chyldren of Israel. Wherefore tread you downe my sacrifice and myne offrynge, which I commaunded to be made in the tabernacle, and honourest thy chyldren aboue me, to make your selues fat of the fyrst fentes of all the offrynges of Israel my people: Wherefore, the Lorde God of Israel sayeth: I sayde, that thy house and the house of thy father shoulde walke before me for euer.

But nowe the Lorde sayth: that be farre from me: for them that worshyp me, I wyl worship and they that despyse me, shall come to shame. Beholde, the dayes come, that I wyl cutte of thine arme, & the arme of thy fathers house that ther shal not be an elder thine hous. And yf thalt se thine enemye in y Tabernacle (of y Lorde) & in all y wealt which God) shall gyue Israel, & there shal not be an elder in thine house for euer. Nevertheless, I wyl not destroye all the males that com of the from myne altare. But to make thine eyes dale, and to make thine herte melte. And all they y be multiplied in thine house: shal dye yf they be men.

And this shalbe a sygne vnto y, that shal come vpō thy two sonnes * Hophny and Phynches: euen in one daye they shal dye both. And I will stee me vp a faythful prest, that shal do accordynge to my herte and mynde. And I wyl buyde him a sure house. And he shal walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they that are left in thine house, shal come and crouch to him for a lytle pece of spuer & a cake of bread, & shal saye put me (I praye y, in one offyce or other amonge y prestes, y I may eat a morsel of bread.

The.iii. Chapter.

The Lorde calleth Samuel thre tymes.

And the chyld Samuel ministered vnto the Lorde before Eli: and the worde of the Lorde was precious in those dayes, nether was ther any open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme, y Eli laye in his place, and hys eyes beganne to wane by myne that he coulde not se. And yf the lampe of God wente out, Samuel layd hym downe to slepe in y temple of the Lorde, wher the arke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel, and he layde, here I am, & he ran vnto Eli, and sayde here am I, for thou calledst me. And he sayde: I called the not: go agayn and slepe. And he went and layd hym downe to slepe. And y Lorde called once agayne: Samuel, and Samuel arose and went to Eli, & sayde: I am here for thou biddest calle me. And he answered: I called y not my sonne. So agayn & take thy rest. Samuel knewe not yet y Lorde, nether was the worde of the Lorde yea opened vnto hym. And the Lorde wente to and called Samuel the thyrde tyme. And he arose, and went to Eli, and sayd. I am here for thou hast called me. And Eli perceaued that the Lorde had called the chyld. Therefore Eli sayd vnto Samuel go, and lye downe: and yf he cal y agayne, then saye speake on Lorde, for thy seruauit heareth. So Samuel went, and layde hym downe in hys place. And the Lorde came, and stode, and called as before Samuel Samuel. Samuel answered speake on for thy seruante heareth. And the Lorde sayde to Samuel, beholde, I wyl do a thyng in Israel, y both the eares of as many as heareth it, shal tynge. In that daye I wyl rayse vp agaynst Eli, all thynges which I haue spoken concernynge hys house from the begynnyng to the endynge. I haue tolde hym * that I wyl iudge hys house for euer. For the wyckednes which he knoweth. For whē the people cursed hys sonnes for the same wyckednes, he hath not corrected them. And therefore I haue sworne vnto the house of Eli, that the wyckednesse of Elies house, shal not be purged wth sacrifice nor offrynge for euer. Samuel laye tyl the morninge, & opened y doores of y house of the Lorde.

And Samuel feared to shew Ely the vision. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayd: Samuel my sonne. And he answered. here I am. He sayde: what is it that the Lorde hath sayd vnto the? I praye the hyde it not from me. * God do so, and so to the, yf thou hyde any thyng from me, of al that he sayde vnto the. And Samuel tolde him euery whyt, & hyd nothing fro him. And he sayd it is y Lorde, let him do what semeth him best

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel.

(And it fortuned that in those dayes the Philistines came together to frabe.) And Israel went out agaynst the Philistynes to battayle & pitched beside the helpe stone. And the Philistines pitched in Aphek. And put the selues in aray agaynst Israel. And when they ioynded the battel Israel was put to worse before the Philistines. And the Philistines slue in aray alonge by the felde about a foure thousande men.

And when the people were come into their tentes, the elders of Israel sayd wherfore hath the Lord caste vs downe this daye before the Philistines? let vs fetch the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord out of Silo vnto vs, that when it cometh amonge vs, it maye saue vs out of the hande of our enemy. And so the people sent to Silo, & fet from thens the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord of hostes, which dwelleth betwene the cherubyns. And there were the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni and Phinehes with the arke of the appoyntment of God. And it fortuned, that when the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord came into the host, all Israel howted a myghtye howte, so that the earth rangge agayne.

And when the Philistynes herde the noyse of the howte, they sayd what meaneth the sounde of this myghty howte in the host of the Ebrues? And they understode, howe that the arke of the Lord was come into the host. And the Philistines were afrayed, and sayde. God is come into the host. And they sayde agayne. Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this. Wo vnto vs who shall deliuer vs out of the hande of these myghtye Goddes? these are the Goddes of synners the Egypciens with so many plagues in the wilderness. We stronge and quite poure selues lyke men, O ye Philistines, that ye be no seruantes vnto the Ebrues. as they haue bene to you. We of a manly courage therefore and fyghe. And the Philistynes fought, and Israel was put to the worse & fled euery man into his tente. And there was an exceeding great slaughter, for they were ouerthrowen of Israel. xxx. iij. thousande. And the arke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni & Phinehes were dead. And there ran a man of Ben Iamin out of the aray, & came to Silo the same daye with his clothes rent and earth vpon hys heade. And when he came, Eli satte vpon a stole, & looked towarde the waye for his hert feared for the arke of God. And when the man came into the cite, & tolde it, all the cite cryed.

And when Eli herde the noyse of the cryenge he sayd What meaneth this noyse of the rumoure? And the man came in hastily, and tolde Eli. Eli was. xcviij. yere olde, & hys syght fayled him that he coude not se. And he ma sayde vnto Eli: I am he that came out of the aray, & fled this daye out of the host. And he sayde what thyng is fortuned my sonne? The messenger answered and sayde. Israel is fled before the Philistynes, and there is a greete slaughter chaunced among the people, and thy two sonnes, Hophni & Phinehes are dead, & the arke of God is taken. And it fortuned that when he made mencion of the arke of God, Eli fell fro of hys stole backwarde vpon the thresholde of the gate, and hys necke brake, and he dyed for he was an olde man and heuie, and iudged Israel fourtye yeres.

And his daughter in law Phinehes wyfe was with chylde and nye the byrthe. And when she hearde the tydynges that the arke of God was taken, and that her father in lawe, and her husband were dead, she bowed her selfe, & trauncled, for her paynes came vpon her. And about the tyme of her deathe, the women y stode about her, sayde vnto her. feare not, for thou hast borne a sonne but she answered not, nor regarded it. And she named the childe Achabod, sayinge The glorie is departed fro Israel. Because the arke of God was taken, & because of her father in lawe & her husband. And she sayd agayne: The glorie is gone from Israel, for the arke of God is taken.

The glorie is gone.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arke.

And the Philistines toke the arke of God and caried it from the helpe stone vnto Asdod, agayne the Philistines toke the arke of God, & brought it into the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And when they of Asdod were vpon the nexte daye in the morning, beholde. Dagon laye vpon the earth before the Arke of the Lord. And they toke Dagon, & set hym in hys place agayne. And when they were vpearly in the nexte morning, beholde, Dagon laye vpon the grounde before the arke of the Lord, and hys head and hys two handes cut of vpon the thresholde, that only the shape of a fysh was left on hym. And therefore is it, that the predestes of Asdod (neither any man that cometh into Dagon's house) treade not on the thresholde of Dagon in Asdod, vnto this daye. But the hand of the Lord was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and he destroyed them, and smote them with emerodes, both Asdod & in all the coastes therof.

(The villages also of the felde in the myddes of the counter were hit, and there came vnto me and there was a continuall of greete death in the cite.) And when the men of Asdod sawe that it was so, they sayd the arke of the God of Israel shal not abyde here with vs, for his hande is sore vpon vs and vpon Dagon our God. They sent therefore and gathered all the lordes of the Philistynes vnto them, and sayde. What shall we do with the Arke of the God of Israel? They answered let the arke of the God of Israel be caried about vnto Gath. And they caried the arke of the God of Israel aboute. And it fortuned, that when they had caried it about, there was by the hande of the Lord a myghtye greete noyse in the cite, & he smote the men of the cite both small and great & they had secreted, leases. And the rulers toke counsell, & made the felde prynces seuen of them. Therefore they sent sent the arke of God to Ikaron. And as soon as the arke of God came to Ikaron, the Ikaronites cried out saying: they have brought the arke of the God of Israel to us, to see us & our people.

D And so they sent, and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines and sayde: send away the arke of the God of Israel, to go agayne to his owne place, that it see us not and our people.

For there was great lamentacion over the dead that they had out all the cotype, and the hande of God was exceeding sore there. And the men that dyed not, were smitten with the emerodes: and the cype of the cotype went up to heauen.

The. vi. Chapter.

The kyng byng home the arke with the rewarde.

A The arke of the Lord was in the countrey of the Philistines seven monethes and the Philistines called for the priests & for soothsayers, saying what shall we do with the arke of the Lord? tell us where with we shall sende it home agayne. They sayd. If you sende the arke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye. But rewarde it with trespass offering: & then ye shall be whole, and it shall be known to you, why bys hande departeth not from you.

Then sayde they: And what shall be the trespass offering, whiche we shall rewarde him with? They answered saye golden arkes and. v. golden myce, accordyng to the nombre of the lordes of the Philistines. For it is one maner of plague on you all, & on your lordes. Wherefore ye shall make ymages lyke to your arkes and ymages lyke to your myce & corrupt the land, & ye shall geue glory vnto the God of Israel: for he may take his bad fro of you, & fro of your goddes, & fro of your lande.

B Wherefore do ye harden your hartes as the Egyptians and Pharaon hardened theyr hartes? whiche when he toke on agaynst them, dyd they not let the people go, and they departed. Nowe therfore, make a newe carte, & take two milche kyne: on whose necke there hath come no yoke. And tye the kyne to the carte, and byng the calves home from them. And take the arke of the Lord, & laye it vpon the carte, & put the iewels of golde (whiche ye rewarde him with for a syn-offering) in a cofre by the syde therof, and sende it awaye, that it maye go. And if ye see that he go up by the waye of his owne coaste to Bethlames: then it is he that dyd vs this greates euill. If no we shall knowe then that it is not bys hand that smote vs: but it was a chaunce that happened vs. And the men dyd euen so and toke two kyne that gaue mylke, and tye them to the carte, and kepte the calves at home, and they layde the arke of the Lord vpon the carte and the cofre with the myce of golde, and with the ymages of theyr arkes. And the kyne toke the streyght waye to Bethlames, & went on the streyght waye: & as they went, lowed, & turned neither to the ryght hande nor to the left. And the lordes of the Philistines went after the, vntill the borders of Bethlames.

And they of Bethlames were reappoynte theyr wheate beuett in the valey. And they lyfte up theyr eyes, and spide the arke. And reioyced with they saw it. And the carte came into the felde of one Jehosua a Bethlamite, and stode still there. There was also a great stone. And they claued the wode of the carte & offered the kyne a burnt offering vnto the Lord. And the Leuites toke downe the arke of the Lord and the cofre that was with it, wherein the iewels of golde were: and put them on the great stone. And the men of Bethlames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offeringes that same daye vnto the Lord. And when the syue lordes of the Philistines had sent it, they returned to Ikaron the same daye. And these are the golden arkes whiche the Philistines gaue to amende for a trespass offering, to the Lord: for Asdod one for Gaza one, for Askalon one, for Gath one: & for Ikaron one. And golden myce, accordyng to the nombre of all the cotypes of the Philistines, euen accordyng to the syue lordes, both of walled townes & of townes vnwalled: euen vnto the great stone of lamentacyon, wher they set downe the arke of the Lord, which stone remaineth vnto this daye in the felde of Jehosua the Bethlamite. And he plagued the men of Bethlames, because they had sent the arke of the Lord. And he slue amonge the people fiftie thousande and thre score and ten men. And the other people lamented, because the Lord had slayne the people with so great a slaughter. Wherefore the men of Bethlames sayde. who is able to stande before the Lord so holy a God: & to whom shall he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Cariath Jarim saying: The Philistines haue brought agayne the arke of the Lord: come ye downe therfore, and set it vp to you.

The. vii. Chapter.

The arke is brought to Cariath Jarim.

A And so the men of Cariath Jarim came, and set up the arke of the Lord: and brought it into the house of Aminadab in Gibeon, & sanctified Eleazar bys sonne, to kepe the arke of the Lord. & whyle the arke abode in Cariath Jarim the dayes multiplied, and there passed ouer. xx. yeres, & all the house of Israel lamented after the Lord. And Samuel spake vnto all the house of Israel saying: if ye be come agayne vnto the Lord with all your hartes, then put awaye the straunge goddes and Ashtaroth fro among you: and prepare your hartes vnto the Lord, & serue hym only: for he shall ryd you out of the hande of the Philistines. Then the chyldren of Israel dyd put awaye Baalim and Ashtaroth, & serued the Lord onely. And Samuel sayde gather all Israel to Mizpa, and I will praye for you vnto the Lord. And they gathered together to Mizpa, and drewe water: and poyred it oute before the Lord, & fasted the same daye & sayde there: we haue synned agaynst the Lord. And Samuel iudged the chyldren of Israel in Mizpa. When the Philistines heard that the chyldren of Israel were gathered together to Mizpa, the lordes of the Philistines went up agaynst Israel. And when the chyldren of Israel heard that they were afrayed of the Philistines, & the chyldren of Israel sayde to Samuel: cease not to crye

E crye vnto the Lord our God for vs that he may

 Samuel took a suckynge lambe, and offered it all together for a burnt offering vnto the Lord and cryed vnto the Lord for Israel, and the Lord hearde hym. And as Samuel offered the burnt offering, the Philistines came to fight against Israel. But the Lord thondred a great thondre that same daye amonge the Philistines, and scattered them, that they fell before Israel. And the men of Israel went out to Elipa, and pursued the Philistines, and folowed vpon them vntyl the place that is vnder Bethcar.

And then Samuel * took a stone and pitched it betwene Elipa and the marke of the rocke, and called the name thereof, the * stone of helpe, sayinge: hytherto hath the Lord helpe vs.
 And so the Philistines were brought vnder, & they came nomore into the coostes of Israel: and the hande of the Lord was agaynst the Philistines all the dayes of Samuel. Therto the cy-ties whiche the Philistines had taken from Israel, were restored agayne to Israel, euen from Aiaron to Gath. with the coostes of the same, & Israel plucked them out of the handes of the Philistines. And there was peace betwene Israel and the Amorites. Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went about yere by pere to Bethel, Gilgal and Elipa, and iudged Israel in all those places, & came agayne to Rama: for there was his house, & ther he iudged Israel also, & there he buyt an alter vnto the Lord.

The viij. Chapter.

The people requyre a kynge.

When Samuel was old, he made his sonnes iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the seconde Abia: and they were iudges in Beerseba. And his sonnes walked not in his wayes but turned asyde after lucre, and * toke rewarde, and peruerted the right. Then all the elders of Israel gathered them together, and came to Samuel vnto Rama, and sayd vnto hym: beholde, thou art olde, and thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes.
 Nowe therfore * make vs a kynge to iudge vs as all other nations haue. But the thyng displeased Samuel, when they sayde: gyue vs a kynge to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord sayde vnto Samuel. heare the voyce of the people in all that they say vnto the. For they haue not cast the awaye, but me: that I shulde not raygne ouer them. And as they haue euer done (sins I brought them out of Egypt vnto this daye: and haue forsaken me, & serued other goddes) euen so do they vnto the.
 Nowe therfore hearken vnto theyr voyce: how best, yet tell the vnto them and shewe the * the authoritie of the kynge that shall raygne ouer them. And Samuel tolde all the wordes of the Lord vnto the people that asked a kyng of him & he sayd this shalbe the authoritie of the kyng that shall raygne ouer you: * he wyl take yont sonnes and put them to his charettes and make his hofmen of them, to runne before his charit and wyl make hym of them, captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer fyfties, and wyl set them to eate his grounde, and to gather in his har-nest, and to make instrumentes of warre, and apparel for his charettes. And he wyl take yont doughters and make them apoticaries, cookes and bakers. And he shall take the best of yont felde, * and of yont vyneyardes, and of yont olyue trees, and gyue them to his seruantes, And he shall take the tenth of yont serde, and of yont vyneyardes, and gyue it to his chambrlaynes: and to his seruantes. And he shal take the best of yont men seruantes and maydeseruautes and yont men, and of yont asses, and put them to his worke. And he shall take the tenth of yont shepe, and ye shalbe his seruants.

 And ye shall crie out at that tyme vnto yont kynge, which ye shall haue chosen you, and the Lord wyl not heare you at that daye.

Neuere thelesse, the people wold not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd saye: naye, not so.
 But there shalbe a kynge ouer vs, that we may be lyke other nations, and that our kynge maye iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fyght our battayles. * Therefore, when Samuel hearde al the wordes of the people, he rehearsed them in the eares of the Lord. And the Lord sayd to Samuel: hearken vnto theyr voyce, and make them a kynge. And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: go euery man vnto his citie.

The ix. Chapter.

Saul the sonne of Cis is chosen kynge.

Where was a man of Ben Iamin named * Cis the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of zeroz, the sonne of Bercho-rath, the sonne of Aphiah, the sonne of a man & was a Ieminite, a man of strenght and myght: and the same had a sonne called Saule, a goodly yonge man and a fapye: so that among the children of Israel there was none goodlyer then he. For from thy shoulderyarde, he was hyer then all the other people.
 And the asses of this Cis, Saule's father were lost: and Cis sayde to Saule his sonne: take one of the laddes with the, and goo vp, and seeke the asses. And he went thorow mounte Ephraim, and thorow the lande of Salisa: but they found them not. Then they went thorow the lande of Sall, and there they were not. Whē they went also thorow the lande of Jemini, they founde them not. At the last when they were come to the land of Iuph, Saule sayd vnto his lad that was with him: come let vs retorne, lest my father leue carpyng for the asses, and take thought for vs. He sayde vnto hym: beholde, there is in this cytie a man of God, and he is a worship-full man: all that he sayeth cometh surely to passe. Nowe then let vs go thither: peraduen-ture he shall shewe vs what waye we may go.
 Then sayd Saule to his lad: yf we wil go, what shall we brynge the man? For our breed is all spent out of our vessels, and there is none other present to bring the man of God: what haue we?
 And the lad answered Saule agayne, & sayde:
 I haue found about me the fourth parte of a little that wil I gyue ym of God, to tel vs our way

Before tyme in Israell when a man wente to seke an answer of God, thus wyl he spake, come, & let vs go to the sear. For he that is now called a Prophete was in the olde tyme called a sear. Then sayde Saul to hys ladde: well sayd of the: come, let vs go. And so they went vnto the cytie where the man of God was. And as they were goinge vp into the cytie, they mette with damels that came out to drawe water, and sayde vnto them is there here a sear: And y maydens answered them: yea, on (here is one). Beholde, he is before you. Make haste now, for he came this daye to the cytie, for there is an offerynge of the people this daye in the hyll. When ye be come into the cytie ye shal finde him streyght waye per he come vp to the hyll to eate: for the people wyl not eate vntill he come, because he doth blesse the offerynge. And then eate they that be bynden to the feast. Nowe therfore get you vp, for this daye shall ye fynde hym. And they wente vp into the cytie. And when they were come into the myddes of the cytie: beholde, Samuel came out agaynst them, for to go vp to the hyll. * But the Lorde had tolde Samuel in his care (a daye before Saul came) sayinge: to morowe this tyme I wyl sende the a man oute of the lande of Ben Iamin, bym shalte thou annopnte to be capitayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people out of the handes of the Philistines: for I haue looked vpon my people, and they crye is come vnto me. When Samuel therfore sawe Saul, the Lorde answered hym: se, this is the man whom I spake to the of. This same shall raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the myddle of the gate, and sayde: tell me I praye the where the sears house is. Samuel answered Saul and sayde: I am the sear, go vp before me vnto the hyll, for ye shall eate with me todaye. And to morowe I wyl let the go, and wyl tell the all that is in thyne hert. And as for thyne asses that were lost thre dayes agoo, care not for them, for they are founde. And moreouer whose shall the beautifull thynges of Israel be? Belonge they not to the & to all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and sayd: am not I the sonne of a Ieminite of the smallest trybe of Israel? and my kynred is the leest of all the kynredes of the trybe of Ben Iamin. Wherfore then speakest thou so to me? And Samuel toke Saule and his lad, & brought them into the parlour, and made them sit in the cheefest place amonge them that were bydden: which were vpon a thyrtie personnes.

And Samuel sayd vnto the cooke: bring forth the porcion whiche I gaue the, and of whiche I sayde vnto the: kepe it with the. And the cooke toke vp the shoulde, and that which was vpon it: and set it before Saule. And Samuel sayde: beholde, that which is left: put it before the and eate for hitherto hath it ben kept for the, of purpose: wher I called the people. And so Saul dyd eate with Samuel that daye. And when they were come downe from the hyll into the cytie, Samuel comuned with Saul vpon the toppe of the house: and when they arose early aboute the spyng of the daye, Samuel called Saule vpon the toppe of the house, sayinge: vp, that I maye sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they went out at the doores, both he & Samuel. And when they wer come almooste oute of the towne, Samuel sayde to Saul: byd the lad go before vs & he went before) but stand thou by a while, that I may shew the what God sayth.

The .x. Chapter.

Saule is annopnted kynge, and prophesyeth.

And then Samuel toke a vessel of oyle and poured it vpon his heed and kysed hym, and sayde: hath not the Lorde annopnted the to be capitayne ouer his inheritance? (And thou shalt deliuer his people out of the handes of they enemies which are rounde about them. And this token shalt thou haue, that the Lorde hath annopnted the to be kynge.) When thou arte departed from me this daye, thou shalt fynde two mē by the sepulchre in the bordre of Ben Iamin, euē at zalezah. And they wyl saye vnto the: the asses which thou wentest to seke, are founde. And lo, thy father hath left the care of the asses, and sorroweth for you, sayinge: What shall I do for my sonne? Then shalt thou go forth from thence, and shalt come to the playne of Chaboz. And there shalt mete the thre men goinge vnto God to Bethel: one carpyng thre kyddes: & an other carpyng thre loues of breed: and an other carpyng a battell of wyne. And they wyl salute the and gyue the the two loues of breed: which thou shalt receyue of they handes. After that shalt thou come to the hyll of God, where the Philistines kepe their watch. And wher thou art com thither to the cytie, thou shalt mete a companye of prophetes comyng downe from the hyll with a psalter, a tymbrill, a pype and an harpe before them: and they shall prophete. And the spyrite of the Lorde wyl come vpon the also, and thou shalt prophete with them, and shalt be turned into an other man. Therfore wher these signes are chaunced the, do what thou hast to doo, for God is with the. And thou shalt go before me to Gilgal: and I also wyl come downe vnto the, to sacrifice burnt sacrifices, and to offre peace-offerynges. * & arpe for me seuen dayes, tyll I come to the and shewe the what thou shalt do. And as soone as he had turned his shulder to go from Samuel, God gaue hym an other maner of herte: and all those tokens came to passe that same daye. And when they came to the hyll: beholde, the company of prophetes met hym: and the spyrite

The people renueth the kyngdome of Saul.

A has the Ammonite came, and besieged Iabes in Gilead. And all the men of Iabes sayde vnto Nabas: make a couenante with vs, and we wyll be thy seruantes. And Nabas the Ammonite answered them: In this wyll I make a couenant with you, yf I maye thruste out all your eyght eyes, and byynge that shame vpo all Israel. To whom the elders of Iabes sayd: gyue vs seuen dayes respyte: that we maye sende messengers vnto all the coostes of Israel. And then if there be noman to helpe vs: we wyll come out to the. Then came the messēgers to Gibea vnto Saul and tolde this tydynge in the eares of the people. And all the people lyft vp theyr voyces and wept. And beholde, Saul came folowynge the cattel out of the feilde, and Saul sayd: what ayleth this people, that they wepe? And they told hym the tydynge of the men of Iabes. And the spryte of God came vpon Saul, when he herd those tydynge, and he was excedyng angrye, & and toke a poke of oren, and hewed them in peeces, and sent them thorowout all the coostes of Israel by the handes of messengers, sayinge: whosoener cometh nor forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall his oren be serued. And the feare of the Lorde fell on the people, & they came out as it had ben but one man. And when he * nombred them in Bezek, the chyldren of Israel were thre hundred thousande men: and the men of Iuda thyrtye thousande. And they sayd vnto the messengers that came: so saye vnto the men of Iabes in Gilead. tomorowe by y tyme the sonne be hote, ye shall haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Iabes, which were glad. Therfore the men of Iabes sayde: tomorowe we wyll come oute vnto you, and ye shall doo with vs all that please y you. And on the morowe it fortunēd, that Saul put the people in thre partes, and they came in vpon the hoost in the moorning watch, and slue the Ammonites vntill the heate of the daye. And they that remayned, were scattered: so that two of them were not left togither. And the people sayd vnto Samuel: what is he that darre saye shall Saul raigne ouer vs: byynge those men, that we maye slaye them.

And Saul sayde: there shall noman dye this daye, for todaye the Lorde hath saued Israel. Then sayd Samuel vnto the people: come, that we may go to Gilgal, and renue the kyngdome there: And all the people went to Gilgal, and made Saul kyngge there before the Lorde in Gilgal. And there they offred peaceoffringes before the Lorde. And there Saul and all the men of Israel reioyced excedyngly.

ther hast thou take ought of anye mans hande. He sayde vnto them agayne: the Lorde is wytnesse agaynst you, & his annointed is wytnesse this day, & ye haue founde nought in my handes. And they answered: he is wytnesse. And Samuel sayd vnto þe people: it is þe Lord that made Moyses and Aaron, & that brought your fathers out of the lande of Egypt. Now therefore stand styll, that I maye reason with you before the Lorde, accordynge to all þe righteousnesse of the Lorde, whiche he shewed both you and your fathers.

B * After that Jacob was come into Egypt, and your fathers cryed vnto the Lorde: þe Lord sent Moses and Aaron which brought your fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwelle in this place. * And when they forgat the Lorde their God, he deliuered them into the hand of Sisea captayne of the hoste of Hazor: and into the hande of the Philistines, and into the hande of the kynge of Moab, and they fought agaynst them. And they cryed vnto the Lorde, and sayd: we haue synned, because we haue forsaken the Lord, and haue serued Baalim and Ashtaroth. Nowe therefore deliuer vs out of the handes of our enemyes, and we wil serue the Lord. * The Lord sent Jerobaal & Badaa: Jephthah and * Samuel, and deliuered you out of þe handes of your enemyes on euery syde, and ye dwelled safe.

And for al that, whē you sawe, that Nabal the kynge of the children of Ammon came agaynst you, ye sayde vnto me: * not so, but a kynge that raygne ouer vs: whē yet þe Lord your God was poure kynge. Now therefore beholde, the kynge whom ye haue chosen, and whom ye haue despised, lo, the Lorde hath set a kynge ouer you. * If ye wyll feare the Lord and serue hym, and heare his voyce, and not disobey the worde of þe Lord: both ye and the kynge that raygneth ouer you, shall folowe the Lorde your God: * If ye wyll not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but disobey the Lordes mouth, then shall the hand of the Lorde be vpon you, and on your fathers.

D Now also stande and se this great thing which the Lord wyl do before your eyes: is it not now wheate barne? I wyl call vnto the Lord, and he shall sende thundre and rayne: that ye maye perceyue and se, how that your wyckednesse is great, which ye haue done in the sight of þe Lord in askyng you a kynge. And so Samuel called vnto the Lorde, and the Lord sent thundre and rayne the same daye. And all the people feared the Lorde and Samuel exceedingly. And all the people sayde vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruantes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in asking vs a king besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

And Samuel sayd vnto the people: feare not. Ye haue in dede done all this wyckednesse, yet be parte not from folowyng the Lorde. But serue hym even with all your hertes. Neyther sournē ye after vayne thynges which are not hable to profyte you, for they are but vannie. For the Lorde wyl not forsake his people, because of his great names sake. because it hath pleased þe Lorde to make you his people. Moreouer, God forbyd, that I shulde synne agaynst the Lorde, and ceasse prayinge for you, but to shewe you the good and ryght waye. Therefore feare you the Lorde, and serue him in the truthe, and with all your hertes, and cōfyde how great thynges he hath done for you. But and if ye do wickedly, then shal ye perishe, both ye and your kynge.

And Jonathas smote the hold of the Philistines, that was in þe byll: and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul blew the trompet thorowout all the lande, saying: let the Hebrewes heare. And all Israel herde saye: howe that Saul had destroyed an holde of þe Philistines, wherfore Israel shalke before þe Philistines. And þe people gathered togyther after Saul to Gilgal. And when the men of Israel sawe it, they were in a strapte, & feare came vpon the people, and they byd them selues in caues, and in priue holes, and in rocks, and in hye places, and in pyttes. And some of the Hebrewes went ouer Jordan to go vnto the land of Gad and Gilead. And Saul was yet in Gilgal, and all the people that folowed hym were astonnyed. And he tarped seuen dayes, euen vnto þe tyme that Samuel * had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Gilgal: and þe people were therfore scattered from hym. And Saul sayde: brynge a burnt sacrifice to me and peace offeringes. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as soone as he had made an ende of offering the burnt sacrifice, beholde, Samuel came. And Saul wēt agaynst hym, to blesse hym. And Samuel sayd: what hast thou done? Saul sayd: because I saw that the people scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the dayes appoynted, & that the Philistines gathered them selues togyther to Michmas: therefore sayde I: the Philistines shal come downe now vpon me to Gilgal, & I haue not made supplication vnto the Lorde. And when I had overcome my selfe, at the last I offered a burnt offering. And Samuel sayd to Saul. * thou art become a foole, thou hast not kept the commaundment of the Lorde thy God, which he commaunded the. red and were synpten as they went. Then sayd Saul vnto the people y were w him. Searche se, who is gone fro vs. And when they had nom-bred, behold, Jonathas & his harnesbeare were not there. And Saul sayd vnto Abia: bring hither y arke of God. For y arke of God was at that tyme w the chyldren of Israel. And it for-tuned y while Saul talked vnto the preeft, the noyse y was in y hoost of y Philistines spred farther abrode, & encreased don (by lytle and lytle, and gaue a more cleare sounde.) And Saul sayd vnto y preeft withdra w thyne hādes. And Saul ioynd himselfe vnto all y people y were with hym, & they came to y battayle. And beholde, *every mans swerde was agaynst his felowe, & there was a very great ruinor. Moreover y hebrues y were with the Philistines before y tyme, & were comwith them into all partes of the hoost, turned to be w the Israelites y were with Saul and Jonathas. And all y men of Israel and wch had hid them selues in mount Ephraim as soone as they herde, how that the Philistines were fled, they folowed after them in the battayle. And so God holpe Israel that daye. And the battaye continued vnto Bethauen.

And wth the mē of Israel were kept downe with hungre y daye. Saul charged y people w an oth, saying: Cursed be y man that eateth any foode tyl nyght, tyl I be auēged of myne ennemyes. And so none of the people tasted anpe su. And al y inhabitants of y lande came to a wood where honp lay vpon y ground. And the people came into the wood: And behold, the honp dropped, and noman moued his hande to his mouth, for y people feared the oth. But Jonathas herde not woen his father. charged y people with the oth, wherfore he put forth the ende of the rod that was in his hanse, and dypte it in an honp combe, and put his hande to his mouth
and

and his eyes receyued sight. The answered one of the people & sayd. thy father adured the people, saying. Cursed be the man y eateth any sustenance this day and the people were faynt ye. Then sayd Jonathas my father hath troubled y land se howe myne eyes haue receyued syght, because I tasted a lytle of this hony. how moch more then today yf the people had eaten of the spoyle of their enemies which they founde: And had there not bene the a moch greater slaughter amonge the Philistines: And they layed on the Philistines that day, from Michmas to Aiath. And the people were excedynge faynte.

E And y people gat them to y spoyle, and toke shepe, oxen, & calves, & slue them on the ground, & the people dydeate them * w the bloude. Then men tolde Saul, sayinge: Scholde, the people synne agaynst the Lorde, in that they ate with y bloude. And he sayd. ye haue trespassed. Woule a great stone vnto me this day, & Saul sayd agayne. So abode amonge the people, & byd the byng me euery man his ore, and euery man his shepe, and slaye them here, & synne not agaynst the Lorde in eating w the bloude. And the people brought euery man his ore in his hand by night and slue them there. And Saul made an altare vnto the Lorde. And y was the first altare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul sayd. let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyghte, and spoyle them vntyl it be daye in the mornynge, & let vs not leaue one ma of them. And they sayd: do whatsoeuer thou thyntest best. Then sayd y prest let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul asked of God what I go downe after y Philistines: Wylt thou deliuer them into the handes of Israel: But he answered hym not at y tyme. And Saul sayde. let the people come byther out of all quarters, and know and se by whom this synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lorde lyueth which saureth Israel, though it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye the death. But there was no man amonge all the people, that answered hym.

I Then he sayde vnto all Israel: be ye on one syde, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyl be on y other side. And y people said vnto Saul. what thou thyntest best, y do. Therefore Saul sayde vnto y Lorde God of Israel: gyue a perfect lot. Lorde & no gyue thou the iudgement. Howbeit prayest it. y thou gyuest the seruauone no answer to daye. (As thou seest me or in Jonathas my sonne, & he is y ptyd & iniquitie in chy people.) And Saul & Jonathas were caught, but the people escaped fre. And Saul sayd cast lottes betwene me and Jonathas my son. And Jonathas was caught. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas tell me what thou haste done: And Jonathas tode hym, and sayde: I tasted a lytle honye w the ende of the rodde that was in myne hande and lo, I must dye.

Saul answered. * God do so and so to me, y shall dye the death Jonathas. And y people sayd vnto Saul: Shall Jonathas dye whiche hath so mightely helped Israel: God forbid. As truly as the Lorde lyueth: there shall not one heere of his heed fall to y ground, for he hath wrought w God this day. And so the people deliuered Jona-thas, y he dyed not. And the Saul departed by from folowynge the Philistines. And the Philistines went to theyr owne place. And so Saul helde y kyngdom ouer Israel, & fought agaynst al his enemies on euery syde, agaynst Moab. agaynst y children of Ammon: agaynst Edom: agaynst the kynges of zoba, & agaynst the Philistines. And whither soeuer he turned hym selfe, there he wan: and he gathered his host together and smote y * Amalekites, and dyd Israel oute of the handes of them that spoyled them. The sones of Saul were Jonathas, Jesu, & Melchisua. And his two daughters were thus named: y elder was called Merob, & the yonger Michol. And the name of Sauls wyf was Ahinoah the daughter of Ahimaas. And y name of his chiefe captaine was Abner y son of Ner, Sauls vncle. And * Cis was Sauls father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Nethai. And there was sore warre agaynst the Philistines all the dayes of Saul. And whome soeuer Saul sawe to be a stronge man, and mete for the warre, he toke hym vnto hym.

The xv. Chapter.

Saul is commaunded to slay Amalek. He is disobedient to the voyce of God. Samuel mourneth for Saul.

Samuel sayd vnto Saul: * the Lorde I sent me to annoynte the, to be kyng ouer his people Israel. Nowe therefore hearken thou vnto the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus saith the Lorde of hostes: I remember that whiche Amalek dyd to Israel, * howe they layed waye for them in the waye, as they came oute of Egypte. Nowe therefore go, and slaye Amalek, and destrope ye all that pertaineth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassyon on them. And conete nothyng that they haue slaye both ma and woman, infante and suckelynge, ore and shepe, camell, and asse.

And Saul gathered the people together, and * nobred them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footemen, and ten thousande men of Juda. And Saul came to a cytie of Amalek, & set watch in the valleye. And Saul sayde vnto the Kenites: go, & departe, & get you downe fro amonge the Amalekites, lest I destrope you with them for ye shewed mercye to all the chyldren of Israel, whiche they came out of Egypte. And so the Kenites departed from amonge the Amalekites.

And Saul smote the Amalekites fro Heula as thou comest to Sur, y lyeth before Egypt, & toke Agag y kyng of the Amalekites alpye, & lette y destroyed all y people w the edge of the swerde. * But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the better shepe and the fatter oxen, & the lambes and all that was good, & wolde not destrope them. But all that was foul & nought worth, that they destroyed vterly. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Samuel, saying: it * repenteth me that I haue made Saul kyng: for he is turned from me, and hath not performed my commaundementes. And Samuel was euyl apayed, and cryed vnto the Lorde al nyght. And when Samuel arose early to mete Saul in the

in the mornynge, it was told Samuel, þat Saul was come to Carmel: and behold, he hath made hym there a place, and is turned, and departed, and gone downe to Gilgal.

D And Samuel came to Saul, and <sup>red burnt sacrifice vnto þe Lord of the speere of þe people which he</sup> Saul offered

Saul sayd vnto him: Blessed be thou in þe Lord. I haue fulfilled þe commaundement of þe Lord. Samuel sayd: what meanest thou the bleating of the shepe in mine eares, and the noyse of þe oren whiche I heare? Saul answered they haue brought them fro the Amalekites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oren to sacrifice them vnto the Lord thy God. And the remnant haue we destroyed utterly.

Samuel sayde to Saul let me tel the what the Lord hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayd vnto him. saye on. Samuel sayde * when thou wast lytle in thine owne sight, wast thou not made the heed of the trybes of Israel? And the Lord anoynted the kyng ouer Israel. And þe Lord sent the on a iouenyepe, and sayde: Go and utterly destroy those synners the Amalekites and fyght agaynst them, vntyl thou utterly destroye them. And wherfore hast thou not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lord, but hast touched to the praye, and hast doone that whiche is wycked in the sight of the Lord.

E And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: yea, I haue hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lord and haue gone þe way which the Lord sent me vnto, and haue brought Agag the kyng of Amalek, and haue utterly destroyed the Amalekites. But þe people toke of the spoyle, shepe, oren, and þe best of the thynges whiche shoulde haue ben destroyed, to offre vnto the Lord thy God in Gilgal. And Samuel sayde hath þe Lord as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices & offeringes, as when the voyce of þe Lord is obeyed: Behold to obeye is better the sacrifice, & to hearken is better then the fat of rammes. For rebellion is as the synne of witchcraft, and stubbernesse is as the wickednesse of idolatry. Because thou hast cast away the worde of the Lord, therefore hath the Lord cast awaye the also from beinge kyng.

F And Saul sayd vnto Samuel: I haue sinned, for I haue gone further then the sayinge of the Lord and thy wordes, because I feared the people, and obeyed theyr voyce. Nowe therefore take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, that I maye worshippe the Lord. And Samuel sayd vnto Saul. I wyll not retorne with the for thou hast caste awaye the worde of the Lord, and the Lord hath cast awaye the, that thou shalt not be kyng ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned him selfe to go awaye, he caughte the lappe of his coote, and it rent. And Samuel sayd vnto him: the Lord hath rent the kyngdome of Israel from this day, & hath giuen it to a neyghbour of thyne, & is better the thou. The strength of Israel wyll not begyle nor repent: for he is not a man that can repent.

G He sayde: I haue sinned. But nowe honour me before þe elders of my people, & before Israel and turne agayne with me, that he maye worshippe the Lord thy God. And so Samuel turned agayne, & folowed Saul. And Saul worshipped the Lord. Then sayde Samuel: Wrynge þe hyther to me Agag the kyng of the Amalekites. And Agag came vnto hym delicately. And Agag sayd: truly thy bytter death cometh on. And Samuel said as thy swerd hath made woman childlesse, so shal thy mother be childlesse aboue other womē: And Samuel hewed Agag in peeces before þe Lord in Gilgal. And the * Samuel departed to Rama. And Saul went home to his house to Gibeah. And Samuel came no more to se Saul vntyl þe day of his deth. Nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, & the Lord repented, þat he had made Saul kyng ouer Israel.

¶ The xvi. Chapter.

H The Lord sayde vnto Samuel: Howe longe wilt thou mourne for Saul, seinge I haue cast him awaye fro raygnynge ouer Israel? Fyl thyne horne with oynment, & come, & I maye send the to Isai þe Bethlehemite, for I haue prouyded me a kyng among his sones. And Samuel sayd: how can I go? For þe Saul heare it, he wyll kyll me. The Lord answered: Take an heifer with the, and saye: I am come to offre to the Lord. And call Isai to the offryng, and I wyll shewe the, what thou shalt do: and thou shalt anoynt him whome I name vnto the. And so Samuel dyd as þe Lord had him, & came to Bethlehem, & the elders of the towne were a stonyed at his comynge, and sayd: * Comest thou peaceably? he answered: Yea, I am come to offre vnto the Lord. * Sanctifye your selues, & come with me to the offryng. And he sanctified Isai and his sones, and bad them to the offryng. And when they were come he looked on Eliab, and sayd: Surely the Lordes anoynted is before hym. But þe Lord sayd vnto Samuel loke not on his stature, or on þe height of his stature, because I haue refused hym: For God seeth not as man seeth. For man looketh on þe outward apperance: but God beholdeth the heart. The Isai called Abinadab, and made him come before Samuel. And he sayd: neyther hath the Lord chosen this. Then Isai made Sāma come, and he sayde: neyther yet hath the Lord chosen him. Agayne Isai made seuen of his sones to come before Samuel: & Samuel sayde vnto Isai the Lord hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: are here all thy children? He sayde: there is yet a lytle one be- hynde that kepeth the shepe. And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: sende and fet him, for we wyll not syt downe, tyll he be come hyther. And he sent, and brought him in. And he was browne, & of an excellent beauty, & well fauoured in sight. And the Lord sayd: Arise, and anoynt him for this is he. Therfore Samuel toke the horne with the oynment, and anoynted hym in the myddes of his brethren. And the spyrte of the Lord came vpon David, from that daye forewarde. And Samuel rose vp, and went to Rama.

But the spirit of the Lord departed from Saul, and an euill spirit sent of the Lord vexed him. And Sauls seruantes sayd vnto him: Beholde, an euill spirit sent of God vereth the, let our lord therefore commaund his seruantes (that are before the) to seke a mā, the is a conyng player with an harpe: that when the euill spirit sent of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe with his bande, and thou shalt be eased. Saul sayd vnto his seruantes: prouide me a man then that can play wel, and brynge hym to me. Then answered one of his seruantes, and sayd: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Iſai a Bethlehemyte, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actiue felowe, and a man of war and prudent in doing of feates, & well made, and the Lord is with hym. Wherefore Saul sent messengers vnto Iſai, and sayd: sende me Dauid thy sonne, whiche is with the shepe. And Iſai toke an asse laden with bred and a flacket of wyne, and a kyd, and sent them by Dauid his son vnto Saul. And Dauid came to Saul, & stode before hym, & he loued him very well, & he was made his harnes bearer. And Saul set to Iſai, saying: let Dauid remayne with me, for he hath found fauour in my sight. And so it fortuneth, the when the euill spirit sent of God came vpon Saul, Dauid toke an harpe & played with his hand, & so Saul was refreshed, & dyd amende, and the euill spirit departed fro hym.

The .xviij. Chapter.

Dauid ouercometh great Goliath.

The Philistines gathered theyr hooſte to battayle and came together to Socoth which is in Iuda, and pitched betwene Socoth and Azecab, in the cooſt of Dammin: And Saul and the men of Iſrael came together, and pitched in the ocke-valleie, and put them selues in aray to fight agaynſt the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one ſide, and Iſrael stode on an hyll on the other ſyde, and there was a valleie betwene them. And there came a man betwene them both out of the tentes of the Philistines, named Goliath of Gath. vi. cubites & an hāde bzydeth lōg, & had an helmet of braſſe vpon his hed & a cote of mayle about him. And the weyght of his cote of mayle was. v. M. ſicles of braſſe. And he had bootes of braſſe vpon his legges, & a ſhild of braſſe vpon his ſhoulders. And the ſhafte of his ſpeare was lyke a weauers beame. And his ſpeare heed weyed lyxe hundred ſycles of yron. And one bearynge a ſpyde went before hym.

And he stode and cryed agaynſt the hooſt of Iſrael, and sayd vnto them: Why are ye come out in aray to battayle? am not I a Philistine and is pou seruantes to Saul: choſe you a man from amonge you, and let hym come downe to me. And yf he be hable to fyghe with me, & to beate me: then wyl we be your seruantes. But if I can ouercome hym & beate hym, then shall ye be our seruantes, and serue vs. And the Philistine sayd I deſpe the hooſt of Iſrael this daye, gyue me a man, that we maye fight together. When Saul and all Iſrael hearde thoſe wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, & greatly afrayed. Dauid was the sonne of an Ephrathite <sup>(or of whom mention is made afore)</sup> of Bethlehem Iuda, named Iſai which had vyght ſonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, & came to age among me. And the eldeſt ſonnes of Iſai went, & followed Saul to the battayle. And the names of his the ſonnes the went to battayle were: Eliab the eldeſt and the next Abinadab, & the third Sama, & Dauid was the leſt. And the the eldeſt went after Saul. Dauid alſo went, & departed from Saul to feede his fathers ſhepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth in the thornynge, and euenynge, and continued fourtye dayes.

And Iſai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren an Epha of this parched corne & theſe ten loues, & brynge it to the hooſt to thy brethren. And carry theſe x. fresh cheſes vnto the capitayne, and loke howe thy brethren fare, and ſet out the pledge. And Saul and they, and all the men of Iſrael were in the ocke valley, fyghtynge with the Philistines. And Dauid roſe vpon early in the mornynge, and left the ſhepe with a keeper, and toke & went as Iſai had commaunded hym, and came within the compaſſe of the hooſt. And the hooſte went out in aray, and ſoured in the battayle: for Iſrael and the Philistines had put them ſelues in aray, the one agaynſt the other. And Dauid put downe the gere from hym and put them vnder the bandes of the keeper of the veſſels, and ran into the hoſt, and came: and ſaluted his brethren. And as he talked with the: Beholde, there ſtode a man in the myddes (Goliath the Philistine by name of Gath) out of the aray of the Philistines, and ſpake of the maner aboue reherſed, the Dauid herde it. And all the men of Iſrael, who the ſawe the mā, ran awaye from hym, and were loze afrayed. And euery man of Iſrael ſayde: Sawe ye this man come forth: euen to reuyle Iſrael is he come. * And to hym that beate hym wyl the kynge gyue great rychesſe, and wyl gyue hym his daughter thereto yea, and make his fathers houſe free in Iſrael.

And Dauid ſpake to the men that ſtode by, and ſayd: What ſhal be done to the mā that beate this Philistine, & taketh awaye the ſpaine from Iſrael? And what is this vncircumciſed Philistine, the he ſhulde reuyle the hooſt of the lvyng God? And the people answered hym (after this maner) ſaying: ſo ſhal it be done to the mā, that beate hym. And Eliab his eldeſt brother hearde when he ſpake vnto the men, and Eliab was angrye with Dauid, & ſayde: Whye comelt thou downe hither? and to whom haſt thou left thoſe ſewe ſhepe in the wilderneſſe? I knowe thy pride and the

and the malice of thyne heert, that thou art comdowne to se the battayl. And Dauid sayd. And what haue I now done? is there not a worde?
And he departed from him into the presence of an officer, and spake of the same maner, and the people answered hym agayne as before.

And they þ herde the wordes which Dauid spoke, rehearsed the befoze Saul, which caused him to be fet. And Dauid sayd to Saul: Let no mans heert fayle him bycause of hym. Thy seruant will go, & fyght with yonder Philistine And Saul sayd to Dauid agayne: thou art not able to go agaynst yonder Philistine to fight w him. For þ arte but a chylde, but he is a man of war, euen fro his yowth. Dauid answered vnto Saul: Thy seruant kept his fathers shepe, and there came a lyon & lyaweysle a beere, & toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him and smote him, & toke it out of his mouth. And whē he arose agaynst me, I caught him by the beerde, & smote him & slue hym. And so thy seruant slue the lyon & the beere: also, hath thy seruant slayne. And truly this vncircumcised Philistine shalbe as one of them. Ex. xlii. a cised Philistine, saying he hath rayled on the host of the luyng God. And Dauid spake mozeouer: the Lorde þ deliuered me oute of þ hande of the lyon, & out of the hande of þ beere, he shall deli-uer me also out of the hande of the Philistine.

And Saul sayd vnto Dauid: go, & the Lord shall be with the. And Saul put his rayment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpon his head, & put a cote of mayle vpon hym, and gyr-ed Dauid with his owne swerde vpon his ray-ment. And he assayed to go. And bycause he neuer proued it, Dauid sayd vnto Saul: I cannot go with these, for I haue not vied my self ther-to: And Dauid put them of hym, and toke his staffe in his hande, & chose hym fyue smothe stones out of a hocke, & put them in a shepherdes bag which he had, & in a slynge poke & his sling was in his hand, and he went to the Philistine.

A And þ Philistine came and dyne nere agaynst Dauid, and the man þ bare the shylde went be-foze hym. And when the Philistine looked about and sawe Dauid, he disdaind hym, for he was but yonge, and well coloured, & goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayd vnto Dauid: am I a dogge that thou comest to me with a staffe?
And the Philistine cursed Dauid in the name of his goddes. And the Philistine sayd to Dauid: come to me, & I will gyue thy flesh vnto the foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of the felde.
Then sayde Dauid to the Philistine: thou commest to me with a swerde, a speare and a shylde:
But I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hostes, the God of the host of Israel, whome thou hast rayled vpon. This day shall the Lorde deliuer the into my hande, and I shal smyte the and take thyne heert from the, and will gyue þ carcasses of the host of the Philistines this day vnto þ foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of þ erth þ all they which be in the world may know that there is a God in Israel. And all this congregation shall knowe: that the Lorde sauerth not with swerde and speare. For the battayl is the Lordes, & he shall gyue you into our handes.

And whē þ Philistine arose to come & drawe nye vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted & ran into þ bat-tayle cue agaynst þ Philistine. And Dauid put his hand in his bag, & toke out a stone, & slang it & smote þ Philistine in his forehead, þ the stone fonke into his forehead & he fell grounslunge Ex. xlii. a to þ erth. And so Dauid ouercam the Philistine with a slynge and a stone, & smote þ Philistine & slue him, euen when Dauid had no swerde in his hande. But Dauid ranne, & stode vpon þ Phil-istine, and toke his swerde and drew it out of his sheeth, & slue him, and cut of his heed therewith.
And whē the Philistines sawe þ theyr champyon was deed, & they fled. And the men of Israel & Juda arose, & routed, & folowed after þ Philistines, vntill they came to the valley, and vnto þ gates of Aikard. And the Philistines fell downe wounded by the waye to Sagarim cue vnto Gath & Aikaron. And the childre of Israel returned from chasynge after the Philistines, & spoiled theyr tentes. And Dauid toke the heed of the Philistine and brought it to Ierusalem.
But he put his armour in his tent.

Whē Saul sawe Dauid go forth agaynst þ Ex. xlii. a Philistine, he sayd vnto Abner þ capayne of his host: Abner, whois sonne is this yongman?
Abner answered as truly as thy soule lyueth, (Sking) I canot tel. And þ king sayd Enquire þ whois sonne the yongling is. And whē Da-uid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke hym, and brought hym be-foze Saul, with the heed of the Philistine in his hande. And Saul said to him: whose sonne art thou, thou yongman? Dauid answered I am þ sonne of thy seruant Iai the Bethlehemyte.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The honour betwene Dauid and Jonathan Saul gorth about to slaye Dauid.

And whē he had made an end of A speaking vnto Saul, þ soule of Jonathan was knit w the soule of Dauid, and Jonathan loued hym as his owne soule. And Saul toke hym that daye, and wolde let him goo nomore home to his fathers house. And Jonathan made a couenant w Da-uid because he loued him as his owne soule. And Jonathan put of his owne cote þ was vpon him & gaue it Dauid, & thereto his cloke, his swerde, his bowe & his gyrdle. And Dauid went oute whither soeuer Saul sent him, & behaned hym felke wysely. And Saul set hym ouer his men of warre, & he was accepted in the syght of all the people: and in the syght of Sauls seruantes.

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Phil-istine, that women came oute of all cyties of Israel, syngynge and daunsynge agaynst the kyng Saul, and with tymbrels, withiope, and w in-one an other in their playe, & sayd: Saul hath slayne his thousand, & Dauid his ten thousand. Ex. xlii. a

D. 11. And

And Saul was exceeding wroth, and the saying displeased him, and he said: they haue ascribed vnto David & A, and to me but a thousand, & what can he more haue, saue y<sup>e</sup> kingdom: Wherefore Saul looked on spide of David from y<sup>e</sup> daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, y<sup>e</sup> the euyl spryte sent of God came vpon Saul, & he prophesied in the middes of y<sup>e</sup> house. And David played wth his hand lyke as at other tymes, & there was a laueling in Sauls had. And Saul toke y<sup>e</sup> iaueling & sayd: I wil naye David to y<sup>e</sup> wall wth it. And David auoyded oute of his presence two tymes. And Saul was afrayd of David, because y<sup>e</sup> Lord was wth hym, & was departed fro Saul. Therefore Saul put him fro hym, and made him a captayne ouer a thousand, & he went out & in before y<sup>e</sup> people. And David behaved him self wisely in all his wayes, & the Lord was wth him. Wherefore when Saul sawe that he was so exceeding wyse, he was afrayed of him. But all Israel & Iuda loued David, because he went out & in before the. And Saul sayd to David: Beholde my eldest daughter Merob, her I wyl geue y<sup>e</sup> to wyfe. Onely play y<sup>e</sup> man wth me, & syght y<sup>e</sup> Lordes battayles. For Saul thought: myne hād shal not be vpo hym, but y<sup>e</sup> hand of y<sup>e</sup> Philistines. And David answered Saul: what am I, & what is my lyfe, or y<sup>e</sup> kynred of my father in Israel, y<sup>e</sup> I shuld be son in law to y<sup>e</sup> king? Howbeit when y<sup>e</sup> tyme was com y<sup>e</sup> merob Sauls daughter shulde haue ben gyuen to David, she was gyue vnto Achis a Getholothite, to wyfe. Howbeit, Michol Sauls daughter loued David. And they shewed Saul: & the thing displeased him not. And Saul sayd: I wyl geue hym her y<sup>e</sup> she may be a share to him, & that y<sup>e</sup> hand of the Philistines may be agaynst him. Wherefore Saul sayd to David thou shalt this day be my sonne in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul commaunded his seruantes to comen with David secretly, and to slaye: Beholde, the kyng hath a fauour to the, and al his seruantes loue the, be nowe therefore the kynges sonne in lawe.

¶ And Sauls seruantes spake these wordes in the eares of David. And David sayd, semeth it to you a lyght thyng to be a kynges sonne in lawe: I am a poore man & of small reputation. And y<sup>e</sup> seruantes brought Saul word agayne, sayyng, of this maner spake David. And Saul sayd, this wyse shal ye saye to David: the kyng careth for no nother dowrye, but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines to be auenged of y<sup>e</sup> kynges enemies. But Saul thought he to make David fall into the hādes of y<sup>e</sup> Philistines. And when his seruantes tolde David these wordes it pleased David well, to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And on the dayes were expired, David arose with his men, and went and slew of the Philistines, two hundred men, and David brought theyr foreskynnes and satisfied y<sup>e</sup> king thereof, to be his son in lawe. Wherefore Saul gaue hym Michol his daughter to wyfe. And Saul sawe and vnderstode how that y<sup>e</sup> Lord was with David, and that Michol his daughter loued hym, and he was the more afrayed of David, and Saul became alway David's enemye. The lordes of the Philistines vled to go forth. And it fortuneth, y<sup>e</sup> when they went forth David behaved him selfe wyselyer the all y<sup>e</sup> seruantes of Saul: so y<sup>e</sup> his name was moch set by Saul commaundeth to slaye David. Michol his wyfe saureth hym.

Saul spake to Jonathas his sonne, and A to all his seruantes, y<sup>e</sup> they shulde kyll David. But Jonathas Sauls sonne had a great fauour to David, and Jonathas tolde David, sayyng: Saul my father goeth about to slaye the. Nowe therefore, take hede to thy selfe vntill the morning, and abide in some secreete place, and hyde thy selfe. And I wyl go out and stande by my father in the feld where thou art, and wyl comen with my father of the, and whatsoeuer I se, I wyl tell the. And Jonathas spake good of David, vnto Saul his father, & sayd vnto him, let not y<sup>e</sup> king syn agaynst his seruāt David, for he hath not synned agaynst the, & his workes haue ben to y<sup>e</sup> ward very good. For he did put his lyfe in his hand, & slue y<sup>e</sup> Philistine, & the Lord brought to passe a great health for all Israel. Thou sawest it, & thou reioysdest: wherefore the wylt y<sup>e</sup> synne agaynst innocent bloude, & slaye David withoute a cause? And Saul hearkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas, and sware: as truly as the Lord lyueth, he shall not dye. And Jonathas called David, and shewed hym all those wordes and brought David to Saul. And he was in his presence as in tymes past.

And y<sup>e</sup> warre began agayne, & David wente out & fought wth the Philistines, and slue them wth a great slaughter, & they fled from hym. And the euyl spryte set of y<sup>e</sup> Lord was vpo Saul as he sat in his house haupng a iauelon in his hand & David played wth his hande. And Saul cōmaunded to naye David to the wall wth the iauelin. But he rōd hym selfe oute of Sauls presence, as he smote the speare wth a barne stroke in to the wall. And David fled, and was saued the same nyght. Saul also sent messēgers vnto Dawids house, to wathe hym, and to slaye hym in the morynge. And Michol Dawids wyfe tolde it hym, sayyng: If thou saue not thy selfe this night to morow thou wilt be slayne. And so Michol let David downe thowowe a wondowe, and he went and fled and was saued. And when she toke an ymage and layed it in the bed, and put a pylowe stuffed with gootes heere vnder the heed of it, and covered it with a clothe. And when Saul sent messengers to seche David, she sayd he is speke. And Saul sente the messengers agayne to se David, sayyng: byynge hym to me, bed and all, that I maye slaye hym. And when the messengers wer come in: Beholde, there laye an ymage in the bed, with a pylowe of gootes heere vnder the heed of it. And Saul sayde vnto Michol: why haste thou mocked me so, and sent a waye myne enemy, that he is escaped? Michol answered Saul: For he sayde vnto me: let me go, or els I wyl kyll the. And so David fled, and and escaped, and came to Samuel to Rama, and tolde hym all that Saul had done to hym. And he and Samuel went & dwelt in Raioth.

D And one tolde Saul, sayinge Beholde, Dauid is at Raioth in Rama. And Saul let messengers to fet Dauid. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the third tyme and they prophesied also. Thē went he him self to Rama, & came to a great wel that is in Sechu, & he asked and sayde. where are Samuel & Dauid? And one said behold, they be at Raioth in Rama, and he went thither, euen to Raioth in Rama, and the spyrte of God came vpon him also, and he went prophesyinge vntyll he came to Raioth in Rama. And he crypte of his clothes, and prophesied before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all that daye and all that nyght. * And therof it is, that they say. is Saul also amonge the prophetes?

The xx Chapter.

David & Jonathan.

A And Dauid fled from Raioth which is in Rama, and came & sayd before Jonathan: What haue I done? wherein am I faultie? what is the synne that I haue comytted before thy father, & he seeketh my lyfe? he sayd vnto him God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. Beholde my father wyl do nothing either greute or small, but & he wyl shewe it me. And how shuld my father hyde this thinge from me? he wil not do it. And Dauid swaie agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth & I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and therefore he sayeth Jonathan shal not knowe it, lest he be sorow. And in very dede; euen as truly as & Lord lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a step betweene me and death. Then sayd Jonathan vnto Dauid: whatsoener thy soule desyareth, that I wyl do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathan. Beholde, tomorrow is the begynnyng of the moneth, & I wuld spt w the king at meat. But let me go, that I maye hyde my self in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen. If thy father speake of me, then save: Dauid asked leaue of me, & he might go to Bethlehe to his owne cite, for there is holden a yerely feast for all & kinred. And if he save. it is well done, then thy seruauant shal haue peace. But and if he be angry the be sure, & wyckednesse is utterly concluded of him. And thē & shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruauant * for thou hast made to me thy seruauant a bonde in the Lord. For withstanding, if there be in me any trespass: then slaye me thy selfe, & bypunge me not to thy father.

A And Jonathan answered God kepe & fro the (neither is it possible to come to passe.) For if I knew & wyckednes were concluded of my father to com vpon the synkest & that I shoulde not tel it the? Then sayd Dauid: who shal tel me if thy father answer cruelly? And Jonathan sayde vnto Da-uid, come, and let vs go out into the felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathan sayd vnto Dauid: & Lord God of Israel loke on it, when I haue groped my fathers mide, one tyme or other w in this wy. Dapes & it shal wel w Dauid. If I the sed not vnto the & shewe it the, & Lord do so & so vnto Jonathan. But if my father haue any pleasure to do & euyl, I wil shewe & also, & send & away & thou mayest go in peace. And & Lord be w the as he hath ben with my father. And thou shalt perforce vnto me the mercede of the Lord, not onely whyle I lyue, but euen when I am deed, and pluck not thy mercede awaye from my house for euer: No, not when the Lord hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauid, euery one from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathan made a bonde with the house of Dauid, desyring that the Lord shuld seke it out by the handes of Dauids enemyes, (if it were broken.) And with other wordes dyd Jonathan sweare vnto Dauid, bycause he loued him. For he loued him as his owne soule.

Then sayd Jonathan to Dauid: tomorrow is & first day of & moone. And thou shalt be missed, bycause the place where & wast wont to spt shalbe empye. Therefore this daye thre dapes, come downe in any wyse vnto & place where & dydest hyde thy selfe, whē & busynesse was in hand: euen by & stone & sel. And I wil shote thre arrowes by & one syde thereof, as though I shot the at a marke, & wyl sende a lad, & byd hym go seke & arrowes. And if I say vnto & lad se, the arrowes are on this syde & bring them: then come thou: for it is peace & no hurt, as sure as & Lord lyueth. But & if I saye vnto the lad behold, the arrowes are beyonde the, then go & in peace. for & Lord hath sent the awaye. And as touchyng this whiche thou and I haue spoken beholde, & Lord be betwene the & me for euer. And so Dauid byd hym selfe in the felde. And when & newe moone was come, the kyng sat hym downe to eate meate. And the kyng sat bym downe after the olde maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathan arose, and Abner sat by Sauls syde, & Dauids place was empye. Nevertheless, Saul sayde nothyng at all that daye. For he thought: some thyng hath chaunced him, & he is not cleue. But on the morowe which was the second day of the newe moone, it happened, that Dauids place was empye agayne. And Saul sayd vnto Jonathan his sonne: Wherefore cometh not & sonne of Isai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor todaye? And Jonathan answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked licence of me to go to Bethlehe, for he sayd: let me go, I praye the, for our kynrede doth hold an offering in & cite, & my brother hath sent for me. And therefore I haue found fauour in thyne eyes: let me go, & se my brethren. This is the cause that he cometh not vnto the kinges table. Then was Saul angry with Jonathan, and sayd vnto him: Thou wycked rebel, do not I knowe, that thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thyne owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother? For as longe as the sonne of Isai lyueth vpon the earth, thou shalt not be my. stably.

that it was vtterly determined of his father to

On the next morning Jonathan went out into a lytle lad with him. And he sayd vnto his boy: runne, and seke out myne arrowes which I shot:

and as þ boy ran he shot an arrowe beyonde him.
And when the lad was come to the place wherther Jonathan had shotte the arrowe, Jonathan crept after the lad, and sayd: Is not the arrowe and worshipped thre tymes. And they killed ei-to Dauid: go in peace. And þ thinges which we melech the preest. And Achimelech was assayed at the sodayne com-

And ther was there the same daye a certayne

And Dauid sayd vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thyne hande epyther speare or swerde, for I haue neither brought my swerd nor my bag-

And Dauid arose and fled the same daye fro the presence of Saul, and went to Achis þ king of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayde of hym: is not this Dauid the kynge of the lander? dyd they not synge vnto hym in daunces, saybled on the doores of the gate, and let his spetle fall downe vpon his beard.

Then sayde Achis vnto his seruauntes: Loye se that this man is besyde hym selfe, wherfore then haue ye brought hym to me? haue I need of mad men, that ye haue brought this fe-lowe to playe the madde man in my presence?
Shall he come into my house?

God wyl do for me. And he brought the before

And the prophet Gad sayd vnto Dauid: abyde forest of Hareth. And Saul herde that Dauid

Then answered Doeg the Edompte whiche alio stode by the seruantes of Saul, and sayd: I sawe the sonne of Isai when he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob, which asked counsaile of the Lorde for hym, and gaue hym bptayles, and the swearde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kyng sent and called for Ahimelech the preeft the sonne of Ahitob, and all his fathers house, that is to saye: the preeftes that were in Nob.

And they came all to the kyng. And Saul sayde: heare now thou sonne of Ahitob. He answered here I am my lorde. And Saul sayd vnto him: why haue ye conspyred agaynst me, thou and the son of Isai, in that thou hast gyuen him vitayle, & a swearde, and hast asked counsaile of God for him, that he shoulde aryse agaynst me, and lye a wayte for me this day: Ahimelech answered the kyng, and sayd: who is so fawthful amonge all thy seruantes as Dauid, and thereto the kynges sonne in lawe, & goeth at thy bidding, and is had in honour in thyne house: hane I this daye fyrst begon to aske counsaile at God for him: What he sayd fro me (if I had knowe it) let not the kyng put suche a thyng vnto his seruant, in all the house of my father. For thy seruant knewe nothyng of all this, eyther lesse, or more. The kyng sayde: thou shalt surely dye Ahimelech, thou, and all thy fathers house. And the kyng sayde vnto the soter men that stode aboute hym: tourne, and slaye the preeftes of the Lorde, both bycause they hand is with Dauid, and bycause they knewe when Dauid fled, and shewed it not to me. But the seruantes of the kyng wolde not moue they handes to slay vpon the preeftes of the Lorde.

And the kyng sayde to Doeg: tyme thou, and fall vpon the preeftes. And Doeg the Edompte tourned, and ranne vpon the preeftes, and slue that same daye foure score and fyne persones that dyd warr a lynnyn Ephod. And Nob the cytie of the preeftes smote he with the edge of the swerde, bothe men and women, chyldren and sucklynges, oxen, asses and shepe.

And one of the sonnes of Ahimelech, the son of Ahitob named Abiathar he escaped and fledde to Dauid. And Abiathar shewed Dauid, howe that Saul had slayne the Lordes preeftes. And Dauid sayd vnto Abiathar: I wyll it the same daye, when Doeg the Edompte was there, that he wolde tell Saul.

And I am cause of the death of all the sonnes of thy fathers house. A byde thou with me, and feare not. For yf anye man seke my soule, he shall seke thynne also, with me thou shalt be in safegarde.

And the Lorde answered vnto Dauid: go and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. And Dauids men that were with hym, sayde vnto hym: se, we be afrayed here in Juda: howe moche more then yf we come to Keilah agaynst the hoost of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne.

And the Lorde answered hym, and sayde: Arise, and go downe to Keila, for I wyll deliuer the Philistines into thyne hande.

And so Dauid and his men wet to Keilah, & fought with the Philistines, and brove awaye theyr cattel, and smote the with a great slaughter. And so Dauid saued the inhabitours of Keila. And it chaunced when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keila, & he brought an Ephod with hym in his hande.

And it was told Saul that Dauid was come to Keila. And Saul sayde: God hath deliuered hym into myne hande. For he is shut in nowe & he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all the people together to warre, for to goo downe to Keila, and to besiege Dauid and his men. And Dauid hauynge knowledge that Saul ymagined myschefe agaynst him, sayd to Abiathar the preeft: * Sung the Ephod. 1. Samuel dyeth. David flyeth into the wyldernesse of Phara.

And * Samuel dyed, and all the Israelites gathered together, & lamented hym, and buried hym in his owne house at Rama.

And David arose, and gat hym to the wylderneſſe of Phara. And there was a man in Edoan whose poſſeſſion was in Carmel, and the man was exceedyng myghty & had thre thousande ſhepe, & a thousand gootes. And he was ſhepynge his ſhepe in Carmel.

The name of the man was Abail, and the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and ſhe was a woman of ſingular wyſdome, and beautifull. But the man was churliſh, and of ſturdy conditions, and was of the kynred of Caleb. And David herd in the wylderneſſe p Abail did there bys ſhepe. And David ſent out ten ponge men and ſayd vnto them. Set you vp to Carmel and go to Abail, and grete him in my name. And thus ſhall ye ſay: peace be to the, peace be to thy houſe, and peace be vnto all that thou haſt. Beholde, I haue herde ſaye, that thou haſt ſhepers.

Now thy ſheperdes were with vs <sup>(in the wylderneſſe)</sup> and we dyd them no ſpyte, neither was there ought <sup>(of the ſhepe)</sup> myſſing vnto them all the whyle they were in Carmel: aſke thy laddes and they wyll ſhewe p. Wherefore let theſe pong men fynde fauour in thyne eyes (for we come in a good ſeaſon) and * gyue I praye the, whatſo-

And when Davids ponge men came, they tolde Abail al thoſe wordes in the name of David, & then helde they peace. And Abail answered Davids ſeruauntes, & ſayd: what is David, and what is the ſonne of Iſai? there is plenty of ſeruauntes now a dayes, that breake away every mā from his maſter. Shal I the take my blood, my water & my fleſhe that I haue kyllid for my ſhepers, & gyue it vnto me whom I wot not whence they be? And ſo Davids ſeruauntes turned theyr waye, and went agayne, and came and tolde hym all thoſe thynges. And David ſayd vnto his men: gyde every man his ſwerde about him. And they girded every mā his ſwerde about hym: and David was gyrded with bys ſwerde. And there folowed David vpo a four hundred men, and two hundred abode by the ſuffe. But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Abails wyfe, ſayinge: Beholde, David ſente meſſengers vnto our maſter out of the wylderneſſe to ſalute hym, and he rayled on them. And yet p men are very good vnto vs, and dyd vs no diſpleaſure, neyther myſſed we any thyng as longe as we were conuerſaunte with them, when we were in the feldeſ. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght and daye, all the whyle we were with them keepyng ſhepe: Nowe therefore take hede, and ſe what thou haſt to doo, for there is an occaſion of euill gyuen agaynſt our maſter and all his houſholde, ſeing he is a ſonne of Belial vngyratious to ſpeake to. Then Abigail made haſte, and toke two hundred loues, & two hottels of wyne, and ſyue ſhepe redy drefſed, and frue meaſures of parched cozne, and an hundred frayles of reſpynges, and two hundred topittes of ſpygges, and laded them on aſſes, & ſayd vnto her ponge men: go ye before me. Beholde, I come after you. But ſhe tolde her husbande Abail nothyng therof. And as ſhe rode on her aſſe, ſhe came pryncely downe the ſyde of the hyll, and beholde, David and his men came downe agaynſt her, and ſhe met them.

And David ſayde: in vayne haue I kepte all that this ſelowe hath in the wylderneſſe, ſo that nought was myſſed of all that perternyed vnto hym. And he hath quyte me euill for good. So & ſo do God vnto the enemyes of David, if I leue of all that perternyeth to hym, by the dawnyng of the daye, any thyng that pſſeth agaynſt the wal. And when Abigail ſaw David, ſhe haſted and lyghted of her aſſe, and fel before David on her face, & bowed her ſelfe to the grounde, & fell at his fete, and ſayd: Let this vnhappye dede be counted myne, my lord, & let thyne handmayde ſpeake in thyne audience, and heare the word of thyne handmayde. Let not my lord <sup>(the kyng)</sup> regarde this vntyrſtie man Abail: for as bys name is, ſo is he: Abail is his name, and folys is with hym. But I thyne handmayde ſawe not the ponge men of my lord whom thou ſenteſt. Now therefore my lord aſſure as the Lord lyueth, & as thy ſoule lyueth, the Lord hath withholden the from comyng to ſhed bloude, & withdrowe thou thy hande from bloud ſhed. Nowe I praye God, that thyne enemyes & they that intende to do my lord euill, maye be as Abail. And now this is the bleſſyng which thyne handmayde hath brought vnto my lord, & let it be gyuen vnto the ponge men, that folowe my lord. Forgyue the treſpaſſe of thyne handmayde, for the Lord wyll make my lord a ſure houſe, by cauſe my lord fighteth the battayles of p Lord and there coulde none euill be founde in the in all thy dayes. And yf any man ryſe to perſecute the, and to ſeke thy ſoule, the ſoule of my lord ſhall be bounde as in the bondell of the luyng w the Lord thy God. And the ſoules of thyne enemyes ſhal God caſt out, euill as out of the mydle of a ſyng. And when the Lord ſhall haue done to my lord all the good p he hath promyſed the, and ſhall haue made the ruler ouer Iſrael: then ſhall it be no decaye vnto the, nor diſcouraſe of herte vnto my lord, that thou haſt not ſpadd bloude cauſeleſſe, nor auenged thy ſelfe.

But when the Lord ſhall haue dealt wel w my lord, then thy nke on thyne handmayde. And David ſayd to Abigail bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, which ſent the this daye to meete me. Bleſſed is thy ſayinge, and bleſſed arte thou, whiche haſt kept me this daye from comyng to ſhed bloude, and from auengyng my ſelfe with myne owne hande. For in very dede, as ſure as the Lord God of Iſrael lyueth, which hath kept me backe from hurtynge the, excepte thou haddeſt haſted and met me, thyneſt thou, there had ben left vnto Abail by the dawnyng of the daye.

of the daye, a pyller agaynst the walle. And so Dauid receyued of her hand that which she had brought hym, and sayde to her: goo vp in peace to thine house. Beholde, I haue herd thy voyce and haue accepted thy person.

S And Abigail came to Nabal: and beholde, he helde a feast in his house, lyke the feast of a kyng and Nabals hert was mery within him, for he was very dronken. Wherefore she told hym nothyng, neyther lesse nor more, vntyll the morowe daye. But in the morning when the wine was goone oute of Nabal, his wyfe tolde hym those wordes, and his herte dyed within hym, & he became as a stone. And vpon a ten dayes after, the Lorde smote Nabal, that he dyed. And when Dauid hearde, that Nabal was deed, he sayd: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Nabal, and hath kept his seruauit from euill, and hath recompensed the wickednesse of Nabal, vpon his owne heed. And Dauid sent to commune with Abigail to chynit to take her to his wyfe. And when the seruantes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, saying: Dauid sent vs to the, to take the to his wyfe. And she arose, & bowed her selfe ouer her face to the earth, and sayd: beholde, let thy handemayde be a seruauit, to wash the feet of the seruantes of my lord. And Abigail halted, and arose, and gat her vpon an ass, with fyue damels of hers, that went at her feet, and she went after the messengers of Dauid, and became his wyfe. Dauid also toke a henn of Israel, and they were both his wyues. But Saul greeued & Michol his daughter Dauids wyfe, to Phalti the sonne of Laish, whiche was of Gallim.

The xxvj. Chapter.

Saul slepyth in his tent, and Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruse of water that stode at his heed.

A The ziphites came vnto Saul to Gibeon, sayinge: Dost thou not Dauid hyde hym selfe in the hyll of Achila which is before Jerusalem? Saul arose, and wente downe to the wyldernesse of ziph, hauing thre thousande chosen men of Israel with hym to seeke Dauid in the wyldernesse of ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyll of Achila which lyeth before Jerusalem by the wayes syde. But Dauid dwelt in the wyldernesse. And he sawe that Saul came after hym into the wyldernesse. Dauid therfore sent out spyes, and vnderstode, that Saul was come in very dede.

And Dauid arose & came to the place where Saul had pitched, and Dauid behelde the place where Saul laye, and Abner the sonne of Ner which was his cheefe captayne. Saul lay within, and the people & the host round about hym. The answered Dauid, and spake to Ahimelech the hethite, and to Abisai the sonne of zacaria & brother to Joab, sayinge: who wyll go downe with me to Saul to the host? And Abisai sayd: I wyll go downe with the.

S And so Dauid and Abisai came downe to the people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye slepyng with his host, and his speare sticke in the grounde at his heed. But Abner and the people lay rounde about hym. Then sayd Abisai to Dauid: God hath deliuered thyn enemy into thyn hande this daye. Nowe therfore, let me smyte hym ones with my speare to the earth, and I wyll not smyte hym the seconde tyme. And Dauid sayde to Abisai, destroye hym not. For who can laye his hande on the Lordes annointed, and be gyltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as sure as the Lorde lyueth & Lorde that I smyte hym, or his daye shall come to dye: or he shall descende into battayle, and there perishe.

The Lorde kepe me from laying myne hand vpon the Lordes annointed. But take thou now the speare that is at his heed, & the cruse of water, & let vs go. And so Dauid toke the speare & the cruse of water from Sauls heed, & they gat them awaye, and noman sawe it, or marked it, or awaked. For they were all asleepe, bycause the Lorde had sent a deede slepe vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer into the other syde, and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre off (a great space beinge betwene them) and Dauid cried to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, saying: hearest thou not Abner? Abner answered, and sayd: What arte thou that cryest to the kynges? And Dauid sayd to Abner: art not thou a man & who is lyke the in Israel? Wherefore then hast thou not kept thy lord the kyng? For there came one of the folke in to destroye the kyng thy lord. It is not good, thou hast done. As truly as the Lorde lyueth, & ye are worthy to dye, bycause ye haue not kepte your master the Lordes annointed. And now se where the kynges speare is, & the cruse of water that was at his heed.

And Saul knewe Dauids voyce, and sayde: What is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? & Dauid sayd: It is my voyce, my lord, O kyng. And he sayd: wherefore dost my lord thus persecute his seruauit? for what haue I done? or what euill is in myne hande? Nowe therfore let my lord the kyng heare the wordes of his seruauit. If the Lorde haue spered the vpon agaynst me, let hym smell the sauour of a sacrifice. But and if they be the chyldren of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue cast me out this daye from abydinge in the inheritance of the Lord, saying: hence: and go serue other goddes. Nowe therfore let not my bloude fall to the earth before the face of the Lord. For the kyng of Israel is come out to hunt a beye, as whē one doth hunt a partridge in the mountaynes. Then sayde Saul: I haue sinned: come agayne my sonne Dauid, for I wyll do the nomore harme, bycause my soule was precious in thyn eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue played the foole, & haue erred exceedingly. And Dauid answered, and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of thy yongmen come ouer, and let it. The Lorde rewarde euery man accordyng to his ryghteousnesse and sayth: for the Lorde deliuered the in to my hande this daye, but I wolde not laye myne hande vpon the Lordes annointed. And beholde, lyke as thy lyfe was moche set by this daye in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lord, that he deliuer me.

lyuer me oute of all tribulation: Then Saul sayde to David: Blessed art thou my sonne David, for thou shalt be a doer, and preuayle.

And so David went his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

The xxvij. Chapter.

David speaketh to Achis kynge of Geth.

AND David sayd in his hert: I shall perryt one daye or other by the hande of Saul. Therefore is there nothyng better for me, then to flye and saue my self in the lande of the Philistines, and Saul shall ceasse, and seke me nomore in all the coastes of Israel, and so shall I escape oute of his hande.
And David arose, and he and the fyre hundred men that were with hym went vnto Achis the sonne of Macho, kynge of Geth. And David dwelt with Achis at Geth, both he and his me, euery man with his household, and David with his two wyues: Abinoam the Jezrabelite, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel.

And it was told Saul that David was fled to Geth, and he sought nomore for hym. And David sayd vnto Achis: If I haue now founde grace in thine eyes, let them gyue me a place in some towne in the feldest, & I maye dwel there.
For why shoulde thy seruant dwel in the heed citty of the kyngdome with the? Then Achis gaue him ziklag that same day, for which cause ziklag perseyneeth vnto the kynges of Iuda vnto this day. And the tyme that David dwelt in the countrey of the Philistines, was four monethes and certayne dayes. And David and his men went vp, and ranne vpon the Geshurites, & Gertzites and the Amalekites: For those naci-ons were from the begynning the inhabitaours of the lande, as men go to Sur, vnto the land of Egypt. And David smote the land, and left neither man nor woman alyue, and dyone awaye the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camels, and clothes and returned & came to Achis. And Achis sayd: Where haue ye bene a long tyme? And David answered: Towarde the south of Iuda, and towarde the south of the Jezrabelites, and towards the south of the Kenites. And David saued neither man nor woman alyue, nor suffered them to come to Geth, for feare (sayeth he) lest they shoulde tel on vs, saying: so dyd David, and so wyll be his maner all the while he dwelleth in the countrey of the Philistines. And Achis be-lieued David, sayinge: He abhorreth his people of Israel, and therefore he shalbe my seruant for euer.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul, whiche seeketh after an enchaunter.

AND it chaunced in those dayes, that the Philistines gathered their host together to warre, to fight with Israel.
And Achis sayde to David: Be sure, thou shalt go out with me to the battayle, thou and the men that are with the. And David sayd to Achis: then thou shalt knowe what thy seruant can do. And Achis sayde agayne to Da-uid: Then I wyll make the keeper of my heed for euer. * Samuel was then deed, and all Israel had lamented hym, and buryed hym in Rama his owne citty. * And Saul had put the womē that had spyrites of prophecie & the sorplayers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered together, and came, and pitched in Sunem: And Saul gathered all Israel together, and they pitched in Gilboa: And when Saul sawe the host of the Philistines, he was afrayed, and his hert was sore astounded. And when Saul asked counsaile of the Lorde: the Lorde answered hym not neither by dreames nor by Urim, nor yet by prophetes. Then sayd Saul vnto his seruantes: * seke me a womā that hath a spyrite of prophecie, that I maye go to her, & aske of her. And his seruantes sayd to hym: Behold, there is a woman that hath a spyrite of prophecie at Endor.

And Saul chaunged hym selfe, and put on other rayment, and then went he and two men with him, and they came to the womā by night.
And he sayd: prophecie vnto me by the spyrite, and bringe me hym by whom I shall name vnto the. And the womā sayd vnto hym: Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath doone, howe he hath destroyed the women that had prophecinge spyrites, & the sorcerers out of the lande.
Wherefore then sekest thou an occasion agaynst my soule, that he maye kill me? And Saul swa-re to her by the Lorde, saying: As surely as I Lorde lyueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thyng. Then sayd the womā: whom shal I fet vp vnto the? he answered: Bringe me vp Samuel. When the womā sawe Samuel, she cryed with a loude voyce, and spake to Saul: saying:
why hast thou deceyued me? for thou art Saul.
And the kynge sayde vnto her: be not afrayed.
What seest thou? The womā sayd vnto Saul:
I se goddes ascendinge vp out of the earth. He sayde vnto her agayne: what fashion is he of?
She answered: there cometh vp an olde man wa mantel vpon hym. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, and he stouped with his face to the ground and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel sayd to Saul: why hast thou disquyeted me, to make me be brought vp? Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philistines make war-re agaynst me, & God is departed from me, and an-swereth me nomore, neyther by prophetes neyther by dreames. And therefore I haue called the that thou mayest tell me what I shall do. Then sayd Samuel: wherfore dost thou aske of me, while the Lorde is gone fro the: and is become thyne enemy? Trulye the Lorde hath done for hym selfe, euen as he spake by my hande. * For the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome out of thine hande, & gyuen it thyne neyghboure David. Because thou obeyedst not the voyce of the Lorde, nor executedst hisuarre wraith vpon the Amalekites, therefore hath the Lorde done this vnto the this daye. And moreover, the Lorde wyll deliuer Israel with the into the handes of the Philistines. * Tomorrow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and the Lorde shal gyue the host of Israel into the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell streyght waye flat on the earth as he was, and was sore adre-ssed.

bycause of the wordes of Samuel:

D And there was no strength in hym, for he had eaten no bread all the daye and the nyght before. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe that he was sore troubled, and sayde vnto hym: Se thyne handmayde hath obeyed thy voyce, and * haue put my soule in myne hande, & haue hearkened vnto thy wordes which thou saydest vnto me: Nowe therfore hearken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayde, and let me set a morsell of bread before the, that thou mayest eate and get the strength, and then goo on thy iourneye. He refused, and sayde: I wyl not eate. But his seruantes and the woman together compelled hym, and he hearkened vnto theyr voyce. And so he arose from the earth, and late hym on a bedde. The woman had a fat calfe in the house, and she hasted and kylled it, and toke floure and kneded it, and dyd bake sweete cakes there of, and brought them before Saul and before his seruantes. And when they had eaten, they stode vp, and went awaye the same night.

The xxx. Chapter

David goeth with kynge Achis to fight agaynst Saul.

A The Philistines were gathered together with all theyr armies vnto Aphec. And the Israelites pitched in Bezer, which is in Ierusalem. And the lordes of the Philistines went forth with the hundredes and thousandes. But David and his men came behinde with Achis. Then sayde the lordes of the Philistines: What are yonder hebrues? Achis sayd vnto the lordes of the Philistines: Is not this David the seruante of Saul the kynge of Israel, whiche hath ben with me these dayes or peres? I haue founde no fault in hym, thus he fled vnto me vnto this daye. And the lordes of the Philistines were wroth with hym, and sayde vnto hym:

Make this felowe retorne, that he maye goo agayne to his place whiche thou hast appoynted hym, and let hym not go downe with vs to battayle, lest in the battayle he be an aduersarye to vs. For wherewith coude he better obtayne the fauoure of his master, then with the breedes of these men? Is not this David, to whome theyr sange in daunces: * Saul slue his thousand and David his ten thousande? Then Achis called David, and sayd vnto hym: As sure as y Lord lyueth thou hast ben honest & good in my sight, when thou wentest oute and in with me, in the host neyther haue I founde curll with the syngs thou comest to me vnto this daye. Neuertheles the lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not.

Wherfore nowe retorne and go in peace, that thou displease not the lordes of the Philistines. And David sayd vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruant as long as I haue bene with the vnto this day: that I maye not go fyght agaynst the enemyes of my lord the kynge?

D Achis answered, and sayd to David: I knowe that thou art good, and arte in my sight, as an Angell of God. Notwithstandyng, the lordes of the Philistines haue sayd: Let hym not go vp with vs to battayle. Wherfore nowe, ryse vp earlye in the mornynge with thy masters seruantes that are come to the: and whē ye be vp earlye (as soone as ye haue lyght) departe. And so David and his men rose vp earlye to departe in the mornynge, and to retourne into the lande of the Philistines. And the Philistines wente vnto Ierusalem.

The xxx. Chapter

David retourneth from kynge Achis, sendeth his king burnt.

But when David and his men were come to zikleg the thyrde daye, the Amalechites had rushed in vpon the south, and vpon zikleg, and had smytten zikleg, and burnt it with fyre, and had taken the women (that were therein) prisoners, both small and great: but slue not a man, saue carped them with them, and went theyr wayes. So David and his men came to the cytie: and beholde, it was burnt with fyre, and theyr wyues, theyr sonnes and theyr daughters were carped awaye. Then David and the people that was with hym, lyfte vp theyr voyces and wept, vntill they coude wepe nomore. And Davids two wyues were taken prisoners also: Ahinoā the Ierusalemite, and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite. And David was in a greide combraunce, for the people entred to stone hym, bycause the bertes of al the people were vered for theyr sonnes & theyr daughters.

But David toke a good courage to hym in the Lorde his God, and * sayde to Abiathar the preeste Ahimelechs sonne: I praye the brynge me the E phod. And Abiathar broughte the E phod to David. And David asked counsaile at the Lorde, sayinge: Shall I folowe after this companye? and shall I ouertake them? And he answered hym: folowe, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye.

So David and the syxe hundred men that were with hym, wente, and came to the rpuer Besor, where a parte of them abode. But David and foure hundred men followed: For two hundred abode behynde, beinge to werpe to go ouer the rpuer Besor. And they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and broughte hym to David, * and gaue hym breede to eate, and water to drynke, and gaue hym a fewe fygges, and two clustres of reysynges. And when he had eaten his spyrite came agayne to hym for he had eaten no bread, nor drynke anye water in thre dayes, and thre nyghtes. And David sayd vnto hym: To whom belongeth thou? & whence art thou? he sayde: I am a yongeman of Egypte, and seruant to an Amalechite, and my master let me behynde, bycause it is thre dayes agone that I fell fycke: we came a rounge vpon the south of Chetius and agaynst Iuda, and towarde the south of Caleb. And we burnt zikleg with fyre. And David sayde to him: canst thou brynge me to this companye? And he sayde: sweate vnto me by me by God, that thou wylt neyther kyl me, nor delyuer me into the handes of my master, and I wyl byngge the to the companye. And when he had brought hym thither, beholde, they lay scattered abroad vpon the earth, eatynge and drynkyng, & daunsyng, bycause of the plenteous & great praye they had carryed away out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Iuda.

¶ And Dauid layed vpon them from the euen vntyll the twylyght on the morowe: so that there escaped not a man of them, save foure hundred yonge men, whiche rode awaye vpon camels, and fledde. And Dauid recovered all that the Amalekites had carryed awaye, and Dauid rescued his two wyues: so that there was no personne of them lackynge, small or great, some of doughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had taken awaye: Dauid recovered them all agayne. And Dauid toke all the shepe, and the oxen, and they drave them before his cattel, and sayd: this is Dauids praye. And Dauid came to the two hundred men that were to wryte for to folowe Dauid, whome they had made also to abyde at the cytye Beroth. And they came to mete Dauid, and the people that were with hym. And when Dauid came to the people, he saluted them. Then answered all the wyched and the vntuhtes (of the men that wente with Dauid,) and sayde: bycause they went not with vs, therfore wyl we geue them none of the praye, that we haue recovered. But let euery man take his wyfe and his chyldren: those let them carpe awaye and be walkynge.

¶ Then sayde Dauid: ye shall not doo so (my brethren, with that whiche the Lorde hath gyuen vs, and hath preserved vs, and delyuered the companye that came agaynst vs, into oure handes. For who shoulde hearken vnto you in this matter? * But as his parte is that goeth downe and fyghteth, so shall his parte be that carryeth by the stuffe, that it may be parted alyke. And so from that day forward was that made a statute and a lawe in Israel, vntyll this daye. ¶ When Dauid therfore came to bkeleg, he sente out orders, of the praye vnto the elders of Iuda, and to his frendes, sayinge. Ie, there is a blessing for you, of the spoyle of your enemyes or the Lord he sent to them of Bethel to them of South Ramoth: to them of Jathir: to them of Aroer: to them of Sephamoth: to them of Esthemaa: to them of Bethel: to them of the cytie of Jethameel: to them of the cyties of the Kenytes: to them of Moza: to them of Mozaan: to them of Jethach: to them that are in Hebron, and in all places where Dauid & his men were wont to haue.

¶ Saul kylleth hym selfe: and his chyldren are slayne in the battayle.

¶ he * Philistines foughte agaynst Israel, and the men of Israel fled awaye from the Philistines, and fell downe wounded in mount Gilboa. And the Philistines preased fore vpon Saul and his sonne, and slue Jonathas and Abinadab and Melchisua Saules sonnes. And when the battayle went fore agaynst Saul, the archers with bowes founde hym, and he was sore aspayed of the archers. Then sayde Saul vnto his harnesbearer: * drawe out thy swerde, and thrust me thorow therewith, lest the vncircumcised come and thrust me throuwe and make a mockyng stocke of me. But his harnesbearer wolde not, for he was sore aspayed. And Saul toke a swerde and fel vpon it. And when his harnesbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fel lyke wyse vpon his swerde, and dyed with hym.

¶ And so Saul dyed, and his thre sonnes, and his harnesbearer, and all his men, that same daye togyther.

¶ And when the men of Israel that were on the other syde of the valleye, and they of the other syde Jordan hearde that the men of Israel were put to flight, and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they left the cyties, and ranne awaye: and the Philistines came, and dwelt in them. * On the morowe when the Philistines were come, to spoyle them that were slayne, they founde Saul and his thre sonnes lyinge in mount Gilboa. And they cut of his heed, and strepped him out of his harnesse, and sent into the lande of the Philistines on euery syde, that they shulde publyshe it in the temple of theyr ydoles, and among the people, and they layed vp his harnesse in the house of Ashtaroth, but they hanged vp his bodye on the wall of Bethsan. * When the inhabytours of Jabes in Gilead hearde thereof, what the Philistines hadde done to Saul, they arose (as many as were stronge men) and wēt at night and toke the bodye of Saul, and the bodyes of his sonnes, from the wall of Bethsan, & came to Jabes, and burnt the there, and toke theyr bones & buried the vnder a tree at Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

The fyrst Chapter.

(The lamentacion of David for Saul and Jonathas.

After the death of Saul, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and had ben two dayes in ziklag. Behold, there came a man the thyrde day out of the host from Saul, with hys clothes rent, and earth upon his heed. And whē he cam to David, he fel to the earth, and byd obersaunce. David sayd vnto hym: whence comest thou? He sayd vnto hym: Out of the host of Israel I am escaped. And David sayd vnto hym: And what is chaunced? tell me. He sayde: the people is fled from the battayle, and manye of the people are overthowen, and deed, and Saul and Jonathas his sonne are deed also.

And David sayde vnto the ponge man, that tolde hym these tydynges: howe knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne be deed? The ponge man p tolde hym answered: I came by chaunce to mount Gilboa. And behold, Saul leaned vpon his speare. For the charrettes and companies of horsemen folowed hard after him. And whē he looked backe he sawe me, and called me. And I answered here am I. And he sayd vnto me: what art thou? I answered him: I am an Amalekite. He sayde vnto me: a lyne. Stande vpon me, and slay me. For anguysh he is come vpon me, though my lyfe be yett all in me. And so I stode vpon hym, and slue hym, for I was sure that he coulde not lyue, after that he had fallen. And I toke the crowne that was vpon his heed, and the bracelet that was on his arme and haue brought them byther vnto my lord.

Then David toke holde on his clothes* and rent them, and so byd al the men that were with hym. And they murned and wepte, and fasted vntyll euen, for Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, because they were overthowen with the swearde.

And David sayde vnto the ponge man that brought hym these tydynges: Whence art thou? And he answered: I am the sonne of an aleuant an Amalekite. And David said vnto him: how is it that thou wast not afrayed, to laye thynne hande on the Lordes annoynted, to destroy him

And David called one of his ponge men, & sayd: Go to, and runne vpon hym. And he smote hym that he dyed. Then sayde David vnto hym: thy bloude be vpon thynne owne heed. * For thynne owne mouth hath testifed agaynst the, saying I haue slayne the Lordes annoynted.

And David mourned with this lamentation ouer Saul and ouer Jonathas his sonne, & bad teache the chyldren of Israel the vse of the bowe. And beholde, it is wyrtten in the booke of the ryghteous. (And he sayde: Confesse, O Israel: these that be deed and wounded vpon the hylles, O noble Israel the wounded are slayne vpon the hylles: Oh how are the myghtye overthowen? * Tell it not in Gath, nor publysh it in the stretes of Ascalon: lest the daughters of the Philistines reioyse, and lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph. Ye mountaynes of Gilboa, vpon you be neyther dewe nor rayne, nor vpon the feldes of offrynges. For there the shilde of p myghtye is cast downe: the shilde of Saul, as though he had not ben annoynted with oyle. The bow of Jonathas and the swerd of Saul turned neuer backe agayne empty, from the bloude of the slayne, and fro p fat of the myghtye warriors.

Saul and Jonathas were lonelype and pleasure in the pylines, and in theyr deathes they were not decayed. They were swyfter then Eagles, and stronger then lions. Ye daughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul, whiche clothed you in purple, with pleasures, and hanged ornamētes of golde vpon your apparel. How were p myghtye slayne in battayle? Jonathas is deed on the hylles. Wo is me for the (my brother Jonathas) verrey kynde hast thou ben vnto me. Thy loue to me was wondrousfull, passyng the loue of women. (As a mother loueth her onely chylde, even so I do I loue the.) O howe are the myghtye overthowen, and the weapons of warre destroyed?

The ij. Chapter.

After this it fortuneth, that David asked counsaile at the Lorde, sayinge: Shall I go vnto any of the ctyes of Iuda? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: go. And David sayd agayne: Whither shall I go? He answered: Vnto Hebron. And so David wēt byther with his two wyues, Abinoam the Jezrahelite, and Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that were with hym, byd Dauid carry vp also, euery man with his household. And they dwelt in the townes of Hebron. And the men of Iuda came, and there they annoynted David kyng ouer the house of Iuda. And they tolde David, saying: It is the men of Jabes in Gilead that buried Saul. And David sent messengers vnto the men of Jabes in Gilead, and sayd vnto them: blessed are ye vnto p Lorde, that ye haue the wede suche kyndnesse vnto your lord Saul, and haue buried hym. And now we the Lorde shewe mercy and truthe vnto you. And I wyll do you also suche kyndnesse as ye haue done in this thyng: Therefore now let your your handes be stronge, and plape ye the men: for your master Saul is dead. And they that are of y<sup>e</sup> house of Juda haue anoynted me kyng ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner y<sup>e</sup> was captayne of Sauls host toke Ithobal y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Saul, and brought hym to Mahanaim, and made hym kyng ouer Gilead, and ouer the Asurites, and ouer Issachar, Ephraim, Ben Jamin, and ouer all Israel. And Ithobal Sauls sonne was fourtye yere olde when he began to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned two yere. But the house of Juda folowed Dauid. * And y<sup>e</sup> time which Dauid raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda was sent yere and syxe monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner, and the seruauntes of Ithobal the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gibeon. And Joab the sonne of Zeruia and the seruauntes of Dauid wente oute, and met them by the poole of Gibeon. And they late downe, the one on the one syde of the poole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde to Joab: let the yonge men arysse, and plape befoze vs: And Joab sayd: Let them arysse. Then there arose and went ouer, twelue of Ben Jamin by nombre, which pertayned to Ithobal the sonne of Saul, and twelue of the seruauntes of Dauid. And euery one caught his fellowe (that cam agaynst hym) by the heed, and thrust his swerde in his syde, and so they fell downe togyther. Wherefoze the place was called: The felde of the myghtye. And it is in Gibeon. And there began an exceedynge cruel battayle that same day. For Abner and the men of Israel, fell befoze the seruauntes of Dauid:

And there were thre sonnes of Zeruia there: Joab, Abisai, and Asahel. And Asahel was as lyght on fote as a wylderbeest, and Asahel folowed Abner and * touchened neyther to the ryght hande nor to the left, from Abner: Then Abner looked behynde hym, and sayde: art thou Asahel? he answered: yea, that I am. Abner sayde: turne the eyther to the ryghte hande or to the left, and cathe one of the yonge men, & take the his weapons. But Asahel wolde not depart from hym. And Abner sayde agayne to Asahel: departe from me. Wherefoze shulde I smyte the to the grounde, and not be hable to holde vp my face to Joab thy brother? Howbeit, when he wolde in nowyse departe, Abner with the buttende of the speare smote hym vnder * the wyte rybbes, that the speare came out behynde hym: that he fell downe in the same place, and dyed there. And as manye as came to the place where Asahel fell downe and dyed, stode still. Joab also and Abisai folowed Abner. And the sunne went downe, when they were come to y<sup>e</sup> hill Hima that lyeth befoze Giah, by the waye that goeth thorowe the wyldernes of Gibeon. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin gathered them selues togyther on an heape, to Abner, and stode on the toppe of an hill. Then Abner called to Joab, and sayde. Shall the swerde deuoure still for ever? knowest thou not, that it wyl be bytternesse in the latter ende? how longe shall it be, or thou byd the people retorne fro folowinge they brethren? And Joab sayde: as trulye as God lyueth, yf thou haddest not spoken in the morning, the people had ben departed euery one from persecutynge his brother. And so * Joab blew a trompet, and all the people stode still, and pursued after Israel no more, nether fought they any more. And Abner and his men walked all that nyght thorowe the playne: and wente ouer Jordan, and past thorowe all Berhazoron till they came to Mahanaim.

And Joab returned from persecutynge Abner. And when he had gathered all the people togyther, there lacked of Dauids seruauntes, nyntene men, and Asahel. But the seruauntes of Dauid had slayne of Ben Jamin, and of Abners men, thre hundred and threescore men. And they toke vp Asahel, and buried hym in the sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem. And Joab and his men went all nyght, vntil the dawning of the daye, and came to Hebron.

The iij. Chapter.

Abner cometh to Dauid, and bringeth hym his wyfe Asahel Joab killeth Abner.

There was longe warre betwene the house of Saul, and the house of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. * And vnto Dauid were borne chyldren bozne in Hebron: his eldest sonne also was Amnon, of Abinoam the Jezrebelite: y<sup>e</sup> seconde Heliah of Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite: the thyrde Absalom, y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Maachah the daughter of Thalmay, the kyng of Gessur: the fourth, Adonai the son of Hagith the syth, Sephania the sonne of Abital: the syth, Iethream, by Eglah Dauids wyfe. These were bozne to Dauid in Hebron. And it fortuned, that whyle there was warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saul had a concubine named Rizpa, the daughter of Ahia. And Ithobal sayd to Abner: wherefore hast thou gone into my fathers concubines? Then was Abner verye wroth for the wordes of Ithobal, & sayd: Am I not a dogges heed, which agaynst Juda do the we merce this day vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and frendes, and haue not deliuered the into the hande of Dauid? and thou fyndest a fault in me this daye for this woman? So and so doo God to Abner. For as the Lorde hath sworn to Dauid, so wyl I be on his syde, to bypunge the kyngdome from the house of Saul, that the throne of Dauid maye be stablyshed ouer Israel, and ouer Juda, enen from Dan to Beersaba. And he coulde geue Abner neuer a worde to answer, because he feared hym.

And Abner sent messengers to Dauid secretly, sayynge. Whose is the lanber? Make a bonde with me, and beholde, myne hande is with the, to bypunge all Israel vnto the. He sayde: It is good, that I make a bonde with the. But one thyng I requyre of the, that thou se not my face except thou syt bypunge Michol Sauls daughter when thou comest to se me.

And

D And David sente messengers to Ishbosheth Sauls sonne, saying: * deliuer me my wife Michol, which I marryed with: an hundred foreskinsnes of the Philistines. And Ishbosheth sent, and toke her from her husbände: * Paltiel þ son of Nais. And her husbände went with her, and came wepyng behynde her, tyl they came to Baithim. Then sayd Abner vnto hym: go and retorne. And he returned. And Abner had comunicacyon with the elders of Israel, sayinge: ye sought for David in tyn. * past, that he myght be your kynge. Nowe then do it: for the Lorde hath sayde of David. By the hande of my seruauunt David I wyll saue my people Israel out of the handes of the Philistines, and out of the hande of all therr enemies. And Abner spake in the eares of Ben Jamin, and wente to tell in the eares of David in Hebron, all that Israel was content with, and the whole house of Ben Jamin. And so Abner came to David to Hebron haupnge twenty men with hym, and David made hym and the men that were with hym a feast. And Abner sayde vnto David: I wyll by and go gather all Israel vnto my lord þ kyng, that they maye make an appoyntement with the: and that thou mayest commaunde all, as thyne herte desireth. And when David had let Abner departe, he went in peace.

E And beholde, the seruantes of David and Joab came fro chasing the robbers & brought a great praye wth them. But Abner was not w David in Hebron: for he had lent hym away to departe in peace. When Joab and all the hooste that was with hym were come, men told Joab saying: Abner the sonne of Ner came to þ kyng and he hath sent hym awaye, that he is gone in peace. Then Joab came to the kyng, and sayde: what hast thou done? Beholde, Abner came vnto the & why hast thou lent hym away, that he shulde escape quytte? Thou knowest Abner the sonne of Ner, for he came to disceyue the, and to knowe thy outgoing & ingoinge, and to knowe al þ thou doest. And when Joab was come out fro David, he let messengers after Abner, which brought him agayne from þ wel of Siria vnknowynge to David. And when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab toke him asyde in the gate * to speake with hym secretly, & smote him vnder the throte rybbes, þ he dyed: for the bloude of Asahel his brother. And when afterwarde it came to Davids eare, he sayde. I & my kyngdom are gyltlesse before the Lorde for euery cōceitunge þ bloude of Abner the sonne of Ner. Let the bloude remayne on þ heed of Joab, & on all his fathers house, þ the house of Joab be neuer without one or other þ hat i ramping issues or lepre, and þ leaneth on a staffe, and þ doth sal on þ swerde, & lacketh breed. And the cause why Joab and Asahel slue Abner, was, that Abner had * slayne they brother Asahel at Gibeon in battayle: And David sayde to Joab, and to all the people that were with hym. * Rent youre clothes, and put on sackcloth, and mourne before Abner. And kyng David hym selfe followed the coorse. And when they buried Abner in Hebron, the kynge left by his voyce, and wept besyde the sepulche of Abner, and so dyd all the people. And the kyng lamented ouer Abner, and sayd. dyed Abner as a foole. Byeth: thy handes were not bounde, nor thy fete brought into cheynes: but as a man falleth before wycked chyliden, so fallest thou. And all they that were of the people wept yet more ouer hym.

And when all the people came to eate meate w David whyle it was yet day, David sware, sayinge: So and so doo God to me, yf I taste breed, or ought els til the sunne be downe. And the people wyte it, and it pleased them. And whatsoeuer the kyng dyd, it pleased al the people. For all the people and al Israel vnderstode that daye, how that it was not the kinges dede that Abner the sonne of Ner was slayne. And the kyng sayde vnto his seruauunt: s: knowe ye not, how that there is a lorde and a greate man fallen this daye in Israel? And I am this daye tēdred & annoynted kyng. And these men the sonnes of Iarnia be to hard for me. The Lorde rewarde the doer of euill accordyng to his wyckednesse.

The liij. Chapter

Jonah and Rechab slay Ishbosheth the sonne of Saul.

When Sauls sonne hearde that Abner was deed in Hebron, his handes were feble, and all the Israelites were afrayd: and Sauls son had twome that were captaynes ouer the souldyers: the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab, the sonnes of Rimmon a Berothite of the chyldren of Ben Jamin: for Beroth was reckened to Ben Jamin. And these Berothites fled to Gethai, and sojourned there vntyll the same tyme. * And Jonathas Sauls sonne had a sonne that was lame on his fete. And he was yere yere olde when the tydynge came of Saul and Jonathas out of Israel. And his nurse toke hym vp, and fledde awaye. And as she made haste to fflye, the chyld fell, and began to hilt, and his name was Ishbosheth. And the sonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah went, and came in the heate of the daye to the house of Ishbosheth, which slept on a bed at noone. on (And the woman that was the nurse of the dore, and cleant the bedste, was asseye:) And they cam into the myddes of þ house as though they wolde haue fetched wheate, and Rechab and Baanah his brother smote hym vnder the throte rybbes, and fled. For when they came into the house he slepte on his bed in his resting chamber, and they smote hym, and slue hym, and beheaded hym, and toke his heed, and gat them away thorowe the playne al þ nyght. And they broughte the heed of Ishbosheth vnto David, to Hebron, and sayde to the kyng: Beholde, there is the heed of Ishbosheth Sauls sonne, thyne enemye whiche sought after thy lyfe. And the Lord hath auenged my lord the kyng this daye, of Saul and of his seed.

And David answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, and sayde vnto them: * as surely as the Lorde lyueth, which hath deliuered my soule out of al aduersities:

aduerſities. When one *tolde me, and ſayd that Saul was deſc, thynkyng to haue brought good tydynges, I caught hym, and ſlue hym in ſikleg: which thought that I wolde haue graue hym a rewarde for his tydynges byrnyng. How moche moze whē wicked men haue ſlayne a ryghtous perſon, in his owne houſe, and vpon his bedde. Shall I not requyre his bloude of your hande, and take you from the earth? And Dauid commaunded his yong men, and they ſlue them, and cut of theyr handes and fete, and hanged them vpon the poole in Hebron. But they toke the heed of Iſbolet, and buried it in the ſepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

The. v. Chapter.

Dauid is yet agayne annoynted kyng, and taketh the arke from Syon.

L. par. 7. a

Then came all the trybes of Iſrael * to Dauid vnto Hebron, and ſayde: Beholde, we are of thy bone & of thy fleſh. And in tyme paſt wē Saul was our kyng, thou leddeſt Iſrael in and out. And the Lorde hath ſayde to the: thou ſhalt fede my people Iſrael, & thou ſhalte be a captayne ouer Iſrael. And ſo all the elders of Iſrael came to the *kyng to Hebrō. And kyng Dauid made a couenaunte with them in Hebron be fore the Lorde. And they annoynted Dauid kyng ouer Iſrael. Dauid was thyrty yere olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned forty yere: In Hebrō he raygned ouer Iuda ſeven yere, and ſyre monethes. And in Ieruſalem he raygned thyrtye and thre yeres ouer all Iſrael and Iuda.

ii. reg. ii. c

The kyng alſo and his men went to Ieruſalem vnto the Jebuſites, the inhabitants of ſ lande. Which ſpake vnto Dauid, ſaying: except thou take awaye the blynde and the lame, thou ſhalt not come in hither. For they ſayde: Thou art not hable to come in hither. Neuertheleſſe, Dauid toke the bronze hold of Syon. The ſame is the cytie of Dauid. And Dauid ſayd: the ſame day: Whoſoever ſmiteth the Jebuſites, and getteth vnto the gutters of the houſes and ſmyteth the lame & blynde ſ hall hate Dauids ſoule. *Wherfore, they ſayd: the blynde and the lame ſhall not come into the houſe. And ſo Dauid dwelt in the towre, & called it ſ cytie of Dauid, & buyit round about it fro Hilloinwarde. And Dauid proſpered & grew, & the Lord God of hoos was w hym.

L. par. 17. b

And Hiram kyng of Tyre ſent meſſengers to Dauid, & cedar trees, and carpeters, and materials for wallis: and they built Dauid an houſe. And Dauid perceyued, that the Lorde had ſtabliſhed hym kyng ouer Iſrael, and that he had exalted his kyngdom for his people Iſraels ſake. And Dauid toke hym mo concubynes and wyues out of Ieruſalem, after he was come from Hebron, and mo ſones and daughters were pet borne to Dauid. * And theſe be the names of the ſones that were borne vnto hym in Ieruſalem: Samuia, Sobab, Nathan, and Salomō, Ithbar alſo and Eliſua, Repheg, and Iaphia, Eliſama, Eliada, and Eliaphel.

L. par. 18. b

But when ſ Philiftines herde that they had annoynted Dauid kyng ouer Iſrael, they came all vnto ſeke Dauid. And as ſoone as Dauid hearde of it, he gat hym to an holde. And when the Philiftines came, they layed them alonge in the valleie of Raphaim. * And Dauid asked counſaile of the Lorde, ſaying: Shall I go vnto the Philiftines? wyle thou deliuer them into myne handes? And the Lorde answered vnto Dauid: go vp, for I wyl do ableſſe deliuer the Philiftines into thyne handes. And Dauid came to the playne of Berazim, and ſmote them there and ſayde: the Lorde hath deuſed myne enemyes aſondre before me, as waters be deuſed aſondre. And therfore the name of ſ place was called: The playne of Berazim. And there they leſt theyr ymages, and Dauid & his men toke them vp. And the Philiftines came yet agayne, and layed them ſelues in the valleie of Raphaim. And when Dauid asked at ſ Lorde: Shall I go vnto the Philiftines? and ſhalt thou deliuer them into myne handes? He answered: Thou ſhalt not go vp, but compaſſe them on the backſyde, and come vpon them ouer agaynſt the peretrees. And when thou heareſt the noyſe of a thyng goinge in the toppe of the peretrees, thou remoue. For then ſhall the Lorde go out before thee, to ſmyte the hooste of the Philiftines. And Dauid dyd as the Lorde had commaunded him, and ſmote the Philiftines from Gibeā, vntill thou come to Gazer.

The. vi. Chapter.

The arke is brought forth of the houſe of Abinadab, & is in Bethſan, and dyeth. Dauid buieth a houſe for it, and is therfore called of his people Agithoi.

Agayne, Dauid gathered together all the choſen men of Iſrael, euen thyrtye thouſande, & aroſe and went with al ſ folke that were with hym of the men of Iuda to ſet awaye from thence ſ arke of God whoſe name is called the name of the Lorde of hoos & dwelleth vpon it, betwene the cherubims. And they put the arke of God vpon a newe cart, and brought it out * of the houſe of Abinadab that was at Gibeā. And Uza and Ahio the ſonnes of Abinadab dzawe ſ newe cart. And when they brought it out of the houſe of Abinadab ſ was at Gibeā with the arke of God: Ahio went before ſ arke. And Dauid and all ſ houſe of Iſrael played before ſ Lord in ſondry inſtrumentes made of Cedre wood, with harpes, of psalteres, tymbrels, fedles, and ſymbals.

ii. reg. vi. a

And when they came to Nachon the reſhyng flooze Uza put his hande to the arke of God, & helde it, for the oxen ſumbled. And the Lorde was wroth with Uza, and God ſmote hym in the ſame place for his faulte, and there he dyed before ſ arke of God: And Dauid was ſed, bycauſe the Lorde had ſmytten Uza. And the name of the place was called perez: The reſhyng of Uza vntill this daye. And Dauid was then afrayd of the Lorde, and ſayde: how ſhall the arke of the Lorde come to me? And ſo Dauid wolde not byrnyng the arke of the Lorde vnto hym into the cytie of Dauid. But Dauid carryed it into the houſe of Obeth Edom, a Gethite. And the arke of the Lorde continued in the houſe of * Obeth Edom the Gethite, thre menethes, and the Lorde blessed Obeth Edom, and all his household. And one tolde kyng David how þe Lorde had blessed Obeth Edom & all that pertayned vnto hym, because of þe arke of God. And David went and brought the arke of God from the house of Obeth Edom, into the cytie of David with gladnesse. <sup>ca. And there were in David seven foster of daughters, & calves for sacrifice</sup> And when they that bare the arke of the Lorde had gone syre spaces, he offered an ox and a fat shepe. And David <sup>(played on harpe & cynges, and)</sup> daunced before the Lorde with all his myght, and was gvyded with a linnen Ephod. So David and all the house of Israel, brought the arke <sup>(of the covenante)</sup> of the Lorde with shoutynge and trompet blowynge.

And it fortuned, that as the arke of þe Lorde came into the cytie of David, Michol Saules daughter looked thorow a window, and sawe kyng David sprynge, and daunce before the Lorde and he despyed hym in her herte. And when they brought in the arke of the Lorde they set it in his place, euen in þe myddes of the tabernacle þe David had pitched for it. And David offered burnt offrynges & peace offrynges before þe Lorde. And as loone as David had made an end of offrynges burnt offrynges & peace offrynges he blessed the people in the name of þe Lorde of hostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, eue among the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to euery one a cake of bred, and a pece of fleshe, and a flasket of dynke. And so all the people departed euery one to his house.

Then David returned to blesse his household and Michol the daughter of Saul came out to mete David, and sayde: O how glorious was the kyng of Israel this daye, which was vncouered to daye, in the eyes of the maydens of his seruantes, as yf it had bene a lyght brayned fellowe vncouered. And David sayde vnto Michol: I thought to daunce before the Lorde, which chose me rather then thy father, and all his kyn, and commaunded me to be ruler ouer all the people of the Lorde, euen ouer Israel. And therefore wyl I play before þe Lorde. And wil yet be more wycthen so, and wyl be meke in myne owne syght: and of the very same mayde seruantes, which thou hast spoken of, shall I be had in honour. Therfore Michol the daughter of Saul had no chyld, vnto the daye of her death.

The viij. Chapter.

David wolde buyde God an house: but he is forbydden of God.

It fortuned, that as the kyng sat in his house (after þe Lorde had gyuen him rest rounde about frō all his enemyes) he sayd vnto Natā a þe pro, bet behold. I dwell now in an house of Cedar trees: but þe arke of God dwelleth within þe curtayne. And Nathan sayd vnto the kyng: go, and do al that is in thyne herte, for the Lorde is with the.

And it fortuned the same nyght, that the worde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, saying go, and tell my seruant David, thus sayth the Lorde: shalt thou buyde me an house to dwell in for I haue not dwelt in any house syns þe tyme that I brought þe chyldre of Israel out of Egypt vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent & tabernacle. In all the places wherin I haue walked with all the chyldren of Israel spake I one worde with any of the trybes of Israel (syns I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Israel) saying: why buyde ye not me an house of Cedar trees? Howe therefore, so saye vnto my seruant David, thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes. * I toke the from the sheperde (as thou wast folowynge shepe) that thou myghtest be ruler ouer my people Israel. And I was with the in al that thou wentest to, & haue destroyed all thyne enemyes oute of thy syght, and haue made the a grete name, lyke vnto the name of the great men that are in the worlde. And therefore I wyl appoynte a place for my people Israel, and wyl plant it, that they may dwell in a place of theyr owne, and moue nomore, neyther shall wycked people trouble them any more as they dyd at the begynnynge: syns þe tyme that I set iudges ouer my people of Israel. And I wyl gyue the rest from all thyne enemyes. And the Lorde telleth the þe he wyl make þe an house.

And when thy dayes be fulfilled, thou shalt sleepe with thy fathers, and I wyl set vp thy seed after the, which shall procede out of thy body and wyl stably in his kyngdome. * He shall buyde an house for my name, and I wyl stablish the seate of his kyngdome for euer, & I wil be his father, and he shall be my sonne: * yf he syn I wyl chasten hym with such a rodde as men be chastened with, and with such plagis as the chyldren of men be plagued with. But my mercy shall not departe awaye from him, as I toke it fro Saul, whom I put downe before the. And thyne house and thy kyngdome shall endure with out ende after the, * and thy seate shall be stablished for euer. Accordynge to all these wordes, and accordynge to all this visyon, dyd Nathan speake vnto David. Then went David in, and set hym downe before the Lorde, and sayd: what am I, O Lorde God, and what is my house: that thou shouldest haue brought me this far forth? And this was yet a small thyng in thy syght, O Lorde God, but thou hast spoken also of thy seruantes house for a grete whyle to come: for this is the vse of man, O Lorde God, And what can David saye more vnto the: for thou, Lorde God knowest thy seruant. Euen for thy wordes sake, and according to thyne owne herte hast thou done all these great thynges, to make them knowne vnto thy seruant.

Wherefore thou art great, O Lorde God: for there is none lyke the: * neyther is there any god saue thou, accordynge to all that we haue heard with our eares. * And what one people in þe erth is like thy people Israel: whose God went & deliuered them, þe they myght be his people, and þe he myght make hym a name, & to thewe grete & terrible thynges in þe erth, for thy people * which thou redeemedst to the out of Egypt: euen the people with theyr goddesses. For thou hast ordeyned thy people Israel to be thy people for euer.

And thou Lorde arte become theyr God: And now (Lorde God) the worde that thou hast spoken concernynge thy seruaunte and his house, make it good for ever, and do as thou hast sayd. For so shall thy name be magnified for ever of men that shal say: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and the house of thy seruaunte shal be stablished before the. The viij. Chapter.

David ouercomyth the Philistines.

After this it fortuneth, & David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, & tooke the bydle of bondage oute of the hande of the Philistines. * And he smote the Moabites, and measured them with a lyne, and cast them downe to the grounde. Eue with two lynes measured he them wch he slue, and the length of one lyne laued he aloue. And so became the Moabites Davids seruautes, and payed tribute. David smote also Hadarezer the sonne of Rehob kyng of zoba as he went to receiue his boorde at the ryuer Pherar. And David toke a thousand and seven hundred horsmen, & cut of the hose of all his charrettes, reseruyng onely one hundred charrettes. And when the Syrians of Damascus came to succoure Hadarezer kyng of zoba, David slue of the Syrians two & twenty thousand men, and put souldiers in Siria Damascus. And the Syrians became seruautes to David, payinge tribute. And thus the Lorde saued David, in all that he went vnto. And David toke the sheldes of golde that belonged to the seruautes of Hadarezer, and brought them to Ierusalem. And out of Beta, and Berothai (citties of Hadarezer) did David bringe exceedynge moche brasce: wherof Salomon made all the brasen vessel in the temple, and the brasen natyue, and the pylers, and the anillare.

* When Ehol kyng of Hamath herde how David had smytten all the host of Hadarezer, he sent Jozab his sonne vnto kyng David, to salute hym with peace, and to blesse hym because he had fought agayn Hadarezer, and beaten hym: for Ehol had great war with Hadarezer: which (Jozab) brought with him vessels of siluer, vessels of golde, & vessels of brasce. Whiche brasce kyng David dyd dedicate vnto the Lorde with the syluer and golde that he had consecrated of all nations, whiche he subdued: of Siria, of the Moabites, and of the children of Ammon of the Philistines, and of Hamaleche, and of the spoyle of Hadarezer sonne of Rehob kyng of zoba. And David gat hym a name after that he returned, and had smytten of the Syrians in the valley of Salt. eyghthene thousand men. * And he put keepers in Edom: euen thowout all Edom put he souldiers, and all they of Edom became Davids seruautes. And the Lorde kepte David whatsoeuer he toke in hande. And David raygned ouer all Israel, and executed right and iustyce vnto all his people. And * Joab the sonne of zarua was ouer the host, and Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahub was recorder. And Sadok the sonne of Ahitob, and Ahimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the prestes, and Sarai was the scribe. And Hannan the sonne of Ichoiada was ouer the Gethites and the Iethites: and Davids sonnes were these rulers.

The ix. Chapter.

David receyved all the sides of Saul, to aspythareth the sonne of Jonathas.

And David sayde is there yet any man left of the house of Saul? For I will shewe hym merce for Jonathas sake. And there was of the house olde of Saul, a seruaunte whose name was ziba, and when they had called hym vnto David the kyng, sayde vnto hym arte thou ziba? he sayde: Thy seruaunt is he. And the kyng sayde: remaineth there yet any man of the house of Saul, whome I maye shewe the merce of God vnto? ziba answered the kyng: * Jonathas hath yet a sonne whiche is lame of his fete. The kyng sayde vnto hym. where is he? ziba sayd vnto the kyng. beholde, he is in the house of Nahir the sonne of Amiel of Lodher. Then kyng David sent, and fet hym out of the house of Nahir the sonne of Amiel out of Lodher. Now when Niphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas, the sonne of Saul was come vnto David, he fell on his face, and dyd reuerence. And the kyng sayde: Niphiboseth? he answered. Beholde thy seruaunt. David sayde vnto hym: feare not, for I will surely shewe the kynnesse, for Jonathas thy fathers sake, and wyl restore the all the feldest of Saul thy father, and thou shalt eate bred on myne owne table continuallye. And he bowed hym selfe, and sayde: What is thy seruante that thou shouldest vouchesafe to loke vpon suche a deed dogge as I am?

The kyng called vnto ziba Davids pong man and sayde vnto hym: I haue gyuen vnto thy masters sonne, all that pertayned to Saul, and to all his house. Se therfore that thou and thy sonnes and thy seruautes tye the land, and bringe in, that * thy masters sonne maye haue foode to eate. But Niphiboseth thy masters sonne shall eate bred alwaye vpon my table.

The xij. For ziba

D For ziba had fyfene sonnes, and twentire ser-uantes. Then sayd ziba vnto the kyng Accor-dyng to all þy my lord the kyng hath comaunded his seruaunt, so shal thy seruaunt do. Well sayd the kyng) Miphiboseth shall eat vpon my table, as one of the kynges sones. Miphiboseth had a sonne þy was yonge, named Micha and all that dwelled in þy house of ziba were seruautes vnto Miphiboseth. And Miphiboseth dwelt in Jerusalem, for he dyd eate euer at the kynges table:
¶ and was lame on both his feete.

The x. Chapter

The messengers of David are by a messenger entered of the kyng of Moab.

A Happened after this, that þy kyng of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, and Hano his sonne reigned in his steede.
Then sayd David I wyl shew kind-nesse vnto Hano þy sone of Nahas, as his father shewed kyndnesse vnto me. And David sent to comfort him by the hande of his seruautes ouer the death of his father. And Davids seruautes came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, and the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde vnto Hano they lord: thyngest thou that Da-uid doth honour thy father, that he hath sent cofortours to the: hath not David rather sent his seruautes vnto the, to searche the cytie, and to spyte it out, and to ouerthrowe it?

B Wherefore Hano toke Davids seruautes, and shaued of the halfe of euery mannes beere, and cut of theyr garmentes in the myddle, euen barde to the buttockes of them, and sente them a waye. When they tolde it vnto David, he sent to mete them (for they were men exceedyngly ashamed) and the kyng sayde tarpe at Jericho vntyll your beeres be growen, & then retorne.
And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe, that they stauke in the spght of David, they sent and hyred the Syrians of the house of Rehob, and the Syrians of zoba twenty thousande fotmen, and of kyng Maacha a thousande men, and of Isob twelve thousand men. And when David herde of it, he sent Joab & all the host of strong men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and waged battayle at the entrynge in of the gate, and the Syrians of zoba, of Rehob, Isob, & Maach were by them selues in the felde.

C When Joab sawe that the fronte of the battaye was agaynst hym, before & after, he chose out all the fresh yonge men of Israel, and put the in aray agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of þy people he deliuered into the hande of Abisai his brother, þy he myght put them in aray agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayd if the Syrians be stronger then I, thou shalte helpe me.
But yf the chyldren of Ammon be to stronge for the, I wyl come and succoure the. Therefore quyte the lyke a man, and let vs stand styffe for our people, and for the cyties of our God. And the Lord doo that whiche is good in his owne eyes. And Joab proceded forth, and the people that was with hym to fyght with the Syrians.
But they fled before hym. And whē the chyldren of Ammon sawe that þy Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred into the cytie. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem. And when þy Syrians sawe that they were put to the worle before Israel, they gathered them togyther.

And Hadarezer sent, and brought out the Syrians that were beyonde the ryuer. And they came with theyr armpe, and zobah þy captayne of the host of Hadarezer went before them.

D And when it was the wether and, he gathered all Israel togyther, and passed ouer Jordan and came to Helam: And the Syrians set them selues in aray agaynst David, and fought with hym: & the Syrians fled before Israel. And Da-uid destroyed seuen hundred charrettes of the Syrians, & fourty thousande horsemen, and smote zobah the captayne of their host, whiche also dyed there. And when all þy kynges (þy wer ser-uautes to Hadarezer) saw þy they were put to þy worle before Israel, they made peace with them, and serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

The xi. Chapter.

The adventure of David with Bethsabe the wyfe of Urias.

A And it came to passe that (after the yere was expyred) in the tyme whē kynges were to go forth to battayle, David sent Joab and his seruautes with hym, & all Israel, which destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and besieged Raba. But David tarred styl at Jerusalem. And it chauced in a nyght that David arose out of his bed, & walkyd vpon the rooffe of the kynges palace, & from thence he sawe a woman walchynge her selfe: and the woman was very beautiful to loke vpon. And he sent to enquire what woman it shoulde be, sayinge is it not Bethsabe the daughter of Eli-am, and wyfe to Urias the Hethite: And Da-uid sent messengers, & fet her. And she came in vnto him: & he laye with her. And she was purged from her uncleynesse, and returned vnto her house. And þy woman conceyued, and sent & told David, & sayd: I am with chyld. And David sent to Joab sayyng: sende me Urias the Hethite. And Joab set Urias to David. And whē Urias was come vnto him, David demaunded of him, howe Joab dyd, and howe the people fared, & howe the me of warre prospered. And Da-uid sayde to Urias: goo downe to thyne house, and wash thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed him a ser-uaunt fro þy kynges table. But Urias slept at the dore of þe kynges palace. w all the seruauntes of his lord, and went not downe to his house.

C Which when they had tolde Dauid (sayinge: Urias went not downe into his house) Dauid sayd vnto Urias: Camest thou not fro thy country? why dydest thou not go downe then vnto thyne house? Urias answered Dauid. The arke of Israel and Juda dwel in pauilions & my lord Joab and the seruauntes of my lord lye vpon þe flak earth, and shal I then go into myne house, to eate and drynke, and lye with my wyfe? * Wylt thou lye, and by the lye of thy soule, I will not do this thyng. And Dauid sayde vnto Urias: * tarpe here tois upghere also, and to morowe I wyl let the departe. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye, and the morowe. And when Dauid had called hym, he dyd eate and drynke befoze him, & he made hym drynke. And at euen he went out to lye on his couch with the seruauntes of his lord, but wnt not downe to his house. On the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by the hande of Urias. And he wrote thus in the letter, sayinge: put Urias in the fore front of the sharpest battayle, and come ye to take from hym, that he may be smytten, and dye. So when Joab besieged the cite, he assigned Urias vnto a place, where he dwelt that stronge men were. And the men of the cite came oute, and fought with Joab. And ther were certayn overthowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Urias the hethite dyed also.

D Then Joab sente, and tolde Dauid all the thynges concernyng the warre, and charged the messengers, sayinge: when thou haste made an ende of tellyng the matters of þe warre vnto the kyng, if he begynne to fume, and say vnto the: wherefore approached ye so nye vnto the cite, when ye dyd syght? wylt ye not that they wold hurle and shote from the wall? Who smote Abimelech sonne of Jeroboam? * Dyed not a woman cast a peece of a mplystone vpo hym from of the wall, and he dyed in Thebes? Why went you nye the wall? Then saie thou: thy seruaunt Urias the hethite is deed also.

So the messenger went, & came and the word Dauid all þe Joab had sent hym for: and þe messenger sayde vnto Dauid: the men preyayled agaynst vs, & came out vnto vs into the felde, & we (sayd by the way) stakke vnto them, euen vnto the entering of þe gate. And the shoters shot fro þe walles vpo thy seruauntes, and some of þe kynges seruauntes be deed. And thy seruaunt Urias the hethite is deed also. And Dauid sayde vnto the messengers thus shalt thou saie vnto Joab let not þe thyng trouble the. For (the chaunce of warre is drynges, and) þe swerde deuoureth one as wel as an other: make thy battayle moze stronge agaynst the cite to overthrow it, and se þe thou courage Joab. And when þe wife of Urias herd that her husbnde was deed, she mourned for hym. And when the mourninge was past, Dauid sent & fet her to his house, and she became his wyfe, and bare hym a sonne. But this thyng that Dauid dyd, displeased the Lorde.

The .xii. Chapter.

Dauid is reioyced for the slaughter of Urias. The chyldre conceived in adulterie dyeth. After it is Salomon born.

And the Lorde sent Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto him, and tolde hym: there were two women in one cite the one ryche and the other poore: the ryche man had cecedyng many shepe and oxen. But the poore had nothing, save one lytle shepe which he had bought, and nourished vp. And it grewe vp with hym and with his chyldren also and dyd eate of his owne meate, and dranke of his owne cuppe, and slept in his bosome, & was vnto hym as his daughter. And there came a stranger vnto þe ryche man. And he coude not fynde in his herd to take of his owne shepe, and of his owne oxen to dresse for the stranger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mans shepe, and dressed it for the man þe was come to hym. And Dauid was cecedyng wroth with the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, the man þe hath done this thyng is the chyldre of death. He shal restore þe lambe & foure folde, by cause he dyd this thyng, & had no pyrie. And Nathan sayd to Dauid: thou art the man. Thus saith the Lorde God of Israel: * I appointed the kyng: ouer Israel, and ryd the out of the hand of Saul. I gaue the thy maners house, and thy masters wyues into thy house, and thou hast bene to lytle) haue gyven the so moche moze. Wherefore then haste thou despyd the commaundement of the Lorde to do wylkynesse in his syght: thou hast kylled Urias the hethite with the swerde, and hast taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, and hast slayne hym with the swerde of the chyldren of Israel.

Now therfore the swerde shall neuer departe fro thyne house, by cause thou hast despyed me, and taken þe wife of Urias the hethite to be thy wyfe. Wherefore thus saith the Lorde behold, I wyl styre vp euyl agaynst the, euen out of thyne owne house, & wyl take thy wyues befoze thyne eyes, & gyue the vnto thy neighbour: he shal lye with thy wyues in þe syght of the sunne. For þe dydest it secretly. But I wyl do this thyng before all Israel, & in the open sunne lyght.

And Dauid sayd vnto Nathan: * I haue sinned agaynst the Lorde. And Nathan sayd vnto Dauid. þe Lorde also hath put a war thy synne, & shalt not dye. Howebeit, by cause in doinge this dede, thou hast gyue þe enemies of the Lorde a cause to rayle, the chyldre þe is borne vnto the shal surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto his house. And the Lorde stroke the chyldre þe Urias wyfe bare vnto Dauid, and it sickened sore. Dauid therfore besought God for the chyldre, and fasted and went in, and laye all nyght vpon the earth. And the elders of his house arose, and went to hym, to take him vp from þe earth. But he wold not, neyther dyd he eate meate with them.

And it happened the seventh daye, that the chyld dyed. And þe seruauntes of Dauid durst not tell hym þe chyldre was deed. For they sayde: behold, whyle þe chyldre was yet aliv, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not hearken vnto our voyce.

voice. How will he then bere hym selfe, if we tell him that the chylde is deed? And David seeing his seruautes whysperpng, perceyued that the chylde was deed. And David sayd vnto his seruautes: is the chylde deed? They sayd yea. And David arose from the earth, and walshed and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparell, and came into the house of the Lord, and worshipped, and afterwarde came to his owne house, and had that they shoulde set bzed before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayd his seruautes ¶ vnto hym: what thyng is this, that thou hast done. Thou dydest fast and wepe for þe chylde, whyle it was alive, and as soone as it was deed thou dydest eate vp, and eate meate. He sayde: whyle the chylde was yet alive, I fasted, and wept: for this I thought, who can tell whether God will haue mercey on me, that the chylde maye lyue. * But now he is deed, wherefore shoulde I fast? can I brynge hym agayne any more? I shall go to hym, rather then he shal come agayne to me. And David comforted Bethsabe his wyfe, and wente in vnto her, and laye with her, & she bare a sonne, and called his name * Salomon, and the Lord loued hym. And he sent by the hande of Nathan the prophete, and callid his name * Iedibia, of þe Lordes behalfe.

¶ Joab fought agaynst Raba the cytie of the chyldren of Ammon, and toke the cytie of the kyngdome. And Joab sent messengers to David saying: I haue made assaut at Raba, and haue taken the cytie with waters. Now therfore gather the rest of the people togyther, and besiege þe cytie, that thou mayest take it, lest I take it, & call it after my name. And David gathered all the people togyther, and went agaynst Raba, and belleged it, and gat it. * And he toke there þe kynges crowne from of his heed, whiche waped an hui dred weyght of golde, and there were precious stones. And it was set vpon Davids heed. & he brought out the spoyle of the cytie in exceeding great aboundance. And he carped out þe people that was therein, and put them vpon sawes and vpon iron harnes, and vpon axes of yron, and set them into the tyle kel. Thus dyd he with all þe cyties of the chyldren of Ammon. And so David & all the people returned vnto Ierusalem.

The xxiij Chapter.

¶ After this, chaunced, that Absalom the sonne of David had a fayre syster, named Tamar, whom Ammon the son of David loued: And he was so sore bereft þe fell sycke for the loue of his syster Tamar: for she was a virgin, & he thought it harde for him, to haue his purpose of her. But Ammon had a frende called Jonadab, the sonne of Simenah Davids brother, and Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym how cometh it, that thou beinge the kynges sonne art thus consumed euery daye? Wyle thou not tell me? Ammon answered hym: I loue Tamar my brother Absaloms syster. Jonadab sayd vnto hym: laye the downe on thy bedde, and make thy selfe sycke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: Oh, let my syster Tamar come, and gyue me meate, & dresse it in my syght, that I may se it, and eate it of her hand.

And so Ammon laye downe, and made hym selfe sycke. And when the kyng was come to se hym, Ammon sayde vnto hym: Oh let Tamar my syster come, and make me a couple of scytters in my syght, that I maye eate of her hande. Then David sent home to Tamar, sayinge: go now to thy brother Ammons house, & dresse hym meate. So Tamar went to her brother Ammons house, and he was layed downe. And she toke flour, and made paste, and drest scytters in his syght, and dyd bake them, & toke a platter, and poured them out before hym: but he wold not eate. And Ammon sayd: haue out all men frome. And they went al out from hym. And Ammon sayde vnto Tamar: brynge the meate into the chabze, that I maye eate of thyne hande. And Tamar toke the scytters, whiche she had made, and brought them into the chabze to Ammon her brother: And when she had set them before hym to eate, he toke her, & sayde vnto her: come lye with me my syster. And he answered hym: naye my brother, doo not force me, for there hath no suche thyng be done in Israel: do not thou this abhominacyon. For whither shal I be able to go w my shame. And thou shalt be as one of þe soles in Israel. O speake vnto the kyng, and he shal not denye me vnto the.

Howbeit, he wolde not hearken vnto her voyce, but toke her, and forced her, & lay with her. And then Ammon hated her exceedingly. so that the hate wherewith he hated her, was greater then the loue, with which he before loued her. And Ammon sayde vnto her: vp, and get the hence. So he answered hym: thou hast no cause. This eny that thou puttest me awaye, is greater then the other, that thou dydest vnto me. Nevertheless, he wolde not heare her, but called his hope that serued hym, and sayde: put awaye this woman frome, and bolt the doze after her. And she had a kyttle of dyuers colours vpon her: for with such were the kynges doughters (that were virgins, appareld. Then his seruante brought her out, & locked the doze after her. And Tamar toke, & put asbes on her heed, and rente her gaye kyttle that was on her, and layed her hand on her heed, & so went. and as she went, cryed. And Absolom her brother sayd vnto her: hath Ammon thy brother bene w the? Now yet he styll my syster he is thy brother. Let not this thinge greue thyne herte. And so Tamar remayned desolate in her brother Absoloms house. But when kyng David herde of al these thynges, he was very wroth. ¶ And he wold not bere the sytter of Ammon his sonne: for he loued hym, because he was his synners sonne. And Absolom sayde vnto his brother Ammon: neyther good nor bad. Howbeit, Absolom hated Ammon, because he had forced his syster Tamar.

nes, and came to the kyng & sayde: beholde, thy seruaunt hath chepererers, let the kyng & his seruauntes come to thy seruaunt: The kyng answered Absolom: naye my sonne. We wyll not go all, nor be chargeable vnto the. And Absolom laye soze vpon hym: howbeit, he wolde not go, but blessed hym. Then sayde Absolom: If thou wyle not come, then let my brother Ammon go with vs. And the kyng answered hym: What nedeth it, that he goo with the? But Absolom made such instance, that he let Ammon and all the kynges chyldren go with hym.

Now had Absolom comaunded his pongme saying: marke when Ammons herte is mery w wyne, & when I byd you synpte Ammon, then kpl him: and feare not: haue not I bydden you? be holde therfore, & play the men. And the pong men of Absolom byd vnto Ammon, euen as Absolom had comaunded. And all the kynges sonnes arose, and euery man gat hym vp vpon his mule, & fled: And it fortunied, & while they were yet in y way, tpydnges came to Dauid, saying Absolom hath slayne all the kynges sonnes, & there is none left aloue. The Dauid arose, and tare his garmetes, & lay alonge on the earth, and all his seruantes stode by w their clothes rent. And Jonadab the son of Simeach Dauids brother answered and sayde: let not my lord be suppoise & they haue slayne all the pongemen the kynges sonnes, saue Ammon onely is deed. For & hath ben determynd in Absoloms mynde, spys he forced his syster Thamar. Now therfore let not my lord the kyng take the thyng so greuouse, to thynke that all the kynges sonnes are deed, saue Ammon onely is deed.

But Absolom fled. And the pongeman that kept the watche lyte vphys eyes. And beholde, there came moche troupe by a waye, alonge by the bynder part on arbilles spde. And Jonadab sayd vnto the kyng: beholde, & kynges sonnes come. As thy seruait sayde, so it is. And as soone as he had left speapynge, beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lyft vp theyr voyces, and wept. The kyng also and all his seruantes wept exceedingly. But Absolom escaped & wnt to Thalmay the sonne of Amhur kyng of Gessur. And Dauid mourned for his son euery day. And so Absolom escaped and went to Gessur, & was there the yeres. And kyng Dauid desyred to go forth vnto Absolom. For where as Ammon was dead, he was comforted ouer hym.

Le xiiij. Chapter.
The wisdom of the woman of Tekoa, & Absolom is called agayne.

The sonne of Zaria perceyued, & thys was her name: & she was a wyde Absolom, and he ser, to Tekoa, and sette there a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: sayne thys to be a maner, and put on mourninge as Iacill. And sayd not thy self with oyle. As it be as a woman that had longe tyme mourne for some deubody. And come to the kyng, and speake of this maner vnto hym. And so Iacob taught her what she shoulde saye.

And when the woman of Tekoa had fallen on her face to the grounde, and done obeysaunce she sayde vnto the kyng: helpe me, O kyng.

The kyng sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? She answered: I am a wyddowe, and my husbande is deed. And thy handmayde hadt two sonnes, and they two fought together in the felde (where was nouman to go betwene them) but the one smote the other, and slue hym. And beholde, the hole kynged is rylen agaynst thyne handmayde, and they sayde: & delpuer vs hym, that smote his brother: that we maye kpl hym, for the soule of his brother whome he slue. We wyll destroye the beyre also. And so they shall queuche my sparkle whiche is left, that he shall styre vp (to my husbande) neither name nor issue vpon the earth. And the kyng sayd vnto the woman go home to thyne house, I wyl geue a charge for the. And the woman of Tekoa sayd vnto the kyng. My lord, O kyng, this shall passe be on me, and on my fathers house, and & kyng and his seate be gylelesse. And the kyng sayde: If a yman saye ought vnto the, bringe hym to me, and he shall hurt the nomore. Then sayde she: Let the kyng remembze his Lorde God, that the auenger of the bloude gather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they slaye not my sonne. And he answered: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, there shall not one heere of thy sonne fall to the earth.

The woman sayde: let thyne handmayde speake one worde more with my Lord the kyng. And he sayd: saye on. The woman sayd: wherfore then hast thou determynde such a thyng agaynst the people of God? For the kyng doth speake this thyng as one which is fawtye, that he shoulde not let home agayne his banished. For we must nedes dye, and persyshe as water spilt on the grounde, which cannot be gathered vp agayne. Neether doth God spare any soule. Let the kyng therfore fynde the meanes, that his banished be not vterly expelled from him. Now therfore am I come, to speake of it to thyng vnto the kyng my lord. For they that be of y people wyll feare me. And thy handmayd sayd: Now wyl I speake vnto the kyng, peraduenture the kyng wyl performe the request of his handmayde. And the kyng shal heare his handmayde, to delpuer her out of the hande of y man that wolde haue destroyed me, and also my son out of y inheritaunce of God. And thyne handmayde sayde: the worde of my Lorde the kyng shall nowe be comfortable. For my lord the kyng is as an angel of God in hearyng of good & bad:

and bad: therfore the Lorde thy God be wth the.

11. ue. 31. b

Then the kynge answered, and sayde vnto the woman: hyde not frome ( I praye the ) the thyng that I shall aske the: And the woman sayde: let my lord the kynge now saye on. And the kynge sayde: Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this matter? The woman answered, & sayde: as sure as thy soul lyueth my lord kynge there is els noman ( on the ryght hande nor on y<sup>e</sup> left ) but as my lord the kynge hath spoken, thy seruante Joab he bad me, and he put all these wordes in the mouth of thyne handmayde. For to the intent that I shoulde alter my communicacion, hath thy seruant Joab done this thing. And my lord is wylle euen as an Angel of God to vnderstande all thynges that are in the erth. And the kynge sayde vnto Joab: beholde: I am content to do this thyng. Go and fet home the chyldre Absalom agayne. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed hym selfe, and blessed the kynge. And Joab sayd. now thy seruant knoweth, that I haue found grace in thy syght ( my lord, & kynge ) in that the kynge hath fulfilled the request of his seruant. And so Joab arose, and went to Gesur, and broughte Absalom to Ierusalem. And the kynge sayde: let him turne to his owne house, and not se my face. And so Absalom retourned to his owne house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel there was not so goodly a man as Absalom, for he was verie beautifull: in someche that from the sole of his foote to the toppe of his heed, there was no blemish in him. And when he shewed his heed, for at euery p<sup>er</sup>es ende he shaued it, bycause the heed was heuy on hym, and must needes shaued it ) the heed of his heed wyped two hundred cycles after the kynges weyght. And this Absalom had thre sonnes borne hym, and one daughter named Thamari: whiche was a fayre woman to loke vpon. So Absalom dwelt two yere in Ierusalem, & sawe not the kynges face. Therfore Absalom sent for Joab, to haue sente hym to the kynge. But he wold not come to hym. And when he set agayne he wolde not come. Therfore he sayde vnto his seruantes beholde, Joab hath a parcel of lade fast by my place, & hath barley therein. So, & set it on fyre. And Absaloms seruantes set it on fyre.

Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom vnto his house, and sayde vnto hym: wherfore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And absalom answered Joab: beholde, I sente for the, desyryng the to come, bycause I wolde haue sent the to the kynge, for to saye: wherfore am I come from Gesur? It had bene better for me to haue ben there wth the. For we therfore wold I se the kynges face. And yf there be anye trespass in me, kyll thou me. And so Joab came to the kynge, and tolde hym: whiche when he had sent for Absalom, he came to the kynge, and fell to the grounde on his face before hym. And the kynge kyssed Absalom.

The xv. Chapter.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection agaynst his father. David is fayne to fflye for feare of hym.

After this it fortuneth, that Absalom gat hym charettes and horses, and fiftie men to runne before hym. And he arose vpearly in the mornynge, and stode in the place of the entrynge in of the gate. And euery man that had any matter, and came to the kynge for iudgement, hym dyd Absalom call vnto hym, and sayd: of what cite art thou? He answered: thy seruante is of one of the tribes of Israel. And Absalom sayd vnto hym se, thy matter is good and ryghteous, but there is noman deputed of the kynge to heare the. Absalom sayd mozeoner. Oh that I were made iudge in the lande, that euery man which hath any ple and matter in the lawe, myght come to me, and that I myght do hym iustice? And when anye man came vnto hym, and dyd hym obeysaunce, he put forth his hand and took hym to hym and kyssed hym. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel, that came to the kynge for iudgement: and he stole the hertes of the mē of Israel. And after foure yeres it fortuneth, that Absalom sayd vnto the kynge. let me go now to Hebron, and paye my vowe which I haue vowed vnto the Lorde, for thy seruant vowed a vow (when I was in Gesur, in the lande of Siria) sayinge: If the Lorde shall bypynge me agayne from Ierusalem, I wylle serue the Lorde. And the kynge sayd vnto hym: go in peace. And so he arose, and went to Hebron.

But Absalom sent spyes thorowout all the tribes of Israel, sayinge: as soone as ye heare the voyce of the trumpet blowe, ye shall saye: Absalom raygueth kynge in Hebron. And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Ierusalem, that were called. And they wente wth pure hertes, not knowynge of any thyng. And Absalom sent also for Ahithophel the Gilonite Davids counsayler, that he shoulde come out of his cytie Gilo, whyle he offered sacrifices. And there was wrought stronge treason. For the people wente, and increased wth Absalom in multitude. And there came a messenger to David, and sayd: the hertes of the mē of Israel are turned after Absalom. And David sayde vnto all his seruantes that were wth hym at Ierusalem: vp, that we maye be gone, for we shall not els escape from Absalom. Make spede, to departe, lest he come todaynly & catche vs, & bying some mischefe vpon vs, & smyte the ryghte with y<sup>e</sup> edge of the sword. And y<sup>e</sup> kinges seruantes sayd vnto him. beholde, thy seruantes are redy to do whatsoeuer my lord the kynge shall appoynte.

And the kynge and all his housholde, departed on fote, and left behynde hym * his concubines to kepe the house. And so the kynge and all the people went out on fote, & taried in a place that was farre of. And all his seruantes went aboute hym. And all the Gethites and all the phelethites and al the Gethites (men of warre) (euen fyre hundred men which were come on fote from Geth) went before the kyng. The sayd the kynge to * Ittai the Gethite: wherfore commest thou with vs? Returne & abyde with the kyng, for thou art a straunger, and art removed from thyne owne place. Thou camest but yesterdaye, and shouldest thou disquyte the to-daye to go with vs? I wyll go whither I can. Therefore retourne thou, and carpe agayne thy brethren. Hecce and truthe.

And that answered the kyng, & sayd: as truly as God liueth, and as my lord the king lyueth, in what place my lord the kyng shal be whether in death or lyfe, euen there also wil thy seruant be. And Dauid the kyng sayde to that: come then, and goo forewarde. And that the Sethite went forth, and all his men, and all the chyldren that were with hym. And all the countrey wepte with a loude voyce, and so dyd all the people that went forth. The kyng also hym selfe passed ouer the brooke Kydon. And all the people went towarde the waye that leadeth to the wylbernesse. And Sadok and al the Leuytes were with hym, and bare the arke of the appoyntement of God. And there they set downe the arke of God. And Abiathar wet vp, buttill the people were all come once, out of the ctye. And the kyng sayde vnto Sadok: Carpe the arke of God agayne into the ctye. For I shal fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lorde, he wyll bring me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof. But if the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the, beholde, here am I: let hym do with me, what semeth good in his eyes.

The kyng sayd also vnto Sadok the priest: Art not thou a *sear? Returne into the ctye in peace: and take pour two sonnes with you, Abimaz thy sonne, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar. Beholde, I wyll carpe in the feldest of wylbernesse, buttill there come some worde fro pou to be tolde me. Sadok therfore and Abiathar carped the arke of God agayne to Ierusalem, and they tarped there. And Dauid wente vpon mount Oliuete, and wept as he wet, and had his heed couered, and went barefoote. And all the people that was with hym had euery man his heed couered, and as they wente vp, they wept also. And one tolde Dauid, sayinge: Abithophel is one of them that haue conspyred with Absalom. And Dauid sayd: O Lorde turne the consayle of Abithophel into foolysnesse.

When Dauid was come to the toppe of the mount he worshypped God: and behold, Husai the Arachite came agaynst hym with his coote ronne, and haupinge earth vpon his heed. Vnto whome Dauid sayde: if thou go with me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But if thou returne to the ctye, and saye vnto Absalom: I wyll be thy seruante, O kyng: (as I haue this longe ben thy fathers seruant, so am I now thy seruante) thou mayest for my sake destroye the counsaile of * Abithophel. And thou hast there with the Sadok and Abiathar the prestes, vnto whom thou shalt shewe all that thou canst heare out of the kynges house. And behold, they haue there with them their two sonnes: Abimaz Sadoks sonne, and Jonathas Abiathars son: by them also shalt thou sende me all that ye can heare

And so * Husai Dauids frende gat hym to the ctye. And Absalom also entred into Ierusalem.

The xviij Chapter

ziba bringynge shewes to Dauid how he hath beene abused by Absalom. And how he hath beene abused by the counsaile of Abithophel.

And when Dauid was a litle past the toppe of the hyll: beholde, ziba the seruant of Abithophel came to mete hym, with a couple of asses saddled, and vpon them two hundred loaves, and one hundred benches of reysynges, and an hundred frages of dyed fygges, and a vottell of wyne. And the kyng sayd vnto ziba: what meanest thou with theser? And ziba sayd: They be asses for the kynges household to ryde on, and bread and frate for the yonge men to eate, and wyne, that suche as be saynt in the wylbernesse may drynke. And the kyng sayd: where is thy masters sonne? ziba answered vnto the kyng: beholde, he is still at Ierusalem. For he sayd: tis vaine for me to go to the house of Israel: restore me the kyngdome of my father: then sayd the kyng to ziba: beholde, thyne are all that pertayned vnto * Abithophel. And ziba sayde: I do homage to the king. And the kyng sayd: what I maye fynde grace in thy sight, my lord, O kyng.

And when kyng Dauid came to Mahanaim beholde, then came out a man of the kynges house of the house of Saul, named * Semei the sonne of Gera, and he came out cursyng. And he cast stones at Dauid, and at all the seruantes of kyng Dauid. And all the people also, and all the men of warre were on his ryghte hande, and on his left. And thus sayde * Semei when he cursed: come forth, come forth thou bloudy boder: and thou man of Belial. The Lorde hath broughte vpon the all the bloude of the house of Saul, in whose steade thou hast raygned, and the Lorde hath deliuered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And behold, thou art come to thy myschefe, because thou art a bloudy redder.

Then sayde Abisai the sonne of Zama vnto the kyng: why doeth this deed dogge curse my lord the kyng? let me go now and take of the heed of hym. And the kyng sayd: what haue I to do with you, ye sonnes of Zama? let hym curse: for the Lorde hath bydden hym curse Dauid. Whodarre then saye: wherfore hast thou done so? And Dauid sayd to Abisai, and to all his seruantes: beholde, my sonne which came of myne owne bodye, seeketh my lyfe. Howe moche more then maye this sonne of Zama doo it? Suffre hym to curse, * for the Lorde hath bydden hym: happely the Lorde wyll loke on my wepyng eyes and wretchednesse, and do me good for his cursyng this daye. And as Dauid and his men went by the waye, Semei went alonge on the hylls syde ouer agaynst hym, and cursed as he went, and threwe stones at hym, and cast dust. And the kyng and all that were with hym came weyre, and refresched them selues * there.

And Absalom and all the people of the me of Israel came to Ierusalem, and Abithophel was with him.

with hym. And as soone as Husai the Archite Dauids frend was come vnto Absalom, he sayd vnto hym: God saue the kynge, God saue the kynge. And Absalom sayd agayne to Husai is this the kynednesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not with hym? Husai answered vnto Absalom, naye not so: but whom the Lorde & this people and all the men of Israel chose, hye wyl I be, and with hym wyl I dwell. Moreover, vnto who shall I do seruice, but euen to his sonne? And as I was seruaunt before to thy father, euen so shall I be with the. The spake Absalom to Abithophel, gyue counsaile what is best for vs to do. And Abithophel sayd vnto Absalom, get the in vnto thy fathers concubines, which he hath left to kepe for hys house. And all Israel shall heare, that thou arte cast out of thy father: then shall the handes of al that are with the be ströged. And so they pyched Absalom a tente vpon the toppes of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubines in the sight of all Israel.

And the counsaile of Abithophel which he counsailed in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsaile of God: euen so was all the counsaile of Abithophel, both with David and with Absalom.

The xviij. Chapter.

Abithophel sayde to Absalom, let me chose out nowe twelue thousande men. And I wyl vpon a folow after David this night. And I wil come vpon hym whyle he is weyre and weake hāded, and wyl feare him.

And all the people shal be with him wyl for. And so I wyl synge for kynge onely, and wyl bring agayne all the people vnto the, euen as easely as yf I wolde bring any other thyng. And when I haue slayne the man whom thou sekest, al the people shall haue rest. And the sayinge pleased Absalom wel, and all the elders of Israel. The sayd Absalom: call also Husai the Archite, and let vs heare his counsaile. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, saying: Abithophel hath gyuen suche counsaile: Shall we do after his saying, or no? tell thou.

Husai answered vnto Absalom, the counsaile that Abithophel hath gyuen, is not good at this tyme. For, sayde Husai, thou knowest thy father, and his men, how that they be strong. And they be chased in theyr mynde, and are euen as a beere robbed of her whelpes in the feld. Thy father is a man also prynced in the warre, and maketh no taryinge with the people. Beholde, he lurketh now in some caue, or in some other, (stronge place. And though some of his men be ouerthrowen at the fyrste brunt: yet they that heare it wyl saye: The people that folowe Absalom be put to the worse. And the best men thou hast, whose vertes are as the hertes of lions, shall synke thereat. For all Israel knoweth, that thy father is a myghty man, and they which be with hym, are all men of warre.

Therefore my counsaile is, that all Israel be gathered vnto the, fro Dan to Beerseba (which are as the sande of the see in nomibre) and that thou go to battayle in thyne owne person. For so shall we come vpon him in one place or other, where we shal fynde him, and we wyl vpon hym such as thicke as the dewe falleth on the ground. And of all the men that are with hym, we shall not leaue hym one. Moreover, yf he be gotten in to a towne, then shall all the men of Israel bring ropes to that cite, & we wyl drawe it into the ryuer, vntill there be not one stone found there. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayd the counsaile of Husai the Archite is better, then the counsaile of Abithophel. For it was euen the Lordes determinaciō to destroy the good counsaile of Abithophel. The Lorde myght bringe euill vpon Absalom. The sayd Husai vnto David & Abiathar the preestes: of this and of maner dyd Abithophel and the elders of Israel counsaile Absalom. And thus & thus haue I counsailed. Now therefore send quickly, and shew David, sayinge: tary not all nyght in the feldes of the wyldernes, but get the ouer, lest the kynge be deuoured and all the people that are with him. Now Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the well of Rogel: (for they myght not be sene to come into the cite.) And a wenche wente, and tolde them, And they wēt and shewed kynge David.

Nevertheless, a lad sawe them, and tolde it to Absalom. But they went both of them a waye quickly, and came to a mans house in Bahuri, which had a well in his yarde, into the which they went downe. And a woman toke and spred a couerlet ouer the welles mouthe and strowed furmentye corne thereon. And the thyng was not clyped. And whē Absaloms seruantes came to the wyke to the house, they sayde: Where is Ahimaaz & Jonathas? The woman answered them: they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of water. And when they had sought them, and could not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as soone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and went and told kynge David, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and get you quickly ouer the water, for suche counsaile hath Abithophel gyuen agaynst you: Then David arose, and all the people that were with hym, & they were come ouer Jordan by that it was daye: so that there lacked not one of them, that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Abithophel sawe, that his counsaile was not folowed, he saddled his asse, and arose, and gat him home to his owne house, and to his owne cite, & put his household in orde, and hanged hym selfe, & dyed, & was buryed in the sepulchre of his father.

Then David came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with hym. And Absalom made Amasa captayne of the host in the steede of Joab, which Amasa was a mannes sonne named Jethra, an Israelite, that went into Abigail the daughter of Nabal, sister to Jeremia, Joabs mother. So Israel and Absalom pyched in the land of Gilead. And when David was come to Mahanaim, Sobai the sonne of Nabal out of the cite of the chyldre of Ammon, and Ithai and all the people that were with hym, to cate.

 For they sayde: the people is hungry, wepe and theyr ioye in the wyldernesse.

The xxix. Chapter.

¶ Absalom is ouertome in battayle. He hangeth by the beere in an oke. He is killeth and put in a pyll. He Dauid is so ioyful for the death of Absalom that he wepe h.

And Dauid nombred the people that were with hym, and set captaynes of thousandes & of hundredes ouer them.
 And Dauid sent forth the thyrde part of the people vnder the hande of Joab, and an other parte vnder the hande of Abisai the sonne of Nerai Joabs brother, and the other thyrde parte vnder the hand of Ittai the Gethite. And the kyng sayd vnto the people: I wyl go with you also. And the people answered: Thou shalt not goo for the: for yf we slye, our aduersaries wyl not care for vs: neyther shall they regarde vs though halfe of vs were slayne: but thou art worth ten thousande of vs: Wherefore it is better, that thou succoure vs out of the cytie. And the kyng sayde vnto them: What semeth you best, that I wyl do.

¶ And the kyng stode by the gate syde, and all the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes, and the kyng commaunded Joab and Abisai, and Ittai, sayinge: entreate the ponge man Absalom gently for my sake. And al þe people herde that the kyng gaue all the captaynes charge concernyng Absalom. And so the people went oute in the felde agaynst Israel, and the battayle was in the wood of Ephraim: Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruantes of Dauid, and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twenty thousande men. For the felde was fowle there in dyuers places, all abrode vpon the trees. And the wood deuoured mo people that dyed by the swerde. And Absalom came before the ser-uantes of Dauid, rydyng vpon a mule, which caried hym vnder the chyeke bowes of a greate oke. And his heed was caught of the oke, and he was lyfte vp betwene heauen and earth: and the mule that was vnder hym went his waye.
 And one that sawe it tolde Joab, sayinge: Be-holde, I sawe Absalom hange in an oke, and Joab sayde vnto the man that tolde hym: Yf thou dydest se him, why dydest not thou there smyte hym to the grounde, and I wold haue gyuen the ten sylles of syluer, and a gyrdle.

E The man sayd vnto Joab: though thou wol-dest lape a thousande sylles of syluer in myne hande, yet wold I not stretch out myne hand agaynst the kynges sonne. For we herde with our eares, when the kyng charged the, and A-bisai, and Ittai, sayinge: Beware, that none touch the ponge man Absalom. Moreover, yf I had done it, I shoulde haue done agaynst myne owne lyfe: for there is no matter yd frō the kyng: yea, and thou thy self wouldest haue bene agaynst me. Then sayd Joab: I maye not stande thus taryng with the.

¶ And he toke thre speares in his hande, and thrust them thorowe Absalom, whyle he was yet alpye on the body of þe trees. And ten seruantes that bare Joabs weapons, turned & smote Absalom, and slue hym. And when Joab blew the tropet, the people returned from folowynge Israel. For Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom, and cast him into a great pyll in the wood, and layed a mighty great hepe of stones vpon hym. And all Israel fled to the yrtetes.
 And this Absalom yet in his lyfe tyme toke counsaile: & reared vp a pyll, whiche is in kynges dale. For he sayd: I haue no son. And therfore, to kepe my name in remembrance do I it. And he called the pyll after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye: Absaloms pyll. 1. reg. xv. c.

¶ Then sayde Abimaaz the sonne of Sadok: E let me runne now, and beare the kyng tydings howe that the Lorde hath iudged hym quyte of the hande of his enemyes. And Joab sayd vnto hym: thou art no man to beare good tydynge today: thou shalt beare tydynge an other time but todaye thou shalt beare none: because the kynges sonne is ded. Then sayd Joab to Chusi: goo, and tell the kyng, what thou hast sene.
 And Chusi bowed hym selfe vnto Joab, and canne. Then sayd Abimaaz the sonne of Sadok agayne to Joab: come what come wyl, let me also runne after Chusi. And Joab sayd: Wherefore wylt thou runne my sonner seing that for þe tydynge thou shalt haue no reward: wel (sayd he) come what wyl, let me runne. He sayd vnto him: runne. Then Abimaaz ranne by the playne waye, and came before Chusi.

¶ And Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And H the watchman wente vp to the roofe ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe, and beholde, there came o man runnyng alone. And the watchman cryed, and tolde the kyng. And the kyng sayd yf he be alone, there is good tydynge in his mouth. And he came, & bywe nye. And the watchman sawe another man runnyng, and he tolde vnto the poster, and sayde: beholde, there cometh another man runnyng alone. And the kyng sayd: he is also a tydynge bringer. And the watchman tolde me thynketh the runnyng of the foremost is lyke the runnyng of Abimaaz the sonne of Sadok.
 The kyng sayd: he is a good man, and cometh with good tydynge. And Abimaaz called, and sayd vnto the kyng: good tydynge, and he fel downe flat to the earth vpon his face before the kyng, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God, which hath shut vp the men that isse by the handes agaynst my lord the kyng. And the kyng sayde: is the ponge man Absalom safe?
 Abimaaz answered: when Joab sent (Chusi) the kynges seruante, and me thy seruante, I sawe moche ado: But I wot not what it was.
 And the kyng sayd vnto hym: turne, and stand here. And he turned, and stode still.

¶ And beholde, Chusi came also, and sayde: G
 Good tydynge my lord the kyng, for þe Lorde hath quyte

hath quyte the this daye out of the hande of all them that rose agaynst the. And the kyng sayd vnto Chusi: Is the younge man Absalom safe? Chusi answered: The enemyes of my lord the kyng, and all that ryle agaynst the to doo the hurt, be as that yonge man is. And the kyng was moued, and wet vp to a chamber ouer the gate, and wept. And as he went thus he sayde: O my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God I had dyed for the: O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

The xix. Chapter

David is restored to his kyngdome and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

And it was tolde Joab: Beholde, the kyng mouereth and wepeth for Absalom. And the vyctorye of that daye was turned into mourninge vnto all the people. For the people hearde saye that daye howe the kyng sorowed for his sonne. And the people stode a waye that daye from goinge into the cite, as people confounded to steale a waye when they sle in battayle. But the kyng hyd his face, and cryed with a loude voyce. O my sonne Absalom, O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

And Joab came into the house to the kyng, and sayd: thou hast shamed this daye the faces of all thy seruantes, which this daye haue saued thy lyfe, & the lyues of thy lones & of thy doughters, & the lyues of thy wyues, & of thy concubines, in þ thou louest thyne enemyes, & hatst thy frendes. For thou hast declared this day, þ thou regardest neither thy lordes nor seruantes. And this daye I perceyue, þ of Absalom had I yud, & all we had dyed this daye, þ had pleased the wel. Now therefore vp, & come out and speake kyndly vnto thy seruantes. For I sweare by þ Lord, except thou come out, there wyl not sarue one man with the this night. And what wil be worse vnto the, then all the cupyl þ sell on the from thy pouth vnto this hoare. Then the kyng arose, & sat downe in the gate. And they tolde vnto all the people, saying. Beholde, the kyng doeth sit in the gate. And all the people came before the kyng. As & Iuraciōe euery man to his tent.

And it fortuned, that all the people were asfryte & horowe out all the trybes of Israel, saying. the kyng saued vs out of the hande of our enemyes, he deliuered vs out of the hand of the Philistines, and now he is fled out of the lande for Absalom. But Absalom whom we anoynted ouer vs is deed in battayle. Therefore why are ye so still, þ ye bringe not the kyng agayne? And kyng David sent to Zadok & Abiathar þ prestes, saying. speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye. why are ye behynde to bring the kyng agayne to his house, seeing that suche rebuynges is come from all Israel vnto the kyng, euen to his house? (For the kyng had sayde: It was shall ye saye vnto the people of Juda:) Ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesh: wherfore then are ye the last þ bringe the kyng home agayne? And saye ye to Amasa art thou not of my bone & of my flesh? God do so & so to me, if thou be not captayne of the hooft to me for euer in the roume of Joab.

And he bowed þ hertes of al þ men of Juda, eue as the hert of one man: so þ they sent this worde to þ kyng: Returne thou w all thy seruantes. So the kyng returned, & came to Jordan. And Juda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete the kyng, & to conuey hym ouer Jordan. And Simi the sonne of Gera, þ son of Jemini, which was of Bahurim, hasted and came with þ men of Juda to mete kyng David and there were a thousand men of Ben Jamin w him, and Ziba the seruant of þ house of Saul, and his. x. shenes and twente seruantes with hym. And they went quychly ouer Jordan before þ kyng. And there went ouer a boote that caryed ouer þ kynges household, and they dyd hym pleasure.

And Simi the sonne of Gera fell before the kyng (as he was come ouer Jordan) and sayd vnto hym let not my lord impute wyckednesse vnto me, nor remembre the thynges that thy seruant dyd wyckedly when my lord the kyng departed out of Jerusalem that the kyng shuld take it to hert. For thy seruant doeth knowe, how that I haue done amysse. And therefore beholde, I am the fyrst this daye of all the house of Joseph, that am come to go downe, to mete my lord the kyng. But Abisai the sonne of Neria answered, and sayde: Shall not Simi dye for this, bycause he cursed the Lordes annoynted? And David sayde: what matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of zerna? For this daye ye be aduersaries vnto me. Shall there any man dye this daye in Israel? Doo not I knowe, that I am this daye kyng ouer Israel? And therefore the kyng layd vnto Simi: thou shalt not dye and the kyng swore vnto hym.

And Niphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kyng, and had neither washed his feet, nor shauen his beirde, nor washed his clothes from the tyme the kyng departed, vntill he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned, þ when he was come to Jerusalem, and met þ kyng the kyng sayd vnto him: wherfore wentest thou with me Niphiboseth? he answered: my lord, O kyng, my seruant disceyued me. For thy seruant sayd: I wold haue myne asse saddled to ryde theron, for to go to the kyng, bycause thy seruant is lame. And ziba hath falsly reported of thy seruant vnto my lord the kyng. And my lord the kyng is as an angel of God: do therefore what semeth good in thyne eyes. For al my fathers house were but deed men before my lord þ kyng, and yet dyddest thou put thy seruant among them þ did eat at thyne owne table. What ryght therefore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto the kyng. And the kyng sayde vnto him: why speakest thou yet in thyne owne cause? (He is determyned, & dat) I haue sayd: thou & ziba deuyde the landes betwene you. And Niphiboseth sayd vnto the kyng: yea, let him take all: for so moche as my lord the kyng is come agayne in peace vnto his owne house.

And Bersai the Giliadite came downe fro Roglim, and went ouer Jordan w the kyng, to conuey him ouer Jordan. Bersai was a very aged man, euen foure score yere olde, & prouided the kyng

If the kyng of sustenance, whole he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verpe great substance. And the kyng sayd vnto Berselai: come thou with me, and I wyll feede the with me in Jerusalem. And * Berselai sayd vnto the kyng: I am thus olde, and how am I hable to go vp with the kyng vnto Jerusalem: I am this day four score yere olde: and can I decerne betwene good or euill? Hath thy seruant any taste in that he eateth or drynketh? Can he heare any more the voyce of synngynge men and women? Wherefore then shulde thy seruant be yet a burthen vnto my lord the kyng? Thy seruante wyll go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with þ kyng and why wyll the kyng recompence it me with such a rewarde? Let thy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in myne owne cytie, and be buried in the graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy seruante Chimiam, let hym go with my lord the kyng, and do to hym what shall please the.

And the kyng answered Chimiam shall go with me. And I wyll do to hym that thou shalt be content with. And whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same wyll I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And when þ kyng was come ouer Jordan, he kyssed Berselai, and blessed hym, and he went back agayne vnto his owne place. And then þ kyng went to Gilgal, and Chimiam went with hym, and so dyd all the people of Juda, and brought ouer the kyng and there were but halfe the men of Israel.

And beholde, all the men of Israel came to þ kyng, and sayd vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Juda stolen the away, & haue brought the kyng & his household, and all Dauids men with hym ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered þ men of Israel the kyng is here of kyn to vs: wherfore be ye angry for þ matters? thinke ye þ we eate of the kynges cost, or þ we take vs any gyftes? And þ men of Israel answered the men of Juda, & sayde: we haue ten partes in the kyng, & haue therto moze ryght to Dauid then ye. Why the dyd ye dispyse vs, that our aduysle shuld not be fyrst had, in restoring our kyng agayne? And the wordes of þ men of Juda were fearcer then the wordes of the men of Israel.

The xx Chapter.

The thirde churche of Bichri capeth Israel agaynst Dauid: Joab kyleth Amasa captain: The herd of Seba is destroyed to Joab: Dauids respyce are nombred.

When there came thither a certayne man of Belial (named Seba, the sonne of Bichri, a man of Gemin) he blew a trumpet, & sayd: we haue no part in Dauid, neither haue we inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai, let the men of Israel departe vnto theyr tentes. And so euery man of Israel wen from Dauid and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Juda claued fast vnto theyr kyng, from Jordan to Jerusalem.

And Dauid came to his house to Jerusalem, and toke the ten women his concubines, that he had lefte behynde hym to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and fedde them: but laye no moze with them. And so they were enclosed vnto the day of their death, lyuing in wydowhod.

Then sayd the kyng to Amasa: call me the men of Juda together agaynst the thirde daye, and be thou here also. And so Amasa wet to gather the men of Juda together: but tarped longer the tyme which he had appoynted him. And Dauid sayd to Abisai: now shall Seba the sonne of Bichri do vs moze harme, the dyd Abisai. Take thou therfore thy lordes seruantes and folowe after hym, lest he get hym walled cyties, and escape vs. And there went out after hym Joabs men, and the Cherhites & the Phelethites, and all the myghtyest men. And they departed out of Jerusalem, to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri. And whē they were at the great stone in Sibeon, Amasa went befoze the. And Joabs garmente (that he had about hym) was gyrded vnto hym, and he had gyrded thereon a knyfe, which was gyrded fast to his loynes in such a wyse, that (as he went) it fel sometimes out. And Joab said to Amasa: art thou in helth in þ brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the cheyn with the ryght hand to kille hym. But Amasa toke no heed to the knyfe that was in Joabs hande, for therwith he smote hym in the throte rybbes, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and thrust at hym no moze, and he dyed.

And Joab & Abisai his brother folowed after Seba þ son of Bichri: & one of Joabs men stode by him, & sayd: he þ beareth any fauour to Joab or good wyll to Dauid, let hym go after Joab. And Amasa laye wallowed in bloude in þ myddes of þ way. And there was a mā, which when he sawe * þ all the people stode still, he rowled Amasa out of þ way into the feld, & cast a cloth vpo hym, because he sawe that euery one þ came stode still by hym. And as soone as he was tumbled out of the waye, all the people went after Joab, to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri.

And he went thorow al the tribes of Israel vnto Abel, and Bethmaacha and al the places of Barim. And they gathered together, & went after hym. And they came, and besieged hym in Abel and Bethmaacha. And they caste vp a banke agaynst the cytie that stode in the valley. All the people that was with Joab, thrust at the wall to ouerthrowe it. Then cryed a wyse woman out of the cytie, heare, heare, vnto Joab come hyther that I may speake with hym. Whē Joab was come vnto her, the woman sayd vnto hym: heare the wordes of thyne handmayde. And he answered: I do heare: & she sayd agayne: They spake in the olde tyme, sayng: men must aske peace like (peace fynd, how moche rather shulde they so do to) Abel: For so haue they continued (hitherto:) I am one of them, that are peaceable and fapthfull in Israel: and thou goest about to destroy a cytie and a mother in Israel. Why wilt thou deuoure the inheritaunce of the Lorde?

G And Joab answered, and sayd: God forbid, God forbid it me, that I shulde eyther deuoure or destroye. The matter is not so: but a man of mount Ephraim (Seba the sonne of Bichai by name) hath lyfe vpon his hād agaynst þe kyng, euē agaynst Dauid. Deliuere vs him onely, & I wyl depart from the cytie. And þe woman sayd vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shalbe throwen to the ouer the wall. And then the woman went vnto all þe people to her wylsome. And they smote of the heed of Seba the son of Bichai, and cast it out to Joab. * And he blew a trumpet, and they scattered fro the cytie, euery mā to his tent. And Joab returned to Ierusalem vnto the kyng.

Joab was ouer all the hoste of Israel. And Banai the son of Jehoiada was ouer the Erethites and Philistines. And Iuram was ouer the tribute. And Jehoshaphat the sonne of Ahud was recorder. Seua was scribe. And Sadock and Abiathar were the priestes. And Ira the Isaitte was Dauids priest.

The xxi. Chapter.

The beare peres. The vengeance of the spirit of Saul lighteth on his. his sonnes, which are hanged. Four great battayles which Dauid had agaynst the Philistines.

A When there fell an hungre in the dayes of Dauid thre yeres together. And Dauid enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Saul, and for house of bloud, because he slue the * Gibaonites. And the kyng called the Gibaonites, and sayde vnto the: (Now þe Gibaonites were not of the * chyldren of Israel, but a remnant of þe Amorites, and the child.ē of Israel swore vnto them: And Saul sought to slaye the. for a zeile that he had to the chyldren of Israel & of Iuda.) Wherefore Dauid sayd vnto them: what shal I do for you, & wherewith shal I make the atonement þe maye blesse the inheritaunce of the Lorde?

The Gibaonites answered hym: We wyl haue no syluer nor golde, if Saul, nor of his house: neyther is it our mynde that thou shouldest kyl any mā in Israel. He sayd: what saie ye then þe I shal do for you? They answered þe kyng the man þe consumed vs & imagined to bring vs to nought, him wyl we destroy, that nought of him continue in any of the costes of Israel. Let seven men of his sonnes be deliuered vnto vs, and we wyl hange them vp vnto the Lorde, in Gibeah of Saul, whom the Lorde dyd chose. And the kyng sayde: I wyl gyue them you.

B But the kyng had compassion on Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathan the sonne of Saul, because of the Lordes othe, that was betwene them: euen betwene Dauid and Jonathan the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rizpa the daughter of Aia (whom she bare vnto Saul) euen Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the foure sonnes of Michol (þe daughter of Saul) whom she bare to Adriel the sonne of Barzilai, the Bethleahite. And he deliuered them vnto the hādes of the Gibeonites, which hanged the in the hyll before the Lorde. And they sell all seven togyther, and were slayne in the dayes of haruest: euē in the fyfth dayes, and in the begynnyng of barlye haruest.

And Rizpa the daughter of Aia toke sackcloth & and hanged it vp for them vpon the rocke, euen from the begynnyng of haruest, vntill rayne dropped vpon them out of heauen: and suffered neyther the byrdes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor bestes of the felde by nyght. And it was tolde Dauid what Rizpa the daughter of Aia the concubine of Saul had done: and Dauid went and toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathan his sonne from the men of Jaies in Geth (whiche had stolen them from the strete of Bethlan where the Philistines had hanged the when the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa) And he brought thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his sonne, and they toke vp the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and Jonathan his sonne buried they in the countrey of Beniamin in zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they had perfourmed all that the kyng commaunded, God was then at one with the lande.

It fortuned, that the Philistines had yet war agayne with Israel. And Dauid went downe, and his seruantes with hym, and fought agaynst the Philistines. And Dauid waxed fayne, and Isby of Nob one of the ioncs of the gyantes (the prion of whose speare wayed thre hū died cycles, and he bringe gyrded with a newe swerde) thought to haue slayne Dauid. * But Abisai the sonne of Neri succoured hym, and smote the Philistine, and kylled hym. Then the seruantes of Dauid swore vnto him, layinge: Thou shalt go no more out with vs to battayl that thou quenche not the lyght of Israel. And yet after this, there was a battayle with the Philistines at Nob, and then Sibbechai the Gushathite slue Haph, whiche was one of the sonnes of the Gyantes.

And there was yet another battayl in Nob with the Philistines, where Sibbechai the sonne of Jaere Orgim, a Bethlehemite slue one Goliath a Gethite: the staffe of whose speare was as greete as a weauers cloth beame.

And there was yet another battayl in Geth where was a man of a great stature, and had on euery hand vi fingers, & on euery fote. vi. toes, xiiii. in all. And was borne also of þe gyantes of the grautes in Geth. And when he defied Israel, Jonathan the sonne of Simea the brother of Dauid slue him. These foure gyantes were borne in Geth, and fel into the hande of Dauid, and into the handes of his seruantes.

The xxij. Chapter.

The song of Dauid for his deliuerance from his enemies.

A And Dauid spake the wordes of this song vnto þe Lorde, what tyme þe Lorde had deliuered him out of þe hand of all his enemies, & out of the hād of Saul. And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke and my castle, risel and my deliuerer. God is my strength, in hym wyll I trust he is my shylde, and the horne of my saluacion my wyrt, my refuge my saluacion, thou shalt save me from wronge.

psa lvi. 1. a * I wyll call on the Lord which is prayse woz thy, and so shall I be saved from myne enemyes for the corrupcions of death closed me aboute: the floudes of death put me in feare. The sorowes of hell compassed me aboute: the snares of death ouertoke me. In my tribulation wyll I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he shall heare my voyce out of hys temple, and my crye shall enter into hys eares. The earth trembled and quaked, the foundations of heauen moued and quake, when he was angry.

28 Smoke went vp in hys wrath, & consuming fyre out of hys mouth, cooles were kindled therof. And he bowed heauen, & came downe, & there was darkenes vnder hys fete. And he sat vpon Cherub & dyd flye, he was sene carryed vpon the wynges, & he wynde. He made darkenes a tabernacle rounde about hym, w<sup>ch</sup> waters gathered together in thicke cloudes. Thynges of hys prynces were the fyre cooles kindled

God thondred from heuen, & he that is mooste hye, dothe put out his voyce. He shot arrowes, & scattered them he hurled lightning, & ouerthrew them. The howynges of the see appeared, & the foundations of the worlde were sene, by reason of the rebukinge of the Lorde, & thorow the blastynge of the breath of hys noyestrelles. He shall sende fro heauen, & fet me, he shall plucke me out of many waters. He shall deliuer me from my myghtye aduersary, & from myne enemyes, for they are to shynge for me. When they had ouertaken me in the daye of my calamitie the Lorde rescued me vp. For he brought me out into rough he deliuered me, because he had a loue vnto me.

100 ma 11. b * The Lorde wyll rewarde me accordyng to my ryghte wysenesse accordyng to the purenes of my handes wil he recouere me. For I haue kept the wyres of the Lord, & done no wyckednes agaynst my God. For all hys lawes are in my syght, and his statutes wyll not I put away fro me. In hys syght also haue I bene vndefyled, & haue kepte me from myne owne iniquite.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordyng to my ryghteousnes, euen after my purenes in hys eyesyght. Althowgh the godlye thou shalt be godly, and wyth the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure and wyth the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde. And the poore people that are in aduersite, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalt thou cast thyne eyes. Thou arte my lyght O Lorde the Lorde shall lyght my darkenes.

For wyth thy helpe I wyll ryme thorowe an host of men, and in my God wyll I sprynge ouer a wall. God is vncorrupte in his waye the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre, he is the defender of all them that trust in hym.

For who is a God save the Lorde, and who is myghtye, save our God? God strengetheth me wth power, & ryddeth my waye in battayle cleare before me. He maketh my fete lyk hartes fete, and setteth me fast vpon my bre holde.

* He teacheth my handes to fyght, that euen a bowe of stele is to weake for myne armes. pl. lvi. 1. a.

Thou hast geuen me the shylde of thy saluacion, and wyth thy louynge mekenes thou doest multiplie me. Thou shalt make me space to walke in, & my legges shall not faile me. I wyll followe vpon myne enemyes & destroye them, & turne not agayne vntyl I haue consumed them.

I wyll waste them and smyte them, that they shall not be able to aryse: yea, they shall fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gyrded me aboute wyth myghte to battayle, and the that arose agaynst me, haste thou subdued vnder me.

And thou madest myne enemyes (and them that hated me to turne theyr backs to me that I myght destroye them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to save them. Yea, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I wyll beate them as smale as the dust of the earth: I wyll stamp them as the dytt of y<sup>e</sup> strete and wyll sprede them abroad.

Thou shalt deliuer me from the dissension of my people thou shalt kepe me to be an heade ouer nacions the people whiche I knewe not, shall serue me.

Strange chyldren dissemble wyth me. At the hearynge of the eare they obeye me:

Strange chyldren wyll synche awaye, & they shall be smytten wyth feare in theyr pryue chamber. God is almyghty, & blessed be my maker: magnyfyed be God, my mooste stronge saluacion. It is God that auengereth me, & bringeth downe the people vnder me he deliuereth me from myne enemyes, thou also shalt lyfte me vp on hye fro them that crye agaynst me, thou shalt deliuer me from the wycked men.

And therefore I wyll prayse the (O Lorde) amonge y<sup>e</sup> nacions, & wyll sprynge vnto thy name. Althowgh theweth great saluacion for his kyng & dealeth mercifully wyth hys anoynted. euen wyth David, and wyth hys seede for euermore.

The xxiii. Chapter.

The last communication of David, and the description of the ierusalemite hymn of hymne.

1 These be the last sayenges of David, David the sonne of Isay sayd. And the man whiche was made, the anoynted of the God of Jacob, and y<sup>e</sup> noble Psalmist of Israel sayde: the spere of the Lorde spake by me and hys worde was in my tonge. The God of Israel, ake of me, euen the mooste myghty of Israel, sayde he that beareth rule ouer men, ought to rule vntyl in the feare of God. And as the morninge lyght when the Sonne is vp, a morninge in which are no cloudes to let the byghtnes, & as the grasse of the earth is by the vertue of the rayne shall not my house be so with god. * For he hath made wyth me an euertlastyng couenant, paynte & sure in all poyntes and thyng is truly all my health and all my desyre that it growe but not as grasse. But y<sup>e</sup> vngodly man of which shall walke as a thorne cleane pluckte vp, which which can not be taken wth handes: But the man that shall touche them, must haue p<sup>ro</sup>n, or a longe helue. * Or elles must they be burnt wth fyre in the same place.

1. par. cii. b.

These be the names of the myghty men wh<sup>o</sup> David had: one that sat in the seate of w<sup>is</sup>dom, beyng cheifest amonge the, pleasaunte was he and stronge he slue, viii hundred at one tyme. After hym was Eliazar the sonne of Doi the sonne of Ahob, one of the thre worthyes wth David, which defyed the Philistines that were there gathered together to battel whē the men of Israel were gone vp. he arose and layed on the Philistines vntill hys hand was wet, & claue vnto the swerde. And y<sup>e</sup> Lord gaue great victorie p<sup>ro</sup> same day. And y<sup>e</sup> people wh<sup>o</sup> he had led returned, & went after him to r<sup>u</sup>ne to the spocie. After hym was Samma the sonne of Age the Hararite: and y<sup>e</sup> Philistines gathered together besyde a towne. (Where was a parcell of lande full of r<sup>ice</sup>, and the people fled from the Philistines. But he stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and slue the Philistines. And the Lord gaue great victorie.

* These thre, wh<sup>o</sup>ch were of the thyrty ch<sup>o</sup> captaynes, went downe to David in y<sup>e</sup> hartest tyme vnto the caue of Achis, and the host of the Philistines abode in the valey of grauntes. And David was then in an holde. And the soundours of the Philistines were in Bethleem. And David longed and sayd: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the well by the gate of Bethleem, for to drinke. And the thre myghty brake thozowe the host of the Philistines, and fet water out of the well of Bethleem that was by the gate, and toke & brought it to David. He uerhelcs he wolde not drinke therof, but offered it vnto the Lord, and sayd. the Lord forbidd y<sup>e</sup> I shoulde do so. Is not this the bloude of y<sup>e</sup> men that wente in jeopardy of theyr lyues: and therfore he wolde not drinke it. And these thynge dyd these thre myghty men. * Abiath the brother of Joab, y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Achis, was cheife amonge the thre, & he lyfte vp hys speare agaynst the hundred, and slue them, & had the name amonge the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre, now was theyr captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto the thre.

The xxiii. Chapter.

David caused the people to be nombred, & therefore in Israel plagued wth pestilence, so that in thre dayes there dyed thre thowsande.

Agayne, the Lord was wroth agaynst Israel, and he moued David agaynst them, in that he sayde: go and nombre Israel & Juda. For the kyng sayd to Joab the captayne of hys host go thou abrode now, thozowe out all the trybes of Israel, euen from Dan to Beer Seba, & nombre y<sup>e</sup> people, that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayd vnto the kyng. I beseech the Lord by God, to make thy people as many mo as they be: yea and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my lord y<sup>e</sup> kyng may se them. And what is the cause that my lord the kyng hath a lust to this thynge? Not wthstandyng the kynges worde prenyed agaynst Joab & agaynst y<sup>e</sup> captaynes of the host.

And Joab & the captaynes of the host went out from the p<sup>re</sup>sence of the kyng, to nombre y<sup>e</sup> people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pyched in Aroer on the ryght syde of the eyte that lyeth in the myddes of the valey of Gad ouer agaynst Jazer. And then they came to Gilead, & to the netherlande, where was a new habitation, & from thence they came to Dan. Jaan about to Sidon, & came to the stronge helde of Tyre & to all the cyties of the Hittites & of the Canaanites, & then went out to the South of Juda euen to Beer Seba. And so, when they had ben abrode thozowe out all the lande, they returned to Ierusalem agayne, after y<sup>e</sup> ende of nyne monethes & twenty dayes. And Joab deliuered vp the nombre & summe of y<sup>e</sup> people vnto y<sup>e</sup> kyng. And there were in Israel cyght hundred thousand men of myght that drewe swerdes. And the men of Juda were syue hundred thousand men.

And Davids herte smote hym, after that he had nombred the people. And David sayd vnto the Lord: I haue synned exceedingly in that I haue done. And now Lord take awaye the trespace of thy seruaunt, for I haue done verye foolyschly. And when David was vp in a mourninge, the worde of the Lord came vnto y<sup>e</sup> prophete Gad Davids sear, sayeng go and say vnto David, thus sayeth y<sup>e</sup> Lord: I offere the thre thynge, chose y<sup>e</sup> wh<sup>o</sup>ch of the I shall do vnto y<sup>e</sup>.

So Gad came to David, and shewed hym, & sayd sayd

sayd vnto hym. Wylte thou haue seuen yeares honger to come in thy lande, or wylte thou flee
iii. monethes before thyne enemyes, they folow ynge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy lande? Howe therfore aduple the, and se, what answere I shall gyue to hym that sente me. And David sayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. *We wyl fall nowe into y<sup>e</sup> hāde of the Lorde, for muche is hys mercy, and let me not fall into the hande of man.

Ecce sic.

And so the Lorde sent a pestilence in Israel from the mornynge vnto the tyme appoynted.
And there dyed of the people frō Dan to Beerseba seuentie thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vpon Ierusalem to destroy it, the Lorde had compassion to do that euell and sayde to the angell that destroyed the people: it is nowe sufficient: holde thyne hande.
And the angell of the Lorde was by the threshynge place of Arefna the Jebusite. And David spake vnto the Lorde (when he sawe the angell that smote y<sup>e</sup> people) & sayd: lo, it is I that haue sinned, and I that haue done wyckedly. But these shepe, what haue they done? let thine hāde (I praye the) be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came the same daye to David, and sayd vnto hym: go vp and reare an aultare vnto the Lorde in the threshynge flowre of Arefna the Jebusite. And David (accoydynge to the sayeng of Gad) wente vp, as the Lorde commaūded. And Arefna looked, and sawe the kynge and hys seruantes commynge towarde hym. And Arefna went out: and bowed hym selfe before the kynge that on his face vpon the grounde, and Arefna sayde: wherfore is my lord the kynge come to hys seruants? David answered: to bye the threshynge flowre of the, and to make an aultare vnto the Lorde, that the plage maye cease from the people.

And Arefna sayd vnto David: let my lord the kynge take & offre what semeth hym good in hys eyes: Beholde here be oxen for burnt sacrifice, and steades & the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. All these thynges dyd Arefna geue vnto the kynge, and sayd morouer vnto the kynge: the Lord thy God accept the. And the kynge sayd vnto Arefna. not so but I wyl bye it of the at a pryncer, and wyl not offre sacri-fyce vnto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothyng. And so David bought the threshynge floure, and the oxen for fyfene speies of syluer. And David buyt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerpnyes. And so the Lorde was intreated for the lande. And the

plage ceased

from

Israel.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The Ponge byrgyne Abisag kepte David in his extreme age. Adonia occupieth the realme but pnynged to hys father. Salomon is anoynted kynge, and so Adonia getteth hym a wyfe.

And kynge David was olde & streken in yeares so that when they covered hym with clothes he caught no heate: wherfore hys seruantes sayd vnto him: let there be sought for my lord the kynge a ponge mayden, to stande before the kynge and to cheryshe hym.
And let her lye in thy bosome, that my lord the kynge maye get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosell thowowe out all the coastes of Israel, and founde one Abisag a Sunamite, & brought her to the kynge. And the damosell was exceedynge fayre, and cheryshed the kynge, and ministered to him. But the kynge knew her not.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith exalted hym selfe, sayenge. I wyl be kynge. And he gat hym charrettes & horsemen, & fystymē to rāne before hym. And hys father wolde not displease hym at any tyme, nor sayd so muche to hym, as, why doest thou so? And he was a goodly man, & hys mother bare hym nexte after Absalom. And he toke counsell at Joab the sonne of zacaria, and at Abiathar the prest. And they helped Adonia. B But Sadock the prest, Banaiah y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Jehoiada, Nathan the prophete, Semel and Re-bi, and all the men of myght whych were wyth Da-uid, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia sacrificy-ced shepe and oxen, and fat catell, by the stōne of zohelerh, whych is fast * by the well of Rogel, & called all hys bretherne the kynges sonnes, and Jo. iii. 2. the men of Iuda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the prophete and Banaiah, and the other myghtye men, and Salomon hys brother he called not.

Wherfore Nathan spake vnto Bathshebe the mother of Salomō, sayeng hast thou not herd howe y<sup>e</sup> Adonia y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Hagith doth raigne, and David our lord knoweth it not? Nowe therfore come, & I wyl gyue y<sup>e</sup> counsell, how to saue

thyne owne lyfe, and the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Go and get the in vnto kyng David, & saye vnto hym: dydest not thou my lord? O kyng sweare vnto thy handmayde, sayenge: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall sit vpon my seate, whyle is then Adonia kyng? Behold, whyle y yet talkest there w the kyng I wyll come in after the, & cōfyrme thy wordes.

E And Bethsabe went in vnto the kyng into the chamber. And the kyng was very olde, & Abisag the Sunamite mynistered vnto y kyng. And Bethsabe stouped & made obersaunce vnto the kyng. And the kyng sayd what is the matter? She answered him my lord, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, and he shall sit vpon my seate. And beholde, now is Adonia, kyng, and my lord the kyng woteth not of it. And he hath offered oren, fat catel, and many shepe, and hath called al the sonnes of the kyng, & Abiathar y prest, & Joab the captayne of the host. But Salomon thy seruante hath he not bydden. And nowe my lord (O kyng) the eyes of all Israell wayte on the, that thou wouldest tell them, who ought to sit on the seate of my lord the kyng after hym. For els when my lord the kyng shall slepe wth his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shall be synners.

D And whyle she yet talked wth y kyng, Nathan the prophete came also. And they told the kyng sayenge: behold, here cometh Nathan y prophete. And when he was come in to the kyng he made obersaunce before the kyng vpon his face on the grounde, & Nathan sayd. My lord, O kyng, hast thou sayd: Adonia shall raygne after me, & shall sit vpon my seate? For he is gone downe thys daye, & hath slayne many oren, and fat shepe & hath called all the kynges sonnes, & the captaynes of the host, & Abiathar the prest. And beholde they eate & drinke before him, and saye: God saue kyng Adonia. But me thy seruante, and Sadock the prest, and Banaiahu the sonne of Iehoiada, and thy seruante Salomon hath he not called. Is thys thyng done of my lord the kyng, and thou hast not shewed it vnto thy seruante, who shuld sit on the seate of my lord the kyng after hym?

E Then kyng David answered, and sayde: call me Bethsabe. And she came into y kynges presence, and stode before hym. And the kyng swaure, sayenge: As truly as the Lorde lyueth (that hath ryd my soule out of all aduersite) euē as I swaie vnto the by the Lorde God of Israel sayenge: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall sit vpon my seate for me, so wyll I do thys day. Then Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earth, and dyd reuerence vnto the kyng, & sayd: I praye God that my lord kyng David maye lyue euer. And kyng David sayd call me Sadock the prest, & Nathan the prophete, and Banaiahu y sonne of Iehoiada. And they came before y kyng. The kyng also laid vnto them take w you the seruantes of your lord, & let Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne mule, & carry hym downe to Gihon. And let Sadock y prest, & Nathan the prophete anoynte him there, kyng ouer Israel. And blowe ye wth trompettes, & saye: God saue kyng Salomon. And the come vp after hym, & he may come & sit vpon my seate. For he shall be kyng in my steade. And I wyll cōmaunde hym to be captayne ouer Israel & Iuda. And Banaiahu y sonne of Iehoiada answered the kyng, & sayd: Amen. I praye God y the Lorde God of my lord the kyng say so to. And as God hath ben w my lord y kyng, euē so be he w Salomon also, & make his seate greater, the y seate of my lord kyng David hath bene.

E And so Sadock the prest, and Nathan the prophete, & Banaiahu the sonne of Iehoiada, & the Gethites and Phelthites wente downe, & set Salomon vpon kyng Davids mule, and brought hym to Gihon. And Sadock the prest toke an horne of oyle out of the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomon. And all they of the people blew trompettes, and sayd: God saue kyng Salomon. And al the people came vp after him, ppyng wth pypes and reioysyng greatly, so that the earth rang wth y sounde of them.

E And Adonia & all the gesses that he had called vnto hym, herd it, euē as they had made an ende of eatyng. And when Joab herde the sōnd of the trumpet, he sayd howe happeneth it that there is suche a noyse in the cytie? And as he yet spake: behold, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar y prest came. And Adonia sayd vnto hym: come in, for thou arte a valyaunt man, and byngest good tydings. And Jonathas answered & said to Adonia: Verely our lord kyng David hath made Salomon kyng. And y kyng hath sente wth hym, Sadock y prest, & Nathan y prophete & Banaiahu the sonne of Iehoiada & the Gethites, & the Phelthites, & they haue set hym vpon the kynges mule. And Sadock the prest, & Nathan the prophete, haue anoynted hym kyng in Gihon. And they came vp agayne, & reioysed, & the cytie dyd soude agayne. And that is y noyse that ye haue herde. And Salomon syteth on the seate of the kyngdome. And mozeouer the kynges seruantes came to blesse our lord kyng David, sayenge: thy God make the name of Salomon moze honozable then thy seate. And the kyng bowed hun selfe vpon the bedde. And thus sayd the kyng: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, wbych hath made one to sytte on my seate thys daye, myne eye seynge it.

E And all the gesses that were wth Adonia were afrayed, and rose vp, and went euery man his waye. And Adonia fearyng the presence of Salomon, arose, and wente, <sup>into the tabernacle of the Lorde</sup> and caught hold on the hornes of the altare. And one tolde Salomon, saynge: Beholde, Adonia doth feare kyng Salomon: for he hath caught holde on the hornes of the altare, sayenge. let kyng Salomon sweare vnto me thys daye that he wyll not slaye his seruante wth the swerde.

E And Salomon sayd, yf he wyll be a chyld of vertue, there shall not an heer of hym fall to the earth. But y yf wyckednes be founde in him, he shall dye. And so kyng Salomon sent, and they brought thyne owne lyfe, and the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Go and get the in vnto kyng David, & saye vnto hym: dydest thou my lord O kyng sweare vnto thy handmayde, sayeng: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall sit vpon my seate, why is then Adonia kyng? Behold, whyle þy yet talkest there wth the kyng I wyll come in after the, & cōfyrme thy wordes.

E And Bethsabe went in vnto the kyng into the chamber. And the kyng was very olde, & Abisag the Sunamite mynistered vnto þe kyng. And Bethsabe stouped & made obersaunce vnto the kyng. And the kyng sayd what is the matter? She answered him my lord, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, and he shall sit vpon my seate. E Then kyng David answered, and sayde: call me Bethsabe. And she came into þe kynges presence, and stode before hym. And as God hath ben wth my lord þe kyng, euē so be he wth Salomon also, & make his seate greater, the þe seate of my lord kyng David hath bene.

E And so Sadock the prest, and Nathan the prophete, & Banaiahu the sonne of Iehoiada, & the Gethites and Phelthites wente downe, & set Salomon vpon kyng Davids mule, and brought hym to Gihon. And Sadock the prest toke an horne of oyle out of the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomon. And all they of the people blew trompettes, and sayd: God saue kyng Salomon. E And Adonia & all the gesses that he had called vnto hym, herd it, euē as they had made an ende of eatyng. dyd obeyssaunce vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayd vnto hym get the to thyne house.

The. ii. Chapter.

E Danto spech. Adonia requyret to haue Abisag to hys concubine, and therfore Salomon commaundeth to slaye hym. Abisag is put from hys piershede. Semei and Joab are slayne.

He dayes of Dauid drew nye that he shulde dye and he charged Salomon hys sonne, sayenge: I go the waye of al the worlde, * be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thy selfe a man. Repethou the watch of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in hys wayes, and kepe his statutes, and his pre-ceptes, hys iudgements, and hys testimonyes, euen as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moyses: that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and in euery thyng that thou meddest wythall.

That the Lorde also maye make good hys worde whych he spake vnto me, saynge: of thy chyldezen take hede to theyr waye & they walke before me in trueth, wyth all theyr hertes, and wyth all theyr soules, * then shalt thou not be wythout a man on the seate of Israel.

* Moreover, thou wotest, how Joab & sone of Zaruia turned me, & what he dyd to that two captaynes of the hostes of Israel vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa & sone of Je-ther: who he slue, & shed bloude in tyme of peace (euen as it had ben in warre) and put the bloud of warre vpon hys gyrdle that was aboute his loynes, and in hys shoes that were on hys fete.

Deale wyth hym therfore accordynge to thy wysedome, & bypunge not hys boode dead downe to the graue in peace. * But shewe kyndnes vnto the ionnes of Berselai the Gileadite, & they maye cate at thy table. For they came to me, when I fled from Absalom thy brother.

* And beholde, thou haste wyth the Semei the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Gemin, of Ba-hurim, whych cursed me wyth an horrible curse in the daye when I went to Mahanaim. But he came to mete me at Iordane, and I sware to hym by the Lorde sayenge: I wyll not slaye the wyth the sweade: but thou shalt not count hym as vngylty. For thou arte a man of wysedome, and knowest what thou oughtest to do vnto hym. Hys boode heade shalt thou bypunge to the graue wyth bloude.

And so * Dauid slept wyth hys fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid. And the dayes whych Dauid raygned vpon Israel, were four-tye yeares: scue yeares raygned he in hebron: & thyrty & thre yeares raygned he in Ierusalem.

* Then sat Salomon vpon the seate of Dauid hys father, and hys kyngdome was stablyshed myghtely. And Adonia & sone of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she sayd: * Comest thou peaceably? And he said pra-ceably. He sayd, moreover: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. She sayd: saye on. And he sayd, & knowest that the kyngdome was myne, & that al Israel set theyr faces on me, & I wold raigne howbeit, the kyngdome is turned awaye, and geuen to my brother: for it is apoynted hym of the Lorde: & nowe I aske a petition of the: deny me not. And she sayd vnto hym: Saye on. And he sayd: Speake, I praye the, vnto Salomon the kyng, for he wyll not saye & naye, that he geue me Abisag & Sunamite to wyfe. And Bethsabe he sayd: well, I wyll speake for & vnto & kyng.

Bethsabe therfore wente vnto kyng Salomon, to speake vnto hym for Adonia. And the kyng rose to mete her & bowed hym selfe vnto her, and sat hym downe on hys seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, & she sat on hys ryght syde. Then she sayd: I desyre a ly-tell petition of the, I praye the saye me not nay-And the kyng sayd vnto her: Aske on my mother, for I wyll not saye the naye. She sayd let Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And kyng Salomon answered and sayd vnto hys mother: why doest thou aske Abisag & Sunamite for Adonia: aske for hym th: kyngdome also: for he is myne elder brother, and hath for hym Abiathar the prest, and Joab the sonne of Zaruia. Then kyng Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayenge: God do so, and so to me, of Adonia hath not spoken thys worde agaynst hys owne lyfe. Now therfore as truly as the Lord lyueth, whych hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and made me an house, as he promysed, Adonia shall dye thys daye. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote hym that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the prest, sayd & kyng: E get the to Anatoth vnto thyne owne felde: for thou arte worthy of deathe: but I wyll not at-tystyme kyll the, because thou barest the arke of the Lorde God before Dauid my father, and because thou hast suffred wyth my father in all hys afflictions. And so Salomon put a way Abiathar from bepyng prest vnto the Lorde that he myght fulfill the wordes of the Lord whych he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then the dayes came also to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonia though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caught holde on the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kyng Salomon, how & Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lord & stode by the altare. The Salomon sent Banaiah the sone of Jehoiada, sayenge go & fall vpon hym.

And Banaiah came to the Tabernacle of the Lorde, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayeth the kyng: come out. And he sayde: naye, but I wyll dye euen here. And Banaiah brought the kyng worde agayne, sayeng thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me.

And the kyng sayd. Do euen as he hath said smyte hym, and burye hym, that thou mayest take awaye the bloude whych Joab shed cause-les, from me, and from the house of my father.
And the Lorde shall bypunge hys bloude vpon his owne head, for he smote two men ryght wyser & better the he, & slue them wyth the sweade, my father Dauid not knowyng therof euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captayn of the host of Israel, & Amasa the sonne of Jether captayn of the host of Iuda. Theye bloude shal therfore retorne vpon the heade of Iobab, & on the heade of hys seide for euer. But vpon Dauid, & vpon hys seide, & vpon hys house, & vpon hys seate shall there be peace for euer of the Lorde. So Banaiabu the sonne of Iehoiada went vp, & smote hym, & slue hym, & buryed hym in his owne house in þe wyldernes. And the kyng put Banaiabu the sonne of Iehoiada in hys rowme ouer the hoost & put Sadock the prest in the rowme of Abiathar.

And the kyng sente and called Semel, and sayde vnto hym. buyld the an house in Ierusalem, and dwell there: and se that thou go not for the thence any whether. For be thou sure, that the daye that thou goest out, and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye that daye, & thy bloude shalbe vpon thyne owne heade. And Semel sayd vnto þe kyng. This is a good thyng as my lord the kyng hath sayd so wyl hys seruauit do. And Semel dwelt in Ierusalem many a daye. And it chauced after thre yeres, that two of the seruantes of Semel ranne awaye vnto Achis, sonne of Maacha kyng of Geth. And they tolde Semel, sayeng: beholde, thy seruantes be in Geth. And Semel stode vp, and saddled hys Asse, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to seke his seruantes, and returned, & brought hys seruantes agayne from Geth.

G And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semel had gone fro Ierusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kyng sent & called Semel, and sayd vnto hym: Wyd I not charge the by the Lorde wyth an othe, and testifyed vnto the, sayng: be sure, that when soeuer thou goest out, & walkest abroad any whether, thou shalt dye the death? And thou saydest vnto me: it is good thynges that I haue herd. Why the hast thou not kept the othe of the Lorde and the commaundement that I charged the wythall?

The kyng sayd moreouer to Semel * thou remembrest all the wyckednes whych thyne bert knoweth, that thou dydest to Dauid my father. The Lorde also shall byngne thy wyckednesse vpon thyne owne heade: and kyng Salomon shalbe blessed, and the scate of Dauid stablished before þe Lorde for euer. So þe kyng commaunded Banaiabu þe sonne of Iehoiada whych went out & smote hym that he dyed. And þe kyngs dome was stablished in the hede of Salomon.

The. iii. Chapter.

¶ Salomon leueth Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lorde appeareth to hym and giveth hym wysdome. The pleasyng of the two harlottes who shoulde stwe the spynge chyld: and Salomons sentence thereon.

Salomon made affinite with Pharaos kyng of Egypte, and toke Pharaos daughter, and brought her into the cite of Dauid, vntyll he had made an ende of buyldynge hys owne house, & the house of the Lorde, & the wall of Ierusalem rounde about. Only þe people sacrificed in altars made on hylls, because ther was no house buylt vnto the name of the Lorde, vntyll those dayes. And Salomon loued þe Lorde, & walked in þe ordinaunces of Dauid hys father, save only that he sacrificed & offered incense vpon altars in hylls.

* And the kyng wet to Sibeon, to offer there for þe was a special offryng place. And a thousand burnt offrynges dyd Salomon offre vpon that altare: & in Sibeon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God said a lke what thou wylt that I maye geue it the. And Salomon sayd: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaut Dauid my father great mercy, whē he walked before the in tructh, in ryghteousnes, & in playnes of herte wyth þe. And thou hast kept for hym thys great mercy, that thou hast gyuen hym a sonne, to syt on hys scat: as it is come to passe thys daye. * And now, O Lorde my God, it is thou that hast made thy seruaut kyng in stead of Dauid my father. * And I am but yonge and wote not howe to go out & in. And thy seruaut is in the myddelt of thy people, whych thou hast chosen. And verely þe people are so many that they can not be told nor nombred for multitude. * Geue therfore vnto thy seruaut an vnderstandynge herte, to iudge the people, that I maye decrene betwene good and bad: for who is able to iudge thys, thy so myghty a people?

And thys pleased the Lorde wel, that Salomon had desired thys thyng. And God sayde vnto hym because thou hast asked thys thyng, & hast not asked longe lyfe, nether hast asked ryches, nor the soule of thyne enemyes, but hast asked vnderstandynge & discrecion in iudgement.

Beholde, I haue done accordynge to thy petition. For I haue geuen the a wyse & an vnderstandynge hert, so that there was none lyke the before the, neither after the. Shall any arysc lyke vnto the. And I haue also geue the, that whych thou hast not asked, euen ryches and honoure. so that there shalbe no kyng lyke vnto the all thy dayes. And if thou wilt walke in my wayes, to kepe myne ordynaunces and my commaundementes, * as thy father Dauid dyd walke, I wyl lengthen thy dayes. When Salomon awoke, behold it was a dreame. * And he came to Ierusalem and stode before the arke of the testamēte of the Lorde, & offered burnt offrynges & peace of frynges: and made a feast to all his seruantes.

* Then came there two women, that were harlottes, vnto the kyng, and stode before him. And the one womā sayd: Oh my lord: I & this woman dwel in one house. And I was deliuered of a chyld wyth her in þe house. And þe thrid daye after that I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: and we were together, and no stranger wyth vs in the house, save we two.

And this wyues chyld dyed in þe night, for she smothered it. And she rose at mydnyght, & toke my sonne fro my syde, whyle thyne handmayde slept, & layde it in her bosome and put her deade chyld in my bosome. And whē I rose vp to geue my chyld sucke, beholde, it was dead. But whē I had looked vpon it in the mornynge, behold, it was not my sonne, whych I dyd beare.

The other woman sayd: it is not so: but my sonne lyueth, & thy sonne is deade. And she sayd agayne: No, but thy sonne is dead and myne is alue. And thus they pleated before the kyng. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayeth, thys

Then spake the woman whose the lyuyng chylde was, vnto the kyngge, for her bowels peneo vpon her sonne, and sayde: I beseeche the my lord, gyue her the lyuyng chylde, & in no wyse slaye it. But the other said, let it be nether myne nor thyne, but deuyde it. Then the kyngge answered and sayd * gyue her the lyuyng chylde, and slaye it not for she is the mother therof. And all they of Israel herd of the iudgement, which the kyngge hadde iudged, and feared the kyngge: for they sawe that the wysedome of God was in hym to do iustice. I

B And Salomon had twelue offycers ouer all Israel, whych prouyded vnto the kyngge and hys household: ech man hys moneth in a peere, made prouision for necessary thynges.

And these are they: names: the sonne of hat in moit Ephraim the sonne of Dekar in Mahaz and in Saalbiu and Bethsames, Elon & Bethhanan: the sonne of Heled in Aruboth, to whom perteyned Socho and al the lade of Ghepher: the sonne of Abinadab in al þ region of Dor, which had Tapheth the doughter of Salomon to wyfe. Baane the sonne of Ahilud was ouer Chaauach and Magiddo, and ouer all Bethsan, whych is by zarthana beneth Israel, fro Bethsan, to the playne of Michola, euen vnto the place that is ouer agaynst Tachmea: the sonne of Gaber had Ramoth Gilead, and hys were the townes of Jair: the sonne of Manasse, which are in Gilead, and vnder him was the region of Argob which is in Basan thre score great ctyes wyth walles and barres of brasse.

C Ahinadab the sonne of Biddo had Mahenaim. Ahimaaz was in Nephtalim, and he toke Basmath the doughter of Salomon to wyfe. Baana the sonne of Husai was in Aser and in Alorh. Gaber the sonne of Ury was in the countrey of Gilead, the lande of Sehon kyngge of the Amozites, and of Og kyngge of Basan, & was offycer alone in the lande. And Juda & Israel were many, euen as the sande of the see in nōbre catynge, drynkynge and makynge mery. * And Salomon raygned ouer al kyngdomes, fro the ruer vnto the lande of the Philistines eue vnto the border of Egypte and they broughte presents, & serued Salomon all þ dayes of hys lyfe.

And Salomons brade for one daye was D xxx quarters of manchet floare, and thre score quarters of meale ten stalled oxen, and xx oute of the pastures, and an hundred shepe, besyde hertes buckes, and wyld goats, and capons. For he ruled in all the region on the other syde Euphrates, from Thiblah to Asa, ouer al þ kynges on the other syde þ ruer. And he had peace wyth all hys seruantes on euery syde. And Juda and Israel dwelt wythout feare, euery man vnder hys vyne and vnder hys figge tree, from Dan to Beersaba, al the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomon had xl. stallies of horses for charrettes, and xli. horsemen. And the offycers prouyded vnto the kyngge Salomon & for all þ came out of any place to kyngge Salomons table, euery man his moneth so that they lacked nothyng. Barly also & strawe for þ horses & mules, brought they vnto the place where the offycers were, euery man in hys office.

* And God gaue Salomon wysedome and vnderstandynge creadyng much, and a large herte, euen as the lande that is on the see shore: and Salomons wysedome excelled the wysedome of all the chyldren of the Este countreye and all the wysedome of Egypte. For he was wyser then all men, pecthen, Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, Chalcol, & Darda the sonnes of Mahol. And his name was spokē of thowow out al nacions on euery side. And Salomon spake thre thousand prouerbes. And hys songes were a thousande & syue. And he spake of trees, euen from the Cedar tree that groweth in Libanon, vnto the Ilope that spryngeth out of the wal. He spake also of beastes, of fowles, of wormes, & of ffishes. But now the Lorde my God hath gyue me rest on euery syde, so that there is nether aduersary, nor any euill plage. And beholde, * I am determined to buyld an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God, as the Lord spake vnto Dauid my father, sayenge thy sonne whom I wyl set vpon thy seat for the, he shal buyld an house vnto thy name. Now therefore comaunde thou that they hew me Cedar trees out of Libanon. And my seruantes shalbe with thine, & vnto the wil I geue the hyre for thy seruantes, accordyng to al such thynges as thou shalt apoynte, for thou knowest that ther are not amonge vs, that can skyll to hewe tymber, lyke vnto the Sidones.

When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomō, he reioysed greatly, and said Blessed be þe Lord this daye which hath geue vnto Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghty people. And Hiram sente to Salomon, sayenge I haue considered the thynges whych thou sentest to me for, and wyl accomplishe all thy desyre, concernyng tymber of Cedar trees and fyre. & thy seruantes shal bypnye them from Libanon to the see. And I wyl conuey them by rhypp vnto the place that thou shalt shewe me, and wyl cause them to be discharged there, and thou shalt receaue them. And thou shalt do me a pleasure agayn, yf thou minister fode for myne house. And so Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees & fyre trees a. cordyng to all hys desyre. And Salomon gaue Hiram .xx. thousand quarters of wheate for fode to hys housholde, & twenty buttes of pure oyle. Thus much gaue Salomon to Hiram yere by yere.

And the Lorde gaue Salomon wysedome as he promised him. And ther was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, and they two were confederat together. And kyng Salomon raysed a summe out of Israel out of all Israel. And the summe was thyrty thousand men, whom he sent to Libanon, ten thousande a moneth by course, so that when they had ben one moneth in Libanon, they abode two monethes at home.

When Adoniram was ouer the summe. And Salomon had thre score and ten thousand that bare burthens, & foure score thousande masons in the mountaynes, besydes the Lordes, whom Salomon appoynted to ouerse the worke, euen thre thousande and thre hundred, whych ruled the people, & and them that wrought in the worke. And the kyng comaunded the to bypnye great stones, fre stones, and hewed stones for the foundation of the house. And Salomons masons & the masons of Hiram dyd heve the with þe workmen of the corners. And so they prepared bothe tymber and stones for the buyldyng of þe house.

The vi Chapter.

¶ Some also when the temple was buylded.

And it came to passe that in the four hundred & foure score yere (after the chyldre of Israel were come oute of the lande of Egypte land) in the fourth yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and in the moneth ziffē, whych is the seconde moneth * he beganne to buyld the house of the Lorde. And the house whych Salomon buylt for the Lorde, was thre score cubytes longe and twenty cubytes broad and thyrty cubytes hie. And he made a porche before the bodye of the temple, whych was twety cubytes longe after the bredth of the house, and ten cubytes broad, euen in the forefront of the house. And in the house he made wyndowes broad without, and narrowe wythin.

And in the wall of the house, he made chambers rounde about, (eue in the walles of þe house) rounde about the temple & the queer, & made sydes rounde about. The nethermost chāber was fye cubytes broad, & the thyrde was seuen cubytes broad. For wythout in the wall of the house he layed beames rounde about, that the beames of the chambers shulde not be fastened in the walles of þe house. And þe house was buylt of stone, made perfyte alreedy before it was brought thither, so that there was nether hammer nor axe, ether any tole of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buyldyng.

The doore of the myddel chamber was in the thyrgh syde of the house: & he went vp with wyndyng staires into the myddel chāber, & oute of the myddel, into the thyrde. And so he buylt the house & finished it & rouft it with beames of Cedar tymber. And the he buylt chābers to al the temple of fye cubytes heygth, and they were ioyned to the house, wyth beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lord came to Salomō sayenge: concernyng the house whych thou art in buyldyng, yf thou wylt walke in myne ordynances, & execute my lawes, & kepe al my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyl I make good vnto the, my promys * which I promysed Dauid thy father: & And I wyl dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel, & wyl not forsake my people Israel. Salomon threfoze buylt the house, & finished it, & syled the walles of þe house within with bordes of Cedar tre: euen from the panement of the house vnto þe roofe dyd he syle the walles of it wythin, with Cedar tre, & boarded the floore of þe house with planches of fyre.

And he syled twenty cubytes in the spyes of the queer of the temple, both floore & walles, with bordes of Cedar, & dyssed it within in the secret place of the temple, euen in the moost holy. And the fyrst house, that is to saye, þe body of the temple without was forty cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house wythin, was kerued wyth knoppes & grauen with floures, and al was Cedar tymber, so þe no stone was sene. And þe queer that was wythin the temple, he prepared to set there the Arke of the appoyntement of the Lord. And the queer before, was twenty cubytes longe, and twenty cubytes in bredth, and twety cubytes in heygth. And he syled it with pure golde, and boarded the altare wyth Cedar.

And Salomō also syled þe house within with pure gold. And he made golden barres runne alonge þe queer, whych he had couered with golde.

And the whole house, he overlaid wth golde, buttill he hadde ended it. And the altare that was in the quere he overlaid wth golde also.

And within the quere he made two * Cherubims of olivie tree, ten cubytes hie. Exo. xxv. b Every cubyte longe was a wyng of the other Cherub: so that from the uttermost parte of one wyng unto the uttermost parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hie also: so that bothe the Cherubs were of one measure and one lyse: For the length of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubs within the inner house. * And the Cherubs stretched out their wynges, so that the one wyng of the one touched the one wal, and the one wyng of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of them touched one another in the myddes of the house. And he overlaid the Cherubs wth gold. Exo. xxv. b

And in all the walles of the house round aboute, he made figures of carved & fyled worke: as namely pictures of Cherubs & paulme trees and grauen flowers, both within in the quere and without in the temple. And the floore of the house he covered with golde, bothe within in the quere, and also without in the temple. And in the entring of the quere he made two doores of olivie tree: And bothe the upper and two lyde postes were square. The two doores also were of olivie tree, and he graued them with grauing of Cherubs and paulme trees and grauen flowers and covered them with golde, and laid thynne plates of golde upon the Cherubs and paulme trees. And in lyke maner did he in the doore of the temple, sayng that the postes were of olivie tree, four square. The two doores were of fyre tree, and ether doore with two foldynge leues, he graued thereon Cherubs, paulme trees and flowers, and covered them with golde, which was laped thynne upon the carved worke.

And he buylt the inner court with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourth yere was the foundation of the house of the Lorde layde: even in the moneth zif: And in the leventh yere, in the moneth Sull (which is the egypt moneth) was the house full finished thowowout all the partes thereof, accordyng to all the fasson of it, and so was he leuen yere in buyldynge it.

The vii. Chapter.

The buyldynge of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The fourme of the pylers of brasse of the brasse see etc.

But Salomon was buyldynge his owne house thyrtyene yere, and finished it all. And he buylt the house in the wood of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyfte cubytes brode, and thyrtye cubytes hie. And it stode, upon foure rowes of Cedar pylers, and cedar beames, were laped upon the pylers. And the roofe was Cedar above upon the beames that laye on the pylers, even xlv beames in fyfteen rowes. And there were wyndowes in thre rowes, and the wyndowes were one agaynst another thre fold. And the doores with the lyde postes, and the upper post, were foure square, and had wyndowes one agaynst another thre fold.

And he made a porche by the pylers (the bare by the house, fyfte cubytes longe, and xlv cubytes brode, and the porche was before those, & the other pylers. For there was a thicke tre set before them. Then he made a porche to sit and iudge in, fyled with Cedar thowowout all the pamentes. And his owne house (that he kept residence in and that was in an other court without the porche) was made of the same worke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter * (whome he had taken to wyfe) 1 Ki. vii. a. lyke unto the fasson of the porche.

And all these were of the best stones, hewed after a measure, and sawed with sawes, within and without, from the foundation unto the beames (that laye above, after the measure) and ended so on the outsyde toward the great court. And the foundation was laped upon the stones, and that very great stones, wher of some were ten cubytes, and some eght cubytes. And above were good stones, squared after a certayn rule, and covered with Cedar. And the great court round about was wth thre rowes of hewed stones, and one rowe of Cedar planks, after the maner of the inner court of the house of the Lord, & of the porche of the temple. * And kyng Salomon sente, and let one Hiram out of Tyre, a wyndowes sonne of the tribu of Naphtalim, his father being a man of Tyre. Which Hiram was a craftsman in brasse * full of wisdom, understanding and compynge to worke all maner of worke in brasse. And he came to kyng Salomon, and wrought all his worke. For he cast two pylers of brasse, of xlv cubytes hie a pece, and a length of twelve cubytes byd compasser of them aboute. And he made two heeded peeces of molten brasse (after the fasson of a crowne) to set on the toppes of the pylers. The length of the one heed pece containyd fyve cubytes, and the length of the other heed pece containyd fyve cubytes also: he made also net worke & garlandes of chapne worke upon the heed peeces that were on the toppe of the pylers even seven (rowes) upon the one heed pece, and seven on the other. And so he made the pylers, and two rowes round about, in the one wythe worke to cover the heed peeces that were upon the pointing nates. And thus dyd he also for the other heed pece. And the heed peeces that were on the toppes of the pylers covered he above, with a curyous worke of roses toward the palace by the space of foure cubytes. Lyke wyse under the heed peeces in those two pylers beneath, over agaynst the myddes, and before the net worke: And upon the seconde heed pece were there two hundred pointing nates in two rowes round about. And he set up the pylers in the porche of the temple. And when he had set up the ryght piler, he called the name thereof. * Jachin: & when he had set up the left piler, he called the name thereof. * Boaz. And in the toppe of the pylers was a worke of roses, and so was the workman thyrtye of the pylers finished.

And

D And he made a molten lauatory, ten cubites wyde from brym to brym, rounde in compasse, & fyue cubites hie. And a strynge of thyrty cubites byd compasse it aboute, and vnder the brym of it there were knoppes round about, ten in one cubite: and they compassed the lauatory rounde aboute. And the knoppes were caste wyth it, in two rowes, when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oren: of whiche thre looked towarde the north thre towarde the weste, thre towarde the south and thre towarde the easie, and the lauatory stode vpon them, and all theyr hynderpartes were inward. It was an hande breadeth thicke, and the brym wrought lyke the brym of a cup with flowres of lyllys. And it conteyned two thousande bates.

And he made ten sockettes of brasle, foure cubites longe, and foure cubites broade a pece, and thre cubites hie. And the worke of the sockettes was on this maner. They had sydes, and the sydes were betwene the ledges. And on the sydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oren and Cherubs. And lyke wyse vpon the ledges yere were aboute: and beneth y lyons and oren, were certayne addicions made of thynne worke. And vnder euery socket were foure brasle wheles, and bordes of brasle. And in the foure corners thereof, were vnder setters (vnder the lauatory cast eche ouer agaynst his felowe.

And the stalke of the lauatory was in the myddle of it. where it is sent on the out syde one cubite hie, and a cubite and an halfe rounde, and in the heygth of it were grauen workes whose sydes were made foure square, and not rounde. And vnder the sydes were foure wheles, and the axtrees ioynd faste to the bottome. And the heigth of euery whele was a cubite and an halfe. And the workmanshipp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charret whele. And the axtrees, the nauelles, spones and shaftes were all molte. And there were foure vnder setters in foure corners of one socket: and the vnder setters were of the very bottome selle.

And in the heygth of the botome was there a rounde compasse of halfe a cubite hie and in that heygth of the botome, there proceeded bothe ledges and sydes out of the name. For in the bordes of the ledges and on the sydes he had grauen pictures of Cherubins, lyons and palmietrees, one by another round about. Thus made he the ten sockettes after this maner. And they had al one kashyon of cassynge, one nicasure, and one syde. Cha made he ten lauers of brasle, one lauer contaynyng fourty bates: and one lauer was foure cubites, and vpon euery one of the ten sockettes he put one lauer. And he put fyue of those sockettes on the right syde of the house, and other fyue on y left. And he set the lauatory on y right syde of y house eastwarde & towarde the south.

And Hiram made pottes, shouelles and basens, and so finished all the worke that he made kyng Salomon for the house of the Lord: that is to saye, two pylers and two rounde headpecces that were to be set on the toppes of the two pylers, and foure hundred pomegranates for the two net workes, euen two rowes of pomegranates in one net worke to couer y two headpecces that were to be set on the toppes of the pylers. And the ten sockettes, and ten lauers on the sockettes. The lauatory, and twelue oren vnder it, and pottes, shouelles and basens. And all these vesselles which Hiram made to kyng Salomon for the house of the Lord, were of bryght brasle. In the playne of Jordan dyd the kyng cast the, euen in the thicke claye betwene Socoh & Bethā. And Salomon lefte all the vesselles vniwaped, because they were so exceeding many, neyther founde they out the weygth of the brasle.

And so Salomon made all the vesselles that perteyned vnto the house of the Lord: the golden altare, and the golden table whereon the shewbread was. And fyue candelstickes, for the right syde, and fyue for the left, before y queer of pure golde: with flowres, lampes, & shroffers of golde: and boules fiat pecces, basens, spones and masours of pure golde. & hyndges made he of gold both for the dores of the queer, the place most holy, and for the dores of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that kyng Salomon made for the house of the Lord. And Salomon brought in the thynges which Dauid his father had dedicated eue the syluer, gold and vesselles, and layed them vp amonge y treasures of the house of the Lord.

The viij. Chapter.

The arke is borne into the temple. A cloud speeched for temple. The temple is blessed.

When Salomon gathered together the elders of Israel, all the heddes of the tribes, (and them that were captaynes amonge the fathers of the chyldre of Israel vnto him in Ierusalem y they myght bring vp the arke of the appoyntement of the Lord out of the cytie of Dauid, which is Sion. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto kyng Salomon to the feast that falleth in the month Ethanim, which is the seuenth moneth. And all the elders of Israel were come and the preastes toke vp the arke. They bare y arke of the Lord, into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holy vesselles that were in the tabernacle: those dyd the preastes and Leuytes bere. And kyng Salomon and all the congregacion of Israel that were assembled vnto hym and went with hym before the arke dyd offre shepe and oren, that coude not be tolde nor numbred for multitude.

And so the preastes brought the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord vnto his place: euen in the queer of the temple and place most holy, vnder the wynges of the Cherubs. For the Cherubs stretched out theyr wynges ouer the place of the arke, and couered both it and also the staues therof a hie vpon it. And they drew out the staues, that the endes of the myght appeare out of the holy place within the queer, but they were not sene without. And ther they haue bene vnto this daye, and there was no hyge in the arke, save the two tables of stone which Moyses put there at Horeb, in y which tables y Lord made an appoyntment w the chyldren of Israel, when he

he brought them out of the lande of Egypte.

And it fortuneth that when the prestes were come out of the holy place, the cloude fylled the house of the Lorde, that the prestes coude not stande and mynister, because of the cloude for the glory of the Lorde had fylled þe house of þe Lorde.

Then spake Salomon. the Lorde * said that he wolde dwel in the darcke cloude. I haue buylte the an house to dwel in, an habitation for the to abyde in for ever. And þe kyng turned his face, & blessed al the congregacion of Israel, & al þe congregacion of Israel stode still, and he sayde:

Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whych spake wyth þys mouth vnto Dauid my father, * and hath wyth þys hande fulfilled it, sayeng: Sence the daye that I brought my people Israel out of Egypte. I chose no cytie of al the trybes of Israel, to buylde an house that my name myght be therein: But I haue chosen * Dauid, to be ruler ouer my people of Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an house for þe name of the Lorde God of Israel. Neuer thelesse thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne þe whiche shall come out of thy loynes, he shall buylde the house vnto my name. And the Lorde hath made good þys worde that he spake. And I am risen vpon the rowme of Dauid my father, and sate on the seat of Israel, as the Lorde promysed, & haue buylte an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the Arke, where in is the couenaunt of the Lord whych he made wth our fathers, whiche he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. Salomon stode before the altare of the Lorde in the syght of all the congregacion of Israel, and stretchyd oute þys handes toward heauen, and sayd. * Lorde God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heuē aboue, or in the earth beneth, thou that kepest couenaunt & mercy for thy seruantes that walke before the wyth all they herte: thou that hast kepte wyth thy seruāt Dauid my father, that thou promysedst hym. Thou spakest also wyth thy mouth and hast fulfilled it with thyne hāde as it is come to passe this daye. Therefore, now Lord God of Israel, kepe with thy seruāt Dauid my father, that thou promysedst hym, sayenge: * Thou shalt not be wythout a mā in my syght to syt on the seate of Israel. So that thy chyldren take heed to they wape, & they walke before me, as thou hast walked in my syght. And now (O God of Israel, let thy worde be verifed, whych thou spakest vnto thy seruāt Dauid my father.

The ix. Chapter.

The Lorde appeared the seconde tyme to Salomon. Salomon greth to wite to God. The Cananites become tributaries to Israel for gold. He buyeth many cyties.

¶ And when Salomon had synysed the buyldyng of the house of the Lorde and the kynges palace, and all that he had in hys mynde, and was appoynted to make: the Lorde appeared vnto him agayne as he appeared vnto hym at Gibeon. And the Lorde said vnto hym: I haue herde thy prayer and thy intercession, that thou hast made before me: For I haue halowed thys house (whyche thou hast built,) to put my name there for ever and in nyne eyes and in nyne herte shalbe there perpetually. And if thou wilt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, in purenes of herte & in ryghteousnes (to do all that I haue comaunded the, and wilt kepe my statutes, & my lawes then wilt I stablysh the seate of thy kyngdom vpon Israel for ever, as I promysed to Dauid thy father, sayenge: * Thou shalt not be wythout a man vpon the seate of Israel.

¶ But and if ye and your chyldre turne away from me, and wilt not kepe my commaundementes and my statutes (whyche I haue set before you) but go and serue other goddes, & worshipp them then wilt I wede Israel out of the lande, which I haue gyue the. And thys house shalbe taken awaye: so that every one that passeth by it, shalbe astonyed, and shall hyse, and they shall saye: * why hath the Lorde done thus vnto this lande and to thys house? And they shal answer because they forsoke þ Lorde theyr God, which brought theyr fathers out of the lande of Egypt and haue taken holde vpon other Goddes, and haue worshipped them, and serued them: therfore hath the Lorde brought vpon them al thys euil. * And it fortuneth, that at the ende of twen

Lozde and the kynges palace. And Hiram the kyng of Tyre broughte Salomon tymber of Cedar, and fyre trees, golde, and whatsoeuer he desyred. And Salomon againe gaue Hiram. cc. ctyes in the lande of Salile. And * Hiram came out from Tyre to se the ctyes whych Salomon had geuen him, and they pleased him not. And he sayd what ctyes are these, whych thou hast geuen me, my brother: & he called the the lande of Sabul vnto this daye. And Hiram sent the kyng vi. score hundred weyght of gold. And this is the summe, whych kyng Salomon rayled for a trybute when he buylded the house of the Lozde and his owne house, and Willo, and the wall of Jerusalem, and Hazor, and Megiddo, and Gazar.

C For Pharaos kyng of Egypt went vp, and toke Gazar, and burnt it wth fyre, & flue the Canaanites that dwelte in the ctye, and gaue it for a preynte vnto his doughter, Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Serphoron & neher: and Maath and Thamar in the wylderneesse and in the lade and all the treasure ctyes that Salomon had, and wch were vnto this daye: those he made stronge and ctyes for his charrettes, and ctyes for his horsemen, and all that Salomon desyred and wolde buyld in Jerusalem, in Libanon and in all the lande of his dominion.

D And all the people that were left of the Amozites, Hetites, Perethites, Heuites and Jebusites, (whych were not of the chyldren of Israel) they & chyldren that were left after them in the lande, whome the chyldren of Israel also were not able to destroye. Those dyd Salomon compell to bypge trybute vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondme. But they were me of warre his ministers, his lordes, his captaynes, & rulers of his charrettes & his horsme. And these were the lordes, that were set ouer Salomons worke: euerye hundred were they and tyfity, & they ruled the people that wrought the worke.

And Pharaos doughter came out of the cite of Danid vnto the house whych Salomon had buylt for her. And then dyd he also buyld Willo. And thys a praye dyd Salomon offer vnto offerynges and peaceofferynges vpon the altare whych he buylt vnto the Lozde. And he burnt incense vpon the altare that was before the Lozde and so he fynished the house.

And kyng Salomon made a nauy of Shyppes in Azio Gaber which is beside Eloth, & the bypche of the red see in the lade of Edom. And Hiram sent by Shypp also of his seruautes, that were Shyppmen, and had knowl-dge of the see, wth the seruautes of Salomon. And they came to Ophir and fet from thence one & twentye score hundred weyght of golde, and brought it to kyng Salomon.

The x. Chapter.

A And the queene of Saba hearyng the fame of Salomon concernynge the name of the Lozde, came to proue him with hard questions. And she came to Jerusalem wth a very great trayne: wth camels & bare swete odoures, and golde exceedynge much, and precious stones. And she came to Salomon, and communed wth hym of all that was in her heart. And Salomon declared vnto her all her questions, so that there was not one thyng she asked from the kyng, whych he expounded not vnto her.

And the queene of Saba consydered al Salomons wysdom, and the house that he had buylded, and the meate of his table, and the setting of his seruautes, the ordie of his ministers, & the apparel of his dynke & his vnted sacrifices that he offered in the house of the Lozde, & she was astonysed. And she sayd vnto the kyng. It was a true worde that I herde in myne owne lade of thy saynges & of thy wysdom. Howbeit I beleued it not tyl I came, & sawe it with myne eyes. And beholde the one halfe was not to de me for thy wysdom & prosperite exceedeth the fame whych I herde of the. Happy are thy men: & happy are these thy seruautes, which stande euer before the, & heare thy wysdom. Blessed be the Lozde thy God, which loued the, to set the on the seat of Israel, because the Lozde loued Israel for euer & made the kyng, to do requite & ryghteousnes.

And she gaue the kyng fyre score hundredth weyght of golde, & of swete odoures exceedynge much, and precious stones. There came nomore suche aboundaunce of swete odoures, as the queene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomon. The nauy also of the Shyppes of Hiram that caryed gold from Ophir, brought likewise great plenty of Almugetrees and precious stones. And the kyng made of the Almugetrees, pillars for the house of the Lozde and for the kynges palace, & made harpes & psalteries for synners. There came no more suche Almugetrees, nor were any more sene vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the Queene of Saba accordynge to all her desyre whatsoeuer she asked: besydes that he gaue her of a free wyll wth his owne hande. And so she returned vnto her owne countrey: both she, and her seruautes.

The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was fyre hundred thre score & fyre talentes of gold, besydes that he had of chappine and of marynyntes & of Poticarries, & of all the kynges of Arabye, & of the lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bouckelers of beaten golde, fyre hundred speles of golde went to a bouckeler. And he made thre hundred Shyldes of beaten golde, thre ponde of golde went to one Shyld, & the kyng put them in the house of the wood of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of puerp, and couered it wth the best golde. And the seate had fyre steppes. And the toppe of the seate was rounde beynde, & there were pomeles on eether syde on the place of the seate, & two Lyons stode besyde the pomeles. And there stode. xii. Lions on the steppes vi. on a syde. There was none lyke worke, sene in any kyngdome. * And all kyng Salomons dynkynge vessels were of golde, and lyke wyse al the vessels of the house of the of the wood of Liban were of pure golde. And as for syluer, it was nothyng worth in y dayes of Salomon. For the kynges naup of thyppe wente on the see vnto Charis with the naup of Hiram's shippes: euen ones in thre yere wet the naup to Charis, and brought gold and syluer, Elephantes teth, apes and percockes. And so kyng Salomon excelled all the kynges of the earth both in ryches and in wysedome. And all the worlde resorted to Salomon, to heare his wysedome, which God had put in his hert. And brought hym euery man hys present, vessels of syluer, and vessels of golde, rayment, harnesse, and swete odoures, and horses and mules, yere by yere. And Salomon gathered together charrettes and horsemen: and he hadde a thousande and foure hundred charrettes, and .xii. thousande horsemen whom he bestowed in the charret cyties, and with the kyng at Ierusalem.

* And the kyng made syluer in Ierusalem as plenteous as stoncs, and Cedar as plenteous as the wold fyg tre trees that growe aboutauntly in the felde. The bryngynge of horses also out of Egypt: and the colleccio of the warres: byd the kynges marchauntes take agayne, & solde the stuffe for a pryce. A charret came out of Egypte for .vi. hundred pecies of syluer: that is, one horse for an hundred and fiftye. And euen so for al the kynges of the Hethites and for the kynges of Siria, byd they bryng them out, thowse they handes.

The .xj. Chapter.

Salomon had .vii. hundred Quenes and .viii. hundred concubynes, whiche byngge hym to phylastre. Hys aduersaryes rebul. agaynst hym. For apoth

Al kyng Salomon loued many onelandyng women and the doughter of Pharao: and women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, ydonites and Hethites. Where as yet (concernynge these nacions) the Lorde sayd vnto the chyldre of Israel: * come not ye at them, nor let them come at you: Elles wyl they turne your hertes after theyr goddes. Neuertheles, Salomon claue vnto them in loue. * And he had .vii. hundred Quenes, and .viii. hundred concubynes, & hys wyues turned away his herte. For it came to passe, when Salomon was olde, hys wyues turned hys herte after other gods: and his herte was not persyte wth the Lorde hys God, as was the herte of Dauid hys father: for Salomon folowed Astaroth the God of the ydons, and Melon the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomon wrought wyckednes in the syght of the Lorde, and folowed not the Lorde perfittly, as byd Dauid hys father. For the byd Salomon buylde an hys place for Chamus the abhominacion of Moab, in the hyll that is before Ierusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And lykewyle byd he for al his outlandish wyues which burnt cense and offered vnto theyr goddes. And the Lorde was angry wth Salomon, because hys herte was turned fro the Lorde God of Israel: whiche had appeared vnto him twyse and gaue hym a charge, concernynge thys thyng that he shulde not folowe other goddes. But he kepte not that, whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherfore the Lorde sayd vnto Salomon for as much as this is done of the, and thou hast not kept myne appoyntment, and my statutes (whiche I commaunded the, I wyl rent y kyngdome from the, and wyl geue it to thy seruauit. Notwithstandynge in thy dayes, I wyl not do it, because of Dauid thy father but wyl take it from the hande of thy sonne. Howbeit I wyl not take awaye all the kyngdome: But wyl geue one trybe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruauit, & because of Ierusalem which I haue chose.

And the Lorde stered vp an aduersary vnto Salomon: euen one Hadad an Edomite, of the kynges seide, whiche was in Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the captayne of y host was gone vp to bury them that were slayne, he smote all the men chyldren in Edom. For .vi. monethes byd Joab remayne there and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren of Edom. And thys Hadad fled and cecien other Edomites of hys seruantes wth hym, to come into Egypte. Hadad byngge yet a lytle chyld. And they arose out of Madia, and came to Paran, and toke men wth them out of Paran, and came to Egypte vnto Pharaos kyng of Egypte. whiche gaue hym an house, and appoynted hym vntayles, and gaue hym lande.

And he had gat great fauoure in the syghte of Pharaos, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the syster of hys owne wyfe, euen the syster of Chabpeus the quene. And the syster of Chabpeus bare hym Genubath hys sonne, whom Chabpeus nozished in Pharaos house. And Genubath was at Pharaos household amonge y sonnes of Pharaos. And when Hadad herde in Egypte, that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers and that Joab the captayne of y host was dead also, he sayd to Pharaos: let me depart, & I may go to myne owne countrey. Pharaos sayd vnto hym. What hast thou lacked here wth me, that thou woldest thus go to thyne owne countrey? He answered nothyng: howbeit let me go.

And God stered him vp another aduersary, one Rezon the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled fro hys lord Hadadezer kyng of zoba. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became captayne ouer the company, when Dauid slue them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelte there, & raygned in Damasco. Therfore was he an aduersary to Israel all the dayes of Salomon. And thys was the myshete, in that Hadad byd abhorre Israel, and raygned ouer Siria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ebraite of zareda (whose mother was called zernah, whiche was a wyddowe, and he Salomons seruauit) lyfte vp hys hande agaynst y kyng. But thys was the cause, that he lyfte vp hys hande agaynst the kyng: Salomon buylde Melol, and mended the broken places of the ctye of Dauid hys father. And thys fellow Jeroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon sawe the ponge man that he was able to do the worke, he made hym ruler ouer al y charges of the house of Joseph

And Rehoboam went to Sichem for al Israel w<sup>ch</sup> come to Sichem, to make bat whych was yet in Egypte herde of it & for he fledde to Egypte from the presence of kyng Salomon, and dwelt in Egypte So they sent and called hym: and Jeroboam and al the cōgregacion of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehobonowe therfore, make thou the greuouser serapce of thy father and hys sore pocke whych he put vpon vs, lyghter, and we wyl serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon hys fa-geue ye, that I maye haue matter to answer folowe theyr myndes and answer them, and speake kynde wordes to them: they wyl be thy seruautes for euer. But he forsoke the counsell hys counsell yonge men, that were growen

And he sayd vnto them: what counsell geue

ii par. 1. a. Juda only. * And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered all the house of Juda wyth the trybe of Ben Jamin an hundred & foure score thousande of cholen me (which were good warriours) to fyght agaynst þ house of Israel and to byngne the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon.

I And the worde of God came vnto Semaia the man of God, sayenge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda & Ben Jamin, and to the remnant of the people, sayenge: Thus sayeth the Lorde. Ye shall not go vp, nor yet fyght agaynst your brethren the chyldren of Israel, retorne euery man to his house, for this thyng is my doyng. They hearkened therfore to the worde of the Lorde & returned to departe, accordyng to þ worde of the Lorde. Then Jeroboam buylt Sichem in mount Ephraim, & dwelt therein. And went from thence, & and buylt Penuel.

And Jeroboam thought in hys herte: nowe shall the kyngdome retorne to the house of Dauid. For if this people go vp & do sacrifice in þ house of the Lorde at Jerusalem the shall the heart of this people turne agayne vnto theyr lorde Rehoboam kyng of Juda: & so shall they kyl me and go agayne to Rehoboam kyng of Juda.

* Whereupon þ kyng toke conseil, & made two calves of golde, & sayd vnto them. It is muche for you to go vp to Jerusalem. * Beholde, O Israel. these are thy goddesses, which broughte you out of the lande of Egypte. And he set the one in Bethel, and the other set he in Dan. And this thyng turned to synne, for the people wente, because of the one, as farre as Dan. And he made an house of hyl aultares, & and made prestes of the lowest of the people, which were not of the sonnes of Levi. And Jeroboam made a feast þ xv. daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto þ feast that is in Juda, & offered on the aultare. And so ded he in Bethel, to offere vnto the calves þ he had made. And he put in Bethel the prestes of the hyl aultares, which he had made. And he offered burnt offrynges vpon the aultare, whiche he had made in Bethel, the xv. daye of the eyght moneth euen in the moneth wher þ he had ymagined of hys owne herte: and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldren of Israel, and offered vpon the aultare, and burnt incense.

The xlii. Chapter.

E Jeroboam broughte sacrifice vnto the calves, so reprobated of the prophete. Wher he dyeth by, whyle he putteth it out agaynst the prophete. The prophete is kyled, & buried

I And behold, there came a man of God out of Juda (by the word of the Lorde) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam stode by the aultare to put incense. And he cryed agaynst the aultare in the worde of the Lorde & sayd. O aultare, aultare, thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde, a chyld shall be borne vnto the house of Dauid, (Josiah by name) & vpon the wall he offere the prestes of the hyl aultares that burnt incense vpon the, and mennes bones shall be brent vpon the. And he gaue a token the same tyme, sayenge: this is the token, that the Lorde hath spokē it. Behold the aultare shall rente, and the ashes that are vpon it, shall fall out.

And when the kyng herd the sayenge of the man of God, whych had cryed agayn. I the aultare in Bethel, he stretched out hys hande from the aultare, sayenge holde hym. And hys hande whych he put forth agaynst hym, dyed vp, and he coulde not pul it in agayne to hym the aultare also claued asunder, & the ashes fell out from the aultare, accordyng to the toke whych the man of God had geuen by the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng answered, & sayd vnto the man of God. * Oh praye vnto the Lorde thy God, & make intercession for me, that my hande may be restored me agayne. And the man of God besought the Lorde, and the kynges hande was restored agayne, and became as it was afore.

And the kyng sayd vnto the man of God, come home with me, that thou mayst dyne, and I will geue thee a rewarde. And the man of God sayd vnto the kyng: if thou woldest geue me lalfe thyne house, I wyl not go in wyth the, nei ther wyl I eate breade or drynke water in this place. For so was it charged me, thow the worde of the Lorde, sayenge: eate no breade nor drynke water, nor turne agayne by þ same way that thou camest. And so he went another way & returned not by the waye that he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde prophete in Bethel and hys sonnes came, and tolde hym all the wordes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethel, and the wordes whiche he had spoken vnto the kyng tolde they theyr father also. And theyr father sayd vnto them what waye wente he? And hys sonnes shewed hym what waye the man of God wente, whych came from Juda. And he sayd vnto hys sonnes saddle me the asse. Whiche when they had saddled, he gat hym vpon theron, and wente after the man of God, and founde hym syttinge vnder a tre. And he sayde vnto hym: arte thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayd: I am.

He sayd vnto hym: come home wyth me, and eate breade. He answered: I maye not retorne wyth the, to go in wyth the, neyther wyl I eate breade or drynke water wyth the in this place. For it was sayd to me in the worde of the Lorde. Thou shalt eate no breade, nor drynke water there, nor turne agayne to go by the waye that thou camest. He sayd vnto him: I am a prophete also as well as thou, & an angel spake vnto me in the name of the Lorde, sayeng: byngne hym agayne & the into thyne owne house, þ he maye eate breade & drynke water. And he layd vnto hym. And so he wente agayne wyth hym, & dyd eate breade in hys house and dranke water.

And it fortuneth, þ as they sat at the table, þ worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete, that brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto þ man of God þ came from Juda, sayeng thus sayeth the Lorde. because thou hast disobeyed þ mouth of the Lorde, & hast not kepte the comaundment which the Lorde thy God comaunded the: but camest backe agayne, & hast eaten breade & dranke water, in the place (concernyng the whych the Lorde

S And when he had buried him, he spake to his sonnes, sayinge: When I am deed, let that ye bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried: laye my bones besydes his bones. * For the saying which he cryed at & word of & Lord agaynst the altar in Bethel (and agaynst all the houses of hyllaters which are in the cyties of Samarie) shall come to passe.

Robert, for al that, Jeroboam conuerted not from his wycked waye: but turned backe & made of & lowest of the people prestes of & hyllaters. And w<sup>h</sup> also pleased hym, he fylled hys hande, and became prest of the hyllaters. And this thyng turned to syn vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye hym, and to bynne hym to nought from the face of the earth.

The xliij. Chapter.

Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsaile of Abia the prophet. Jeroboam dyeth. Shish kynges of Egypt com: berch the house of the Lorde. Jeroboam dyeth, and Abia succedeth hym.

At that tyme Abia the sonne of Jeroboā fel speke. And Jeroboam sayde vnto hys wyfe: vp (I praye the) and disguise thy selfe, & thou be not knowen to be & wyfe of Jeroboā, & get the to Silo. For there is Abia & prophet which told me * & I should be king ouer this people. And take w<sup>h</sup> the ten lours & cracknels, & a cruse of honp, and go to hym, & he may tell the what shall become of the chyld. And Jeroboā's wyfe dyd so: and arose, and went to Silo, and came to the house of Abia. But Abia could not se, for his eyes were wahren dynne for age.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Abia beholde, the wyfe of Jeroboā cometh to aske a thyng of the for her son, for he is speke. But thus walte thou saye vnto her: And when she came in, she feyned her selfe to be an other woman. But w<sup>h</sup> Abia herde the sounde of her feet as she came in at the doze, he sayd come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, whp feynest thou thy selfe to be an other? I am sent to the to shewe the heuere thynges.

So tel Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lord God of Israel. (It repēteth me) forasmuch as * Jeroboam altered the fro amonge the people, and made the prince ouer my people Israel: I dyd rēt the king dom away fro the house of Dauid & gaue it the: Acuer thelesse, thou hast not ben as my seruaut Dauid, whiche kept my comāndementes, and folowed me w<sup>h</sup> all his bert, to do that whiche is right in myne eyes: but hast done euyl aboue all that were befoze the: for thou hast gone and made the other goddes, and molten ymages, to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy back: therfore beholde, I wyll bynne euyl vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wyll roote out from Jeroboam euen hym that * pisseth agaynst the wall, and hym that is in prison and forsaken in Israel, and wyll take awaye the remnaunte of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh awaye donge, tyll he hath carped out all.

* (Whoso euer of Jeroboā's house) dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges cate: and he & dyeth in the felde w<sup>h</sup> the soales of the ayre eat: for the Lorde hath sayde it. Up therfore, and get the to thyne house. Behold, w<sup>h</sup> thy fote entreteth into the cytie the chyld shall dye. And all they of Israel shall mourne for hym, and bury hym: for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, bycause in hym there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam. Moreouer, the Lorde shall styre hym vp a kynges ouer Israel which shall destroye the house of Jeroboam in that daye. But what is it now? For the Lorde shall smyte Israel, as when a reed is shaken in the water, and he shall weede Israel out of this good lande (whiche he gaue to theyr fathers) and shall scattre them beyonde the ryuer, bycause they haue made them groues, and angered the Lorde. And he shall gyue Israel vp, bycause of the synnes of Jeroboam, which dyd synne, and made Israel to synne.

And Jeroboams wyfe arose, and departed, and came to Thirzah, and when she came to the thresholde of the doze, the chyld was deed. And all Israel buried hym, and lamented hym, according to the word of the Lorde which he spake by the hand of his seruaut Abia the prophet. And the rest of & wordes that cocerne Jeroboā howe

* And Baasa kynge of Israel went vp agaynst Iuda, and buylt Rama, so þ he wold let no re go out or in, to Asa kynge of Iuda. Then Asa take all the golde & syluer þ was left in the treasures of þ house of þ Lorde, & the treasures of the kynges house, & deliuered them into the handes of his seruautes, and Asa sent them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabrimon the sonne of Hezion kynge of Syria (that dwelte at Damascus) saying: there is a bonde betwene the and me, betwene my father and thy father. And behold, I haue sent vnto the a present of syluer, and gold, þ thou come & breake the bond þ thou hast w Baasa king of Israel þ he may depart fro me. So Benhadad heikened vnto kyng Asa, & sent the captaynes of the hoostes which he had agaynst the cyties of Israel, and smote Hion & Dan, & Abel Beth Aacha, & all the regyon of Gengeroth, with all the londe of Nephtali. And when Baasa herde therof he left buyldynge of Rama, and dwelte in Tirza. Then kyng Asa made a proclamacion thorowout al Iuda, that none shoulde be excused. And so they toke þ stones of Ramah, and the ryuer (wherwith Baasa had buylded) & kyng Asa burst with the the hyl of Ben Iamin and Mizpa. The remaunt of all the wordes þ concerne Asa, and all his might and all that he dyd, & the cyties whiche he buylded, are they not wyrtten in the booke of þ chronycles of the kynges of Iuda? Neuerthelesse, in his old age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa slept with his fathers, and was buried wth his fathers in the cypse of Dauid bys father. And Jehosaphat his son raygned in his stede. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam beganne to raygne vpo Israel the seconde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, and raygned vpon Israel two yere. And he dyd euill in the syght of the Lorde, wal- kyng in the waye of his father, and in his synne wherwith he made Israel syn. And Baasa þ sen of Asa of Ahia (which was of þ house of Isachar, conspyred agaynst hym, and Baasa smote hym at Gibbethon which is a cytie of þ Philistines, for Nadab and all Israel layed siege to Gibbethon. Euen in the thyrde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, dyd Baasa slaye hym, and raygned in his stede.

III. re. xiiij.

* And it fortuneth, that when he was kyng he smote all the house of Jeroboam, and lefte hym nought that breathed, vntyll he had put hym cleane out, accordyng to the saying of þ Lorde which he spake by his seruauit Ahia the Selo-nite: bycause of the synnes of Jeroboam wher-with he synned, and made Israel syn, wher he w his prouocaciō angred þ Lorde God of Israel.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Nadab and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel: And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel all theyr dayes.

So in the thyrde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, began Baasa the sonne of Ahia to raygne ouer all Israel in Thirza. xxiij. yere. And he dyd that whiche is euyl in the syghte of the Lorde, walkyng in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synne, which made Israel to synne.

The. xvi. Chapter

Jehu propheseth agaynst Baasa, whom Ela succeedeth. Zimri killeth his master Ela, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. Zhab succeedeth Zimri, and taketh to wife wyched Jezabel.

¶ When the worde of the Lorde came to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baasa, sayinge: for as moche as I exalted the out of the dust, and made the captayne ouer my people Israel, and þ hast walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to synne, to angre me w theyr synnes: Beholde, I wyl roote out the posteritie of Baasa, and the posteritie of his house, & wyl make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. * That man of Baasa whiche dyeth in the cytie, hym shall the dogges eat: and that man of hym whiche dyeth in the felde, shall the foules of the ayre eat.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Baasa and what he dyd, and his power, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel: And so Baasa slept with his fathers, and was buryed in Thirza. And Ela his sonne raygned in his stede. And by the hand of the prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, came the worde of the Lorde agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house, and agaynst all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the syght of the Lorde (in angrynge hym with the worke of his owne handes) that he shoulde be lyke the house of Jeroboam, and bycause he kylled hym: or (that is to saye: Jehu the sonne of Hanani the prophete.)

The. xvi. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda began Ela, the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thirza, two yere. And his seruauit zimri, (whiche was captayne of halfe his charettes) conspyred agaynst hym, as he was in Thirza drynking, and was dronke in the house of Arza stuarde of his house in Thirza. Yea, he slue his kynsfolkes and frendes also. And thus dyd zimri destroye all the house of Baasa, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde which he spake agaynst Baasa by the hande of Jehu the prophet, for al the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Ela his sonne, whiche they synned and made Israel to synne, and angre the Lorde God of Israel with theyr vanities. In the. xviij. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda dyd zimri raygne. vij. dayes in Thirza, and þ people was then in the hoost belleging Sebbethon a cytie of the Philistines. And the people of the hoost herde one saye: zimri hath conspyred, and slayne the kyng: wherfore all they of Israel made Amri (the captayne of the hooste) kyng ouer Israel that same daye, euen in the hooste. And Amri departed by from Sebbethon, and all Israel with hym, and they belleged Thirza. And when zimri sawe, that þ cytie must nedes be taken, he went into the palace of the kynges house, and burnt hym selfe and the kynges house with fyre, and so dyed for his synnes which he synned, in doing that whiche is euyl in the syght of the Lorde, and in walkyng in the waye of Jeroboam and his synnes which he dyd, and in that he made Israel to synne.

The rest of the wordes that concerne zimri, and the treason that he wroughte, are they not wyrtten in þ booke of the Chronicles of þ kynges of Israel: Then were the people of Israel denyed into two partes, for halfe þ people folowed Tibni the sonne of Ginath makyng him king and the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri preuayld agaynst the people that folowed Tibni the sonne of Ginath. And so Tibni dyed, and Amri raygned.

In the. xxi. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda began Amri to raygne ouer Israel twelue yere. Syre yere raygned he in Thirza. He bought the byll Schomron of one Schemar for two talentes of syluer, and buyt in the byll, and called the name of the cite which he buyt after þ name of Schemar whiche had ben owner of the byll Schomron. But Amri wrought that whiche was euyl in the eyes of the Lorde, and dyd worse then all that were befoze hym. For he walked in all the way of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synnes that made Israel synne: to angre þ Lorde God of Israel with theyr vanities. The rest of the wordes that concerne Amri, and all that he dyd, and his strength that he shewed: are they not wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel: And so Amri slept with his fathers, and was buryed in Schomron, and Zhab his sonne raygned in his stede.

In the. xxviij. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda began Zhab þ sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, & the same Zhab the sonne of Amri raygned ouer Israel.

6. 1. 1. Israel

Israel in Samaria. xxi. peere. And Ahab the sonne of Amri dyd eny in the syght of the Lord aboue all that were before hym. For it semed vnto him but a lyght thing to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. He toke Jezabel also the daughter of Ethbaall kyng of the Sidonites to wyfe, and * went and serued Baal, and worshypped hym. And he reared vp an auter of Baal in the temple of Baal, which he had buylded in Schomron. And Ahab made groues, and proceeded further in angeringe the Lord God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before hym.

In his dayes dyd Hiel of Bethel buylde Jericho. And it * cost him Abiram his eldest sonne when he layed the foundation, and his yongest sonne Segub, when he set vp the gates, accordyng vnto the worde of the Lord * whiche he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

The. xviij. Chapter.

Elia is no prophete end les of rauens, and after he sent to zaphath (otherwyse called Zarephath) to a woman whose childe he caried to lyfe.

And Elia the Thesbite (whiche was of the enhabytours of Gilead), sayde vnto Ahab: * as trulye as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stande * there shall be neyther dewe nor rayne these peres, but accordyng to my worde.

And the worde of the Lord came vnto hym saying get the hence, & turne the east ward, and hyde thy selfe in the brooke Cherith, for is it that lyeth before Iordā: Thou shalt drynke of it & thy uer: & I haue comaunded the rauens to fede the there. And so he wēt, & dyd accordyng vnto the worde of the Lord. For he went, and dwelt by the broke Cherith which is before Iordan. And the rauens brought him breed & flesch in the morning, and lyk wyse breed and flesch in the evening, and he dranke of the brooke. And it chauced after a whyle, that the brooke dyed vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earth. * And the worde of the Lord came vnto hym, saying: * vp, and get the to zaphath, which is in Siddo, and dwell there.

Beholde, I haue comaunded a wyddowe there to sustayne the. So he arose: & wēt to zaphath. And when he came to the gate of the citye the wyddowe was there gathering stokes. And he called to her, and sayd: * set me I praye the a lytle water in a vessell, for I maye drynke. And as she was going to fet it, he cryed after her, and sayd: brynge me I praye the, a morsell of breed also in thyne hande. She sayde: As truly as the Lord thy God lyueth, I haue no breed ready buteue an handefull of meale in a barell, and a lytle oyle in a cruse. And beholde, I am gathering two stokes for to go in, and dresse it for me and my sonne that we maye eate, and not dye.

C And Elia sayd vnto her: feare not, come, and do as thou hast sayde, but make me therof a lytle cake first of all: and brynge it vnto me, and afterwarde make for the, and thy sonne. For thus saureth the Lord God of Israel: the meale in the barell shal not be wasted, neyther shall the oyle in the cruse be diminished, vntill the Lord haue sent rayne vpon the earth. And she went, and dyd as Elia sayde. And she and her house dyd eate a good space, and the meale wasted not out of the barell, neyther was the oyle spent out of the cruse, accordyng to the word of the Lord, which he spake by the hande of Elia. *

And after these thinges it hapened, that the sonne of the wyfe of the house fell sycke. And his sykenesse was so sore, that there was no bryeth left in hym. And she sayd vnto Elia: what haue I to do with the, O thou man of God: art thou come vnto me to call my synne agayne to remembraunce, and to slaye my sonne? He sayde vnto her: gyue me thy sonne, and he toke hym out of her lappe, and caried him vp into a losse, where he abode, and layd hym vp in his owne bed, & called vnto the Lord, and sayd: O Lord my God, hast thou punished also this wyddowe (with whom I dwell as a straunger) and hast slayne her son? * And he stretched him selfe vpon the childe thre tymes, & called vnto the Lord, & sayde: O Lord my God, let this chyldes soule come into him agayne. And the Lord herde the voyce of Elia, and the soule of the childe came in to hym agayne, and he reuyned. And Elia toke the boye and brought hym ddwne out of the chaire into the house, and deliuered hym vnto his mother, and Elia sayd. beholde, thy son lyueth. And the woman sayd vnto Elia: now I knowe that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the Lord in thy mouth is true. *

The. xviij. Chapter.

Elia is sent to Ahab Obadiah (otherwyse called Abdia) by both an hundred prophetes. Elia spyleth all Baals prophetes: and afterwarde obteyneth rayne.

After proccesse of many dayes the word of the Lord came to Elia in the thirde yere, sayinge go the we thy selfe vnto Ahab, and I * will sende rayne vpon the earth. And Elia went to the we hym self vnto Ahab, and there was a great famishment in Schomron. And Ahab called Obadiah, whiche was his gouernour of his house: and Obadiah feared God greatly: for when Jerobabel destroyed the prophetes of the Lord, he toke an hundred prophetes and hyd them, syttinge men in one caue and syttinge in an other, and prouyded breed and water for them. And Ahab sayde vnto Obadiah: go into the lande, vnto all the fountaynes of water, & vnto all the brookes, for happily we may fynde grasse to saue the horses and the mules, & that we destroye not some of the bestes. And so they deuyded the lande betwene the to walke towarde it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Obadiah went an other waye by hym selfe.

And it

25 And it chaunted, that as Obadia was in the waye, Elia met hym. And Obadia knewe hym: and fell on his face, and sayde: arte not thou my lord Elia? And he answered hym: I am he. So and tel thy lord: beholde, Elia is here: he sayd: what haue I synned, that thou woldest deliuer thy seruaunt into þe hād of Ahab, to slaye me? As truly as the Lord thy God liueth, there is no nation or kyngdom, whither my lord hath not set to seke the. And when they sayd: he is not there, he toke an oth of the kyngdom and nacion, whē he founde the not. And now thou sayest: go and tell thy lord, that Elia is here. And as soone as I am gone from the, the spyte of the Lord shall cary the into some place þe I do not knowe, and so when I come, and tell Ahab, and he can not fynde the, he shall slaye me. But I thy seruante feare the Lord from my youth vp. Was it not tolde my lord, what I dyd when Jezabel slue the Prophetes of the Lord, howe I dyd an hundred men of the Lordes Prophetes, fyftee men in onecase, and fyftee in an other, and prouyded them of bredd and water? And now thou sayest: go thou now and shewe thy lord, behold Elia is here, that he maye slaye me?

E And Elia sayde: as truly as the Lord of hostes lyueth, before whom I stande, I wyll shewe my selfe vnto hym this daye. So Obadia went to mete Ahab, and tolde hym. And Ahab went to mete Elia. And it fortuneth, that when Ahab sawe Elia, he sayde vnto hym: arte thou he that troubleth Israel? He answered: it is not I that haue troubled Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the comaundementes of the Lord, & thou hast folowed Baal. Now therfore sende, and gather to ge all Israel, vnto mount Carmel, & the prophetes of Baal: foure hundred and fyftee, and the prophetes of the groves foure hundred, whiche eate of Jezabels table. So Ahab sente vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and gathered the prophetes together vnto mount Carmel.

26 And Elia came vnto all the people, and sayd howe longe halte ye betwene two opinions? If the Lord be God, folowe hym: but if Baal be he, then go after hym. And the people answered hym not a worde. Then sayd Elia vnto the people agayne: I onely remayne a Prophete of the Lord: But Baals prophetes are foure hundred and fyftee. Let them therfore geue vs two oxen and let them chose the one, and cut hym in peces, and laye hym on wood, and put no fyre vnder, and I wyll dresse the other ox and laye hym on wood, and wyll put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of your god, and I wyll call on the name of the Lord: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let hym be God.

E * And all the people answered, and sayd: It is wel spoken. And Elia sayd vnto the prophetes of Baal: chose you an ox, and dresse hym fyrt, (for ye are many) and call on the name of your goddes, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke the one ox that he did geue them, and they dresed it, * and called on the name of Baal, from mornynge to noone: saying: O Baal heare vs.

But there was no voyce, nor one to answer. And they lept vpo the alter that they had made And at noone it fortuneth, that Elia mocked them, and sayd crye loude, for he is a god peraduenture he is talking or occupped (in folowing of his enemyes, or is in his iourneye, or happily he slepeth), and must be awaked with your crye: And they cryed loude, and cutte them selues as theyr maner was, with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloude folowed on them. And it chaunced, that when myddaye was passed, they prophcyed vntyll the tyme of the euenynge sacrifice. But there was neyther voyce nor one to answer, nor any that regarded them.

And Elia sayd vnto all the folke: come to me. And all the people came to hym. * And he repared the altare of the Lord that was broken. * And Elia toke xij stones, a corrdynge to the nombze of the xij. tribes of the sones of Jacob, (vnto whom the word of the Lord came saying * Israel shall be thy name. And with the stones he made an alter in þe name of the Lord. And he made a dytche round about the alter, as bzyde as two fozowes of the corne feld. And he put þe wood in ordze, and he wed the ore in peces, and layed hym on the wood, & sayd: fyl foure barels with water, and poure it on the burnt sacrifice, and on þe wood. And he sayd do so agayne. And they dyd so the second tyme. And he sayd agayn doo it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd it yet the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne round about the altare: & he fylled the pyt with water also.

And it fortuneth, whē the tyme came, wherin the burnt sacrifice of þe euening used to be offered) Elia the prophet came, & sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Isahac & of Israel, it shall be knownen this daye, that thou art the God of Israel, and that I am thy seruante, and that I haue done all these thynges at thy comaundement. Heare me (O Lord) heare me, þe this people may knowe that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned theyr heart agayn now at the last. * And the fyre of the Lord fell, and consumed the burnt sacrifice, the wood, the stones and the dust, and lycked vpo the water that was in the pyt. And when all the people sawe it, they fell on theyr faces, and sayde: The Lord, he is God the Lord he is God. And Elia sayd vnto them: Take the prophetes of Baal, & let not one of them escape. And they toke them, & Elia broughte them to the brooke Kishon, and slue them there. And Elia sayde vnto Ahab. Get the vp, and eate & drinke for there is a sounde of moche rayne. And so Ahab wente vp to eate and to drinke, and Elia went vnto the toppe of Carmel. And he layed hym selfe flatte vpon the earthe, and put his face betwene his knees, and sayd to his seruante go vp (I praye the) and loke towarde the waye of the see. And he went vp and looked, and sayd: there is nothyng. And he sayd: go agayne seuen tymes. And it fortuneth, that at the seuenth tyme, he sayde: behold, here aryseth a lytle cloude of the see lyke a mans hande. He sayde: Go, and sape vnto Ahab: Make fast thy charrette, and get the downe, that the rayne stoppe the not.

G. 13. — And

And it came to passe, that in the meane whyle, that heauen was blacke with cloudes & wynde and there was a great rayne. And Ahab gat vp and came to Jezrael. And the hand of the Lord was on Elia, and he gyrded vp his loynes, and ranne before Ahab tyll he came to Jezrael.

The xix. Chapter.

Elia flynge from Jezebel, is nourysshed of the angel of God, and is commaunded to annoynt Aziel, Jehu and Eliseus, whom the Hebrews call Elisa.

And Ahab told Jezebel, al þ Elia had done, and howe he had slayne all the prophetes wth the swearde. The Jezebel sent a messenger vnto Elia, saying: * so & so let þ goddes doo to me, yf I make not thy soule lyke one of theys by tomozow this tyme. When he sawe that, he arose, and went for his life, and came to Beerseba in Iuda, and left his seruante there. But he him self went a dayes Iourney into the wildernesse, and came, and sat downe vnder a Juniper tree, and desyzed for his soule, that he myghte dye, and sayde: * it is nowe ynough. O Lorde take my soule, for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he lay and slepte vnder the Juniper-tree: beholde, an aungel touched hym, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and eate. And when he looked about hym, beholde, there was a lofe of bryed bread & a vessel of water at his heed. And he dyd eate and drynke, and layde hym downe agayne to slepe. And the Aungell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched hym, and sayd. vp and eate, for thou hast yet a great Iourneye. And he arose, and dyd eate and drynke, and walked in the strength of that meate * foure dayes and fouretye nyghtes, euen vnto the mount of God. When he came thither into a caue, he lodged therein all nyght.

And beholde, the worde of the Lorde came to hym & sayde vnto him what doest þ here Elia? And he answered. I haue ben gelous for þ Lorde God of hostes sake. For the chyldren of Israel haue forsaken thy couenaunt, * broken downe thyne alters, & slayne thy prophetes with the sweerde, & I only am left, & they seke my lyfe to take it away. And he sayd, come out, and stande vpon þ mount before the Lorde. And beholde, * the Lorde went by a myghty strong wynde þ rent þ mountaynes, & brake þ rockes before the Lorde. But þ Lorde was not in þ wynde. And after the wynde came an earthquake. But the Lorde was not in the earthquake. And after the earthquake came fyre. but the Lorde was not in þ fyre. And after þ fyre came a small still voyce. And when Elia herd it, he covered his face wth his mantel, & wet out, & stode in þ entring in of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto hym, and sayd: what doest thou here Elia? And he answered: I haue ben gelous for the Lorde God of hostes sake, because þ chyldren of Israel haue forsaken thy couenaunt, cast downe thyne alters & slayne thy prophetes wth the sweerde, & I only am left, and they seke my lyfe to take it away. And the Lorde sayd vnto hym: go & turne thy way to the wyldernesse vnto Damascus, þ thou mayest annoynt & Hazael kyng ouer Siria. And Jehu the sonne of Nimshi shalt thou annoynt kyng ouer Israel. And Elisa þ son of Saphat of Abel Beholoh shalt þ annoynt to be prophete in thy couene. And it shal come to passe, þ whoso escape þ sword of Hazael, him shal Jehu slay: & yf any mā escape þ sword of Jehu, him shal Elisa put to death. And thereto * I haue left me vij. xij. in Israel, of which neuer man bowed his knees vnto Baal, nor kyssed him with his mouth.

So he departed thence, & founde Elisa þ son of Saphat plowynge & harynge twelue yoke of oren before him, and he wth the twelue. And Elia wet by hym, and cast his mantel vpon him. And he left þ oren, & ran after Elia, & sayd * let me I pray the, kyss my father & my mother, & then I wyl folowe the. He sayde vnto him: go backe agayne, for what is it þ I haue done to the? And when he went backe agayne from him he toke a couple of oren, & slayd them, and dresed the flesh wth the instrumentes of the oren, and gaue vnto the people, and they dyd eate. And then he arose and went after Elia, and mynistred vnto hym.

The xx. Chapter.

The first and seconde tyme that Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kyng of Siria.

And Benhadad the kyng of Siria gathered all the host together, haryng xxiij. kynges with him, and horses, & charettes and went vp, and besieged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he set messengers to Ahab kyng of Israel, into þ cytie & sayd vnto him. thus sayth Benhadad: Thy siluer & thy golde is myne, & the fayrest of thy wyues & of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered, & sayd. My lord kyng accordyng to thy saying, I am thyne, & all þ I haue.

And when the messengers came agayne, they sayd. thus sayeth Benhadad: For as moche as I haue sent vnto the, saying: thou shalt deliuer me thy syluer and thy golde, and thy wyues and thy chyldren: I wyl therfore sende my seruantes vnto the tomozowe this tyme: and they shal searche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruantes. And what soeuer is pleasaut in thyne eyes, they shal take it in theyr handes, and bring it away. When the kyng of Israel sent for all the elders of the lande, & sayd: take hede I pray you, and se how this felow goeth about mischefe. For he sent vnto me for my wyues, for my chyldren, for my syluer and for my golde: and I denyed hym not. And all the elders and all the people sayde: heken not vnto hym, nor consent.

Wherfore he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tel my lord the kyng, all that thou dyddest send for to thy seruant at þ first tyme that I wil do, but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed and brought answere agayne. And Benhadad set vnto hym agayne and sayde: thus and thus do the goddes to me, yf the dust of Samaria be ynough for al þ people that folowe me, to take euery man an har d full. And the kyng of Israel answered, and sayd: tell hym: Let not hym that putteth on his harness boost him selfe, as he that putteth it off. And it

And it fortuneth, that when Benhadad hearde, that the kynges as he was with the kynges duryn kyng within the pavillions, he sayd vnto his seruantes: put on your harnesse, and they set them selues in aray agaynst the cite.

E And beholde, there came a prophete vnto Ahab sayng of Israel, saying: thus sayth the Lord hast thou sene all this greete multitude? Behold, I wyl deliuer it into thyne hand this day and thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lord.

And Ahab sayd: by whom? He sayde thus sayth the Lord: even by the seruantes of the gouernours of the syres. He sayd agayne: Who shall orde the battayle? And he answered: thou. And he nombred the seruantes of the gouernours of the syres, and they were two hundred & xxxii. And after them also he nombred all the people, all the chyldren of Israel euen seven thousande. And they wente oute at noone: but Benhadad dyd dyspale till he was drunken in the pavillions, bothe he and the kynges: euen. xxxii. kynges, that helpe hym. And the seruantes of the gouernours of the syres went out first.

D And Benhadad set out, and they shewed him sayng: there are men come oute of Samaria. He sayde: Whether they be come oute for peace, take the alyue: or whether they be come oute to fight, take them yet alyue. And so those pounge men of the gouernours of the syres came out of the cite, & the host after them, and they slue euery one his enemye that came in his waye. And the Syrians fled, and they of Israel folowed after the. And Benhadad the kyng of Siria escaped on an horse with his bozemen. And the kyng of Israel went out, and smote the horses & charettes, and was a great slaughter slue he the Syrians.

And there came a prophete to the kyng of Israel, and sayde vnto hym: go forth, and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou dost: for when the yere is gone aboute, the kyng of Siria wyl come vp agaynst the. And the seruantes of the kyng of Siria sayd vnto hym: The goddesses of the hylls are they goddesses, and therfore they had the better of vs: but let vs fyghte agaynst them in the playne, and for what ye wyl we shall haue the better of them. And this doo: take the kynges awaye euery man out of his place, and put dukes in thei rounies. And doo thou nombe the an host, lyke the host that thou hast lost suche horses and suche charettes, & we wyl fyght agaynst the in the playne, and thou shalt se vs get the better of them. And he hearkeneth vnto thei voyce, and dyd euen so.

E And it fortuneth, that after the yere was gone about, Benhadad nombred the Syrians, & went vp to Aphek to fyght agaynst Israel. And the chyldren of Israel were nombred, and was thei holc nombre went they agaynst them, and the chyldren of Israel pitched before them, lyke two lytle flockes of kyddes: but the Syrians fylled the countrey. And there came a man of God, and sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: thus sayeth the Lord: Because the Syrians haue sayde: the Lord is but God of the hylls, & not God of the valleyes: therfore wyl I deliuer all this greete multitude into thyne hande, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lord. And they pitched one oner agaynst the other seven dayes & it came to passe that in the seventh daye the battayle was stoped. And the chyldren of Israel slue of the Syrians an hundred thousande fowmen in one daye. But the rest fled to Aphek into the cite. And there fell a wall vpon. xxvii. thousande of the men that were left. And Benhadad fled, and came into the cite, from chambze to chambze.

And his seruantes sayd vnto hym. Beholde we haue herd saye: the kynges of the house of Israel are mercifull kynges. We wyl therfore let a sackcloth about our loynes and ropes about our neckes, & go out to the kyng of Israel: if happily he wyl saue thy lyfe. And so they girded a sackcloth about thei loynes, and put ropes aboute thei hedes, & came to the kyng of Israel, & sayd: Thy seruant Benhadad sayth: I praye the let me lyue. He sayde: Is he yet alyue? he is my brother. And they toke that word for good lucke, & hastily caught it out of his mouth, and sayd: yea thy brother Benhadad. He sayd: go, bring him hyther. And Benhadad came ouer vnto hym & he caused hym to come vp into the charret. And he sayd vnto him. the cities which my father toke fro thy father I wyl restore agayne. And thou shalt make stretes for me in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyl make an appoyntment with the, & sende the away. And so he made an appoyntment with him, & sent him away.

And there was a certayne man of the chyldren of the prophetes, which sayd vnto his neyghboure in the worde of the Lord: smite me I praye the. And the man wold not smyte him. The sayd he wnto him because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lord: behold, as soone as thou art departed from me I wyl slaye the. And it came to passe, as soone as he was departed fro hym a lyon found him & slue him. Then he found another man, & sayd. smyte me I praye the. And the man smote him, so that in smyting he wold not smyte him. So the prophete went forth, & wayted for the kyng by the way, & put him selfe out of knowlodge was a whyle which he layed vnder his face. And when the kyng came by, he cryed vnto the kyng, & sayd thy seruant went out in the myddes of the battayle: & beholde, there went away a man, who an other man brought vnto me, and sayd: kepe this man. And if he be miste or lost, thy lyfe shall goe for his or els thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as the seruant had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto him: enen so shall thy iudgement be, as thou hast defined it thy selfe.

And he hastened, and toke the ashes awaye fro his face: and the kyng of Israel knewe him that he was of the prophetes: And he sayde vnto hym: thus sayth the Lord: because thou hast let go a man that is in my curse, thy lyfe shall goe for his lyfe: and thy people for his people. And the kyng of Israel went to his house, wayward and in displeasure, and came to Samaria.

G. liij. After

1. reg. 6. 11. b

After these thynges it chaunced that Naboth & Jezabelite had a vyneparde in Jezabel, harde by the palace of Ahab kyng of Samaria. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth, saying: * Gyue me thy vyneparde, that I maye make me a garden of herbes thereof, because it lyeth so nye myne house: and I wyll gyue the for it a better vyneparde then it is: or rather if it please the, I wyll gyue the, & worth of it in monye. And Naboth sayd to Ahab: the Lord forbidd that frome, & I shuld gyue & enheritaunce of my father vnto the.

And Ahab came into his house beny and euil apayed, because of the worde whiche Naboth the Jezabelite had spoken to hym, for he had sayd I wyll not gyue the the enheritaunce of my fathers. And he layed him downe vpon his bed and turned awaye his face <sup>to the wall</sup> & wolde rate nobred. But Jezabel his wyfe came to him and sayde vnto hym why is thy spyrite so waywarde, that thou eatest no bred? And he sayde vnto her: For I spake vnto Naboth the Jezabelite, and sayd vnto hym Gyue me thy vyneparde for monye, or els if it please the, I wyll gyue the an other vyneparde for it. And he answered: I wyll not gyue the my vyneparde.

And Jezabel his wyfe sayd vnto hym: Wost thou this gouernie the kyngdome of Israel: vp, & cat bred, and set thyne hert at rest, I wyll gyue the the vyneparde of Naboth the Jezabelite. And so she wrote a letter in Ahab's name, and sealed it with his scale, and sent the letter vnto the elders, and to the nobles that were in his cite dwellynge with Naboth. And they wrote in a letter, sayinge: Proclapme a fast, and set Naboth on hye amonge the people, and set two vnthyftes besyde hym, to beare <sup>false</sup> wytnesse agaynst hym, saying thou dydest blasphemie God and the kyng. And then carpe hym oute, and ston him to death.

And the men of bys cite, that is to saye: whiche dwelte in his cite, dyd as Jezabel had sent vnto them as it was wyrtten in the letter whiche she had sent vnto them. They proclapmed fast ynge, and set Naboth amonge the cheefe of the people, and there came in two men (the chyldren of Belial, and sat before him. And the two vnthyfte personnes wytnessed agaynst Naboth in the pience of the people, sayinge: Naboth dyd blasphemie God and the kyng. * And they carped hym out of the cite, and stoned him with stones, that he dyed. And the they sente to Jezabel, sayinge: Naboth is stoned to death. And it fortunied, when Jezabel herd that Naboth was stoned to death she sayd to Ahab vp, and take possession of the vyneparde of Naboth the Jezabelite, whiche he denyed to gyue the for monye, for Naboth is not aloue, but deed. And when Ahab herde that Naboth was deed, he stode vp to go downe to his vyneyard of Naboth the Jezabelite, & to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lord came vnto Elia the Cheibite, sayinge: vp, and goo downe, to meete Ahab kyng of Israel, whiche is in Samaria. For lo, he is goone downe to the vyneparde of Naboth: to take possession of it. And therfore shalt thou saye vnto hym: thus sayeth the Lord: hast thou kyllid, and gotten possession? And thou shalt speake vnto hym, sayinge: thus sayeth the Lord: * in the place where dogges lycked the bloude of Naboth, shall dogges lycke euen thy bloude also. And Ahab sayde to Elia: Hast thou founde me, O thou myne enemye? He answered: I haue founde the: for thou art euen sold to worke wyckednesse in the sight of the Lord. Beholde I wyll brynge euyl vpon the, and wyll make cleane thyddauce of thy posterite. and wyll * destroye from Ahab, euen him & maketh water agaynst the wal, and hym that is shut vp and left behynde in Israel, and wyll make thyne house lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Ahab: and lyke the house of Baasa & sonne of Ahia, for & pzonocacio wherewith thou hast pzonoked, & made Israel to syn.

And of Jezabel spake the Lord, sayinge: * dogges shall cate Jezabel, in the possession of Jezrael. * And he that dyeth of Ahab in the towne, hym shall dogges cate. and he that dieth in the feldes, hym shall the foules of the ayre cate. But there was none lyke Ahab, whiche dyd euen sell hym selfe, to worke wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord: and that because Jezabel his wyfe prycked hym forwarde. he dyd excreadyng abheminably, in folowynge foule pdoles, accordynge to all thynges as dyd the Ammorites, * whome the Lord cast oute before the chyldren of Israel.

And it fortunied, that when Ahab herde those wordes, * he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth about his fleshe, and fasted, and lay in sackcloth and went barefoote. And the worde of the Lord came to Elia the Cheibite, sayinge: seest thou howe Ahab humbleth hym selfe before me? because he subyncteth hym selfe before me, I wyll not brynge that euyl in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes, wyll I brynge euyl vpon his house. And they contynued thre yere withoute warre betwene Syria and Israel.

The xxij. Chapter.

Four hundred falsch prophetes soo counsaile Ahab and Jehosaphat to warre agaynst Ramoth: wherby whiche prophetes the rent he for whiche he is smitten and put in prison. Of Ahab's other wyfe called Jehosabe.

And * in the thyrde yere dyd Jehosaphat the kyng of Iuda, come downe to the kyng of Israel. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto his seruautes: knowe ye not, that Ramoth in Gilead is ours: and we syt byll, and take it not out of the hande of the kyng of Syria. And he sayde vnto Jehosaphat: wylte thou come with me to battayle agaynst Ramoth in Gilead? And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: * I wyll be as thou arte, and my people shalbe as thyne, and my horses as thyne.

And Jehosaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: * as he counsaile. I praye the, at the word of the Lord todaye. And then the kyng of Israel

 I goo agaynst Ramoth in Gilead to battayle, or shall I let it alone? And they sayde go vp: for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kyng. And Jeholaphat sayde: is there here neuer a prophet of the Lorde more, & we myght enquyre of hym? And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Jeholaphat. there is yet one man (Michea & sonne of Jimia) by whom we maye aske coun-sayle of the Lorde. But I hate him, for he doeth not prophete good vnto me, but euyl. And Je-holaphat sayd: let not the kyng say so. Then the kyng of Israel called a chambrelayne, and sayd fet Michea the sonne of Jimia hyther a to nes.

And the kyng of Israel and Jeholaphat the kyng of Iuda let either in his seate, and they apparell on them in a voyde place besyde & en-tryng in o. the gate of Samaria, and all & Prophetes propheted before them. And zedekia the sonne of Canaana made hornes of yron, & sayd:

 thou push the Syrians, vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the prophetes prophe-cyed euen so: sayinge: Go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the kynges hande.

And the messenger that was gone to cal Michea, spake vnto hym, saying: beholde, the wodes of the prophetes speake good vnto the king with one mouth: let thy word therfore (I pray the) be lyke the worde of euery one of them, to speake that which is good. And Michea sayde: as truly as the Lorde liueth, whatsoeuer & Lorde sayeth vnto me, that wyll I speake. And so he came to the kyng: and the kyng sayd vnto him Michea, ought we to goo agaynst Ramoth in Gilead to battayle: or to be styll? He answered vnto hym: Go and prosper, the Lorde shal de-liuer it into the hande of the kyng. And & kyng sayde vnto hym: So and so many tymes do I charge the, that thou tell me nothyng, but that which is true in the name of the Lorde. He sayd: I sawe all them of Israel scatted vpon the vil-les, as shepe that haue not a shepheard. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no master, let euery man retorne vnto his house in peace. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Jeholaphat: dyd I not tell the, that he wolde prophete no good vnto me, but euyl? And he sayd agayne: heare thou therfore the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and all the host of heauen stode about hym on his ryght hand & on his left. And & Lorde sayd: * Who shal persuaide Ahab that he maye go and fall at Ramoth in Gilead? And one sayde on this maner, and an other on that.
 And there came forth a certayne spryte, & stode before & Lorde, and sayde: I wyll persuaide hym.
 And the Lorde sayde vnto hym where with?

And he sayd: I wyll go out, and be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophetes. He sayde: thou shalt persuaide him, and preuaile, go forth then, and doo euen so. Nowe therfore holde, * the Lorde hath put a lyinge spryte in the mouth of all thes thy Prophetes, and the Lorde hath spoken euyl towarde the.

But zedekia the sonne of Canaana went to and smote Michea on the cheke, and sayd: when went the spryte of the Lorde frome, to speake vnto the? And Michea sayd: behold, & shalt se in & day, when thou shalt go from chabze to chambre to hyde the. And the kyng of Israel sayde: Take Michea, and carpe him vnto Ammon the go-uernour of the citie, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and say, thus sayeth the kyng: But this fe-lowe in & prison house, and fede him with breeb of affliction, and with water of trouble, vntyll I retorne in peace. And Michea sayd: pf thou returne in peace, the Lorde hath not spoken by me.
 And he sayd: herken ye people euery one of you.

And so the kyng of Israel and Jeholaphat the kyng of Iuda went vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and the king of Israel sayd to Jeholaphat chaunge the when thou goest to warre: and put on thyne apparel. And the kyng of Israel chaūged hym selfe, and went to battayle. But the kyng of Syria commaunded the. xxiii. capitayagaynst the kyng of Israel. And when the capitaynes of the charrettes sawe Jeholaphat, they sayd: surely it is the kyng of Israel, & they turned to fyght agaynst hym. And Jeholaphat cryed. And so it came to passe, that when the capitaynes of the charrettes sawe that he was not the king of Israel, they turned backe from him.

And a certayne man dzue a bowe ignorantly and (by chaunce) smote the kyng of Israel be-twene the rybbes and his harnesse. Wherefore he sayde vnto the dyuer of his charrettes: turne thy hande, & carpe me out of the hooft, for I am hurt. And the battayle increased & daye, and the kyng stode styll in his charret agaynst the Syrians, & dyed at euen. And the blond ran out of the wounde into the myddest of the charret.
 And there went a proclamation thorowout the hooft, about the going downe of the same, saying: euery man to his cytie, & to his owne countrey. And so the kyng of Israel dyed: and they came to Samaria, and buryed hym there. And one walshed the charret in the pole of Samaria

The fyrst Chapter

C The captaynes ouer syre with there: founden are borne w fyre from heauen, by the prayer of Elia Ahazia is reposed of Elia, proph: and Jehoazam his brother succeedeth him.

A And Moab dyd wyckedlye agaynst Israel after the death of Ahab. And Ahazia fell thowhe a lattel wyndowe of his upper chambret hat he had in Samaria: & whyle he was in his sicknesse, he sent messengers, and sayde vnto them: goo, and enquire of Belzebub the god of Ekron, whether I shal recover of this my discaie. But the aungell of the Lorde spake to Elia the Thesbite: Arise, and go vpagaynst the messengers of the kyng of Samaria, and saye vnto them: Is there not a God in Israel, that ye goo to aske counsaile at Belzebub the god of Ekron? Wherefore, thus sayth the Lorde: thou shalt not come downe fro the bedde on which thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And Elia departed.

And when the messengers touned backe agayne vnto him, he sayd vnto them: why are ye nowe come? They answered hym: there came a man vpagaynst vs, and sayd vnto vs: go, and turne agayne vnto the kyng that sent you, and saye vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lorde: Is there not a God in Israel, that thou sedest to enquire of Belzebub the god of Ekron? Wherefore thou shalt not come downe fro the bed on which thou arte gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And he sayd vnto them: what maner of man was that which came vpin your way, and tolde you these wordes? And they answered hym: it was an heere man, & and gyrded w a gyrdle of lether about his loynes. And he sayd: it is Elia the Thesbite.

C The king sent vnto him a captayne ouer fyfthe (with his fyfthe men) and beholde, he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And he spake vnto him: Thou man of God, the kyng hath sayde: come downe. Elia answered, and sayd to the captayne ouer the fyfthe: If I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfthe. * And there came fyre of God, and consumed hym and his fyfthe: And the kyng went agayne, and sent an other captayne ouer fyfthe, with his fyfthe. And he answered, and sayd vnto him: O man of God, thus hath the kyng sayd make haste, and come downe: Elia answered and sayd vnto them: If I be a man of God fyre come downe fro heauen, and consume the and thy fyfthe. And there came fyre of God downe from heauen, and consumed hym and his fyfthe.

D And the kyng wente agayne, and sent the thyrde captayne ouer fyfthe with his fyfthe men. And the thyrde captayne ouer fyfthe woe vp and came, and fell on his knees before Elia, and besought hym, and sayd vnto hym: O man of God let my lyfe and the lyfe of the fyfthe, thy seruantes be precious in thy sight. Behold, there came fyre downe from heauen, and burnt vp y two fore captaynes ouer fyfthe with there fyfthes. therefore let my lyfe now be precious in thy sight. And an angel of the Lorde sayd vnto Elia: goo downe w him, & be not afrayed of him. And he arose, and went downe with him vnto the kyng.

E And he sayd vnto hym: thus sayth the Lorde: for as moche, as thou hast sente messengers to aske counsaile at Belzebub the god of Ekron, as though there had bene no God in Israel, whose word thou mightest like after: therefore thou shalt not come downe of the bed on whiche thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And so he dyed accordyng to the worde of the Lorde which Elia had spoken. And Jehoazam (his brother) began to raygne in his stede, in the seconde yere of Jehoazam the sonne of Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda, bycause he had no sonne. thy soule lyueth, I wil not leaue the. And so they two went togyther. And fyftre men of the son-nes of the prophetes came and stode on the other syde a farre of, and they two stode by Jordan.

Ecd. viii. a

And Elia toke his mantell, and wrapte it to-gyther, and smote the waters, and they were de-uided, parte the one waye, and parte the other:
so that they two wente ouer thozowe the dyde lande. And it fortuneth, that as sone as they were ouer, Elia sayd vnto Elisa: aske what I shal do for the, yet I be taken awaye from the. And Elisa sayde: I praye the, let thy spryte be double vpon me. And he sayd: thou hast asked an harde thyng. Neuerthelesse, yf thou se me when I am taken awaye from the, thou shalt haue it so: yf thou do not, it shal not be. And it fortuneth that as they went walkyng and talkyng, beholde, there appeared a charrete of fyre, and horses of fyre: and parted them both asondre. * And Elia went by thozow the whylewynde into heauen.
And Elisa saw, and cryed: O my father, O my father, the charrete of Israel, and the horsemen therof, and he sawe him nomore: and he toke his owne clothes, and rent them in two peces.

He toke vp also the mantell of Elia that fell from hym, and went backe agayne, and stode by Jordans syde, and toke the mantell of Elia

(that fell fro hym,) and smote the waters: (and so they parted not asondre,) and he sayd: where is the Lorde God of Elia, and he hym selfe: And wen he had smptten the waters, they parted this waye and that waye: and Elisa went ouer. And when the chyldren of the prophetes which were at Jericho sawe hym from a farre, they sayde: the spy-rite of Elia doth rest on Elisa, and they came to mete hym, and fell to the grounde before hym, and sayde vnto hym: Se, there be with thy seruauntes fyfte stronge men, let them goo, and seke thy master. happely the spryte of the Lorde hath taken hym vp, & cast hym vpon some moutaine, or into some valley. And he sayd: ye shal sende none. And when they lay vpo him tyll he was ashamed, he said: Send. They set therfore fyfte men, whiche sought hym thre dayes, but found him not. And when they came agayne to hym, which tarped at Jericho, he sayd vnto the:
dyd not I saye vnto you, that ye shulde not go?

And the men of the ctye sayde vnto Elisa: beholde: Sye, the dwelling of this ctye is pleasaunte, as thou thy selfe seest: But the water is nought, and the grounde barren. He sayde: Dryuge me a newe cruse: and put salte therein.
And they brought it to hym. And he went vnto the springe of the waters, and cast the salte in therther, and sayd: thus sayeth the Lorde: I haue healed this water: there shal not com hēceforth eyther deathe, or barrenesse. So the waters were healed vntyll this daye, accordyng to the sayyng of Eliseus which he spake.

And he went vp from thence vnto Bethel.
And as he was going vp the waye, there came lytle chyldren out of the ctye, and mocked hym, and sayde vnto hym: Go vp thou balde heed, go vp thou balde heed. And he turned backe, and loked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And there came to the beeres out of that wood, and tare xliij. chyldren of them. And he went from thence to mounte Carmel, and from thence he turned agayne to Samaria.

The. iii. Chapter.

The kynges of Israel, Iuda and Edom lacke water,
whi. d they obayne through the prayer of Eliseus.
The kyng of Moab fighteth against Israel.

Iehoram the sonne of Ahab began to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, & xviij. yere of Iehosaphat kyng of Juda, and raygned twelue yeres. And he wrought euyl in the sight of the Lorde, but not lyke his father & lyke his mother: for he put awaye the ymages of Baal that his father had made. Neuerthelesse, he cleued vnto the synnes of Ieroboam, the sonne of Nabat (which made Israel to synne) and departed not therefrom.

And Mesa kyng of Moab was a lorde of shepe, and rendered vnto the kyng of Israel an hundred thousand lambes, and an hundred thousande rammes with the woll. But when Ahab was deed, it fortuneth, that the kyng of Moab rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel. And king Jehoram wente out of Samaria the same season, and nombred all Israel, and went, and set to Iehosaphat the kyng of Iuda, sayyng: the kyng of kyng of Moab hath offended agaynst me, wilt thou come with me agaynst Moab to battayle? he answered: I wyl come vp, for as I am, so art thou: and as my people be so are thy people: and thy hozels as myne. And he sayde: What waye shall we goo vp? And he answered: The waye thowowe the wyldernesse of Edom.

A And so the kyng of Israel toke his tournepe and the kyng of Iuda, and the kyng of Edom. And when they had compassed the waye seven dayes, they had no water for the hooft, and for the cattell that folowed them. And the kyng of Israel sayde: Alas, the Lorde hath called the se thre kynges togyther, to delouer them ouer into the hande of Moab. But Jeholaphat sayde:

II. cc. xlii. a *is there not here a Prophte of the Lorde, that we maye enuyse of the Lorde by hym? And one of the kynges of Israel's seruantes answered, and sayde: Here is Elisa the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the handes of Elia. And Jeholaphat sayd: Is not the worde of the Lorde with hym? And so the kynges of Israel, and Jeholaphat, and the kyng of Edom went downe to hym.

C And Elisa sayde vnto the kynges of Israel: what haue I to do with the? Get the to the prophetes of thy father and to the prophetes of thy mother. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto him: Oh, naye. For the Lorde hath called these thre kynges togyther to delouer them into the hand of Moab. And Elisa sayde as sure as the Lorde of hostes lyueth (in whose syght I stande) and it were not, that I regarde the presence of Jeholaphat the kyng of Iuda, I wolde not loke towarde the, nor yet se the.

But nowe byng me a mynstrel. And when the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lorde cam vpon hym. And he sayde: thus sayth the Lorde: Make this playne grounde full of dyches. For thus sayth the Lorde: ye shall se neyther wynde nor rayne, and yet the broke shall be fylled with water, that ye maye drynke: both ye and poure bestes, and poure cattell. And this is yet but a small thyng in the syghte of the Lorde, for as moche as he wyl gyue ouer the Moabites also into your hands. And ye shall smyte euery stronge towne and euery goodly cytie, and shall felle euery pleasant tre, and stoppe euery well of water, and marre euery good plot of ground with stoones. And in the moynyng when the meate offryng was offred, it fortuned, that there came water by the way from Edom: and the countrey was fylled with water.

D And when all the Moabites herde that the kynges were come vp to syght agaynst them, they gathered all togyther, from the yongest that was bable to put on harnesse, and so vppwarde, and stode in the bozde of the lande.

And they were vpearly in the moynyng and the sunne shone vpon the water, that the Moabites sawe the water as farre of, as red as bloud and they sayde: this is the bloude of slaughter: the kynges are slayne, and one hath smytten another. Now therefore Moab get the to the spyle. And when they came to the hooft of Israel, the Israelites stode vp, and smote the Moabites, so that they fledde before them, but they folowed vpon them, and smote Moab. And they ouerthrew the cyties: and on euery good parcel of lande cast euery man his stone, and fylled it, and they stopte all the welles of water, and felled all the good trees. Onely in the cytie of byzke left they the stoncs thereof howbeit they went about it with synges, and smote it.

And when the kyng of Moab sawe that the battayle was sore agaynst hym, he toke with hym seven hundred men that dyne the swearde to haue goone thowowe, euen vnto the kyng of Edom: but they could not. And then he toke his eldest sonne (that shoulde haue raygned in his stede) and offred hym for a burnt offryng vpon the wall. And there was greete indignacion agaynst Israel, and they departed from him, and returned to theyr owne lande.

The. iiii. Chapter.

C God gyueth a certayne poore woman oyle and sheweth by heliseus, heliseus (whom the sette calleth Elisa) at teryng of Moab a chyld for his hostelle: which dyeth, and is after rapsh to lyfe. He maketh swete the pottage: and multiplieth the loues.

And there cryed a certayne woman of the wyues of the prophetes vnto Elisa saying: thy seruante my husbnde is deed, and thou knowest, that thy seruant dyd feare the Lorde.

And yf creditour is come to set my two sonnes to be his bondmen. Elisa sayd vnto her: tell me what I shal do for the? what hast thou in thyne house? She sayd: thyne handmayd hath nothing at all in the house, save a pytche of oyle. He sayd vnto her: Go, and bozow vessel for the: of them that are withoute, euen of all thy neyghbours, empty vessels and that not a fewe. And when thou arte come in, thou shalt shut the doze after the and a ter thy sonnes, and poure out into all those vessels, and let asyde that which is full.

And so the woman went from hym, and shut the doze after her and after her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she poured out. And it came to passe, yf when the vessels were full, she sayde vnto her son: bring me yet a vessel. And he sayd vnto her: I haue no mo. And yf oyle ceased. The she came and told the man of God. And he sayd go, & sell the oyle, & paye them yf thou arte in det vnto, but lyeue thou and thy chyldre of yf rest.

And it fel on a daye, that Elisa came to Sunem, where was a great woman that toke him in for to eate bread. And so it came to passe, that fro that tyme forth as oft as he cam that way) he turned in thither to eate bread. And she sayd vnto her husbnde: Beholde, I perceyue, that this is an holpe man of God that cometh so ofte by our place. Let vs make him a chambze (I pray the) with walles, and let vs set hym there a bed and a table and a stole, and a candlestpycke. that he may turne in thither when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuned on a day, yf he came thither, and turned into the chambze, & laye therein, and sayd to Gehazi his seruant: call this Sunamite. And when he called her, she presented her selfe before hym.

fore him. And agayne he sayd vnto him: Tel her Beholde, thou hast ben carefull for vs, and hast made all this prouidid. What shall we nowe do for the? woldest thou be spoken for to the kynge, or to the captayne of the host? She answered: I dwell amonge myne owne people. And he sayd agayne: what is to be done for her? Sehezi answered Clerely she hath no childe, & her husbände is olde. And he sayd: call her. And whē he had called her, she stode in þe doore. And he sayd * by such a tyme, and as soone as the frute can lyue, thou shalt embrace a sonne. And she sayd: Oh naye, my lord, thou man of God, do not lye vnto thy handmayde. And the wyfe conceyued, and bare a sonne that same season that Eliseus had sayd vnto her, as soone as the frute coulde haue lyfe.

D And when the chylde was growen, it sel on a day, that he went out to his father, and to the reapers. And he sayd to his father. my herd, my herd. And he sayd to a lad: Carry hym to his mother. And when he had carryed hym and brought him to his mother, he sat on her knees tyl none, and then dyed. And she went vp, and layed hym on the bed of the man of God, and shut the doore aboute hym, and went out, and called vnto her husbände, and sayd sende with me (I pray the) one of the yonge men and one of the asses. For I wyll runne to the man of God, and come a-gayne. And he sayde: wherfore wylt thou go to hun, seinge that todaye is neyther newe moone nor Sabbath daye? She answered for health.
The he sadled an asse, and sayd to her seruant leade a way þe asse, and make her not go slowly, (bycause I ryde vpon her, but when I byd the.

E And so she went, and came vnto the man of God to mount Carmel. And it fortunied, that when the man of God saw her farre of, he sayd to Sehezi his seruant: Beholde, ponder is the Sunamite. Run therfore to mete her, and saye vnto her: Is all wel with the and with thy hus-bände, & with the lad? And she answered: All is well. And when she came to the man of God vp to the hyll, she caughte hym by the feet. But Se-hezi went to her, to thrust her awaye. And the man of God sayd: let her aloone, for her soule is vered within her, and the Lorde hath byd it fro me, and hath not tolde it me. Then she sayd: dyd I desyre a sonne of my lord? dyd I not requyre the, that thou shouldest not discreue me?

Then he sayd to Sehezi. * gyde vp thy lopnot. And if any salute the, answer hym not a guyne. And lay my staffe vpo þe face of the childe And the mother of þe childe sayd: * as sure as the Lorde lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leave the. And he arose, & folowed her. Sehezi went before them, & layed the staffe vpo þe face of the childe. But there was neyther voyce nor any feling: wherfore he wēt agayne to mete hym and tolde hym, saying: þe childe is not awaked.

F And when Elisa was come into the house, beholde, the chylde was deed, and layed vpon his bed. He went in therfore, and shut the doore to the lad and him, and prayed vnto the Lorde.

* And went vp, and lape vpon the lad, and put his mouth on his mouth, and his eyes vpon his eyes, and his handes vpon his hādes, and whē he so lape vpon the chylde, the flesch of the childe warmed warme. And he went agayne, & walked ones vp and downe in the house, and then wēt vp and layed hym selfe vpon hym agayne. And then the chylde gasped seuentymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Sehezi, and sayde: Call for this Sunamite. So he called her, whiche when she was come in vnto hym, he sayde vnto her: * Take thy sonne. Therfore she wente in, and fell at his feete, and bowed her selfe to the ground, and toke vp her sonne, and went out. F Elisa came agayne to Silgal, and there was a dearth in the lande, and the chylde of the prophetes dwelt with hym. And he sayde vnto his seruaunte: Set a greete potte on the fyre, and make pottage for the children of the prophetes, and one went oute into the felde, to gather hebes, and founde (as it were) a wylde vyne, and gathered thereof wylde Coloquintidas his lap full, and came and byed them into the potte of pottage: for they knewe it not. So they poured oute for the men to eate. And it fortunied, that whē they tasted of the pottage, they cryed oute, and sayd: O thou man of God, there is death in the pot, and they coulde not eate therof. Wat he sayde: bynge mele. And he cast it into the pot, and sayde: It shal be for the people, that they maye eate, and there was nomore harme in the potte.

the people þe they maye eate. For thus sauyth the Lorde: * they shal eate, and there shal be left ouer
And so he dyd set it before them, & they dyd eate,

The v. Chapter.

Naaman the syrian is healed of his leprosie. Sehezi is taken in the crosse, bycause he toke moneye and captment of Naaman.

Naamcaptayne of the hoste of the kynge of Siria, was a greete man, and honourable in the syght of his master: bycause that by him the Lorde had gyuen healeth vnto Siria. he also was a myghty mā and experie in warre, but he was a lepre. And the Sirians had gone oute by companyes, and had brought out of the countrey of Israel a w-le mayde, and she was with Naamans wyfe.
And she sayd vnto her lady: I wolde to God my lorde were with the prophete that is in Samaria: for he wold delouer him of his leprosie. And he went in, and tolde his lord, saying: thus and thus sayde the mayde that is of the lande of Israel. And the kynge of Siria sayde Come, and entre in, and I wyl sende a letter vnto the kynge of Israel: And he came, and toke with hym ten talentes of syluer, and syre thousande peces of golde, and ten chaunge of raynetes: & brought the letter to the kyng of Israel conteyning this tenour: Now when this letter is come vnto the beholde, I haue therewith sent Naaman my seruant to the, that thou mayest tryd him of his leprosie. And it fortuneth, that when the kyng of Israel had red the letter, he rēd his clothes, and sayd: *am I God, that shoulde slaye and make alyue? Noz he doeth sende to me, that I shoulde deliuer a man from his leprosie: Wherefore conlyde (I praye you) and se how he seeketh a quarrell agaynst me. Whiche when Elisa the man of God had hearde howe that the kyng of Israel had rent his clothes, he sent vnto the kyng saying: wherfore hast thou rente thy clothes? Let hym come now to me, and he shall knowe, that there is a Prophete in Israel.

De. viii. c.

And so Naaman came with his horses and with his charettes, and stode at the doore of the house of Elisa. And Elisa sent a messenger vnto him, saying: go & wash the in Jordā. vii. tymes and thy flesh shal come agayne to the, and thou shalt be cleansed. But Naaman was wroth and went away, & sayd: Beholde, I thought w my selfe: he wolde surely come out, & stand, & call on the name of y Lord his God, and put his hande on the place, that he myght heale the leprosie. Are not Abana & Parphar ryuers of Damascus, better then all the waters of Israel? If I wash me also in them, shall I not be cleansed? And so he turned hym, and departed with displeasure. And his seruantes came, and communed with hym, and sayde: Father yf the Prophet had bidden the do some great thyng, oughtest thou not to haue done it? How moche rather then, when he sayth to the: wash, and be cleansed? Then went he downe, and washed hym selfe seuen tymes in Jordā, accordyng to the saying of the man of God: and his fleshe chaunged, lyke vnto the flesh of a lytle chyld, * and he was cleansed.

Luc. xiii. c.

And he turned agayne to the man of God, he and all his company, and stode before him & sayd: Beholde, I know now y there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. Now therfore take a blessing of thy seruānt. But he sayd: *as surely as the Lorde lyueth (before whom I stand) I wyl receyue none. And when the other wolde haue cōstrayned hym to receyue it, he wold not.

iii. re. p. b. i. a

And Naaman sayd: *as thou wilt: but I desire the. Shal there not be gyuen to thy seruānt, as moche of this earth as two mules maye beare? Noz thy seruānt wyl henceforth offer neyther burnt sacrifice noz offering vnto any other god, save vnto y Lorde. But heerein the Lorde be merciful vnto thy seruānt, y when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon, and doeth worshyppe there, and leaneth on myne hand, and I also worshyp in the house of Rimmon. (When I do worshyp, I saye:) in the house of Rimmon the Lorde be merciful vnto thy seruānt bycause of this thing. Vnto whom he sayd: go in peace. And whē he was departed from him as it were a forlonge of grounde, Gehazi the seruānt of Elisa the man of God sayd: beholde, my master hath spared Naaman this Syrian, y he wolde not receyue of his hande those thynges, that he offred. As surely as the Lorde lyueth, I wil run after hym, and take somewhat of hym. And so Gehazi folowed Naaman. And when Naaman sawe hym runnyng after hym, he light downe from the charette to mete hym, and sayde: * is all well? he answered: All is wel. Beholde, my master hath sent me, sayinge: Se, there be come to me, euen now from mounte Ephraim two younge men of the chyldren of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of syluer, and twochaunge of garmentes. And Naama sayd: with a good wyll. Take two talentes: & he compelled him to bynde two talētes of siluer in two bagges, w twochaunge of garmentes, & layed them vpon two of his seruāntes, to beare them before hym. And when he came into a secrete place, he toke the frō their hād, & bestowed it in the house, & the wē were let go: & they departed.

But he went in, and stode before his master. And Elisa sayd vnto him: whence comest thou Gehazi? he sayd: thy seruānt went no whither. But he sayd vnto him: wēt not myne hert to the when the man touched agayne from his charette to mete the? Is it nowe a tyme to receyue moneye, to receyue garmentes, olyue trees, vyneyardes, Weepe and oxen, men seruāntes, and mayde seruāntes? The leprosie therfore of Naaman shall cleaue vnto the, and thy seed for euer. * And he wēt out from his presence a lepre as whyte as snowe.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

Elisus maketh prou to synnime aboute the water. The Syrians besiege Israel, so that thre women agree together to eate theyr owne chyldren.

The chyldren of the prophetes sayd vnto Elisa: Beholde, the place where we dwell with the is to lytle for vs. We will therfore go vnto Jordā, and take thēce euery mā a beime, and buylde vs a place to dwell in. And he answered: go. And one said: be content (I praye the) & com w thy seruāntes. And he answered: I wil come, and so he wēt w them. And whē they came to Jordā they cut downe wood. But it fortuneth, that as one was felling downe of a tree, the axe heed fell into the water. And he cryed, and sayd: alas master, it was lent me. And the man of God sayd: wher felst it? And he shewed hym the place. And he cut downe a speke, and cast it in thither, and immediatlye the prou dyd swym. Therfore sayde he: take it vp. And he stretched out his hand, & toke it vp.

But y kyng of Siria warred agaynst Israel and toke cōsail w his seruāntes, and sayd: In yondre secrete place shalbe my remayning. And the man of God sent vnto the kyng of Israel, sayinge: Beware that thou go not ouer to suche a place, for there the Syrians are lurking. Therfore the kyng of Israel sent to the place which y man of God told him, and warned hym of, and saued hym selfe from it, not ones, noz twyse.

And the bert of the kyng of Siria was troubled for this thing & he called for his seruāntes and sayd vnto them: wyl ye not shew me which of our men shal betraye me to the kyng of Israel? And one of his seruāntes sayde: none my lord, O kyng, but Elisa y prophet that is in Israel telleth the telletb the kyng of Israel: yea, euen the wordes þ thou spakest in the pꝛeup chābre. He sayd: go, and e. pꝛe where he is, þ I may send and fet him. And one told him, sayng: beholde, he is in Dothaim. Therefore sent he thither horses and charettes, and a myghty hoost. And they came by nyght, and compassed the cite about.

D And whē þ seruaunt of the mā of God arose vpearly to go out, beholde, there was an hoost rōde about the towne with horses & charettes. And his seruaunt sayde vnto hym: Alas master what shall we do? He answered: * feare not, for they þ be with vs are mo the they þ be with the. And Elisa prayed, and sayd: Lord (I beseech the) open his eyes. þ he may se. And the Lorde opened the eyes of the yongeman. And beholde, the moūtaine was full of horses & charettes of fyre round about Elisa. And whē they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lord, and sayde: Smyte this people, I praye the with * blyndnesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse, accozdyng to the desyre of Elisa. And Elisa sayd vnto them: this is not the way, neyther is this the towne: folow me, and I wyl byng you to the mā whō ye seke. But he led them to Samaria.

E And it fortuned, that when they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayd: Lord, open theyꝛ eyes that they maye se. And the Lorde opened theyꝛ eyes, and they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddell of Samaria. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Elisa whē he sawe them: Wyf ather, hal I smyte them? And he answered: thou shalt not smyte the: But smyte them that thou hast taken with thyne owne swerde, and with thyne owne bowe. But rather set breed and water before them, that they maye eate and drynke and go to theyꝛ master. And he prepared a great refection for them. And when they had eate and dronken, he sent them away: and they went to theyꝛ master. And so the souldyers of Syria came nomore into the lande of Israel.

F After this it chanced, that Benhadad kyng of Siria gathered all his hoost, and went vp, & besieged Samaria. But there was a greaue deth in Samaria: and behold, they besieged it, vntyll an asses heed (was solde) for foure scoze syluer pence, and the fourth parte of a cab of dones donge, for fyue syces. And as the kyng of Israel was goinge vpon the wal, there cryed a woman vnto him, sayng: helpe, my Lorde. He sayd: yf the Lorde do not succour the, wherwith can I helpe the: with the barne oz w the vynepresser? And the kyng sayde vnto her: what wilt thou? She answered: ponder womā sayd vnto me: byng thy son, that we maye eate hym today, and we wyl eate myne tomoꝛowe.

G * And so we dressed my sonne, and dyd eat him. And I sayd to her this other day: byng thy son that we maye eate him, and she hath byd her son. And it came to passe, that when the kyng herde the wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, & went vp on the wall. And the people looked and beholde, he had sackloth vnder, vpon his fleithe. Then he sayde: * God do so and so to me, yf the heed of Elisa th: sonne of Dayhat shal stand on hym this daye. But Elisa sat in his house, and the elders sat by hym, and the kyng sent a man before hym: But yet the messenger came to him he sayd to the elders: haue ye not sene how that the sonne of this mā murderer hath sent to take away myne heed? be circumspect when the messenger cometh, and shut the doze, and hold hym at the doze: is not the sound of his masters feete behynde hym? Whyle he yet talked with them: beholde, the messenger came downe vnto hym, and sayd: beholde, this euill is of the Lord, and what moze shall I loke for of the Lorde?

The vii. Chapter.

Elisa prophesied plentifully of bꝛeade and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians ran away, and haue noman folowynge them. The lorde that would not be, leue the wordes of Elisa is troden to death.

Hen Elisa sayd heare ye the word of the Lord: thus sayth þ Lord: * tomoꝛowe this tyme shal a buschel of fine flour be sold for a sicke, & two buschels of barley for a sicke in þ gate of Samaria. The a certayne lorde (on whose hande þ kyng leaned, answered þ mā of God, & sayd: beholde, yf þ Lord wold make windowes in heuē might this saying come to passe he sayd: behold, thou shalt se it w thyne eyes, but shalt not eat therof.

And there were foure leperous men at the entryng in of the gate. And they sayd one to another: whysyt we here vntyll we dye? Pf we say we wyl entre into the cite: beholde, the deth is in the cite. & we shal dye therein. And yf we syt styll here, we dye also. Now therefore come, & let vs fall vpon the hoost of the Syrians: Pf they saue our lyues we shal lyue: Pf they kyll vs, the are we deed. And so they arose in the nyghte, to go to the hoost of the Syrians. And when they were come to the vtmost parte of the hooste of Siria, beholde, there was noman there.

For the Lorde had made the hoost of the Syrians * to heare a noyse of charettes, & a noyse of horses, & the noyse of a great host. In somoch that they sayd one to another: lo, þ kyng of Israel hath byred agaynst vs þ kynges of the heathenes, & the kynges of the Egyptians to come vpo vs. Therefore they arose, & fled in the nyght and left theyꝛ tentes, theyꝛ horses & theyꝛ asses, & the felde which they had pyched, eue as it was and fled for theyꝛ lyues. And whē these lepers came to the edge of the hooste, they went into a tent, and dyd eate and drynke, and carped chēce syluer and golde, and raymente, and went and hyd it, came agayne, and entered into an other tent, and carped thence also, and went & hyd it.

Then sayd one to an other: We do not well this day, for asmoch as it is a day to bring good tydings, & we holde our peace. Pf we tary tyll the day light, som mischefe wyl come vpon vs. Now therefore come, that we may go, and tel þ kynges household. And so they came, and called vnto the porter of the cite, and tolde them, sayng: we came to the pauplyngs of the Syrians: and se, there was noman there, neither voyce of man, but horses and asses tyed: and the tentes were euen as they were wont to be.

And so the man called vnto the porters, and they tolde

¶ They told the kynges house within. And þe kyng arose in the night, and sayd vnto his seruantes: I wyll see we pon now, what the Siriāns haue done vnto vs. They knowe þe we be hungrye, & therefore are they gone oute of the panyons, to hyde them selues in the felde, sayinge: whē they come out of the cytie, we shal catche the alpue, & get into the cite. And one of his seruantes answered, and sayde: Let men take (I praye you) fyue of the hoxles that remaine, and are left in the multitude. Beholde, they are euen as all the multitude of Israhel that are left in the cytie: beholde (I saye) they are euen as the multitude of the Israhelites that are consumed, and we wyll sende, and se. They toke therefore the hoxles of two charrettes, and the kyng sent after the host of the Siriāns, sayinge: goo, and se. And they went after them euen vnto Iordā, and lo, all þe waye was full of clothes and vessels which the Siriāns had cast from them in theyr haste.

¶ And the messengers returned, and told þe kyng. And the people went out, & spoyled the tētes of the Siriāns. And so it came to passe, þe a bushel of fyne flour was solde for a sicle, and two bushels of barley for a sicle: according to þe word of the Lord. And the kyng appointed þe lord (on whose hand he leaned to be at þe gate). And þe people trode vpon him in the gate, & he dyed: according to the worde of the man of God, which he sayd: when the kyng came downe to hym. And so came the thing to passe, þe the mā of God had spoken to the kyng, sayinge: two bushels of barley for a sicle, and a bushell of fyne flour for an other, shal be: to morowe this tyme in the gate of Samaria. Where vnto that lord answered þe man of God, and sayde: Yea, and yf the Lord made wyndowes in heauen, myght it come to passe. And he sayde: Beholde, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, and shalt not eate thereof. And euen so chaunced it vnto hym: for the people trode vpon him in the gate: and he dyed.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa prophesied vnto the Sunamite the death of Ierem. After the death of Benhadad rayner of Israhel in Syria. Jehoazam the sonne of Jehosaphat rayner in Iuda. And failed from Iuda. Whosē sūdererth Jehoazam.

¶ Then spake * Elisa vnto the woman, whose sonne he had restored to lyfe agayne: sayinge: vp, & go, thou, & thine house, & sojourne wheresoeuer þe canst, for the Lord hath called for a death, and þe same shall come vpon the lande seven yeres. And the woman arose, and dyd after the sayinge of the man of God, and wēt both she and her household and sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seven yere. And at the seven yeres ende, it fortunēd, that the woman came agayne out of þe land of the Philistines, and went out to cal vpon the kyng for her house & for her lande. And the kyng talked with Gebezi the seruāt of þe mā of God sayinge: tell me (I praye) all the greates dedes, that Elisa hath done. He tolde the kyng, how he had restored a deed man to lyfe agayne: but in þe meane tyme the woman (whose chyld he had rayled vp agayne) cryed to þe kyng for her house and for her lande. And Gebezi sayde: Aylorde

O kyng, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whom Elisa rayled vp agayne. And when the kyng asked the woman, she told him. And so the kyng deliuered her a chambrelayne sayinge: restore thou vnto her, all that are hers: and all the frutes of the felde syng the daye that she left the lande, vntill this tyme.

¶ And * Elisa came to Damascus, and Benhadad the kyng of Syria was sycke. And one told him, sayinge: The mā of God is com byther. And the kyng sayd vnto Hazael: take a present in thine hande, and go mete the man of God, & thou mayst aske the Lord by hym, whether I shal recouer of this disaile. And so Hazael went to mete him, and toke the present with hym, and of euery good thinge of Damascus, eue as moche as fouretye camelles coulde beare, and came and presented hym selfe before hym, and sayd: Thy sonne Benhadad kyng of Syria hath sent me to the, sayinge: shal I recouer of this disaile?

¶ And Elisa sayde to hym: goo, and saye vnto hym: thou shalt recouer, howbeit, the Lord hath shewed me, that he shal surely dye. And he looked asyde, and was ashyamed, and the man of God wepte. And Hazael sayd: why wepest thou lord? He answered, for I knowe the euyl thynges that thou shalt do vnto the chyldren of Israhel: for theyr stronge cyties shalt thou set on fyre, and theyr yonge men shalt thou slaye with the swerde, and shalt cast out the braynes of theyr luckynge chyldren, and all to teare theyr women with chyldre.

¶ But Hazael sayd: what is thy seruāt a dog that I shoulde do this greates thyng? And Elisa answered: þe Lord hath shewed me, & thou shalt be kyng of Syria. And so he departed fro Elisa and came to his master, whiche sayde to hym: What sayde Elisa to the? he answered, he tolde me that thou shouldest recouer. And on the morowe it fortunēd, that he tooke a thicke cloth, and dypt it in water, and sprede it on his face, and he dyed: and Hazael raygned in his stede.

¶ The xij. yere of Jehoazam the sonne of Ahab kyng of Israhel, Jehosaphat being also kyng of Iuda, Jehoazam the son of Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda began to raygne. .xxiiij. yere olde was he, when he beganne to raygne: and he raygned egypte yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israhel, as they þe were of the house of Ahab, for the daughter of Ahab was his wyfe, and he dyd euill in the syght of the Lord. And the Lord wolde not destroye Iuda: and that bycause of Dauid his seruāt: as he promysed him to geue him alway a light amonge his chyldren.

¶ In those dayes Edd dyd wyckedly when he was vnder þe hand of Iuda. For they made the a kyng of their owne. So Jehoazā wēt to zair, he & al his charrettes with him. And he arose by nyght, and smote the Edomites whiche copasied him in with the captaynes of his charrettes, and the people fled into theyr tentes. But Edd rebelled, so that he wolde not be vnder the hand of Iuda vnto this daye. And when Lobnah began to be disobedient euen that same tyme.

¶ The rest

J The rest of the wordes that concerne Joram & all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in þe boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda: And Jo-ram rested with his fathers, and was buryed besyde hys fathers in the cite of David. And * A-haziab hys son raygned in hys stede. In the xij. yere of Joram the son of Ahab kyng of Israel, dyd Ahaziab the son of Jehoram kyng of Juda begin to raigne. Two & twenty yere old was Ahaziab when he began to raigne, and he raygned one yere in Jerusalem, & his mothers name Athaliah the daughter of Omri kyng of Israel. But he walked in the waye of the house of Ahab, and dyd euyl in the syght of the Lord, euē as dyd the house of Ahab. For he was the sonne in lawe of the house of Ahab.

And he went with Joram the sonne of Ahab to war agaynst Hazael kyng of Siria in Ra-moth Gilead, & the Sirians wounded Jorā. And * kyng Jorā went bakke againe to be healed in Jezrael of þe woundes which þe Sirians had gauen him at Ramoth whē he fought agaynst Hazael kyng of Siria. And Ahaziab the son of Jehorā kyng of Juda went downe to se Joram the sonne of Ahab in Jezrael, because he was sycke there.

The .ix. Chapter.

Jehu is made kyng of Israel, and killeth Jehoram the kyng thereof, and Ahaziab; otherwise called Mochazias & the kyng of Juda also: & causeth Jezabelles be-cast downe out of a wyndow & the dogges eateth her.

And Elisa the prophet called one of þe children of the prophetes, and sayde vnto him. * gyde vp thy loines and take this bore of oyle in thy hand, & get the to Ramoth in Gilead. And whē þe comyst thither, loke where is Jehu þe son of Jehosaphat, the sonne of Nimsi, & go to hym, & & make him arysle vp from amonge his bretthren, and carry hym to a secreete chābre. Then take the bore of oyle, and poure it on hys heede, and saye: thus sayeth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel. And then open the doze, & fflye wythout any tarping. And so the seruaunte of the prophet gat hym to Ramoth Gilead, and when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the hoost were spetpunge together. And he sayde: I haue an errande to the, O captayne. And Jehu sayde: vnto whiche of all vs? he sayde: to the, O captayne. And he arose, and went into þe house.

And he poured the oyle on his heede, and sayd vnto hym: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: * I haue annoynted the to be kyng ouer the people of the Lorde, euē ouer Israel. Thou shalt smyte þe house of Ahab thy nygster, that I may auenge þe bloude of my seruautes the prophetes and the bloude of all the seruautes of the Lorde of the hande of Jezabell, for the whole house of Ahab shalbe destroyed, and * I wyl destroye fro Ahab, euē hym þe maketh water agaynst the wall, and hym that is pylsoned and forsaken in Israel: and I wyl make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, & lyke the house of Baasa the son of Ahia. And as for Jezabell, * the dogges shall eat her in the felde of Jezrael, and there shalbe none to burye her.
 And he opened the doze, and fled.

Jehu came out to the seruantes of his lord and one sayde vnto hym: is all well? Wherefore came this mad felow to the? And he sayde vnto them: ye know what maner of mā it is, & what his comunicacyon is. They sayde vnto hym: a-gayne: is it not so, tell vs? he sayde: thus & thus spake he to me, saying: Thus sayeth the Lorde:
 I haue annoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel.
 Then they besyde the horologe halted, & toke euery man hys garment, and put it vnder hym, and blew wyth trumpettes, sayinge: Jehu is kyng. And so Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat the sonne of Nimsi conspyred agaynst Joram. Jo-ram kept Ramoth Gilead, he and al Israel by-cause of Hazael kyng of Siria. and * kyng Jo-ram returned to be healed in Jezrael of the woundes whych the Sirians had gauen hym, whē he fought with Hazael kyng of Siria.

And Jehu sayd: yf it be your myndes, then let noman departe & escape out of the cite, to go & tell in Jezrael. So Jehu gat vp into a charet, & went to Jezrael where Joram laye, and Ahaziab kyng of Juda was come downe thither to se Joram. And the watchman that stode in the towne in Jezrael, spyed the company of Jehu as he came, and sayde: I se a company. And Jehorā sayd: take a horseman and send to mete them, þe may aske whether it be peace. And so there wēt one on horsebacke to mete hym & sayd thus sayth þe kyng: is it peace? and Jehu sayde: what hast thou to do w peace? turne the behynd me. And the watchman tolde, saying: the messenger cam to them, but he cometh not agayne.

Then he sent ouer an other on horse backe, which came to them and sayd: thus saith þe kyng is it peace? Jehu answered: what hast thou to do wyth peace? turne the behynd me. And þe watchman tolde, saying: he cam to them also and commeth not agayne, & the dyspung is lyke the dyspunge of Jehu the son of Nimsi. for he dyspueth þe charet as he were mad. And Jehorā sayd: make ready, and the charet was made ready. And Je-horam kyng of Israel & Ahaziab kyng of Juda wēt out cytber of them in hys charet agaynst Jehu, & mete hym in the forlonge of Naboth the Jezraelite. And it fortuneth, that whē Jehoram sawe Jehu: he sayd: is it peace Jehu? he answered. What peace shulde there be, so longe as the whoredomes of thy mother Jezabell & her witchcraftes are so greete? And Jehoram turned hys handes, and fled, and sayd to Ahaziab: there is falschod, O Ahaziab. And Jehu toke a bowe in hys handes, and smote Jehorā betwene the ac-mes, and the arrowe went thorow his heart. And he fell downe flat in his charet. Then said Jehu to Bpdkar a captayne take hym and caste hym in the plot of grounde of Naboth the Jezraelite for I remember that when I and thou rode together in a charet after Ahab his father, þe Lord layd hys heuye burthen vpon hym. I haue sene pesterdaye þe bloude of Naboth, & the bloude of hys sones, sayd the Lord and I wyl quyte it the in this grounde: sayth the Lorde. Now therfore take hym & cast him in the plot of the ground, ac-cordinge to the worde of the Lorde. But when

h Ahaziab

Ahaziah the kyng of Iuda sawe this, he fled by the way of the garden house. And Jehu folowed after hym, and sayd: Smyte hym also in the charet: <sup>or</sup> And they smote hym in his charet at the goyng up to Gur by Ibleam, and he fled to Megiddo, and there dyed. And his seruantes carped hym in a charet to Ierusalem, and buried hym there in his sepulchre wth his fathers, in the ctye of David. And in the xi. yere of Ioram s<sup>on</sup> of Ahab, begā Ahaziah to raigne ouer Iuda. And when Jehu was come to Jezrael, Jezabel herde of it, and starched her face, & tyed her heed, and looked out at a wyndowe. And as Jehu entred at the gate, she sayd: had zimet peace whiche slewe his mayster: And he lyfte vp his eyes to the wyndowe, & sayd who is of my lyde, who? And there looked out to hym two of thre chamberlaines, & he sayd. throwe her downe. So they threwe her downe, & her bloude dashed toward the wall, & toward the horses, & he trode her under fote.

And when he was come in, he dyd eat & drinke and sayd go & visyte I praye you, ponder cursed creature, & bury her: * for she is a kynges doughter. And so when they cam to bury her, they found no more of her then the skull & the feet: & the palmes of her handes. Wherefore they came agayne and tolde hym. And he sayd. thus is the worde of the Lord, which he spake by the hande of his seruaunt Elisha the Thesbite, sayunge: * in the felde of Jezrael shall the dogges cate the flesh of Jezabel. And so the carkas of Jezabel was enen as dunge vpon the earth in the felde of Jezrael: so that no man myght saye: This was Jezabel.

Jehu cankerd the lxx. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne, & after that all of his brethren. He synneth & meane also to kille all the pretyes of Baal. After this death bys comyn pagyneth in bys deede.

Not. b. l. s.

Ahab had lxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters and sent to Samaria vnto the rulers of Jezrael, to the elders, and to them that brought vp Ahab's chyldren, sayung: Now when this letter commeth to you, ye that haue with you your maisters sonnes, ye haue wth you bothe charettes and horses: a stronge cytye haue ye also, and harnesse, loke whiche of your maisters sonnes is best & moost mete, & set hym on his fathers sence, and fyght for your lordes house. But they were exceedyngly afrayde, and sayd: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, howe shall we then be able to stande? And he that was gouernour of Ahab's house, & he that ruled the ctye, the elders also, and the tutors sent to Jehu, sayung: we are thy seruantes and wyl do all that thou shalt byd vs we wyl make no man kyng: therefore do thou what seemeth good in thine eyes. Then he wrote another letter to them, sayung: yf ye be myne, & wyl hearken vnto my voyce, then take the heades of the men that are your maisters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrael by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were lxx persons, and they were with the great men of the ctye, whiche brought them vp, and when the letter came to them: they take the kynges chyldren, & slewe them, euen lxx persons, and layde their heades in baskettes, and sent them vnto hym to Jezrael: And there came a messenger and tolde hym, sayunge: they haue brought the heades of the kynges sonnes. And he sayd: let them lay them on two heapes in the entrynge in of the gate, vntill the morynge.

And when it was day he went out, and stode & sayd to all the folke: ye be ryghtuous. Beholde I conspired agaynst my maister, & slue hym. But who slue al these? Learne here, that ther shal fall vnto the earth nothyng of the worde of s<sup>on</sup> the Lord whiche he spake concernynge the house of Ahab. For s<sup>on</sup> the Lord hath brought to passe the thynges s<sup>on</sup> he spake by the hande of his seruaunt * Elisha. And so Jehu slue all s<sup>on</sup> remayned of the house of Ahab in Jezrael, & all that were great with hym, & his knylfolkes & preastes, so y<sup>et</sup> he let nothing of him remayne. And he arose & departed, & came to Samaria. And when Jehu was in the waye to the house where s<sup>on</sup> shepherdes dyd there they: there, he met wth the brethren of Ahaziah kyng of Iuda, & sayd what are ye? They answered, the brethren of Ahaziah are we: & go downe to salute the chyldren of s<sup>on</sup> kyng & the quene. And he sayd: take them alyue. Whome when they had taken them alyue, they slewe them at the well whiche was besyde the house where s<sup>on</sup> shepe are shosen, euen lxx. men, nryt her left he any of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met wth Jehonadab the son of * Rechab comyn agaynst hym. And he blessed hym, & sayd to hym: is thynne hert ryght, as my herte is true with thynne? And Jehonadab answered: y<sup>et</sup> it is: * (yf it be, sayd he) then gyue me thynne hande. And when he had gyuen hym his hande, he toke hym vp to hym in the charet, & sayd: come with me, and se s<sup>on</sup> zeale that I haue for the Lord: & so they made hun ryde in his charet. And whē he came to Samaria, he slue al that remayned vnto Ahab in Samaria, tyl he had wryte hym out, accordyng to the sayng of the Lord whiche he spake to Elisha. And Jehu gathered al the people togther, & sayd vnto them: * Ahab serued Baal a lytle: but Jehu shall serue hym more. Now therefore call vnto me al the prophetes of Baal, all suche as serue hym, & all his prestes & let none be lacking. For I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: & therefore who so euer is mysted, he shall not lyue. But Jehu dyd it for a subtyltye, to thynke y<sup>et</sup> he myght destroy the seruantes of Baal. And Jehu sayd proclayme an holy conuocation for Baal, & Jehu sent vnto all Irael. And al the seruantes of Baal came, that there was not a man left behynd that came not. And they came into s<sup>on</sup> house of Baal, & the house of Baal was full from one ende to another.

And he sayd vnto hym that was the keyer of the vestre: brynge forth garmentes for all the seruantes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And when Jehu wente with Jehonadab the son of Rechab into the house of Baal he sayde vnto the seruantes of Baal: seache and loke, that there be here with you none of the seruantes of the Lord, but the seruantes of Baal onely. And when they wente in to offre sacrifice and burnt offering, Jehu appoynted epyghte lxxx. men without, and sayde: If any of the men who I haue brought vnder your handes, escape he that letteth go, shall dye for hym.

I And it fortuned, þe assone as he had made an ende of offeryng the burnt sacrifice, Jehu sayde to the men of warre, and to the captaynes: go in and slep the, let none come out. And they smote them with þe edge of the swerde. And the men of warre and the captaynes cast them out, & wet vnto the cite of the temple of Baal, & fet the ymages out of the temple of Baal & burnt them. And they brake þe ymage of Baal, & brake þe house of Baal, & made a draft house of it vnto this day. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But fro the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel to synne, Jehu departed not neither fro folowynge of them <sup>neither for to take he</sup> the golde calves that were in Bethel and in Dan.

III. xx. 25-6 And the Lord sayde vnto Jehu: because thou hast done ryght well in bypnyngye to passe the thyng that is right in myne eyes, and hast done vnto the house of Ahab accordyng to all thynges that are in myne heart, therfore shall thy children vnto the fourth generacion syt on the seate of Israel. But Jehu cared not for this, to walk in the lawe of the Lord God of Israel with all his herte, for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam, which made Israel to synne.

III. xx. 25-6 In those dayes the Lord began to cut Israel wythe: * and Hazael smote the in all the coastes of Israel, fro Jordan eastwarde, euen all þe land of Silad, the Gadites, þe Rubenites, and the þe were of Manasses, from Aroer vnto the ryuer Arnon: euen Silad and Basan. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehu, and all that he dyd, and all his power, are they not wyrtten in the booke of Chronicles of þe kynges of Israel? And Jehu slepte with his fathers, and they buried hym in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his sonne raygned in his stede. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria is. xxviii. yeres.

The. xi. Chapter.

Athalia putted to death all the kynges sonnes except Jehoas the sonne of Hosiah, which is bydorn and after her death is made kyng.

A And Athalia þe mother of Ahaziah when she saw þe her son was deed she arose, and destroyed all the kynges seed. But Jehoab the daughter of king Joas, & syster to Ahaziah toke Joas þe son of Ahaziah, & slede hym fro among þe kynges sonnes þe were slayne, & his nource wth him, out of a sleppynge chābre, and hyd hym from Athalia þe he was not slayne. And he was wth her hyd in the house of the Lord lxx. yere. An Athalia dyd raygne ouer the lande.

* And the kyng of Assyria came vp thow rowe out all the lande, and gat vp agaynst Samaria, and beleaged it thre yere. In the nyth peare of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria, toke Samaria, & carped Israel away vnto Assyria, & put the in Gala, in Habor by þ ruer of goza. & in the the cyties of Medes for it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lord theyr God, whiche had brought them out of the lande of Egypte: from vnder the hāde of Pharaoh kyng of Egypt & feared other gods. And they walked in the ceremonies of the hepten, whom the Lord cast out before the chyldren of Israel & in the ceremonies, which the kynges of Israel had made. And ychyldren of Israel went about to hyde thole thynges that were not wel, from the Lord theyr God. And they buylt them pylalters in all the cyties, both in the towres where they kepte watche, and also in the strong townes. And they made them ymages and groues in euery hye hyl, & vnder euery thycke tree. And there they burnt incense in all the pylalters, as dyd the heptē whom the Lord carped awaye before them) and wrought wicked thynges to angre the Lord withall. For they serued most vyle ydolles: wherof the Lord had sayde vnto them: * Ye shall do no suche thyng.

Deut. 10. 1

And the Lord testified in Israel and in Juda

Jer. 17. 1

by all the prophetes, and by al the sears sayeng: * *Turne from your wicked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and my statutes: accordyng to all the lawe which I commaunded your fathers, and which I sente to you by my seruantes the prophetes.* Notwithstandyng, they wolde not heare, * but rather hardened theyr neckes, lyke to the stubburnes of theyr fathers, that dyd not beleue in the Lord theyr God. For they refused his statutes and his appoyntment that he made with theyr fathers, and the witnesses, wherwith he witnessed vnto them) and they folowed vanitie, and became vayne, and went after hepten that were rounde aboute them: concerning whom, the Lord had charged them, that they shoulde not do lyke them. But they left the commaundementes of the Lord theyr God: & made them ymages of metall, * euen two calves and made groues, and worshipped all the hoste of heauen and serued Baal. * And they sacrificed theyr sonnes and theyr daughters in fyre, & vsed wycheecraft and enchauntementes: euen sellynge themselves to worke wickednesse in the syght of the Lord, and to angre hym.

De. 17. 1

11. reg. 1. 1

And the Lord was exceeding wroth with Israel & put them out of his syght, * that there was left but the trybe of Juda only. Neuerthelesse, Juda also kepte not the commaundementes of the Lord theyr God, but walked in the ceremonies of Israel which they made. And the Lord cast vp all the sede of Israel, and vered the, and deliuered the into the handes of spoylers, vntill he had cast the out of his syght. For Israel deuised to themselves from the house of Dauid, & made them a kyng, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And Jeroboam drew Israel awaye (that they woulde not folowe the Lord, and made the same a great syn: for ychyldren of Israel walked in al the synnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not therefro, vntill the Lord put Israel awaye out of his syght, as he had sayde by all his seruantes the prophetes.

And so was Israel carped away out of theyr owne lande, to Assyria, euen vnto this daye.

And the kyng of Assyria brought men from Babylon, fro Cutha, fro Aua, from Hanath, & from Sepharuaim, and put the in the cyties of Samaria, in stede of ychyldren of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, & dwelte in the cyties therof. And it fortuneth, that the beginning of their dwelling there they feared not the Lord. And the Lord sent Lyons amonge the, wherby sheweth the wherefore, men sayde to the kyng of Assyria. The nations which thou hast translated, & put in the cyties of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the god of the lande, therfore he hath sent Lyons vpon the, & behold, they slepe the. because they knowe not the maner of worshipping of the god of the land.

Then the kyng of Assyria commaunded sayeng: carie thither one or twayne of the prestes whom ye brought thence, and let the go & dwell there, and teache them the fashyon how to serue the god of the countrey. And thā one of the prestes which they had carped thence came & dwelt in Bethel, and taught them howe they shoulde feare the Lord. Howbeit, euery nacion made the goddes of theyr owne, and put them in the houses of the pylalters, which the Samaritans had made. every nation in theyr cyties, wherin they dwelt. The men of Babylon made Socoth Benoth: and the men of Cuth made Mergal: and the men of Hanath made Asima. The Anites made Abibaz, & Ephraim: And the Sapharmites burnt theyr chyldren in fyre for Adramelech, & Anamelech the goddes of Sepharuaim. And so they feared the Lord & made the prestes of the pylalters, which sacrificed for them in the houses of the pylalters. And so they feared the Lord, & serued their owne gods after the maner of the people: whom they carped thence.

And vnto this day they do after the olde maner: neyther feare God, neyther do after theyr ordinaunces and customes, & alter the lawe and commaundement which the Lord commaunded the chyldren of Jacob, & whom he called Israel. And the Lord made an appoyntment with them, and charged them, sayeng: * feare none other gods, nor bowe your selues to them, nor serue the, nor sacrifice to the. but feare the Lord which brought you out of the lande of Egypte with greate power, and a stretched out arme: hym feare, and to hym bowe, and to hym do sacrifice. The statutes ordynaunces, lawe, and commaundement whiche he wrote for you, le that ye be diligent to do for euermore: and feare not any other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made wth you, le ye forget not & feare none other goddes: but the Lord your God ye shall feare, & he shal deliuer you out of the handes of al your enemyes. Howbeit, they dyd not hearken, but dyd after their old custome. And so these nations feared theyr Lord and serued theyr ymages also: lyke as dyd theyr chyldren, and theyr chyldrens chyldren. Euen as dyd theyr fathers so do they vnto this daye.

The xviii. Chapter.

The kyng of Juda putteth downe the dyaken serpent, and destroyeth the ydolles. Salmansar bringeth Israel to the Assyrians. The blasphemous of Sennacherib: or Sancherib.

In the

In the thyrde yere of Hosea, sonne of Ela kyng of Israel, it came to passe, that Hezekia the sonne of Adaz kyng of Iuda reygned. * Twenty and fyue yere olde was he when he began to reygne, and reygned. xxi. yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name also was Abi the daughter of zacharia, & he dyd that whych is ryght in the syghte of the Lorde, accordynge to all as dyd Dauid hys father. * He put awaye the hylalters, and brake the ymagis, and cut downe the groues, and all to brake the bzalen serpent that Moyses hadde made. For vnto those dayes the children of Israel did burne sacrifice to it, & he called it Nehustan. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel: so that after hym was none lyke hym amonge all the kynges of Iuda, nether were there any such before hym. For he claued to the Lorde and departed not from hym, but kepte hys commaundementes, whych the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the Lorde was wth hym: so that he prospered in all thynges, whych he toke in hãde.
And he rebelled agaynst the kyng of Assyria, and serued hym not. He smote the Philistines euen vnto Gaza, and the coastes therof, both castles where they kept watches: & stronge cyties.
* And in the fourth yere of kyng Hezekia (whiche was the senenth yere of Hosea, sonne of Ela kyng of Israel, it fortuneth, that Salmanazar kyng of Assyria, cam vp agaynst Samaria, and besieged it. And after thre yeres, they toke it: euen in the sytte yere of Hezekia:
that is to saye, the nynt yere of Hosea kyng of Israel. And Samaria was wonne. And the kyng of Assyria dyd carie awaye Israel vnto Assyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor by the ryuer of Golan, and in the cyties of the Medes: because they wolde not hearken vnto þe voyce of the Lorde theyr God: but transgressed hys appoyntment, and al that Moyses þe seruant of the Lorde commaunded, and wolde neyther heare them nor do them.

* Therefore, in the. xiii. yere of kyng Hezekia dyd Sennacherib kyng of Assyria come vp agaynst all the stronge cyties of Iuda, and toke them. And Hezekia kyng of Iuda sente to the kyng of Assyria to Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended: departe from me and all that thou put-test on me, that will I beare. And the kyng of Assyria appoynted vnto Hezekia kyng of Juda thre hundred talentes of syluer, and xxx. ta-lentes of golde. * And Hezekia gaue hym al the syluer that was founde in the house of þe Lorde, and in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same season dyd Hezekia rent of the dores of the temple of the Lorde, and the pylers, whych the sayd Hezekia kyng of Iuda had couered ouer, and gaue them to the kyng of Assyria.

And the kyng of Assyria sent Tharthan & D-Rabaris, and Rablake from Lachis to kyng Hezekia wth a great host, agaynst Ierusalem.
And they went vp, and cam to Ierusalem, and gat them vp, and stode by the condyte of the upper poole, whych is in the wape of the fullers felde. And when they had called to the kyng, there came out to them, * Eliakim the sonne of Eliakim whych was the warde of houlholde, and Sobna the scribe, and Ioah the sene of Isaph the recorder. And Rablake sayd vnto the Teller Hezekia I praye you thus sayest the grete kyng, euen the grete kyng of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou hast? Doest thou speake such a lyght worde in dede? By counsell and power I will be ready to make warre on whom thou doest thou trust, that thou rebellest agaynst me? doest thou trust to þe staffe of the broken reede of Egypte, on whych þe a man leane, it will goo into hys hande, and pearce it. Euen so is Pharaos kyng of Egypt vnto al that trust on hym. * If þe saye vnto me we trust in the Lorde our God: Is not that he whose hylalters and hys other alters, Hezekia hath put downe, and hath sayd to Iuda and Ierusalem: ye shall worshyp before this altare here in Ierusalem.

Nowe therefore, deliuer þe wardes to my lord the kyng of Assyria, that ye rebell not, & I will deliuer þe two thousande horses of þou be able to set ryders vpon them. Why thinkest thou to scorne at the presence of one of the least dukes of my masters seruautes, and trustest to Egypt for charrettes and horsemen? Moreover, am I nowe come wythout the byddynge of the Lorde to this place, to destroye it the Lorde saye to me go vp to hys lande, and destroye it. And He-liakim the sonne of Eliakim and Sobna, and Ioab sayd vnto Rablake speake (I praye the, to thy seruautes in the Assyrians language, for we vnderstande it and talke not wyth vs in the Jewes tonge, in the cares of this people þat are on the wal. And Rablake said vnto them: hath my master sent me to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes? hath ye not sente me because of the men whychelyt on the wal, þat they maye eat theyr owne donge, and drynke theyr owne pylle wyth you?

And so Rablake stode, & cryed wyth a loude voyce in the Jewes language, & spau, sayeng.
Hearc the sayenge of the grete kyng of Assyria Thus sayest the kyng. let not Hezekia begyle you, for he wall not be able to deliuer you oute of my hande: neyther let Hezekia make you to trust in the Lorde, sayenge the Lorde wall surely deliuer vs & this cite shal not be geue ouer vnto the hande of the kyng of Assyria. Herke not vnto Hezekia, for thus sayth þe kyng of Assyria Weale kyndly wyth me, and come out to me And the eate euery man of hys owne vyne, & of hys owne fygge tree, and drynke euery man of

of the kyng of Assyria? Where is the God of

But they that were of the people helde theyr was the Guarde of household, & Sob-Amoz. And they sayd vnto hym, thus sayth Hezekia: thys daye is a daye of tribulacion and of rebuke, and blasphemye. For the chyldren are come to the byrch, and ther is no strength to be deliuered peradventure, the Lord thy God wyl heare all the wordes of Rabshake, whom y<sup>e</sup> kyng of Assyria hys master hath sent, to rayle on the lypynge God, and to rebuke hym with wordes whych the Lorde thy God hath herde. And lyft thou vp thy prayer for the remaunte y<sup>e</sup> are left: So the seruantes of kyng Hezekia came to Isay And Isay sayd vnto them, So shal ye scape to your master: Thus sayeth the Lorde, be not afraid of the wordes whych thou hast herde, wh-ych the poynte men of the kyng of Assyria haue rayled on me. Beholde, I wyl put y<sup>e</sup> in in

E And Rabshaach wente backe agayne, and founde the kyng of Assyria fyghtynge against Libna for he had herde how y<sup>e</sup> he was departed from Lachis. And when he hearde men saye of Thirhaka kyng of the blacke Moors: Behold he is come out to fyght against the, he departed & sent messengers vnto Hezekia sayenge. Thus speake to Hezekia kyng of Iuda sayeng let not thy God disceine the in whom thou trustest, say-enge: Ierusalem shall not be deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast hearde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue utterly destroyed them. And shalt thou (alone) escape?

Haue the goddesses of the hepythen deliuered them whych myne alicestries haue destroyed: As So-zan, and Haran, Reseph, and the chyldren of Eden whych were in Babilasat: where is y<sup>e</sup> kyng of Hamath and the kyng of Arphad, y<sup>e</sup> kyng of the cite of Sepharuaim, and of Hena & Iua

So Hezekia receyued the letter of the hande of the messengers, & redde it. And Hezekia went vp into the house of the Lorde, & layed it abrode before the Lorde. And Hezekia prayd before the Lorde, and sayd: O Lord God of Israel, whych dwellest betwene the Cherubs, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earth: thou hast made heauen and earth. Lord howe downe thynne care, and beare. Open Lorde thynne eyes (I beseech the) and se: & heare the wordes of Sennacherib whych hath sent thys man to rayle on the lypynge God. O a truly Lorde, the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed nations and theyr la-des, and haue set fyre on theyr goddesses. For they were no goddesses, but the worke of the handes of man, euē of wood and stone. And they destroyed them. Nowe therefore, O Lorde oure God, I beseeche the, saue thou vs out of hys hande, that all the kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou onely arte the Lorde God. And Isai the sonne of Amoz sente to Hezekia sayenge: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: that whych thou hast prayed me, concernynge Sennacherib kyng of Assyria I haue hearde it. This is therefore the worde that the Lorde hath sayd of hym: The virgynne euen the daughter of Sy-on, hath despyled the, and laughed the to scorn, (O thou kyng of Assyria) the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her heade at the. * Whome hast thou rayled on, and whome hast thou blas-phemed: Agaynst whome hast thou exalted thy voyce, and lyfted vp thynne eyes to hye. Euen a-gaynst the holy of Israel. By the hande of the messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde, and sayd: with the multitude of my charrettes I am come vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, and wyl cutte downe the hye Cedar trees, and the lustre fyre trees therof: and I wyl go into the lodgynge of hys nest, & into the wood of hys playne: I haue dugged, and dronke straunge waters and with the steppe of my goynge wyl I drye al the water pooles that are besieged.

were all deade coozſes. * And ſo Sennacherib kyng of Aſſyria auoyded and departed, & went agayne and dwelt at Ninue. And it fortuneth that as he was in a temple worſhyppynge Aſ-roch hys god, Adramelech and Sarczar hys they eſcaped into the lande of Armenia, and A-

The xx. Chapter.

Hezekia ſpake, and receyued the ſigne of hys health.
He receyued rewardes of Berodach, and is repred-ented of Iſay, becauſe he ſhewed hym the treaſure he had, and Maſſe hys ſonne raygned in hys ſteade.

But that tyme * was Hezekia ſpake vnto death. And the prophete Iſay þ ſonne of Amoz came to hym, & ſayde vnto hym Thus ſayeth the Lord: put thy houſhold in an ordze, for thou ſhalt dye, and not lye. And Hezekia turned hys face to the wall, and prayed to the Lord, ſayenge: I beſeeche the nowe, O Lord, remembre howe I haue walked before the in truth and wyth a purpote herte, and haue done that whiche is good in thy ſyghte: and Hezekia wepte ſore.

And it fortuneth, that afore Iſay was gone out into the myddle of the courte, þ worde of the Lord came to hym, ſaynge: turne agayne, and tell Hezekia the captayne of my people: Thus ſayeth the Lord God of Dauid thy father: I haue herde thy prayer, and ſene thy teares. And beholde, I wyl heale the ſo that on the thyrde daye, thou ſhalt go vp into the houſe of þ Lord And I wyl adde vnto thy dayes yet ſyftene yeare, and wyl deliuer the and thys cylie out of the hande of the kyng of Aſſyria, and wyl defende thys cylie for myne owne ſake, & for Da-uid my ſeruautes ſake. And Iſay ſayd: Take a lompe of ſygges. And they toke it and layed it on the ſore: and he recouered.

And Hezekia ſayd vnto Iſay: what ſhal be the ſigne that the Lord wyl heale me, and that I ſhal go vp into the houſe of the Lord þ thyrde daye? Iſay answered: this ſygne ſhalt thou haue of the Lord, that the Lord wyl do that he hath ſpoken. * Shall the ſadowe go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? Hezekia answered: it is a lyght thyng for þ ſadowe to go downe ten degrees: (neither is that my wyſe) but yf the ſadowe go backwarde ten degrees, it is no lyght thyng. And Iſay the prophete called vnto the Lord, * and he broughte the ſa-dowe ten degrees backe warde by whiche it had gone downe in the ſpall of Ahas.

* The ſame ſeaſon Berodach Baladai the ſonne of Baladai kyng of Babylon, ſent letters and a preſent to Hezekia, for he had hearde howe that Hezekia was ſpake. And Hezekia was glad of them, and ſhewed them al hys trea-ſure houſe ſyluer, golde, odours, precious ſynt-ment, al the houſe of hys armour, and al that was founde in hys treaſures: there was nothyng in hys houſe, and in al hys realme, that Hezekia ſhewed them not.

And Iſay the prophete came vnto kyng Hezekia, and ſayd vnto hym: What ſayd theſe me and from whence came they to the? And Hezekia by altars for Baal, and made groves as dyd Ahab kyng of Israel, and worshipped al the host of heauen and serued them. And he buylte altars in the house of the Lorde, of whiche the Lorde sayd: * In Jerusalem wyl I put my name. And he buylte altars for all the host of heauen: euen in the court of the house of the Lorde. * And he offered hys sonnes in fyre, and gaue hede vnto witchcraft and sozerpe, and maintayned workers with spirites and tellers of fortunes: and brought much wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde to angre him.

W And he put an ymage of a grove (that he had made, euen in the temple, of whiche the Lorde had sayd to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne, * in thys house, and in Jerusalem: (whych I haue chosen out of all crybes of Israel) wyl I put my name for euer. Nepther wyl I make the cite of Israel moue any more out of the lande, whiche I gaue theyr fathers: so that they wyl obserue and do all that I haue commaunded them: and accorpyng to al the lawe that my seruaunt Moyses commaunded them. But they hearkened not, and Manasse led them out of y way, to do more wyckedly then dyd the hepten people, whome the Lorde destroyed before y children of Israel.

C And the Lorde spake by hys seruauntes the prophetes, sayenge. bycause Manasse kyng of Iuda hath done such abominacions, and hath wrought more wyckedly then all that the Amorytes, which were before him dyd: I hath made Iuda synne also wyth hys Idolles. Therefore, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel. * Behold I wyl bringe suche euell vpon Jerusalem and Iuda, that wyl so heareth of it, both hys eares shall tynge. And I wyl stretch ouer Jerusalem, the square lyne of Samaria, and the plomet of y house of Ahab. And I wyl wypp out Jerusalem, as a man wyppeth a dyste, & whyle he hath wypped it, tourneth it vpsyde downe. And I wil leaue the remanent of myne inheritaunce, and deliuer them into the hande of theyr enemyes, & they shal be robbed and spoyled of all theyr aduersaries, euen bycause they haue done euell in my syght, and haue angred me, syns the tyme theyr fathers came out of Egypt vntyl this day.

D And Manasse shed innocent bloude exceeding much, tyll he replenished Jerusalem from corner to corner, besyde hys synne where wyth he made Iuda to synne, and to do euyl in the syght of the Lorde.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Manasse, and all that he dyd, and hys synne that he synned: are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And Manasse slept with his fathers, and was buryed in hys owne house, euen in the garden of Gisa: and Amon hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

Amon was. xxi. yere olde, whē he began to raygne, and he raygned two yere in Jerusalem. hys mothers name also was Mesulmeth the daughter of Harum of Iotba. And he dyd euil in the syght of the Lord (as hys father Manasse dyd, and walked in all the waye that hys father walked in, and serued the Idolles & hys father serued and worshipped them. And he forsoke the Lorde God of hys fathers, and walked not in the waye of the Lorde.

And the seruauntes of Amon conspyred agaynst hym, & slue the kyng in his owne house. And the people of the lande slue al them that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon, and the people made Josia hys sonne kyng, in hys stede. The rest of the wordes that concerne Amon, what thynges he dyd: are they not wyrtten in y boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And they buryed hym in hys sepulchre, in y garde of Gisa, and Josia hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

The. xxi. Chapter.

After Josia hearde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Saphan the prophete for counsell.

Josia was. xxiij. yere olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned. xxiij. yere in Jerusalem. hys mothers name also was Jedida y daughter of Adaia of Bozath. He dyd that whych is ryght in the syght of the Lorde, and walked in al the wayes of Dauid hys father: and bowed nepther to the ryght hande, or to the lefte.

* And it came to passe, that in the. xviij. yere of the raygne of kyng Josia, the kyng sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia the sonne of Mesulmeth the scribe to the house of the Lord, sayenge. * go vnto Helkia the hie prest: that he may summe the spluer whych is brought into y house of the Lorde, whych the keepers of the porche haue gathered of the people, and let them deliuer it into the hande of them that do the worke, and that haue the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde, and let them gyue it to them that worke in the house of the Lorde: (to repayre the decayed places of the temple) euen vnto carpenters and masons, and workers vpon the walles: and for to buye tymbre, and fre stone to repayre the temple. Howbeit, let no rekenyng be made wyth them of the money that is deliuered into theyr hande for theyr vse is to deale faythfully.

* And Helkia the hie prest sayd vnto Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe of the house of the Lorde, and Helkia gaue the boke to Saphan, and he red in it. And Saphan the scribe came to the kyng, and brought hym worde agayne, & sayd thy seruauntes haue bestowed the money (that was founde in y temple:) and haue deliuered it vnto the that do the worke, and that haue y ouer syght of the house of the Lorde. And Saphan y scribe shewed the kyng, sayenge: Helkia the prest hath deliuered me a boke. And Saphan red in it before y kyng.

And it fortuneth, y when the kyng had herd the wordes of the boke of the lawe, he rente hys clothes. And the kyng commaunded Helkia the prest, and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, & Achobor the sonne of Michala, and Saphan y scribe and Asahia a seruaunt of the kynges, sayenge: * go ye and enquire of the Lord for me, and for the people, and for all Iuda, concernyng y wordes of thys boke that is founde. For great is y wrath of the Lorde that is kyndled agaynst vs, because our fathers haue not hearkened vnto the wordes wordes of thys booke, to do accordynge vnto all that whych is wyrtten therein for vs.

D So Helkia the hye preest and Ahikam, Ich-bor & Saphan, and Asahia went vnto Hulda & propheteſſe the wyfe of Sullam, the ſonne of Chikua, the ſonne of Harhan keeper of & ward-rope: whych propheteſſe dwelt in Jeruſalem in the houſe of the doctrine, and they communed wyth her. And ſhe answered them: thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſrael: Tell the man & ſente you to me, thus ſayth the Lorde: behold, I wyl brynge euell vpon thys place, and on the inhabiters therof: (euē al & wordes of the booke whych the kyng of Iuda hath red) becauſe they haue forſake me, & haue burnt incenſe vnto other god-des, to anger me wyth all the workes of theyr handes. My wrath alſo ſhal be kindled againſt thys place, and ſhall not be quenched.

But to the kyng of Iuda (whych ſent you to aſke counſell of & Lorde) ſo ſhal ye ſay: thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſrael, as touchynge the wordes whych ye haue hearde: Becaule thynne herte did melt: & becaule thou haſt humbled thy ſelfe befoze me the Lorde, whē thou herdſt what I ſpake agaynſt thys place, & agaynſt the inhabi-tters of & ſame, how & they ſhuld be deſtroyed & accuſed: and haſt rent thy clothes, and wept befoze me: of that alſo haue I herde, ſayeth the Lorde: Beholde, therfoze I wyl receyue the vnto thy fathers, and & ſhalt be put into thy graue in peace, and thynne eyes ſhal not ſee all the euell, whych I wyl brynge vpon thys place. And they brought the kyng worde agayne.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

Josia readeth Deuteronomy befoze the people. He put tebboone & holles: after he had killed the preſtes ther-of. He ſpeeth of Baſtemour. He was killed in Agagebo, and hys ſonne Jehoahaz captured in hys ſtede. After he was taken, hys ſonne Jehoahaz was made kyng.

Ad then the kyng ſent, & there gathered vnto hym al the elders of Iuda & of Jeruſalem. And the kyng went vnto & houſe of & Lorde, whal the men of Iuda and al the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, with & preſtes & prophetes, & al the people both ſmal & great. And he red in the eares of al & all the wordes of & booke of & conenāt: which was founde in the houſe of the Lorde. And & kyng the Lorde, they & ſhulde walke after the Lorde, & kepe hys comaūdemētes, hys wytnelles, and hys ſtatutes, wyth all theyr herte, and all theyr ment & were wyrtten in the forſayd booke. And all the people conſented to the appoyntment.

25 And the kyng comaūded Helkia & hye preſt and the inferiour hye preſtes, and the keepers of the ornamentes, to brynge out of the temple of the Lorde, all the veſſelles that were made for Baal, for the groues, and for all the hoſte of heauen. And he burnt them wythoute Jeruſalem in the feldeg of Cedron, & carped the aſhes of them into Bethel. And he put downe & myn-ſters of Baal, whō the kynges of Iuda had fouded to burne incenſe in the & pylaulters & cyties of Iuda, that were rounde about Jeruſalem: & alſo them & burnt incenſe vnto Baal, to & ſune to the moone, to the planettes, & to all the hoſte of heauen. And he brought out the groue ſed the temple of the Lorde wythout Jeruſalem vnto the broke Cedron, & burnt it there at the broke Cedron, & ſtampt it to powder, & caſte the duſte therof vpon the graues of the chyldren of & people. And he brake downe the cilles of the males ſtues that were by the houſe of the Lorde, where the women woue hangyngeſ for the groue.

And he brought all the preſtes out of the cy-ties of Iuda, and deſpiled the pylaulters where the preſtes had burnt incenſe: euen from Geba to Beerſeba. and deſtroyed the aulterſ of the gates, that were in the entreynge in of the gate of Joſua the gouernour of the cytie whych were (as a man goeth in) on the left hande of & gate of the cytie. & euertheleſſe the preſtes of the pylaulterſ came not vnto the aulter of the Lorde in Jeruſalem, ſaue only theyr bydeat of & ſwete

And he deſpiled & Topheth whych is in the valley of the chyldre of hummyn, becauſe no mā ſhulde offre his ſonne or his daughter in frye to Molech: he put downe the horſes & the kynges of Iuda had gyuen to the ſunne at the entreynge in of the houſe of the Lorde, by the chābze of Ra-thanmelech, the chambrelayne whych was ruler of the ſuburbes, & burnt the charrettes of the ſunne wyth fyre. And the aulterſ that were on the toppe of the parloure of Aha: whych & kynges of Iuda had made) and the & aulterſ whych of the Lorde byd & kyng brake downe & rāne theyre. & caſt & duſt of them in the broke of Cedron

And the pylaulterſ that were befoze Jeruſa-

& whych Salomon the kyng of Iſrael hadde buiyded for Aſharoth the Idoll of the ſidons, and for Chamos the Idoll of the Moabites, & for Milchom the abhominable Idoll of the chyldren of Ammon) thoſe the kyng deſpiled: and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, & fylled theyr places wyth the bones of men.

Moreover the aulter that was at Bethel, the pylaulter made by Jeroboam, & ſon of ſabat (whych made Iſrael ſpune) both the aulter & alſo the pyl. he brake downe and burnt & pylaulter and ſtampt it to powder, and burnt the groue. And as Joſia turned hym ſelfe, he ſpyed the graues, that were in the mount, and ſente & fet the bones out of the graues, and burnt them vpon the aulter to polute it, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde that the man of God pro-

Then he ſayde what graue ſtone is yonder is the ſepulchre of the man of God, whych came from Iuda, and tolde & ſelfe ſame thynges that thou haſt done to the aulter of Bethel. And he

And he sacrificed all the prestes of the high alters he were there, euen upon the alters, and burnt mens bones upon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

E And the kyng commanded all the people, sayinge. * kepe the feaste of passeouer vnto the Lorde your God, as it is wrytten in the booke of this couenaunte. * There was no passeouer holden lyke that from the dayes of the Judges that iudged Israel, and in all the dayes of the kynges of Israel, and of the kynges of Juda. In the xviii. yere of kyng Josia was this passeouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

And therto workers with spyrites and soothsayers, ymages, ydols, & all the abhominacyes that were espyed in the lande of Juda and Jerusalem, those dyd Josia put out of the way, to performe the wordes of the lawe which were wrytten in the booke of Helkia the prest found in the house of the Lorde. lyke vnto hym was there no kyng before hym, that turned to the Lord with all his hert, with all his soule, and al his myght accordyng to all the lawe of Moses, neyther after hym arose there any suche as he.

Notwithstandyng, the Lorde turned not fro his fearcenelle of his great wrath (where with he was angry agaynst Juda) because of all the prouocations that Manasse had prouoked hym withall. And the Lorde sayd. * I wyl put Juda also out of my syght, as I haue done awaye Israel: and wyl caste of this cite Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen, and the house of which I sayde: my name shalbe there.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Josia, and all that he dyd: are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda?

E In his dayes Pharaos Necho kyng of Egypt went vp agaynst the kyng of Assyria to the ryuer Euphrates. And king Josia went agaynst hym, and was slayne of hym at Magiddo, where he had sene him. And his seruantes caried him dead from Magiddo, and brought hym to Jerusalem, and buryed hym in his owne sepulchre. And the people of the lande, toke Jehoahaz, the sonne of Josia, and annoynted hym, and made hym kyng in his fathers stede.

E Jehoahaz was. xxiij. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Hamiel the daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euill in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all thynges as his fathers had doone. And Pharaos Necho put hym in bondes at Ribla in the lande of Hamath, & he shulde not raygne in Jerusalem, and put the land to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer, and a talent of gold. And Pharaos Necho made Eliakim the sonne of Josia kyng in the roome of Josia his father: and turned his name to Jehoachim, and toke Jehoahaz away, which when he came came to Egypt, dyed there.

And Jehoachim gaue the syluer and the gold to Pharaos, and taxid the lande, to gyue the mo Jehoachim was xxiij. yere old when he began to raygne, & he raygned. xi. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Iebuda the daughter of Bedaia of Rama. And he dyd that which was euill in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all thynges, as his fathers had done.

The. xliii. Chapter.

E Jehoachim dyed. Jerusalem is besieged of the Babyloynians. Jehoachim perished by the hande of the kyng of Babylon. And in his roome came Zedekiah which was called Zedekiah.

In his dayes came Nabuchodonozor, kyng of Babylon vp, and Jehoachim became his seruant thre yere, and then turned, and rebelled agaynst him. And the Lorde sent vpon hym men of warre from amonge the Caldees from amonge the Syrians out of the Moabites, and from the chyldren of Ammon: and sente them agaynst Juda, to destroye it, accordyng to the saying of the Lorde which he spake by his seruantes the prophetes. Onely at the byddyng of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put them out of his syght, for the synnes of Manasse, accordyng to all that he dyd, and for the innocent bloude that he shed, and spyled Jerusalem with innocent bloude: and the Lorde wolde not be reconcyled.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehoachim and all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in the booke of Chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And so Jehoachim slepte with his fathers: and Jehoachin his sonne raygned in his stede. And the kyng of Egypt came nomore oute of his lande: for the kyng of Babylon had taken fro the ryuer of Egypt, vnto the ryuer Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kyng of Egypt. Jehoachim was eyghtene yere olde, and raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes. His mothers name also was Iebusta, the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he did that which was euill in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all as his father had done. * In the tyme came the seruantes of Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babylon vp agaynst Jerusalem, and the cite was besieged. And Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babylon came agaynst the cite, and his seruantes dyd besiege it. * And Jehoachim the kyng of Juda came out to the kyng of Babylon, he and his mother, his seruantes, his lordes, and his chambelaynes. And the kyng of Babylon toke hym in the eyght yere of his raygne.

* And he caried out thence all the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasure of the kynges house: and brake all the vessels of gold, whiche Salomon kyng of Israel had made in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lorde had sayde. And he caried awaye all Jerusalem, and all the lordes, and all the stronge men of warre, euen ten thousande into captiuitie: and all craftesmen and keepers, none remaynyng save the poore commen people of the lande.

And

D * And he carped away Jehoachin to Babilon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, his chāberlaynes, and them that were myghty in the lande: those carped he awaye into captiuite from Ierusalem to Babilon. And all the actyue men of warre, enen, vii thousand and crafts mē & porters a. ¶ all y were strong and apt for war, dyd f kyng of Babilon bring to Babilon captiue. * And the kyng of Babilon made Mathania hys fathers brother, kyng in his steade & chaunged his name to zedekia.

And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all as Jehoachin had done. For y wyath of y Lorde was moued agaynst Ierusalem and Iuda vntyll he cast th: in out of his syghte. And zedekia rebelled agaynst the kyng of Babilon.

The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ Ierusalem is besieged of Nabuchodonosor, otherwyse called Nabuchadnezzar, and it & the temple are both burnt. The sonne of zedekia here escape by the waye, and after are his owne spees put out. Iuda is brought to Babilon, & after is Jehoachin recalled.

Jer. l. l. d. 11. a.

And it fortuneth, * that in y nyethe yere of his raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth: Nabuchadnezzar kyng of Babilon came he and all his host agaynst Ierusalem and pitched agaynst it: and made engyns agaynst it on euery syde. And the cite was besieged vnto the eleuenth yere of kyng zedekia. * And the nynti daye of the moneth, ther was so great hunger in the cite that there was no bread for the people of the lande.

Jer. l. l. d. 11. a.

* And the cite was broken vp: and all the men of armys fledde by nyghte, by a waye thorow a gate, whiche is betwene two walles by the kynges gardyne: the Chaldees spenge a-boute the cite.

14

And the kyng went the waye towarde the playne. And the souldyers of the Chaldees folowed after the kyng, and toke hym in the playne of Jericho, and all hys armye were scattered a waye from hym, on (and left hym.) So they toke the kyng, and brought hym to Nebuchadnezzar the kyng of Babilon to Babilon, where they reasoned wth hym. And they slewe the sonnes of zedekia before hys eyes: and he put out the eyes of zedekia, & fettered hym wth two chaynes and carped hym to Babilon.

15

And the. vii. daye of the. v. moneth whiche is the. xxi. yere of kyng Nebuchadnezzar kyng of Babilon, came Nabucadadan a seruaunt of the kyng of Babilon, and chefe captayne of y men of warre, vnto Ierusalem: and burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house and all the houses of Ierusalem, and all greate houses burnt he with fyre. And all the souldyers of the Chaldees that were wth the chefe captayne of the men of warre broke downe the walles of Ierusalem round about. But the rest of the people that were left in the cite, & them that were fled to the kyng of Babilon, w the remnant of the comen people, dyd Nabucadadan the chefe captayne of the men of warre carpe away: but the captayne of y souldyers left of the poore of the lande to dreffe the vynges: & to tpe the lande.

* And the pylers of brasse that were in the house of the Lorde, and the sockets, and the brasen lauatoz y was in the house of the Lorde dyd the Chaldees breake, and caried all the brasse of them to Babilon. And the porters, howels, dyel syng knyues, spones, & all the vessels of y brasse that they mynistered in, toke they awaye. And y fyre pannes, & basens, & such thynges as were of golde, and of siluer, them toke the chefe Captayne awaye: enen two pylers, one lauatoz, & the sockets whiche Salomon had made for the house of y Lorde. The brasse of all these vessels was without waighte. The heygth of the one piler was. xvi. cubytes, and the heade thereon was brasse, and the cubytes hye & vpon y head was there a wretche worke and pomegranates rounde about, all of brasse. And of the same fashion was the second piler, w a wretche worke.

And the chefe captayne of the men of warre toke Sarai the chefe wyche, & zephoniah the best preste saue one, and the thre keepers of the holy thynges. And out of the cite he toke a chāberlayne, that had the ouersyght of the men of warre, and v men of them that were cuer in the kynges presence, whiche were founde in y cite: and hym that was scribe to the captayne of the host, whiche brought out the people of the lande to warre, and thre score men of the people of the lande, that were founde in the cite. And Nabucadadan the chefe captayne of the men of warre toke these, & brought them to the kyng of Babilon to Babilon. And y kyng of Babilon smote them, & slue them at Babilon in y hand of Hanath. And so Iuda was caried away out of their land.

And there came of the chyldren of Ben Jamin and Iuda to the holde vnto David. And David went out to mete them, and answered and sayd vnto them: Plese become peaceably vnto me, to helpe me, myne heart shalbe knyt vnto you. But and yf you come to betraie me to myne aduersaries (seing there is no wpykednesse in myne handes) the God of our fathers loke thereon, and rebuke it. And the spyrte came vpon Amasai, whiche was the chiefe amonge thyrte, and he sayd thynne are we David, and on thy syde thou sonne of Ilat: * Peace, peace be vnto the, and peace be vnto thynne helpers, for thy God is thy helpe. Then David receyued them, and made them bedes of companyes of the men of warre.

And there fell some of Manasse to David, when he cam to the Philistines agaynst Saul to battayl, * but they helped them not. For the lordes of the Philistines toke a displement, and sent hym a waie agayne, sayinge. he wyl fall to his master Saul to the iopardye of our bedes. As he went to Azikleg, there fell to hym of Manasse: Adna, Josabad, Jechiel, Michael, Josabad, Eliu and Jithai, bedes of the thousandes that hat were of Manasse. And they holp Dauid agaynst the toiers. For they were all myghty men of warre, and captaynes in the hoost. For at that tyme there came one or other to Dauid, daye by daye to helpe him: vntyl it was a great hoost, lyke the hoost of God.

And this is the nombze of the chiefe captaynes that were prepared to battayl, and came to Dauid to Hebron to tourne the kyngdome of Saul to hym, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

The chyldren of Iuda that bare shylde and speare were syxe thousande and eyght hundred readye prepared to the warre. Of the chyldren of Simeon men of myght to warre, seuen thousande and one hundred. Of the chyldren of Leui foure thousande and syxe hundred. And Jehoiada was the chefe of them of Aaron: and with hym thre thousande and seuen hundred. And Zadok a yonge man stronge and valpant, and of his fathers housholde. xxi. capitaynes. And of the chyldren of Ben Iamin the brethze of Saul thre thousande. And a great parte of them (dyd vnto that tyme) folowe the house of Saul.

And the chyldren of Ephraim: xx. thousande and eyght hundred myghty men of warre, and famous men in the housholde of theyr fathers. And of the halfe trybe of Manasse. xvi. thousande, which were appoynted by name to come and make Dauid kyng. And of the chyldren of Issachar whiche were men that had vnderstandynge in the eyght tyme, to knowe how to commaunde what Israel ought to do. The heedes of them were two hundred, and all theyr brethren were at theyr wyll. And of Zabulon that went out to battayle, and proceded forth to the war: with all maner instrumentes of warre, fyfthe thousande that were prepared to the war with out any doubtenesse of herte. And of Nephtali a thousande captaynes, and with them whiche shylde and speare xxxvii. thousande. And of Dan prepared to battayle. xxviii. thousande and syxe hundred. And of Asser that went out to warre and kept the forefront of the battayle, fourthe thousande. And of the other syde of Jordan of the Rubenites and Gadites, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse with all maner of instrumentes of war, a hundred and twentye thousande.

All these were men of warre, keepynge the forefront of the battayle with perfect herte, & came to Hebron to make Dauid kyng ouer al Israel. And all the rest of Israel was of one accorde, to make Dauid kyng. And there they were with Dauid. six. dayes eatynge & drynkynge, for theyr brethren had prepared for the. Moreover they were nye the vntyl Issachar, Zabulon and Nephtali brought breed on asses, camels, mules, & oxen and meate flour, fygges, reysynge, wyne and oyle, ore & shepe abundantly. For there was lope in Israel.

The xlii. Chapter.

The arke is brought agayne from Kariatih Jearim to Ierusalem. Uza (otherwyse called Oza) dyeth.

And Dauid counsailed with the capitaynes of thousandes and hundredes, and with all the lordes, and sayd vnto all the congregacion of Israel: If it seme you good, and to be of the Lorde our God we will take ad sende vnto oure brethren, that are left in all the lande of Israel: and with them also, to the preestes and Leuites whiche are in theyr cyties and suburbes, to gather them togyther vnto vs. And we will bypunge agayne the arke of the Lorde to vs, for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the congregacion was content that he shoulde do so, for the thing semed good in the eyes of all the people.

So Dauid gathered all Israel togyther fro Sihor in Egypt, vnto the entrynge of Hemath, to bypunge the arke of the Lorde from Kariatih Jearim. And Dauid went vp and all Israel to an hye place towardes Kariatih Jearim, that was in Iuda, to fet thence the arke of the Lorde God that dwelleth betwene the cherubes wher his name is called on. And they carped the arke of God in a newe carte out of the house of Abinadab. And Uza and his brother gnyded the cart. And Dauid and all Israel played befoze the arke of God with all theyr myght, with syngeynge and harpes, psalteryes and tymbrels and trompettes. And when they came vnto the thersynge floore of Chidon, Uza put forth his hand to hold the arke, for the oxen were a litle wyche. And the Lorde was wroth with Uza, & smote hym, because he put his hande to the arke. And there he dyed befoze God. And Dauid was out of quyet, because the Lorde had rent a rente in Uza, and he called the name of that place the rentynge of Uza vnto this daye. And Dauid was afrayed of God that daye, sayng howe shall I bypunge the arke of God home to me? And so Dauid brought not the arke home to hym to the cytie of Dauid: but carped it into the house of Obed Edom a Gethiee. And the arke of God remayned with Obed Edom, euen in his house: thre monethes. And the Lorde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and all that he had.

The xlii. Chapter.

Othiam senteth wood and workemen to Dauid, whiche hath two wyfes of the Philistynes.

Othiam the kyng of Tyre sent messengers to Dauid, and tymbre of Cedre trees, with masons and carpenters to buylde hym an house. And Dauid perceyued that the Lorde had confirmed hym kyng vpon Israel, and that his kyngdom was lye vpon hye, because of his people Israel. And Dauid toke yet mo wyues at Ierusalem, and begat mo sonnes and daughters. These are the names of his chyldren whiche were borne vnto him at Ierusalem: Hamon, Hozab, Nathan and Salamon: Ithar, Elisua & Eliphalet, Roza, Repheg & Iaphia, Elisama, Belinda, and Eliphalet. And when the Philistynes hearde that Dauid was annointed kyng vpon Israel: all the Philistynes went vp to seke Dauid. And Dauid herde of it, and went out agaynst them. And the Philistynes came in, and prauced thow: the valey of Rephaim. And Dauid asked counsaile at God, saynge. Shall I go agaynst the Philistynes, and wylt thou deliuer them in to myn hande? And the Lorde sayd vnto hym:

I. v. go vp,

go'vp, for I wyl deliuer them into thyn hand. And so they came vp to Baal Perazim and Dauid smote them there. And Dauid sayde: God hath deuyded myne enemyes with myne hande as a man wolde deuyde water. And therfore they called the name of that place: Baal Perazim. And when they had left their goddes there Dauid gaue a commaundemente, & they were burned with fyre.

D And the Philistines came togyther agayne, & rushed into the valleye. And Dauid asked agayne at God. And God said to him: go not vp after them, but turne away fro them, that thou mayest come vpon them ouer agaynst the paretrees. And when thou hearest a sounde goo in the toppes of the paretrees, then go out to battayle: for God is gone forth befoze the, to smite the host of the Philistines. Dauid therfore did as God commaunded hym: and they smote the host of the Philistines from Gibeon to Gazer. And the fame of Dauid went out into all landes: and the Lorde made all nacions feare hym.

The xv. Chapter.

The Levites byng the arke as it is Dauid daunt syng befoze it, as occupied of hym wylf saythol.

D And Dauid made hym houses in the cytye of Dauid, and prepared a place for the arke of God, and pitched for it a tente. Then Dauid sayde: the arke of God ought not to be caried, but of the Leuytes. For them hath the Lord chosen, to beare y<sup>e</sup> arke of the Lord, and to mynistr vnto hym for ever. And Dauid gathered all Israel togyther to Jerusalem to fetch the arke of the Lord vnto his place which he had ordeyned for it.

And Dauid brought togyther the chyldren of Aaron and the Levites. Of the sonnes of Cahath was Uzziel the chiefe, and of his brethren there were an hundred and twenty. Of the chyldren of Merari, Asaia the chiefe: and of his brethren two hundred and twenty. Of the sonnes of Gerson, Joel the chiefe: and of his brethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Elisaphan, Semaria the chiefe: and of his brethren two hundred. Of the sonnes of Hebzon, Eliel the chiefe, and of his brethren. lxxx. Of the sonnes of Uzziel, Aminadab the chiefe, and of his brethren an hundred and twelue.

A And Dauid called Zadock and Abiathar the prestes and the Levites, Uzziel, Asaia, Joel, Semia, Eliel, and Aminadab: and sayd vnto theye that are the principall fathers of the Levites: that ye be holpe with your brethren, that ye maye byng in the arke of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it: For because ye were not there at first, y<sup>e</sup> Lord our God made a tente amonge vs, for that we sought hym not, as the fashion ought to be. So the prestes & the Levites sanctified them selues to fet the arke of the Lorde God of Israel. And the chyldren of the Levites bare the arke of God vpon their shoulders wth staves thereon, as Moses commaunded: according to the worde of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde.

C And Dauid spake to the chiefe herdes of the Levites, that they shoulde appoynt certayne of theye brethren to syng with instrumentes of musycke, psalteries, harpes and cymbales: that they myght make a sounde, and to syng of hym with ioyfullnesse: And the Levites appoynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and of his brethren, Asaph the sonne of Serachia and of the sonnes of Merari and of theye brethren: Etthan y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Chusaiabu. And with them theye brethren of the seconde degree: zachariahu, Ben Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Anni, Eliab, Semanahu, Maasias, Mathathahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniah, Obed Edom, and Jaiel porters. So Heman, Asaph and Etan the syngers made a sounde wth cymbales of brasse, And zachariahu, Izziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Anni, Eliab, Maasiah, & Manasiah played with psalteries on an Alamoth. Mathathahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniah, Obed Edom, Jaiel and Azariah played vpon harpes an eyght above, with courage. And Ehenaniahu the chiefe of the Leuytes, was master of the song, for he taught other to syng, bycause he was a man of vnderstandynge.

D Serachia and Elcana kepte the doore of the arke. And Semanahu, Jehosaphat, Athanahel Amasai, zachariahu, Manasiah, and Eliezer, the prestes byd blowe with trumpettes befoze the arke of God. And Obed Edom and Jehia, were the keepers of the doore of the arke.

A And Dauid and the elders of Israel and the captaynes ouer thousandes, went to fet y<sup>e</sup> arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of y<sup>e</sup> house of Obed Edom with gladnesse. And when God helped the Levites that bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, they offered seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Dauid had on hym a linnen garment, lyke as had also all the Leuytes that bare the arke, and so had the syngers & Ehenania the ruler of the songe with y<sup>e</sup> syngers. And Dauid had vpon him an Ephod of lynn. And all they of Israel broughte the arke of the Lordes couenaunt with shoutyng and blowyng of the shawme and trumpettes, mayng a noyse with cymbales, psalteries and harpes.

And as the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the cytye of Dauid, Michol the daughter of Saul looke out at a wyndowe, sawe kyng Dauid daunsyng and playng, and she dyspyed hym in her herte.

The xvi. Chapter.

Dauid ordeyned Asaph and his brethren to mynistr befoze the Lorde. And hym sette parfectly the Lorde of Israel.

S Other brought in the arke of God, & set it in the myddes of the tente, that Dauid pitched for it, and they offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerings befoze God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offeringe the burnt offerings and peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde. And he dealt to all Israel (both man and woman) a cracknell of bread, and a good pece of fleshe, and a flacket of wyne.

And he appoynted certayne of the Leuytes to mynistr befoze the Lorde, and to repete and to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israel. And Asaph

And Asaph was the chefe, and next to hym Zacharia, Jehiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel Mathathia <sup>II. reg. vi. b.</sup> Eliab, Senaia, * Obed EDOM, and Jehiel with psalteries and harpes. But Asaph made a sonde withymbales. Banaiahu and Jahaziel preestes, blew with trompettes continually before the arke of the couenaunt of God.

And that same tyme David dyd appoynt the hym to thanke the Lord by Asaph and his brethren <sup>psal. ciii. a</sup> * O gyue thanks vnto the Lord, call vpon his name, make his actes known among the people. <sup>II. reg. vi. b.</sup>

Synge vnto hym, and playe vnto hym: talke of all his wondrous dedes. Reioyse in his holy name. let the hartes of them that seke the Lord be glad. Seke the Lord and his strength: seke his presence alwaye.

Remembre his maruayles whiche he dyd, and his wonders, and the iudgements of his mouth. The seed of Israel are his seruantes the chyldren of Jacob are his chosen. He is the Lord our God, in all landes are his iudgements.

Thynke on his appoyntement for euer. (and on the worde which he commaunded to a thousande generations) whiche he made with Abraham, and of his oth to Isahac: whiche he set before Jacob for a decree, and to Israel for an everlasting couenaunt, saying: to the wyll I gyue the lande of Chanaan, to be the porcyon of your euerlasting taunce. When ye were fewe, and small in nombre, and sojourners therein. And they walked from nation to nation, and from one kyngdom to an other people. He suffered noman to do them wronge: but rebuked euen kynges for their sake. Touch not myne annoynted, and domy Prophetes no harme.

E* Synge vnto the Lord all the earth, and let hym from daye to daye his name to be knowne.

Tell of his glorie amonge the heathen: his wondrous dedes amonge all nations.

For great is the Lord, and worthy to be praised exceedingly: he is to be feared aboue al gods.

For all the goddes of the people are of no value. But the Lord made heauen.

Prayse and honour are in his presence: strength and gladnesse are in his place.

Ascrybe vnto the Lord ye hundredes of people: Ascrybe to the Lord, glorie and dominion. Ascrybe vnto the Lord the glory due vnto his name: bringe sacrificies and come before hym, and worshippe the Lord with holy honour.

Let all the earth feare hym, although the ende of the earth so be stablished that it can not be moued: let the heauens reioyse, and lette the earth be glad, and let men tel amonge the nations, that the Lord is kyng.

Let the see thundze, and the fulnesse thereof: let the feldes reioyse and all that is therein.

Then shall the trees of the wood reioyse at the presence of the Lord, because he cometh to iudge the earth: O gyue thanks vnto the Lord for he is good, for his mercy endureth for euer: and saye ye: saue vs (O God) of our saluacion, gather vs together, & deliuer vs from amonge the depthes, & we maye gyue thanks to thy holy name, & triumph in the prayse of the. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel for euer and euer: and let all people saye: Amen: and prayse the Lord.

And so he left there before the arke of the Lord Des couenaunt Asaph and his brethren, to minister before the arke continually, in suche thynges as were to be done daye by daye: <sup>II. reg. vi. b.</sup> and that by their courses. And Obed EDOM and his brethren thre score and eght: and Obed EDOM the sonne of Jeduthun, and Hosa, were appoynted to be porters. And Zadok the preest and his brethren the preestes, were before the Tabernacle of the Lord, in the hye place that was at Gibeon, to offer burnt offrynges vnto the Lord, vpon the burnt offring alter perpetually, in the morning and euening: accordyng vnto all that which is wyrtten in the lawe of the Lord, which he commaunded Israel. And with them were Heman, and Jeduthun, & other that were chosen (whose names were exprest) to gyue thanks to the Lord, that his mercy lasteth euer. And with them dyd Heman and Jeduthun synge with the trompettes andymbales, makinge a sweet melody with instruments of musyke and goodlye songes. And the sonnes of Jeduthun were porters. And all the people departed, euery man to his house: & David returned to blesse his house.

The xviii. Chapter.

David is forbidden to buye an house: vnto the Lord. Chast is promysed vnto the Lord: a rest of Salomon.

And it fortuneth, that when David dwelt in his house, he sayd to Nathan the Prophete: lo, I dwell in an house of Cedar tree, but the arke of the Lordes couenaunt remaineth vnder curtaynes: And Nathan sayde to David: do all that is in thynne hart for God is with the. <sup>II. reg. iii. a</sup>

And the same tyme it fortuneth, that the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: goo, and tell David my seruante, thus sayth the Lord: thou shalt not buyde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house, syns I daye I broughte oute the chyldren of Israel vnto this daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habytacyon to an other. And whersoeuer I haue walked with all Israel, spake I euer one worde to any of the iudges of Israel (whom I commaunded to fede my people) sayinge: why haue ye not buyde me an house of Cedar trees? Now therefore thus shalt thou saye vnto my seruante David: thus sayth the Lord of hostes: I toke the cote of the paltures when thou wentest after shepe, that thou that thou shouldest be capitayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue bene with the whither soeuer thou hast walked, and haue wedded oute all thyne enemyes out of thy sight, and haue made the a name, lyke the name of one of the greatest men that are in the earth. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Israel, & made it fast, so that now they may dwell in thyr place, and in one nomore: Neyther shal the chyldren of wickednesse bere them any more, as at the begynnyng: And syng the tyme that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel: I haue subdued all thyne enemyes, and I told the, that the Lorde wolde buyde the an house.

C Thus also shal come to passe: when thy dares be expyed, that thou must go vnto thy fathers: I wyl rayse vpy thy seed after the, which shal be of thy sonnes, and wyl prepare for hym a kyngdome: he shal buyde me an house, and I wyl stablysh his seate for euer: I wyl be his father, and he shal be my sonne: and I wyl not take my mercy awaye from hym, as I toke it from hym that was before the. But I wyl set hym in myne house, and in my kyngdome for euer: and his seate shal be sure for euermore.

According to all these wordes, & accordyng to all this visio, did Nathān king Dauid. And Dauid the kynge came and sat before the Lorde and sayd: what am I O Lorde God, and what is myne householde, that thou hast promoted me thus farre? And yet this seemed lytle in thyn eyes, O God: But thou hast also spoken of thy seruautes house, for a great whyle to come: and hast looked vpon me as vpon a man of hye degree, (O Lorde God.) What wai Dauid desyre more of the for the honour of thy seruaunt? O Lorde, for thy seruautes sake, eue accordyng to thyn owne herte. I ast thou done all this magnificence to the we all great thinges. Lorde, there is none lyke the: neyther is there any god saue thou: accordyng to all that we haue herde with our eares. Moreouer, what nation on the earth is like thy people Israel, to whom God hath vouchsafed to come and redeeme them to be his owne people, and to make thy name of an excellencie and terriblenesse, with castyng out nations from before thy people, whome thou hast deliuered out of Egypt.

D Thy people Israel dyddest thou make thyn owne people for euer, and thou becamest the Lorde God. Therefore nowe Lorde, let the thyng that thou hast spoken concernyng thy seruaunt and his house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou hast sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name maye be magnified for euer, that it may be said the Lorde of hostes is God of Israel (euen the God of Israel) and the house of Dauid thy seruaunt endureth stable before the. For thou (O my God) hast told thy seruaunt, that thou wilt buyde hym an house. And therefore thy seruaunt hath founde in his herte to praye before the. And nowe Lorde thou art God, and hast prompted this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Nowe therefore, let it be thy pleasure, to blesse the house of thy seruaunt, that it maye contynue before the for euer. For whom thou blessest (O Lorde) the same is blessed for euer.

The xviij. Chapter.

C The bartayle of Dauid agaynst the Philistines.

After this it fortuned, that Dauid smote the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke Geth and the townes that * longed thereto, oute of the hand of the Philistines. And he smote Moab, and the Moabites became Dauids seruautes, and payed hym trybute. And Dauid smote Hadarezer kynge of zoba vnto hanath, as he went to stablysh his dominion by the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from hym a thousand charettes, and seuen thousand horsemen, and twenty thousande fotemen: and lamed all the charethorses, and reserued of them an hundred charettes. And when the Syrians of Damascus came to helpe Hadarezer kynge of zoba: Dauid slue of the Syrians xxii. thousand, and Dauid subdued Syria Damascus. And the Syrians became Dauids seruautes & brought hym trybute. And the Lorde preserved Dauid in all that he went to.

And Dauid toke the sheldes of golde that were on the seruautes of Hadarezer, & brought them to Ierusalem. And from Tebath, and from Chun (cyties of Hadarezer) brought Dauid exceedinge moche brasle. Wherewith Salomon made the brasen lauatoire: * the pylers and the vessels of brasle.

And when Tou kynge of Hemath herd how Dauid had beaten all the strength of Hadarezer kynge of zoba, he sente Haduran his sonne to kynge Dauid, to make peace with hym, and to blesse hym, bycause he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, and beaten hym (for Tou had warre with Hadarezer) and Dauid brought al maner iewels of golde, syluer and brasle with hym. And kynge Dauid dedicated them vnto the Lorde, with the syluer and golde that he brought from all nations: from Edom, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from Amalecke. And Abisai the sonne of Zeruia slue of the Edomites in the salte valleye. xviij. thousande, and put souldyers in Edom, and all the Edomites became Dauids seruautes. Thus the Lorde kept Dauid in all that he toke in hande.

And Dauid raygned ouer Israel, and executed iudgemente and ryghte eulnesse amonge all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zeruiah was ouer the host. And Jehosaphat the sonne of Achilud recorder and Zadock the sonne of Abitob, and Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the preestes: and Sausa was scrpbe, and Banaiabhu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Trethites and Phelites: and the eldest sones of Dauid were next vnto the kynge.

The xix. Chapter.

C Benon kynge of the sonnes of Ammon doth great iniury to the seruautes of Dauid.

After this it chaunced, that * Nabasthe kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & his sonne raygned in his stede. And Dauid sayd and sayde: I wyll shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon the son of Nahas: because his father delt kyndlye with me. And Dauid sente messengers to comforte hym ouer the death of his brother.

And the seruantes of Dauid came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon to Hanon, to comforte hym. But the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd to Hanon: thyngkest thou that Dauid doth honoure thy father in thy syght: that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Are not his seruantes come to search, to loke & spyre out p lade?

25 Wherefore Hanon toke Dauids seruantes <sup>and putte them</sup> and shaued them, & cut of theyr cootes harde by theyr buttocks, and sent them away. And there wente certayne and tolde Dauid, howe the men were serued. And the kynge sent to mete them: for the men were excedyngely ashamed) and the kynge sayd: tary at Jericho, vntyl your beerdes be growen: & then retourne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they stanke in the syght of Dauid, Hanon and the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousande talentes of syluer to hyre them charrettes and horsyn out of Mesopotamia and out of Siria, Maacha, and out of zoba. And they hyred. xxxii. thousande charrettes, and the kynge of Maacha and his people, which came and pitched before Moba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered the selues together fro theyr cyties, and came to batayl. And when Dauid herde of it, he sent Joab and all the hooft of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and put them selues in aray to battayle before the gate of the cite. And the kyngees that were come, keppe them by them selues backe in the felde.

C When Joab also sawe that the front of the battayle was agaynst hym before and behynde he chose out al the chosen men of Israel, and put them in aray agaynst the Sirians. And y rest of the people he deliuered vnto the hande of Abisai his brother, & they put them selues in aray agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayde: If the Sirians be to stronge for me, thou shalt succour me: and if the chyldren of Ammon preuaile agaynst the, I wyll helpe the: Blucke by thyne hert, and let vs play the men: for our peoples sake and for the cyties of our God, and the Lorde shall do that which is good in hys owne syght. So Joab and the people that were with him: dreyne nye before the Sirians vnto the battayle, and they fledde before hym. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Sirians were fled, they ranne awaye lyke wyse before Abisai hys brother, and gate them into the cytie. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

D And when the Sirians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers and fet out the Sirians that were beyond the ryuer, and Sopbach the capayne of y hooft of Hadarezer wente before them. And it was tolde Dauid: and he gathered all Israel, & went together ouer Jordan, and came & set vp against them. And when Dauid had put hym selfe in aray agaynst the Sirians, they fought wyth hym. But the Sirians fled before Israel. And Da-uid destroyed of y Sirians seuē thousande charrettes, and. xl. thousande foremen, & kylied Sopbach the capayne of the hooft. And when the seruantes of Hadarezer, sawe that they were put to y worse before them of Israel, they made peace with Dauid, and became his seruantes. Neither wolde the Sirians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

The. xx. Chapter.

C The thre most vycious battayles of Dauid.

And it cam to passe, that after y yere A was expired * about the tyme that <sup>16. reg. xi. a</sup> kynges go out a warrefare: Joab <sup>16. reg. xi. a</sup> carped out the armie of the hooft, & <sup>16. reg. xi. a</sup> destroyed the countrie of the chyldren of Ammon, and came and beliged Rabba and destroyed it. But Dauid taryed at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabba and destroyed it. * And Dauid toke the crowne of theyr kynge <sup>16. reg. xi. a</sup> from of his heed, & founde that it had y weyght of a talent of golde, and there were precious stones in it, and it was ordeyned for Dauids heed. And he brought also excedyngely moche spoyle <sup>16. reg. xi. a</sup> out of the cytie. And he brought out the people that were in it, & tormented them with sawes, and barowes of yron, and with other warpe instruments, and so dealt Dauid with all the cyties of the chyldren of Ammon. And Dauid and all the people came agayne to Jerusalem. * <sup>16. reg. xi. a</sup> After this it fortuneth, that there arose warre at Gazer with the Philistines. ### The. xxi. Chapter.

C Dauid causeth the people to be nombred: and there be. lxx. thousande men of the prillence.

And Sathan stode vp agaynst Israel A and prouoked Dauid to nobze Israel. And Dauid sayd to Joab and to y rulers of y people: Go ye and nobze Israel fro Beerseba to Dan, and bryng it to me: I may know the nobze of them. And Joab answered: the Lord make his people an hundred tymes so many as they be. But my lord, what king are they not all my lordes seruantes? why thā doth my lord requyre this thyng? why wyll my lord be a cause of trespassse to Israel.

Nevertheless, the kyngees worde preuailed agaynst Joab. And Joab departed and walked thorow out all the land of Israel, and came to Jerusalem agayne, & gaue the nombze of y compt of y people vnto Dauid. And all they of Israel were were a thousande, and an hundred thousande men that drewe swerde: and Juda was. cccc. lxx. thousande men that drewe swerde. But the Leuites and Beniamin counted he not among them. For the kynges worde was abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was displeased with this thyng, and smote Israel. And David sayd vnto God. I haue sinned exceedynge in doinge this thyng. And now (I beseeche the) do awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruaunte, for I haue done very foolyshe.

B And the Lord spake vnto Gad Dauides sear, sayinge go and tell Dauid, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lord: I geue the the choyse of thre thynges. chole the one of them, that I maye do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and said vnto him. Thus sayth the Lord: Choic the eyther thre peaces sampliment, or thre monthes to be destroyed before thynne aduersaries, and the swerde or thynne enemyes maye ouertake the, or els the swerde of the Lord and pestilence in the lande thre dayes and the aungel of the Lord destroying thowout all the coostes of Israel. And now aduise thy selfe, what worde I shal bypunge agayne to hym that sente me. And Dauid sayd vnto Gad: I am in an exceeding strait. Let me fall now into the hande of the Lord, for paynunge greete are his mercyes, but let me not fall into the hande of men.

C So the Lord sent pestilence vpon Israel and there were overthrowe of Israel. lxx. thousande men. And God sent the aungell into Jerusalem to destroy it. And as he was about to destroy the Lord behelde, and had compassion on the people and sayd to the aungel y destroyed it is ynough let now thy hande ceasse. And the aungell of the Lord stood by the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyft vp his eyes, and sawe the angell of the Lord stand betwene the earth and heauen, harynge a drawen swerde in his hande, stretched out towarde Jerusalem. Then Dauid and the elders of Israel, whiche were clothed in sacke, fel vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded the people to be nombred? It is I that haue synned and done euill in dede, & what haue these shepe doner? Let thynne hande (O my God) be on me and my fathers house, but not on thy people that they shoulde be punished.

And the angel of the Lord commaunded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shoulde go vp, and set vp an alter vnto the Lord in the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid went vpp accordynge to the sayinge of Gad, which he spake in the name of the Lord. And Ornan turned about, and sawe the angel, & his foure sonnes were with hym, and byd them selues: But Ornan was threshynge wheat. And as Dauid came to Ornan, Ornan looked and sawe Dauid and went out of the threshynge floore, & bowed hym selfe to Dauid with his face to the ground.

B And Dauid sayd to Ornan: geue me y place of the threshynge floore, that I maye buylde an aultare therein vnto the Lord. Thou shalt geue it me for as moche moneye as it is worth, that the plage maye cease from the people. And Ornan sayd vnto Dauid: take it to the, and let my lord the kyng do that whiche semeth good in his eyes: lo, I geue the oren also for burnt sacrifices, and the threshynge sledes for wood, and wheate for meatoffryng. I geue it all. And kyng David sayd to Ornan not so: but I wyl bye it for as moche moneye as it is worth. For I wyl not take that which is thynne for the Lord nor offere burnt offrynges without cost.

And so David gaue to Ornan for that place sicles of golde. vi. hundred by wayght. And Dauid buylde there an aultare vnto the Lord, and offered burnt offrynges and peace offrynges, and called vpon the Lord, and he herde him fro heauen in fyre vpon the aultare of burnt offryng. And when the Lord had spoken to the aungel, he put vp his swerde agayne into the sheath of it: At that tyme when Dauid sawe that y Lord had herde hym in the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite, he vled to offere there. For the Tabernacle of the Lord whiche Moses made in the wyldernesse, and the aultare of burnt offryng were at that season in the byll at Gibeon. And Dauid could not go before it to aske counsaile at God, for he was afrayed of the swerde of the Aungell of the Lord.

The xxii. Chapter.

David's wylleth his sonne Salomon to buylde the temple of the Lord: whiche thyng he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

A And David sayde. this is the house of the Lord God, and this is the aultar for the burnt offryng of Israel: And Dauid commaunded to gather together the straggers that were in the lade of Israel, and he set masons to hewe free stone for the buyldynge of the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentye of yron for nayles, and doxes of the gates, & to ropie wyth al and aboundance of brasse without wayght, and Cedre trees without nombre. For the zidias and they of Tyre broughte moche Cedar wood to Dauid. And Dauid sayd: Salomon my sonne is younge and tender, and the house that is to be buylde for the Lord, must excede in greatnesse that it maye be spoken of, & praysed in al landes. I wyl therefore make ordinaunce for it. And so Dauid prepared many thynges before his death.

And he called Salomon his sonne, and charged hym to buylde an house for the Lord God of Israel. And Dauid sayde to Salomon my sonne, I thoughte (as it was in myne herte) to buyld an house vnto the name of the Lord my God. But y worde of the Lord came to me sayyng. thou hast shed moche bloude, and hast made great battayles: thou shalt therefore not buylde an house vnto my name: for thou hast shed moche bloude vpon the earth in my sight. Beholde, a sonne is borne to the, and he shal be a man of rest, for I wyl geue hym rest from all his enemyes rounde about. For his name is Salomon: and I wyl sende rest & peace vpo Israel in his dayes. He shall buylde an house for my name, and he shall be my sonne, and I wyl be his father, and wyl prepare the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. Nowe therefore my sonne, the Lord

Lord be with the, and prosper the, and þ shalt buyld the house to the name of the Lord, thy God: as he hath sayd of the. And the Lord shall gyue the wysdome & vnderstandynge, and shall gyue the commaundementes for Israel, that ye maye kepe the lawe of the Lord thy God. For then thou shalt prosper: euen when thou takest dede, and fulfyllist the statutes & lawes whiche þ Lord charged Moyses with for Israel. Plucke vp thyne herte therfore, and be stronge, drede not, noz be discouraged. Beholde, in myne aduersite haue I also prepared for the house of þ Lord, an hundred thousande talentes of golde, & a thousande thousande talentes of syluer, & as for brasse and yron it cannot be nombred, for it is verye moche. And I haue prepared tymbre & stone, & thou mayst proupe more therto. More ouer, thou hast workmen with the ynough, and masons, and carpenters to worke in stone and tymbre, and many men that be actiue for euery worke. And of golde, syluer, brasse, and yron, there is no nombre. Up therfore, and be doynge, and the Lord shall be with the.

And David commaunded all the lordes of Israel to helpe Salomon his sonne, sayynge: Is not the Lord your God with you? & hath he not gyue you rest on every side: for he hath gyue the inhabitours of þ land into my hand, and the land is subdurd before the Lord and before his people. Nowe therfore set your hertes and soules to seke þ Lord your God. Up, & buyld ye þ temple of the Lord God to bring þ arke of the couenant of the Lord and þ holy vessels of God into the house so buyld for the name of the Lord.

And Abitophel was of the kynges counsaile. And husai the Gachyte was the kynges com-

The xxviii. Chapter.

Because Dauid was forbidden to buyde the temple, he charged Salomon and the people to perforce it.

And Dauid gathered togyther all the lordes of Israel: the lordes of the tribes, the lordes of the companyes that mynystrd to the kyng by course, the captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes, & the lordes that had the ouersyght ouer al the substaunce & possession of Dauid, his sonnes, with the chamberlaynes: all the myghty & valyaunt and all actyue men vnto Jerusalem. And kyng Dauid stode vp vpon his fete, and sayd.

Heare my brethren and my people. * I had in my herte to buyde an house of rest for the arke of the couenaunt of the Lorde, and for the foote stole of our God, and had made redy for y buydyng. But God sayd vnto me * thou shalt not buyde an house for my name, because thou hast ben a man of warre, and hast shed bloude. And ouer, the Lorde God of Israeli * chose me before all the house of my father, to be kyng ouer Israeli for euer, for in Juda wolde he chose a captayne, and of the householde of Juda is the house of my father, and amonge the sonnes of my father he had a lust to me to make me kyng ouer all Israeli. And of all my sonnes (for the Lorde hath gyuen me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne to syt vpon the seate of y kyngdome of the Lorde in Israeli. And he sayd vnto me. * Salomon my sonne, he shall buyde me an house & courtes, I haue chosen hym to be my son and I wyl be his father. I wyl stablysh his kyngdome for euer. If he wil be stronge to do my commaundementes & my lawes, as it goeth this day: Now therfore in the syght of all Israeli the congregacion of the Lorde, & in the audyence of our God kepe and seke for all the commaundementes of the Lord your God, that ye may enioy a good lande, and leaue inheritaunce for your chyldren after you for euer. And thou Salomon my sonne knowe thou the God of thy father, & serue hym with a pure herte, and with a swete courage. * For the Lorde searcheth al hertes, and vnderstandeth all the ymagynacions of thoughtes. And yf thou seke hym he wyl be founde of the. But yf thou forsake hym, he wyl cast the of for euer. Take hede now, for the Lorde hath chosen the, to buyde hym an house of a Sanctuary. Be stronge therfore, and playe the man.

And Dauid gaue Salomon his sonne the paterne of y porche (of the temple also) and of y houses that longed therto, of the store houses vpper chambzes, inner parlours, & of the house of y mercysseate: and the example of all that he had in his mynde, for the courtes of the house of the Lorde, and for all the celles rounde aboute, for the treasures of the house of God, & for the treasures of the dedycate thynges, & for the dyspensers of the preastes and Leuites that waityd by course, and for all the workemanship that shoulde serue for the house of the Lorde, and for al the vessels that

And Dauid sayd to Salomon his sonne: be stronge, and do manly, feare not, nor be faynte hearted: for the Lord God, euen my God, is wth the, and he shal not fayle the nor forsake the, vntill thou hast finished all the worke that muste serue for the house of the Lorde. Thou hast also Lordes and all the people for euery thyng that thou hast nede of.

The xxix. Chapter.

The offeringes of Dauid and of the priestes for the buyldynge of the temple Dauid deeth, and Salomon becomme raygneth in his steede.

And Dauid the kynge sayde vnto all the congregacion: * God hath he sprecally chosen Salom<sup>on</sup> my sonne which is yet yong and tendre, and the worke is greate: for the house shal not be for man, but for the Lorde God. Moreover, I haue prepared with al my might for the house of God, gold for vesselles of golde, syluer for them of syluer, brasse for thynges of brasse, prou for thynges of prou, and wood for thynges of wood and onix stones, and stones to be set, glysterng stones and of diuers coloure, and all maner of precious stones, and marble stones in greate aboundaunce. And because I haue luste to the house of my God: I haue of myne owne proper good, golde and syluer whiche I haue leuerally gyuen to the house of my God, besyde all þe I haue prepared for the holpe house, euen thre thousand talentes of gold of Ophir, and seuen thousand talentes of refined syluer to ouer laye the walles of the house wythall, the golde for thynges of golde, syluer for them of syluer, and for all maner of worke by the handes of artificers. And whosoever is wyllynge make thys daye consecrate hys hande vnto the Lorde.

And so þe auncient fathers and the lordes of þe tribes of Israel, the captaynes of thousandes & hundredes, wth the lordes that were rulers ouer the kynge's worke, were wyllynge, and gaue for the scrupce of the house of God, foure thousand talentes of golde, and ten thousand peces of golde, and ten thousand talentes of syluer and xviij. thousand talentes of brasse, and one hundred thousand talentes of prou. And they wth whom precious stones were founde, gaue them to the treasure of the house of the Lord, by the hande of Jehiel the Gersonyte.

And the people reioysed when they were so wyllynge to gyue theyr goodes, and with a perfect harte they offered vnto the Lorde. And Dauid the kynge reioysed wth greute gladnesse. And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregacion, and sayd Blessed be thou Lord God of Israel our father fro euer & for euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse and power, glorie, victory and prayse. for all that is in heauen and in earth is thine, and thine is the kyngdome (O Lorde) and thou excellest aboute all, euen as the heed of all. And nowe our God, we thanke the, & prayse thy glorious name. But who am I, and what is my people, that we shulde enforce oure selues to gyue these thynges so wyllynge? And Dauid sayde to all the congregacion: Nowe blisse the Lord your God. And al þe congregacion blessed the Lord God of theyr fathers, & bowed downe theyr heedes, and worshipped the Lorde and the kynge. And they offered offeringes vnto the Lorde. And on the morowe after the sayde day, they offered burnt offeringes vnto the Lorde, euen a thousande ponge aren, a thousand rammes, and a thousande sheepe, wth theyr drynkofferinges. ¶ And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge the seconde tyme, & anoynted hym prynce before the Lorde, and Zadoc to be the hie preast. 111. reg. ii. c. * And Salomon sat on the seate of the Lorde, and was kyng in seide of Dauid his father, and prospered: & all they of Israel obeyed hym. And all the lordes & men of power, and all the sonnes of kyng Dauid submitted them selues: and were under kyng Salomon. * And the Lorde magnified Salomon in dignitie, in þe syght of all them of Israel, & gaue hym so glouorous a kyngdome as no kyng had before hym in Israel. 111. reg. ii. d

¶ And so Dauid the son of Isap raygned ouer all Israel. ¶ The offering of Salomon in the hylaulter at Gibeon, to where he receyued an answer of God. what wysdome shulde be gauen hym with the nobye of his charytes and hoysmen.

¶ Ad Salomon the sonne of Dauid wared stronge in his kyngdome: and the * Lorde his God was with hym, & magnified hym in the dignitie. And Salomon spake vnto al Israel, to the captaynes ouer thousandes, to the captaynes ouer hundredes, to the iudges, & to every officer in al Israel, and to the auncient fathers. And so Salomon & all the congregacion with hym * went to the hie place that was at Gibeon, & for there was the tabernacle of þe witness of God * which Moyses the seruaunt of the Lorde made in þe wyldeynes. But the arke of God: had Dauid brought fro Hyrath Ieracim, into þe place whiche Dauid had prepared therfore. For he had pyched a tent for it at Ierusalē. Moreover, the brassen aulter * that Bezaleel the sonne of Uri the sonne of Hur had made, was there before þe tabernacle of þe Lorde. And Salomon & the congregacion went to visite it. And Salomō gat vp there before þe Lorde to the brassen aulter þe was before the tabernacle of witness, & * offered a thousande burnt sacrifices vpon it. And the same nyght dyd God appeare vnto Salomon, & sayd vnto hym: aske what I shall gyue the. And Salomon sayd vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercy vnto Dauid my father, and * hast made me to raygne in his stede. * Now therfore, O Lorde God, let thy promyse whiche thou madest vnto Dauid my father, be true. For thou hast made me kyng ouer a people whiche is lyke the dust of the earth in multitude: wherfore gyue me now wysedom & knowledge, that I may be able to go in and out before this people: for who els * woz they, can iudge this people that is so great? * And God sayd to Salomon: because this was in thyne herte, & because thou hast not asked treasure, ryches, & honour, and þe lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysedom & knowledge for thy selfe to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made þe kyng wysedom & knowledge is graunted vnto the, and I wyll gyue the treasure & ryches, and gloze: so that among the kynges that haue ben before the or after þe, none was or shal be like the. And so Salomon came from the hylaulter (that was at Gibeon) to Ierusalē, from the tabernacle of witness, & raygned ouer Israel. * And Salomon gathered the charytes & hoysmen: and he had a thousande & foure hundred charytes: and xii. M. hoysmen, whom he bestowed in the charyt cyties, & with the kyng at Ierusalē. And * the kyng made syluer and golde at Ierusalē, as plenteous as stoncs: and cedze trees made he as plente as the mulberry trees that growe in the valeys. & the hoyses whiche Salomon had, were brought hym out of Egypt by the kynges marchautes that were togyther, whiche beyng of one companye, toke them out at a pryce. They came also and brought out of Egypt a charet for syre hundred peces of syluer: euen an horse for an hundred and fyfye. And so brought they hoyses for all the kynges of the hechytes, and for the kynges of Spria by theyz owne hande.

The. ii. Chapter.

¶ Salomon embeth to Hiram the kyng of Tyre for wood and workemen.

* And Salomon sent to Hiram the kyng of Tyre, saying: As thou dyddest deale with Dauid my father, & * dyddest send hym Cedze wood to buylde hym an house to dwell in, euen so deale with me. For I am about to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to offre vnto hym holp thynges, and to burne swete incense, and to set shewbyrd before hym continually to offre offre burnt sacrifices for the morninge and euenyng: on the Sabbath dayes, in the fyrst day of euerie newe moone, and in the solempne feastes of the Lorde our God: for it is an ordinaunce to be continually kepte of Israell. And the house whiche I buylde shalbe grete, for great is oure God aboue all gods. But whos hable to buyde me tymbre ynough. For the house whiche I am determined to buylde shalbe wondrousfull great.

And beholde, for the vse of thy seruauntes þ cutters and the hewers of tymbre I haue gauen. xx thousande quarters of beaten wheate, and xx. thousande quarters of barley, and xx. thousande bates of wyne, & xx. thousad bates of oyle. And Hiram kynge of Tyre answered in wyrtynge whiche he sent to Salomon: Spcause the Lorde hath loued his people, therfore he hath made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayd moreouer blef-sed be the Lord God of Israell which made heauen and earth, and that hath gauen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne, & one that hath discretion, prudence and vnderstandyng to buyld an house for the Lorde, & a palace for hym selfe. And now I haue sent a wyse man, and a man of vnderstandyng (whom my father Hiram dyd vse) & the son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, & hys father was a man of Tyre, & he can skyl to worke wpth thy connyng men, and wpth the connyng fore the wheat and barley, oyle and wyne, whych my Lord hath spoken of, let hym sende vnto hys seruauntes. And we wyll cut wood in Libanon as muche as thou shalt nede, and wyll brynge it to the mounpps by the see to Japho, fro whence thou mayst carpe them to Ierusalem. And Sa-lomō nombred all the straungers that were in þ lande of Israell, after the nombre of them whom hys father Dauid had nombred. And they were founde an hundred and lii. thousande, and fyre hundred. And he sette lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and lxxx. thousande to hewe sto-fyre hundred officers to set the people a worke.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ The temple of the Lorde and the porche are buyl-ded, wpth other chynge. ycccco c. lxxviii.

And Salomō began to buylde þ house
of the Lorde at Ierusalem in mounte Moria* where (the Lorde) appeared vnto Dauid hys father, euen in the place þ Dauid prepared in the threshyng floure of Oman the Jebusite. And he * begā to buylde in the seconde daye of the seconde moneth & the fourth yere of hys raygne. And these are the paternes wherby Salomon was instruct to buyld
the house of God. The length was threscore cubytes after the olde measure, and the bredth xx. cubytes. The porche, þ was in bredthe as large as the temple, had xx cubytes. and the heygthe was an hundred and xx. cubytes. And he ouerlaped it on the inner syde wpth pure golde.

And the greater house he syled with fyre tree which he overlaped wpth the best gold, and graued therto palmetrees & chaynes. And he ouerlaped the house wpth precious stone beautifull-
ly. And the golde was golde of Paruaim. The house (I saye) the beames, poostes, walles, and dozes thereof overlaped he wpth golde, & made grauen worke vpon the walles.

And he made the house mooste holpe, whose length was twenty cubytes lph to the bredth of the house, and the bredth thereof was also xx. cubytes. And he overlaped it wpth good golde, euen wpth vi hundred talentes. And the weyghte of the naples of golde was fiftye species. And he overlaped the vpper chambres wpth golde.

* And in the house mooste holpe he made two cherubims of ymage worke lyke chyl dren, and overlaped them wpth golde. And the winges of the cherubs were xx. cubytes longe. The one wyng was v cubytes reachyng to þ wal of the house, & the other wyng was lyke wyse. v. cubytes, reachyng to the wyng of the other cherub. And euen so the one wing of the other cherub was v. cubytes reachyng to the wall of the house, & the other wyng was v cubytes also, & reached to the wyng of the other cherub. So that the winges of the sayd cherubs were stretched out xx. cubytes, and they stode on their feet and looked inwarde. And he made a foze han-gynge of pelowe spike, purple, cermosyn, and fyne whyte, and caused the ppyctures of cherubbes to be broded thereon. And he made befoze the house two pylers of lxxv. cubytes hie. And the heed that was aboue on the top of euerie one of them was v. cubites, and he made chaynes of wretchen worke for the quere, & put them on the beedes of the pylers, & made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chaynes. And he creared by the pylers befoze the temple: one on the right hand, and the other on the left and called the ryght Jachin, and the left Boaz.

¶ And

offre burnt sacrifices for the morninge and euenyng: on the Sabbath dayes, in the fyrst day of euerie newe moone, and in the solempne feastes
of the Lorde our God: for it is an ordinaunce to be continually kepte of Israell. And the house whiche I buylde shalbe grete, for great is oure
God aboue all gods. But whos hable to buyde determined to buylde shalbe wondrousfull great.

And beholde, for the vse of thy seruauntes þ cut-

Hiram kynge of Tyre answered in wyrtynge
whiche he sent to Salomon: Spcause the Lorde
hath loued his people, therfore he hath made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayd moreouer blefuen and earth, and that hath gpyen Dauid the

kynge a wyse sonne, & one that hath discretion,
prudence and vnderstandyng to buyld an house
for the Lorde, & a palace for hym selfe. And now I haue sent a wyse man, and a man of vnderstalande of Israell, after the nombre of them whom hys father Dauid had nombred. And they were

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ The temple of the Lorde and the porche are buyl-
ded, wpth other chynge. ycccco c. lxxviii.

And Salomō began to buylde þ house
of the Lorde at Ierusalem in mounte Moria* where (the Lorde) appeared vnto Dauid hys father, euen in the place þ Dauid prepared in the threshyng floure of Ornan the Jebusite. And he * begā to buylde in the seconde daye of the seconde moneth & the fourth yere of hys raygne. And these are the paternes wherby Salomon was instruct to buyld
the house of God. The length was threscore cubytes after the olde measure, and the bredth xx. cubytes. The porche, þ was in bredthe as large as the temple, had xx cubytes. and the heygthe
was an hundred and xx. cubytes. And he ouerlaped it on the inner syde wpth pure golde.

And the greater house he syled with fyre tree
which he overlaped wpth the best gold, and graued therto palmetrees & chaynes. And he ouerlaped the house wpth precious stone beautifull-
ly. And the golde was golde of Paruaim. The house (I saye) the beames, poostes, walles, and dozes thereof overlaped he wpth golde, & made grauen worke vpon the walles.

And he made the house mooste holpe, whose length was twenty cubytes lph to the bredth of the house, and the bredth thereof was also xx. cubytes. And he overlaped it wpth good golde, euen wpth vi. hundred talentes. And the weyghte of the naples of golde was fiftye spyles. And he overlaped the vpper chāmbres wpth golde.

* And in the house mooste holpe he made two cherubyns of ymage worke lyke chyl dren, and overlaped them wpth golde. And the winges of the cherubs were xx. cubytes longe. The one wyng was v cubytes reachyng to þ wal of the house, & the other wyng was lyke wyse. v. cu-
bytes, reachyng to the wyng of the other che-
rub. And euen so the one wing of the other cherub was. v. cubytes reachyng to the wall of the house, & the other wyng was. v cubytes also, & reached to the wyng of the other cherub. So that the winges of the sayd cherubs were stretched out. xx. cubytes, and they stode on their feet and looked inwarde. And he made a foze han-gynge of pelowe spike, purple, cermosyn, and
fyne whyte, and caused the ppyctures of cherubbes to be broded thereon. And he made befoze
the house two pylers of lxxv. cubytes hie. And the heed that was aboue on the top of euerie one of them was. v. cubites, and he made chaynes of wretchen worke for the quere, & put them on the beedes of the pylers, & made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chaynes. And he creared by the pylers befoze the temple: one on the right hand, and the other on the left and called the ryght Jachin, and the left Boaz.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ The aulter of brazell for holocaustes, the laver to washe with, the candlestickes, &c.

And he made an aulter of brazell. xx. cuby-tes longe, and xx. cubytes brode, and ten cubytes hie. * And he cast a brasen lara-tope of ten cubites from bym to bym, rounde in compasse, and fyne cubytes hie: and a lyne of thrytyn cubytes dyd compasse it rounde about.

¶ And

And vnder it was the fassion of oren which byd compasse it rounde about: wpth ten cubites byd they compassed the lauatory rounde about, & there were two rowes of ore whych were cast of fyre molten worke. And it stode also vpon twelue ore thre looked towarde the north, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the south & thre towarde the east and the lauatory was set vpon them, & all theyr backes were toward the lauatory. And the thre-kesse of it was an handbryde, and the bym lyk the bym of a cup, wpth floures of lylies. And it receyued, and helde thre thousande bates.

23 * And he made ten lauers, nad put fyre on the ryght hande: and fyre on the lefte, to washe and cleane in them suche thenges as they offered for a burnt offering. But the great lauatory was for the prestes to wash in. And he made ten candlestykes of golde (accozdyng to the patene that was gyuen of them) and put them in the temple fyne on the right hande and fyne on the lefte. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyne on the ryght syde, and fyne on the lefte. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the court of the prestes and the greete courte and dozes to it: and overlaid the doozes of them wpth brasse. And he set the great lauatory on the righte side of the east ende oueragaynst the louth. And Hiram made pottes, howels and basens, and finished the worke that he was appoynted to make for kynge Salomon in the house of God. The two pylers, the courtynge of two heedes on the toppes of the pylers, and the two wretches to couer the two scalpes of heedes that were on the toppes of the pylers: and foure hundred pomgranates on the two wretches, two rowes of pomgranates on one wretch to couer the two toppes of heedes, that were on the pylers. And he made two botomes: and lauers made he vpon the botomes: the great lauatory, and twelue oren vnder it. Pottes also and howels, fleshokes, and all these vessels byd Hiram (his father) make to king Salomon for the house of the Lorde of bygght brasse. In the playne of Jordan byd the kynge caste them, euen in the clape grounde that is betwene Bocoth and Zaredatha. And Salomon made all these vessels in great aboundaunce, for the wayght of brasse culde not be reckened.

And Salomon made all these vessels that were for the house of God: the golden aulter also and the tables to set the wyered vpon. Also ouer, the candlestokes, wpth theyr lampes (to burne after the maner before the quere) and that of precious golde: and the floures and the lampes, and the snuffers made he of golde, and that perfecte golde, and the bysponge kynnes, bales, spones, and censers of pure gold. And he made the doze of the temple, and the inner dozes wpth in the place mooste holpe, and the inner dozes of the temple were gylted. And so was all the worke that Salomon made for the house of the Lorde finished.

The. v. Chapter.

The arke is brought into the temple, whiche is fylled wth the g. of the Lorde.

And so al the worke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was finished, and Salomon brought in all the thynges that Dauid his father had dedicated, with the syluer and golde, and all the treasours, and put them amonge the treasures of the house of God.

Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel together, and all the heedes of the tribes & ancient fathers of the chyldre of Israel vnto Jerusalem to bring the arke of the conuauit of the Lorde out of the cite of Dauid: which is Zion. Wherefore, al the men of Israel resorted vnto the king in the feast eue in the vii. moneth. And al the elders of Israel cam, & the Leuites toke by the arke. And the prestes and the Leuites brought away the arke & the tabernacle of wynter, and all the holpe vessels that were in the tabernacle, and they bare them. And kynge Salomon and all the congregation of Israel were assembled vnto hym before the arke, offered shepe & oxen, so many, that they coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And the prestes brought the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde vnto his place, euen into the quere of the temple, wpthin the place mooste holpe, and set it vnder the wynges of the Cherubs that the Cherubs stretched out theyr wynges ouer the place of the arke, and the Cherubs couered bothe the arke and her barres aboue on hye. And the barres of the arke were so long, that the heedes of the barres were sene without the arke wth in the quere, but not wthout. And there the arke remayned vnto this daye. But there was nothing in the arke save the two tables which Moses put therein at Horeb when the Lorde made a couenaunte wth the chyldren of Israel, after they were come out of Egypte. And it fortuneth, that when the prestes were come out of the holpe place (the Sanctuarie was fylled wth smoke) for al the prestes that were present were sanctified and byd not then wayte by course, that both the Leuites and the syngers vnder Asaph, Heman and Jeduthan were appoynted to sundry offices, wpth theyr chyldren and brethren, and were arrayed in fyne whyte, haunged symbales, psalteries and harpes, and stode at the east end of the alter, and by them an hundred & twenty prestes blowyng wth trumpettes. And the trumpet-blowers and the syngers so agreed, that it seemed but one voyce, in prayse and thankynge the Lorde. And when they lift up theyr voyce wth trumpettes, symbales, and other instrumentes of musyke: and when they prayled the Lorde, how that he is good, and his mercy lasteth euer: the house of God was fylled with a cloude, so that the prestes coulde not endure to minstre by the reason of the cloude. For the promise of the Lorde had fylled the house of God.

The. vi. Chapter.

The wordes of Salomon to the people, and the prayer that he made vnto God.

When Salomon sayd: the Lorde hath spoken, how that he wyll dwel in the cloude. And I haue buyt an habitation for me, and a place for my dwelling for

for ever. And the kyng turned his face, & blessed the hole congregacion of Israel, & all the congregacion of Israel stode. And he sayd blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whiche hath w his handes fulfilled it y he spake w his mouth to my father Dauid, saying & syng the day that I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I chose no cytie among al the cytyes of Israel to buyde an house in, that my name might be there, neyther chose I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. saying that * I haue chosen Jerusalem, y my name myght be there, & haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel. * And when it was in y hert of Dauid my father to buyde an house for y name of the Lorde God of Israel, the Lorde sayd to Dauid my father. for almo. he as it was in thy hert to buyde an house for my name, y dydest well that thou so thoughtest in thy hert. Notwithsta. dyng. thou shalt not buyde y house, but thy son which is pceded out of thy loynes, he shall buyde an house for my name. The Lorde therefore hath made good his sayinge that he hath spoken, and I am risen vp in the roume of Dauid my father and am let on y seate of Israel, as the Lorde promised, and haue buyte an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And in it haue I put y arke, wherein is the couenaunt of y Lorde that he made w the children of Israel. And y kyng stode before the altare of the Lorde, in y presence of all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out his handes. For now Salomon had made a brasen pulpyt of fyue cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes brode, & thre of heygth, & had set it in the myddes of the great court, and vpon it he stode, and knelled downe vpon his knees before all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out his handes toward heauen, and sayd. * O Lorde God of Israel, there is no god lyke the in heauen and earth, which kepest couenaunt, and the worst mercye vnto thy seruantes, that walke before the with all theyr hertes. Thou whiche hast kepte with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, the thynges that thou promisedest hym. thou saydest it with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thy handes, as it is to se this daye.

And now Lorde God of Israel, kepe with thy seruant Dauid my father, y thynges that thou promisedest hym, * sayinge: thou shalt in my syght not be without a man that shall spt vpon the seate of Israel so that thy children take hede to theyr wayes, to walke in my lawe, as thou hast walked before me. And now Lorde God of Israel, let thy saying be true which thou spakest vnto thy seruant Dauid. And wyl God in very dede dwell with men on earth? Beholde, * heauen, and heauen aboue all heauens do not contayne the: how moche lesse the house whiche I haue buylded: I et it be thy pleasure therefore to turne to the prayer of thy seruant, and to his supplicacion (O Lord my God to herken vnto the voyce & prayer whiche thy seruant prayeth before the, and let thine eyes be open towarde this house daye & nyght ouer this place, wherein thou hast sayd that thou woldest put thy name, to herken vnto the prayer whiche thy seruant prayeth in this place: harken vnto the prayers of thy seruant, and of thy people Israel, which they praye in this place heare thou (I saye out of thy dwelling place, euen out of heauen, heare and be mercifull. * Yf a man synne agaynst his neyghboure, and take not an othe agaynst hym, and make hym to sweare, and they bothe come before thine altare in this house: then heare thou from heauen, and worke, and iudge thy seruantes, that thou rewarde the vngodly and recompence hym his waye vpon his heade, and iustifye the ryghteous, and geue hym accordyng to his ryghteousnesse.

And yf thy people Israel be put to the worse before the enemye, because they haue synned agaynst the. Yet yf they turne & geue thanks vnto thy name, & make intercessyon & praye before the in this house, then heare thou from heauen, & be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people Israel and bringe them agayne vnto the lande whiche thou gauest to them and to theyr fathers.

* When heauen is shut vp, and there be no rayne, because they haue synned agaynst the yet yf they praye in this place, & confesse thy name, & repent for theyr synne, for the whiche thou chastenest them: then heare thou in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy seruantes, and of thy people Israel, and guyde thou them in to the good waye to walke in, & sende rayne vpon thy lande, whiche thou hast geuen vnto thy people for an inheritaunce.

And yf there be derth in the land or pestilence, or corrupcion, or blastynge of corne, grethoppers, or caterpillers, or that theyr enemies beleage them in the cyties of theyr lande, or what soeuer plage or specknesse it be, Then what supplications & prayers soeuer shall be made of any man, and of al thy people Israel, which shall knowe every man his owne soze, and his owne grefe, & shall stretch out their handes toward this house, thou shalt heare from heauen, euen from thy dwelling place, and shalt be mercifull, & d geue every man accordyng vnto all his wayes, euen as y doest knowe every mannes herte. for thou onely knowest the hertes of the chyldre of men that they may feare the, & walke in thy wayes as longe as they lyue in the lande whiche thou gauest vnto theyr fathers.

* Moreover, the straunger which is not of thy people Israel, yf he come from a farr lande for thy great names sake, & thy mighty hande, & thy stretched out arme yf they come (I say & praye in this house thou shalt heare from heauen, euen from thy dwelling place, & shalt do accordyng to all that the straunger calleth to the for that all people of the earth may knowe thy name, and feare the as doeth thy people Israel, & that they may knowe, how that in this house whiche I haue buylded, thy name is called vpon.

yf thy people go out to warre agaynst theyr enemyes, by the way that thou shalt send them, and they praye to the, in the way & towarde this cytie whiche thou hast chosen, euen towarde the house whiche I haue buyte for thy name: then heare thou from heauen theyr supplicacion and praye

Remembre the mercyes which thou hast promysed to Dauid thy seruant.

The vii. Chapter.

The first consistory the sacrifice. The Lorde appeared to Salomon the second tyme.

And when Salomon had made an ende of prayeng, & there came downe fyre from heauen and consumed the burnt offeryng and the sacrifices. And the house was fylled with the glory of the Lorde, and the prestes coude not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glory of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes house. And when all the chyldren of Israel sawe how the fyre and the glory of the Lorde came downe vpon the house, they fell downe flat vpon theyr faces to the earth, vpon the pavement, and worshipped and confessed vnto the Lorde, that he is gracious, and that his mercy lasteth euer.

And the kynge and all the people offered sacrifices before the Lorde. And kynge Salomon offered a sacrifice of. xlii. thousande oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and all the people dedicated the house of God. And the prestes waped on theyr offices, and the Levites had the instrumentes of musyke of the Lorde, which kynge Dauid had made to confesse vnto the Lord, that his mercy lasteth euer: playenge a psalme of Dauid wpth theyr hande. And the prestes blew with trumpettes before them: and all they of Israel stode.

Moreover, Salomon halowed the myddle of the court that was before the Lorde, for there he offered burnt offerynges, and the fat of the peace offerynges, because the brasen altar which Salomon had made, was not able to receyue burnt offerynges, and the meate offerynges, & the fat.

So at the same tyme Salomon kept a feast of seven dayes, and all they of Israel with hym an exceedyng great congregacyon, euen from the entryng in of Hamath: vnto the ryuer of Egypt. And in the eighth daye they made a gatherynge: for they kept the dedication of the altar seven dayes, and the feast seven dayes. And the xliii. daye of the seventh moneth he let the people departe into theyr tentes glad and mery in herte: for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid & to Salomon, & to Israel his people.

* And Salomon first led the house of the Lorde and the kynges house & all that came in his herte to make in the house of the Lorde, & in his owne house, wente prosperously forwarde.

And the Lorde appered to Salomon by nyght and sayd to hym: I haue herde thy petition, and I haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. If I shut vp heauen that there be no rayne: or if I comaunde the locustes to beuoure the lande: or if I sende pestilence amonge my people: and if they that are of my people, among whom my name is called vpon, do humble them selues, and make intercessyon, and seeke my presence, and turne from theyr wycked wayes: then wyl I heare from heauen, and be mercyfull to theyr synne: and wyl heale theyr lande.

And from henceforth myne eyes shall be open and myne eares attente vnto the prayer that is made in this place. And therefore nowe * I haue chosen and sanctified this house, that my name be there for euer: and myne eyes and myne herte shall be there perpetually.

And if thou wylt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and shalt obserue my statutes and my lawes, then wyl I stablyshe the seate of thy kyngdome, accordyng as I made the covenant with Dauid thy father, sayng: * thou shalt not be without a man to be ruler in Israel. But and if thou turne away, and forsake my statutes and commaundementes whiche I haue set before you, and shalt go and serue other goddes, & worshyp them: then wyl I plucke them vp by the rootes, out of my lande whiche I haue gyven them, and this house which I haue sanctified for my name wyl I cast out of my syght, and wyl make it to be a prouerbe and a iest amonge all nacyns. And euery one that passeth by shall be astonysed at this house whiche belonged to the moost hye God, and shall saye: * why hath the Lorde delt on this fashion with this lande, and with this house? And they all answer. because they forsoke the Lorde God of theyr father, whiche brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and caught holoe on other goddes, and worshipped them, and serued them: euen therefore hath he brought all this euill vpon them.

The cyties that Salomon buylde after that the house of God was tyned.

E And all the drynkyng vessels of kyng Salomon were of golde, and all the vessels of the house that was in the forest of Libanon were of precious golde: for syluer was counted not byng worth, in the dayes of Salomon. For the kynges thippes went to Charlis with the seruantes of hyz am: euerpe thre peate ones came the thyppesto Charlis, and brought golde, syluer, Iuozp, and apes, and pecockes.

I * And kyng Salomon passed all the kynges of the earth in wysdomme and wysdome. And all the kynges of the earth sought the presence of Salomon, to heare hys wysdome that God had put in his hert. And they brought euery man hys present, vessels of syluer, & vessels of golde, raiment, harnesses, spyces, horses, and mules, & what so euer myght be gotten pere by pere.

I * And Salomon had foure thousand stables for horses, and charrettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, whome he bestowed in the charret cities, and some were with the kyng at Jerusalem. And he raygned ouer all the kynges that were from Euphrates vnto the lande of the Philistynes: and to the border of Egypte.

I * And the kyng made syluer in Jerusalem, as plenteous as stones. And Cedar trees as plenteous as the moulbere trees that growe in the valleyes. And they brought vnto Salomon horses out of Egypte, and out of all landes.

I * The rest of the actes of kyng Salomon fyrst and last, are they not wyrtten in the sayunges of Natthan the prophete, and in the prophete of Amias the Silonite, and in the visyons of Iddo the sear of visyons agaynst Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat: And Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel fourty yeres. And Salomon slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his steade.

The .x. Chapter.

The lastyng of Rehoboam, and the deuyll of hys reigne

And * Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Israel come togyther, to make hym kyng. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which was fled vnto Egypte from the presence of Salomon the kyng, heard it, he returned out of Egypte. And they sent and called hym. And so Jeroboam and all they of Israel came and comuned with Rehoboam, sayenge: Thy father ladd a greuous yoke vpon vs now therfore remyt thou somewhat of the greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuy rokke that he put vpon vs, and we wyl serue the. And he sayd to them come agayne vnto me after thre dayes. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam consayled wyth the elders that had stonde before Salomon hys father, whyle he yet lyued, and he sayde: what counsaile geue ye me, to answer this people agayne? And they tolde hym, sayeng: If thou be kynde to this people, and shewe thy selfe lowly to them, and speake lowyng wordes to them, they wyl be thy seruantes for euer. But he left the counsaile whiche the elders gaue hym, and toke counsaile wyth the yongemen that were growen vp with hym, and that stode in his presence. And he sayd vnto them, what aduise geue ye, that we make answer to this people, whiche haue comuned w me, sayeng: A bate somewhat of the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the yonge men that were growen vp w hym, spake vnto hym, sayeng: Thus shalt thou answer the people that spake to the, sayenge: Thy father made oure yoke heuy: but make it somewhat lyghter for vs. Thus shalt thou say vnto them: my lytle spnger shal be heuyr them my fathers loynes. * For where my father put a heuy yoke vpon you, I wyl put more to your yoke: my father chastised you wyth whippes, but I wyl chastise you with scorpions.

And so Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thryde day, as the kyng had, sayenge: come agayne to me the thryde daye. And the kyng answered them cruelly. & kyng Rehoboam sette the counsell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduise of the yonge men sayenge: My father made your yoke greuous, and I wyl adde therto my father chastised you wyth whippes, but I wyl chastise you wyth scorpions. And so the kyng hearkened not vnto the people, but the occasyon came of God that he myght make good his sayeng, * whiche he spake, by the hande of Abia the Silonite to Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. And when all they of Israel sawe that the kyng wolde not agre vnto them, the people answered the kyng, sayenge: what parte haue we w Dauid, or enheritaunce w the sonne of Isaac: let euery man of Israel go to his tent. * And now Dauid, se to thyn owne house. And so all Israel gat them to theyr tentes, so that Rehoboam raygned ouer no mo of the children of Israel, the dwelt in the cities of Iuda. The kyng Rehoboam also sent Haduram the ruler ouer the tribute, & the chyldren of Israel stoned him wyth stones that he dyed. But kyng Rehoboam made speede to get hym vp to hys charret, to fflye to Jerusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

The .xi. Chapter.

Rehoboam is forbidden to fight agaynst Jeroboam he hath thys myner, and ix. concubines, and by them, xviii. sonnes, and ix. daughters.

And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, * he gathered of the house of Iuda and Ben Iamin, nine score chosen men of warre to fyght agaynst Israel, & to byng the kyng. And the worde of the Lord came to Semetahu the man of God, sayeng: Speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, & to all them of Israel that are in Iuda, and Ben Iamin, and saye: thus sayeth the Lord. Ye shall not go vp nor fyghte agaynst your brethren: returne euery man to his house for this thyng is done of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lord, and returned fro gyng agaynst Jeroboam.

And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, & builded stronge cities in Iuda. He builded vp Bethle, and Etiam, and Ebeho: Bethur, Socho, and Adullam: Gath, and Beersa. and with Adullam, Lachis and Asecha 3022, Aialon and Hebron, which is in Juda and Ben Jamin, strong cities. And he repaired the strong holdes and put captaines in them, and store of vitayle, and wyne, and oyle. And in all cities he put shildes and speares, and made them exceeding strong haunce Juda and Ben Jamin on his spe.

E And the prestes & the Leuites that were in all Israel, resorted vnto hym out of all theyr countreys. For the Leuites left theyr suburies & their possessiō, and came to Juda and Jerusalem: for Jeroboam & his sonnes had cast them out from among theyr countreys vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned hym prestes for the high altars, for schekels and for the calues whiche he had made. And after the Leuites there went of all the tribes of Israel, such as submitted theyr hertes to seke the Lorde God of Israel, and came to Jerusalem, to offer vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And so they stremethed the kyngdom of Juda, & made Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon myghty thre yere longe, for thre yere they walced in the waye of Dauid and Salomon.

D And Rehoboam took hym Mahalath the daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wyfe, & Abihail the daughter of Eliab the sone of Isai, whiche bare hym chyldren Iesus Samaria, and Zaba. And after her he took * Maacha the daughter of Absalom whiche bare hym Abia, Attai, and Helomib. And Rehoboam loved Maachah the daughter of Absalom aboue all his wyues and concubynes, for he took righte wyues, and thre score concubynes, and begate xxviii. sonnes, and thre score daughters. And Rehoboam made Abiah the sonne of Maachah the chiefe ruler amonge his brethren, and to haue the ouersight of the kyngdome. And he playde wylfel, and scattered all his chyldren thorowout all the countreys of Juda and Ben Jamin vnto euery stronge cite. And he gaue them abundance of vitayle, and obtayned many wyues.

The. xli. Chapter.

¶ Desack hym of Egypte and rebuilde the temple of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth, and Abia his sone cometh to the throne.

A And it came to passe, that whē Rehoboam had stablyshed the kyngdome and became myghty, he forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and all Israel with him. * And it fortuned that in the fyfth yere of kyng Rehoboam, Desack the kyng of Egypte came vp agaynst Jerusalem, because they had transgressed agaynst the Lorde. w. xli. Chariettes, & lx. M. horsemen. And the people were without nombre, & came with hym out of Egypte Lubim, Suchim, & the blacke mores. And they toke the strong cities in Juda, & came to Jerusalem.

¶ Then came Semia the prophet to Rehoboam & to the lordes of Juda, that were gathered together within Jerusalem for Desack, and sayd vnto them: thus sayeth the Lorde, ye haue left me, and therefore haue I also left you in the handes of Desack. Wherupon the lordes of Israel, & the kyng humbled them selues, and sayde: the Lorde is righteous. And when the Lorde sawe that they submitted them selues, the worde of the Lorde came to Semia, sayenge: They submit them selues, therefore I wyll not destroye them. But I wyll deliuer theym somewhat, and my wrath shall not burne vpon Jerusalem by the hande of Desack. Neuertheles, they shal be hisleruautes, to knowe what difference is betwene my scrupce, and the scrupce of the kyngdomes of the worlde. And so Desack kyng of Egypte came to Jerusalem, and toke awaye the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kynges house: he toke euen all. And he carryed awaye the sheldes of golde, which Salomon made. In steade of whiche, kyng Rehoboam made sheldes of brasse, and comytted them to the handes of the captaines whiche had the ouersight of the fote men, and that kept the entraunce of the kynges house. And it came to passe that when the kyng entered into the house of the Lorde the garde came and fet them and brought them agayne vnto the garde chāber. And when he humbled hym selfe, the wrath of the Lorde turned from hym, that he wolde not destroye all together. And in Juda all was well.

¶ And so kyng Rehoboam waxed myghty, & reygned in Jerusalem. And Rehoboam was. xli. yere olde, when he began to reygne, & reygned xxviii. yeres in Jerusalem, the cite whiche the Lorde had chosyn out of all the tribes of Israel to put his name there. And his mothers name was Baania an Ammonites. * And he dyd cruel because he prepared not his hert to seke the Lorde. The actes also of Rehoboam, fyrst and last, are they not wyrtte in the sayenges of Semia the prophete, and of Iddo the sear, whiche noted the genealogys: and there was warre alway betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam. And Rehoboam slepte with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid, and Abia his sone reygned in his steade.

The. xlii. Chapter.

¶ The victorie of Abia agaynst Jeroboam.

A In the xlii. yere of kyng Jeroboam * began Abia to reygne ouer Juda and he reygned thre yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Maachah the daughter of Uriel of Sibra. And there was warre betwene Abia & Jeroboam. And Abia made prouisiō for the warre, hauing valeant & expert men of warre euen. iiii. C. M. chosen men. And Jeroboam set him self in aray to fyght agaynst hym. w. viii. C. M. yere pyete men which were strange & men of annis.

And Abia stode vp vpon zemetaim an hyl, whiche is in mount Ephraim, & sayde heere me thou Jeroboam & all Israel. Do not you knowe howe that the Lorde God of Israel gaue y<sup>e</sup> king dome ouer them of Israel, to Dauid for euer, euen to hym and to his sonnes wyth a salted covenannt: And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat y<sup>e</sup> seruant of Salomon the sonne of Dauid is rylen vp, and hath rebelled against his Lord. And there gathered to him leude men the chyldren of Belial, & pryncypled agaynst Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon, whē Rehoboam was yonge and tender herted, & coude not stande before them.

23 And nowe ye sape, y<sup>e</sup> ye be able to prynciple a gapynst the kyngdome of the Lorde, whiche is in the handes of y<sup>e</sup> sonnes of Dauid, & ye be a great multitude, & haue the golden calves * which Jeroboam made you for goddes. * And haue ye not caste out the prestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Lewites, and haue made you prestes after the maner of the nacions of other landes: so that whosoener cometh & collecteth his hand with a yonge oxe & a bulc, & a ram, & a lame may be a yreste of them that are no goddes.

iii. reg. xii. 1
ii. reg. xii. 2

¶ But we belonge vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lord our God whō we haue not forsaken, & the prestes are y<sup>e</sup> sonnes of Aaron whiche minyster vnto the Lorde, and the Lewites wayt vpon theyr offyce. They burne vnto the Lorde euery moynynge and encynge, burnt sacrificies & swete incense, & the we breadye set they in order vpon a pure table: & prepare the candellstyeke of golde wth the lampes of the same: to burne euer at euen. And truelpe we kepe the watche of the Lord our God: but ye haue forsaken hym. And behold, God hym selfe, is our captayne, and hys prestes blowe wth the * trompettes, and crye alarum agaynst you. O ye chyldren of Israel, syght not agaynst the Lord God of your fathers, for it wyl not prosper wth you.

ii. reg. x. 1

¶ But for all that, Jeroboam conueyed me pryncely aboute, to come behynde them: and so they were before Juda, and the lpers in wayte were behynde them. And when they of Juda looked aboute, beholde the battayle was before and behynde, and they cryed vnto the Lorde, and y<sup>e</sup> prestes blew with the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a shoute. And as the men of Juda ymoutred, it came to passe, that God smote Jeroboam and Israel before Abia & Juda. And the chyldren of Israel fled before Juda, and God delyucred them into theyr hande. And Abia & hys people slue a greate slaughtre of them. there fell downe wounded of Israel. v. c. x. chossen men. And so the chyldren of Israel were brought vnder at that tyme: & the chyldren of Juda pryncypled: because they leaned vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and toke cityes from him, Bethel, with the townes belogging therto, Jezana wth the townes that loged therto, & Ephraim wth her townes. And Jeroboam recovered no strenght agayn in y<sup>e</sup> dayes of Abia. And the Lord plagued hym, & he dyed.

¶ But Abia waxed myghtie, & maried xiii. wyues, & begat. xii. sonnes, & xvi. daughters.

The rest of the actes of Abia his customs & his sayngs ar wyrtte in y<sup>e</sup> story of y<sup>e</sup> prophete Iddo.

¶ The xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Abia slepte with his fathers, and they buryed hym in the cite of Dan-up, and * Asa hys sonne reygned in hys steade. In whose dayes the land was in quyetnesse ten yere.

ii. reg. x. 1

iii. reg. x. 1

¶ And * Asa dyd that was good and ryghte in the eyes of the Lorde his God. for he toke away strange alters & the hylalters, & brake downe the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Iuda to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe & commaundement. And he put away out of al cityes of Iuda the hylalters and the ymages. and the kyngdome was quyet before hym. And he buylt stronge Cityes in Iuda: because the lande was in rest, and he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had geuen hym rest.

¶ Therefore he sayd to Iuda: let vs buyld these Cityes and make aboute them walles, towres, gates, and barres, for the lande is yet in rest before vs, because we haue sought the Lorde our God: we haue sought hym, and he hath geue vs rest on euery syde: and so they buylt and it prospered wth them. And Asa had an army of me that bare sheldes and speares oute of Iuda the hundred thousande: and out of Beniamin that bare sheldes, and bowes, two hundred and foure score thousand, al these were valiant men.

¶ And there came out agaynst them Zerah, the blacke Mozyan * wth an hoste of ten hundred thousand, and thre hundred charettes, and came as farre as Marcia. And Asa went out before hym, and they ioynd the battayle in the valley of Sephata besyde Marcia. And Asa cryed vnto the Lord hys God, and sayd Lorde, * it is no harde thyng wth the to helpe eithre man, or them that haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O Lorde our God, for we trust to y<sup>e</sup>, & in thy name we go agaynst this multitude. Thou arte the Lorde our God, and no man shall prynciple agaynst the. So the Lorde smote y<sup>e</sup> blacke mozes before Asa and Iuda, and the blacke mozes fled. And Asa and the people that was wth hym folowed after them vnto Serer. And the blacke mozes hoste was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them lefte, but were destroyed before y<sup>e</sup> Lorde and before his hoste. And they carped awaye a myghtye greate praye. And they smote all the cityes rounde about Serer. For the feare of the Lord came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cityes, and there was excedynge muche spoyle in them, they smote also the tentes of cattell, and carped awaye plentye of shepe and camels, and returned to Jerusalem.

¶ The xv. Chapter.

¶ Asa dyd as the monycon of the prophete Azaria sayd: he reygned in the Lorde. He reygned hys matore tyme her domine. pon.

¶ And the sprete of God came vpon Azaria: the sonne of Obed. And he wente out to mete Asa, and sayde vnto hym: heare me Asa, and all Iuda, and Beniamin. The Lorde is wyth you, whyle ye be wyth hym, and when ye seke hym, he wyll be founde of you. & agayne when ye forsake hym, he also wyll forsake you. And truly for a longe season in Israel no man sought the true God, no man regarded the prest that taught them, no man cared for the lawe. And whē any man in his trouble dyd turne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and sought hym, he was founde of them. And in that tyme ther was no peace to hym, that dyd go out & in: but great sedicion was there amonge all the inhabyters of the earth. And nacion was destroyed of nacion, and cite of cite: for God dyd moue all aduersyte amonge them. Playe ye therfore & men and let not your handes slacke, for your worke shall be rewarded.

And when Asa heard those wordes, and the prophesie of Azaria: the sonne of Abed the prophete, he took courage, and put away the abhominable ydols out of all the lande of Juda and Beniamin, & out of the cityes which he wanne in mount Ephraim, and renued the Altare of the Lorde, that was befoze the portch of & Lord. And he gathered al Juda & Beniamin, and the strangers wyth them out of Ephraim: Manasse and Simeon. For there fell many to hym out of Israel, when they saw that the Lorde his God was with hym. So they assembled to Jerusalem the thyrtyd moneth, the fyfteenth yere of the raygne of Asa. And they offered vnto & Lord & same tyme of & spoile which they had brought vii. hundred oxen, and vii. thousand shepe.

And they made a couenaunt to seke & Lorde God of theyr fathers, wyth all theyr herte, and all theyr soule. And who so euer wolde not seke the Lorde God of Israel, wylde dye for it: whether he were small or great, man or womā. And they sware vnto the Lorde wyth a loude voyce shoutyng and blowyng wyth trumpettes and shawmes. And all they in Juda reioyced at the othe, for they had sworne vnto the Lorde wyth all theyr harte, and soughte hym wyth all theyr lust, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde about on euery syde.

And kyng Asa put Maacha his mother out of auctorite, because she had made an abhominable ydolle (of wyrtapour) in a groue: & Asa brake downe her ydolle, & stamped it, & burnte it at the broke Cedron. But all the hyllalters were not taken awaye out of Israel: though he the herte of Asa was persyte all his daies. And he brought into the house of God the thynges that his father had dedycate, & that he hym selfe had dedycate: euen syluer, and golde, and Jewelles. And there was no more warre vnto the .xxxv. yere of the raygne of Asa.

The .xvi. Chapter.

Asa for treace of Baasa kyng of Israel maketh a couenaunt with Benhadad kyng of Syria.

In the .xxxvi. yere of & raygne of Asa came Baasa kyng of Israel vnto Juda, & buylt Rama to the entent & he wolde let none passe out or in, caithe to Asa kyng of Juda. And Asa fet out golde and syluer, out of the treasures of the house of & Lord, & of the kynges house & sent to Benhadad kyng of Syria & dwelt at Damascus, & sayde: There is a confederacion betwene me & the, betwene my father & thyne. Beholde, I haue sent the syluer & gold, that & wylt come & breake thine appoyntment wyth Baasa kyng of Israel & he maye departe frome. And Benhadad graunted vnto kyng Asa, & sent to the captaynes of his army to the cityes of Israel. And they smote Iion, Dan, & Abelmain, and the strong cityes of Naphtali. And when Baasa heard this, he lefte buyldyng of Rama, and let his worke cease. And then Asa & kyng toke all Juda, & carped away the stones & tymber of Rama wher wyth Baasa was a buyldyng and he buylt ther wyth Seba and Mizpa.

At that same tyme Hanani the sear came to Asa kyng of Juda & sayd vnto hym because & hast trusted in the kyng of Syria, & not rather put thy trust in the Lorde thy God, therfore is & hoste of the kyng of Syria escaped out of thine hande. * Had not the blacke Moyses, & Lubim an exceedyng grete hoste wyth many charettes and horsemen? And yet because & trustedest in the Lorde, he deliuered them into thyne hande. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all & earth, to strenght them & are of persyte herte toward hym. * Herin thou hast done foolyshepe, & therfore shal henceforth thou shalt haue warre. And Asa was wroth wyth & sear, & put hym into a prison house for he was dyspleased wth hym, because of this thyng. And Asa destroyed certayne of & people the same reason. And behold, these dedes of Asa first and last, are wyrtten in the booke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And Asa in the .xxxix. yere of his raygne fell sycke in his fete, and that dysplese contynued verie longe. And in his syckenesse, he soughte not the Lorde, but phisy- cions. And Asa slept wyth his fathers, and dyed in & rli yere of his raygne. And they buried him in his owne sepulchre, whiche he had made for hym selfe in the Citie of Dauid, and layde hym in the bed which he had fylled wyth dyuerse kyndes of spices & swete odoures, made by & ceafte of the potecaryes. And they burnt verie muche spyre aboute hym.

The .xvii. Chapter.

Jehosaphat causeth the feare of the Lorde to be renued amonge the people.

And Jehosaphat his sone raygned in his steade, and preuailed against Israel. And he put sculdyers in al & strong cityes of Juda, and set rulers in the lande of Juda & in the cityes of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wone. And & Lorde was wyth Jehosaphat, because he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and sought not Baalam. But sought & Lorde God of his father, and walked in his commandementes, and not after the doinges of Israel. And the Lorde stablyshed the kyngdome in his hande, & all they that were in Juda, brought hym presentes, so that he had aboundaunce of ryche and honoure. And he lyfte vp his hert vnto & wayes of the Lorde, & he put downe yet more of the hyllalters

23 In the thyrtyde yere of hys raigne he sent to hys lordes, euen to Benhail, Obadia, zacharia, Methanel, and to Michaahu, that they shoulde teache in the cityes of Juda, and wryth theym he sent Leuites: euen Semetahu, Methaniahu, zachariahu, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jehonathan, Adoniah, Tobiah & Tubadonia, and wryth them Elisamah and Jechoram prestes. And they taught in Juda, and had the boke of the lawe of God with them, and went about thorowout al the cityes of Juda, and taught the people.

C And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the kyngdomes of the landes þ were rounde about Juda, & they fought not agaynst Jehosaphat, & some of þ philistines brought Jehosaphat gyftes & tribute syluer. And therto the Arabians brought hym catel euen. vii. C. & vii. C. rams & vii. C. & vii. C. begotes. And so Jehosaphat prospered & greue vp on hys. And he buylt in Juda, castels & stronge cityes, & he had greate substaunce in the cityes of Juda, but the men of armes and strongest souldyers were in Jerusalem.

24 And Jehosaphat had aboundaunce of ryches and honoure, & ioynded afynpte with Ahab. And after certayn yeres he wēt downe to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab shewe many wyse & oren for hym, and for the people þ he had wryth hym, and entreated hym to go vp wryth hym vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And Ahab kyng of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat kyng of Juda: wylt þ go with me to Ramoth in Gilead? And he answered hym: I wyl be as þ and my people shal be as thyne, and we wyl go with the to the warre.

25 And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel aske counsell I pray the at the worde of the Lorde thys same daye. Therefore the kyng of Israel gathered together of prophetes iii. C. men, & saide vnto them: shal we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or shulde I cease? And they sayd: go vp, & God shal deliuer it into the kynges hande. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there yet here neuer a prophete more of þ Lordes that we myght aske of hym? And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man, by whom we maye aske the Lorde. But I hate hym for he neuer prophesyeth me good, but alwaye euell, & the same is Micha the sonne of Jimla, and Jehosaphat sayde: let not the kyng saye so.

And the kyng of Israel called one of his chā berlains, & sayde, fetch he better quickly Micha the sonne of Jimla. And the kyng of Israel, & Jehosaphat kyng of Juda late cyther of them on hys seate in theyr apparell, in a thyrtyngye floure besyde the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesied before them. And one zedekia the sonne of Chanana had made hym hornes of yron, and sayde: thus sayth the Lorde, vnto these shalt thou ouerthrowe Syria, vntyl they be brought to nought. And all þ prophetes prophesied euen so, sayenge: Go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and it shal prosperere wryth the: for the Lorde shal deliuer it into þ hande of the kyng.

And þ messenger þ went to cal Micha spake wryth hym, sayenge: beholde, the wordes of the prophetes speake good to þ kyng wryth one assent, let thy wordes therfore be lyke one of theyr, & thou speake that whiche is pleasaunt. And Micha sayde as truly as þ Lorde lyueth: euē what my God sayth þ wyl I speake. And whē he was come to the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto hym: Micha, shal we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or leaue of? And he sayde: go vp, & al shal be well: and they shal be deliuered in to poure hande. And the kyng sayde to hym: So and so many tymes do I charge þ, that þ saye nothyng but the truth to me: in the name of the Lorde.

Then he sayde: I dyd se all them of Israel scatered in þ mountayns, as theye þ haue no shepherde. And the Lorde saide: these haue no master let them retorne euery man therfore to his house in peace. And the kyng of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, þ he wold not prophete good vnto me: but euell? But he sayde agayn therfore heare þ word of the Lorde. * I saw the Lorde syt vp in hys seate, & al the cōpany of heauen stode on hys ryght hande & on hys lefte. And the Lorde sayde: who shal deceaue Ahab kyng of Israel þ he maye go vp & be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Gilead? And he said: one sayeth thys, another þ. And there came out a sprete & stode before þ Lorde & sayd: I wyl deceaue him. And þ Lorde sayde vnto hym: Wherein? And he sayde: I wyl go out, and be a lyeng sprete in the mouth of all hys prophetes. And the Lorde sayde: thou shalt deceaue hym, & shalt preuaile go out and do euen so. And now therfore beholde, * the Lorde hath put a lyenge sprete in þ mouthes of all these thy prophetes, & the Lorde hath spoken euell agaynst the. And zedekia the sonne of Chanana went to, & smote Micha vnto the cheke: & sayd, by what way went þ sprete of þ Lorde fro me, to speake wryth the? And Micha said þ shalt se the daye when þ shalt go in from chābze to chābze, for to hyde thy selfe. And the kyng of Israel sayd: take þ Micha, & bring hym to Amou the gouernour of þ cite & to Joas þ kynges sōne and þe shal saye, thus sayth the kyng, put thys felow in the prison house & lide hym wryth breade of affliction & water of trouble vntyl I come agayne in peace. And Micha sayd: yf þ come agayne gapne in peace, then hath not the Lorde spoken to me. And he sayde herke to ye people euery one of you. And so the kynge of Israel and Jeholaphat the kynge of Juda went up to Ramoth in Gilead. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Jeholaphat: I must chaunge me, when I go to the batayle: but se that thou haue thynne owne apparel vpon the. And the kynge of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and they came to batayl. But y<sup>e</sup> kynge of Siria had comaunded y<sup>e</sup> captayns of the charretts y<sup>e</sup> were with him, sayinge se y<sup>e</sup> ye fyght not agaynst small or great, sane agaynst the kynge of Israel onely. And when the captaynes of the charretts sawe Jeholaphat, they sayde: it is the kynge of Israel, & therefore they compassed about hym to fyght. But Jeholaphat cryed out, & the Lorde helped him, & God chaled them away fro hym. For it came to passe y<sup>e</sup> when the captaynes of the charrets perceyued y<sup>e</sup> it was not the kynge of Israel, they turned backe agayne from hym. And a certayne man drew a bowe with all his myght, & smote the kynge of Israel betwene the ioyntes of his habergin. And he saide to his charretman: turne thynne hande, that thou mayst carrye me out of y<sup>e</sup> hoste, for I am wounded. And y<sup>e</sup> batayle ceased that daye. Howbeit the kynge of Israel caused his charrette to stande still agaynst the Syrians vntyll euen. And about the tyme of the sunne goyng downe, he dyed.

The. xix. Chapter.

After Jeholaphat was rebuked by the prophet Jehu, he called agayn the people to the honouring of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde.

After Jeholaphat y<sup>e</sup> king of Juda came home agayne in peace to Jerusalem. And Jehu the son of Hanani the seer went out to meete him, & sayd to king Jeholaphat: Woldest y<sup>e</sup> helpe the vii godly, & loue them that hate y<sup>e</sup> Lorde: therefore is wrath come vpon y<sup>e</sup> from before y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. Neuertheles, there ar some good actes found in the, in y<sup>e</sup> thou hast hewen downe y<sup>e</sup> groves out of y<sup>e</sup> lande and hast prepared thynne heart to seeke god. And so Jeholaphat dwelt at Jerusalem. and ruled and went out to y<sup>e</sup> people from Beerseba to mount Ephraim, and brought them agayn vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lorde God of theyr fathers. And he set Judges in the land thorowout al y<sup>e</sup> strong cityes of Juda, cite by cite. & sayde to the Judges: take yede what ye do, for ye execute not y<sup>e</sup> iudgements of man, but of God, whyche is wth you in the iudgement. Wherefore now, let the feare of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde be vpon you and take yede, and be doing the thing that pleaseh hym) for there is no varyght counsell wth the Lorde our God. * that he woulde haue any respecte of persones, or take rewardes.

Whereouer in Jerusalem dyd Jeholaphat see of the Leuites, & of the prestes & of the auntyent fathers ouer Israel, in the iudgement & cause of the Lorde. And they returned agayne to Jerusalem. And he charged them sayeng. Thus shal ye do in the feare of the Lorde, wth the truth and a pure herte: what cause so euer come to you of your brethzen y<sup>e</sup> dwell in theyr cityes, betwene bloude & bloude, betwene lawe & comaundement betwene statutes & ordinaunces, ye shal warne them: & they trespasse not agaynst y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. & so wrath come vpon you & on your brethre. Thus do & ye shal not offende. And behold, a maria y<sup>e</sup> hye prest is amonge you in al matters of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde & Iechadiah the son of Ismael, a ruler of y<sup>e</sup> house of Juda, he is ouer such busynesses as concerne the kynge. there be offycers of y<sup>e</sup> Leuites also before you. Take courage to you therfore, & be doing manfully & the Lorde shal be wth such as be good.

The. xx. Chapter.

Remouing vnto y<sup>e</sup> that the Lorde gaue Jeholaphat kynge of Juda agaynst the Ammonites, and the chyldren of Ammon and the son of Seir.

After this also, it fortuneth that the chyldren of Moab & the chyldren of Ammon and wth them other of y<sup>e</sup> Ammonites came agaynst Jeholaphat to batayle. And there came some y<sup>e</sup> tolde Jeholaphat sayeng there cometh a great myltitude agaynst the from y<sup>e</sup> other syde of the see, & out of Siria. And behold they be in Hasason Hamar, which is engadi. And Jeholaphat feared and set hym selfe to seeke y<sup>e</sup> Lorde and proclaymed fastynge thorowout al Juda. And they y<sup>e</sup> were in Juda gathered the selues together to aske counsell of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. And they came out of all y<sup>e</sup> cityes of Juda to make intercession to the Lorde. And Jeholaphat stode betwene the congregacyon of Juda and Jerusalem in y<sup>e</sup> house of the Lorde before the new court, & sayd o Lorde God of our fathers, art not thou God in heuen, & rapnest not y<sup>e</sup> on al the kyngdomes of the heathen? And in thynne hande is power & myghte, & there is no man y<sup>e</sup> is able to withstande the. Art not y<sup>e</sup> one God, which dydest cast out the inhabytors of this lande before thy people Israel, & gauest it to the seide of Abraham thy louer for euer? And they dwelt therein, & haue buile y<sup>e</sup> temple therein for thy name, sayenge. * It euell come v<sup>nto</sup> vs, as y<sup>e</sup> swerde of iudgement, pestylence, or hunger, the y<sup>e</sup> we stand before this house in thy presence, for thy name is in this house, & erpe vnto the in our tribulacyon, heare thou and helpe.

And now beholde, the chyldren of Ammon & Moab, & mount Seir, by whome y<sup>e</sup> woldest not let them of Israel go, whē they came out of the lande of Egypt but they departed from them, & destroyed them not. Se, how they rewarde vs, to come for to cast vs out of thy possesid, which thou hast geue vs to inheret. O our God, wylt thou not iudge them: for we haue no myght agaynst this great copany y<sup>e</sup> cometh agaynst vs. Neither wote we what to do: but our eyes be vnto the. And al Juda stode before the Lorde with theyr ponge ones, theyr wyues, & theyr chyldre and there was Iehasiel the sonne of zacharia the sonne of Banania the sonne of Jehiel the sonne of Matthanias, a Leuite of the sonnes of Asaph, and vpon hym came the sperte of the Lorde, euen in the myds of the congregacyon. And he sayde herken all Juda, & ye inhabytors of Jerusalem, and thou kynge Jeholaphat: Thus sayth the Lorde vnto you: be not afayde, nor faynte herted by reason of this great myltitude: for the batayle is not yours, but Goddes. To morowe go ye downe agaynst them for they come vnto us, & we shal pe shall fynde them at the ende of þe broke before the wyldernesse of Jeruel. Ye shall not nede to fyght in this battayle but step forth and stande and beholde the helpe of the Lorde which is with you feare not, nor let your hartes fayle you, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. Tomorrow we go out agaynst them, for þe Lorde wylbe with you. And Jeholaphat bowed his face to the earth & all Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fel before the Lorde, worshyping the Lorde. And the Levites of the chyldren of the Gathites, & of the chyldren of the Corathites stode up, to prayse the Lorde God of Israel: wyth a loude voyce on hye. And when they arose earlye in the mornynge, they gat them out vnto the wyldernesse of Thekoa. And as they went oute, Jeholaphat stode & sayd: heare me, O Juda, & ye inhabitants of Jerusalem. But your trust is in þe Lorde your God, that ye maye be founde fawtfull.

Geue credence to þys prophete, and so shall ye prospere. And he gaue the people coucel, and let some to synge vnto the Lorde, & to prayse hym in the bewtye of holynes, and to go out before þe armie, as they went, and to saie, prayse þe Lord for his mercye lastet heuer. And what tyme as they began to laude and prayse, then the Lorde stered vp certayne of the chyldren of Ammon & Moab, whych layde wayte for them that were of mount Seir: whych were come agaynst Juda. And they were ouerthrowen wyth strokes amonge them selues. For the chyldren of Ammon and Moab rose agaynst the inhabitants of mount Seir. And they slewe and destroyed them: And when they had made an ende of the inhabitants of Seir, euery one helped to destroye an other amonge them selues.

And when Juda came to the edge of þe wyldernesse, they looked vnto the multitude. And behold, they were dead carcases fallen to þe earth, and none escaped. And whē Jeholaphat and his people came to take awaye the spoyle of them: they found amonge them aboundaunce of good bes, raiment & pleasant Jewels, whych they toke for themselves, more then they coude carry awaye: so that they were thre dayes in gathering of the spoyle, it was so muche. And the fourth daye they assembled in the valley of blessing, for there they blessed the Lorde. And therfore they called the name of the same place, the valley of blessing vnto this daye. And so all the men of Juda and Jerusalem returned wyth Jeholaphat their head, for to go agayne to Jerusalem wyth gladnesse for the Lorde had made them to reioyce ouer their enemyes. And they came to Jerusalem wyth psalteries, and harpes and shawmes, euen vnto the house of the Lorde. And the feare of God fell in the kyngdoms of all landes, when they hadde hearde that the Lorde fought agaynst the enemyes of Israel. And so the realme of Jeholaphat was in tranquyltye: and his God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

And Jeholaphat raygned vpon Juda, and was xxxv. yere olde when he began to raygne and raygned xxv. yere in Jerusalem, and his mothers name was Asuba, the daughter of Bil

hi. And he walked in the wayes of Asa his father, & bowed not therfrom, doyng that which was right in the syght of the Lorde. Howbeit the hylaulters were not taken awaye, for þe people had not yet prepared theyr heretes vnto the God of theyr fathers. The rest of þe actes of Jeholaphat fyrst & last beholde they are wyrtte amonge the sayenges of Jehu þe sonne of Hanani whych noted the in þe booke of þe sayenges of Israel.

After this dyd Jeholaphat kyng of Juda toyne hym selfe wyth Ahaziah kyng of Israel whose mynde was to do wyckedly. He coupled hym selfe wyth hym, to make theyppes to go to Charis. And they made the theyppes in Ezion Gaber. And Eliezer the sonne of Dodanah of Maresa propheted agaynst Jeholaphat, sayenge: because thou haite toynded thy selfe wyth Ahaziah, the Lorde hath broken thy workes. And the theyppes were broken, that they were not able to go to Charis.

The xxi. Chapter.

Jeholaphat dyeth, and Jehoza succeedeth hym, whych is helpech hym byethen, and is oppossed of the Edomites, and dyeth of the syre.

Jeholaphat also slepte wth his fathers, and was buried wth his fathers in þe cite of David, and Jehoza his sonne raygned in his steade, & he had brethren which were the sons of Jeholaphat, Azaria, Jehiel, zacharia, Asaria, Michael, & Shephatiah. All these were the sons of Jeholaphat kyng of Juda. And theyr father gaue them many great gyftes of gold & syluer & other special substaunce wth stronge cytes in Juda. but the kyngdom gaue he to Jehoza, for he was the eldest. And Jehoza rose up agaynst the kyngdome of his father, and preynted, and slue all his brethren wth the swearde, & dyuerse of the Lordes of Israel. Jehoza was xxxii. yere olde when he began to raygne, & he raygned. viii. yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the wayes of þe kynges of Israel, lyke as dyd the house of Ahab, for he had þe daughter of Ahab to wyfe, & he wroughte euil in the eyes of the Lorde. Howbeit, þe Lorde wolde not destroye the house of Dauid, because of the couenaunte that he had made wyth David, as he promysed to geue a lyght to hym, and to his sonnes for euer. In his dayes þe Edomites rebelled whē they were vnder þe dominion of Juda, & made them selues a kyng. And Jehoza went forth wth his Lordes, & all his charets were wyth hym: & he rose up by night, & smote þe Edomites, whych compassed him in, & the captayns of the charets. But Edom rebelled still, so þe they wolde not be vnder þe bande of Juda vnto this daye. That same tyme also dyd Libna departe fro beyng vnder his bande because Jehoza had forsaken þe Lord God of his fathers. Moreover he made hylaulters in þe cytes of Juda, & caused þe inhabitants of Jerusalem to comyt fornicaciō, & prouoked Juda to Idolatry. And there came a wyrtynge to hym from Elia þe prophete sayeng Thus sayth þe Lord god of David thy father because þe haist not walked in þe wayes of Jeholaphat thy father, & in þe wayes of Asa kyng of Juda, but walkedest in þe wayes of þe kynges of Israel, & haist made Juda & the dwellers of Jerusalem to go a whozunge, lyke to the whozedom of þ house of Ahab, and haſt ſlayne thy brethren, euen thy fathers houſe, whych were better then thou: be- holde, wyth a great plague wyl the Lorde ſmyte thy folke, thy chyldre, thy wyues, & thy goodes. And thou ſhalt ſuffre great payne: eue a dyſeaſe of thy bowels vntyl thy guttes fall out by rea- ſon of thy ſycknes, dape by dape.

D And ſo the Lorde ſtered vp agaynſt Jehorā the ſpyete of the Philistines, and the Arabians þ were beyde the blacke mozes. And they came vp into Juda, and waſted it, and carped awaye all the ſubſtance that was founde in þ kynges houſe, and his ſonnes, & his wyues: ſo that there was neuer a ſonne lefte hym ſaue Jehohabas, whych was þ pongeſt amonge his ſonnes. And after all theſe thynges, the Lorde ſmote hym in his bowelles with an incurable diſeaſe. And it came to paſſe, that in proceſſe of tyme, eue after the ende of two peres, his guttes fell out in hys ſycknes: & ſo he dyed of very euil dyſeaſes. And they made no buryng for hym lyke þ buryng of hys fathers. When he beganne to raygne, he was .xxii. yere olde, and raygned in Jeruſalem viii. yere, and lyued wretchedly howbeit they buried hym in þ cytie of Dauid but not amonge the ſepulchres of the kynges.

The .xxii. Chapter.

Ahaziah raygned in the rowme of Jehoſam. Jehoſam of Iſrael kylled Ahaziah. Ahaziah ſuſtained a ſore ſpy- ge: only Joas eſcapeth.

And the inhabyters of Jeruſalem made Ahaziah his poge ſon king in hys ſtepe. For the men of warre that came with þ hoost of the Arabians, had ſlaine al his eldeſt ſonnes. And ſo Ahaziah the ſonne of Jehoſam kyng of Juda, was made kyng. Two and fourty yere olde was he when he began to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Jeruſale. His mother aname was Athaliah the daughter of Amri. And he walked alſo in the wayes of the houſe of Ahab for his mother (by her couſel) entyſed him to do wychedly. Wherefore he dyd þ whych was euil in the ſyght of the Lorde, as dyd they that were of þ houſe of Ahab: for they were hys couſellers after the death of hys father, to hys deſtruction.

Wyth Jehoſam the ſonne of Ahab kyng of Iſrael to fyght agaynſt Hazael kyng of Siria at Ramoth in Gilead: and the Sirians ſmote Joſam. And he returned to be healed in Jezreel, of the woundes whiche were geue hym at Ramoth. When he fought wyth Hazael kyng of Siria. And Ahaziah the ſonne of Jehoſam kyng of Juda wente downe to ſe Jehoſam the ſonne of Ahab at Jezreel, bicauſe he was diſeaſed. And it came of God, that Ahaziah ſhuld be deſpyled for his comminge to Jehoſam: for when he was come, he wente out wyth Jehoſam agaynſt Jehu the ſonne of Nimſi, whom the Lorde had appointed to deſtroye the houſe of Ahab.

fol. reg. lxx. b.

And ſo it came to paſſe that when Jehu was executynge iuſtice vpo the houſe of Ahab & had founde the lordes of Juda and the ſonnes of the brethren of Ahaziah þ wayted on Ahaziah he ſue them. * And he ſought Ahaziah, & they caught hym where he was hyd in Samaria, & brought hym to Jehu. And when they had ſlayne hym, they buried hym, bicauſe (ſayd they) he is the ſonne of Jehoſaphat, which fought þ Lorde wyth all hys herte. And the houſe of Ahaziah had no power to kepe ſtyll the kyngdome.

But when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah ſawe that her ſonne was deed, ſhe aroſe & deſtroyed al the kynges ſede in the kynred of the houſe of Juda. And Jehoſabeth the daughter of the kyng took Joas the ſone of Ahaziah, and ſtalc him from amonge the kynges ſonnes that were ſlayne, and put hym and his nurce in a pre- up chambre. And ſo Jehoſabeth the daughter of king Jehoſam the wyfe of Jehoſada the preſt, and the ſyſter of Ahaziah hyd hym from Athaliah that he was not ſlayne. And ſo he was with them hyd in the houſe of God ſyre yere. And Athaliah raygned ouer the lande.

The .xxiii. Chapter.

Joas the ſonne of Ahaziah is made kyng. Athaliah is put to death.

And in the ſeuenth yere Jehoſada beynge bolde, took the captaynes of hundzedes, Azariah the ſonne of Jehoſam, and Iſmael þ ſonne of Jehoſada, Azariah þ ſonne of Obed, Maſſiah the ſonne of Adniah, & Elizaſar the ſonne of Iſegai & made a bonde wyth them. And they went about in Juda and gathered þ Leuites out of all the cyties of Juda, and the auncient fathers of Iſrael and they came to Jeruſalem. And all the congregaci- on made a bonde wyth the kyng in the houſe of God. And he ſayd vnto them, beholde, the kyng- ge is ready to raygne: * as the Lorde hath ſayd of the Lorde of Dauid.

fol. reg. lxx. b. if par. xl. c. b. l. b. and fol. b.

Come ſayt therefore that ye ſhal do: The thyrde parte of you ſhall on the Sabbath come to the preſtes, Leuites, & keepers of the porches. And an other thyrde parte ſhal be by þ kynges houſe, and an other thyrde parte ſhal be at the gate of the foundation, and all the people ſhal be in the * courtes of the houſe of the Lorde. But there ſhall none come in to þ houſe of the Lorde, ſaue the preſtes, and they that myniſter vnto the Leuites. They ſhal go in, for they are holy but al the people ſhal kepe the watch of the Lorde. And the Leuites ſhall compaſſe the kynges rounde aboute, and euery man ſhall haue his weapen in hys hande: and what other man ſo euer dothe come into þ houſe of the Lorde, he ſhal be ſlayne and let them be wyth the kyng, when he cometh in, and when he goeth out.

fol. reg. lxx. b.

And the Leuites and al Juda dyd accordynge to al thynges that Jehoſada the preſt had com- maunded, and took euery man in ſmenth it came on the Sabbath, with them that wente out on the Sabbath dape, neyther dyd Jehoſada the preſt let the companies departe. And Jehoſa- da the preſt deliuered to the captaynes of hun- dredes, ſpeares, ſhyldes, and bucklers that had be- rayned to kyng Dauid, & were in the houſe of God. And he set all the people every man ha-upunge hys weapon in hys hande fro þe right syde of the temple, to the left syde of the temple alonge by the alter & the temple rounde aboute the kynge.

And they brought out the kynge's sonne, & put upon hym the crowne, and * the testimonye, & and made hym kynge. And Jehoiada & his son-nes anoynted hym, & sayd: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliah herd the noyse of þe people runnyng and prayyng the kynge, she came to the people into the house of the Lorde. And she looked, and behold, the kynge stode in his place at the entreyng in, and the lordes and the trumpets were by the kynge, & all the people of the lande reioysed, blowyng with trumpets, & dyd playe wyth instrumentes of musyke, & taught to synge and praye. But Athaliah rente her clothes, & sayd: treason, treason. And Jehoiada the prest wente out to the captaynes of hundredes that were gouernours of the host, & sayd vnto them: haue her out wythout the doore of the temple: and who so foloweth her, let hym be slayne with the sworde. For the prest sayd that they shoulde not slaye her in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, tyl she was come to the en-treng of the boylegate, besyde the kynge's house and there they slue her.

* And Jehoiada made a bonde byt wene hym and all the people, and þe kynge, that they shoulde be the Lordes people. And all the people went to the house of Baal, and destroyed it, & brake hys alters and hys ymages, and slewe Matthan the prest of Baal, before the alters. And Jehoiada put the offyces for the house of the Lorde vnder the hande of the prestes and Leuites, * as Da-uid had distributed them in þe house of the Lord, to offere burnt offynges vnto the Lorde, * as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses, wyth reioy-syng and synngynge, as it was ordeyned by Da-uid. And he set porters by the gates of the house of the Lorde, that none whych was vncleane in any thyng shulde entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundredes, and all the nobles, and the gouernours of the people & all the folke of the lande, and caused the kynge to come downe out of the house of the Lord, and they came thorow the hye gate in to the kynge's house, & set the kynge vpon the seate of þe kyngdome. And all the people of the lande reioysed, & the cytie was in tranquillite, after that they had slayne Athaliah wyth the sworde.

The. xiii. Chapter.

¶ Joas surpasse the lyfe of Jehoiada heretofore the lawe: for after hys death he regarded it not. For he sleeth zachariah the prophete Joas is killeth of hys owne seruantes: after him cometh Amasiah.

Joas was seven peare olde when he began to raygne, & he raygned four tye yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was ziba of Beer Seba.
And Joas did that which was right in the syght of the Lord, all the dayes of Jehoiada the prest. And Jehoiada toke hym two wy-ues, and he begat sonnes and daughters.

And it chaunced after thys, that Joas was mynded to renne the house of the Lorde, and he gathered together the prestes and the Leuites and sayd to them: go out vnto the cyties of Juda, and gather of all Israel money to repayre þe house of your God, from yere to yere, & se that ye haste the thyng: howbeit, the Leuites were slacke. And the kynge called Jehoiada, þe was the cheffest, and sayd vnto hym. Why requyrest thou not of the Leuites to byng in out of Juda & Jerusalem, * the collection of money, accordyng to the comaundement of Moyses the seruante of the Lorde: and the cōgregation of Israel shulde offre it for the tabernacle of wytnesse. For wy-ked Athaliah and her chyldren brake vp the house of God, and all the thynges that were dedicate for the house of the Lorde dyd they be-lowe for Bealim.

And at the kynge's comaundement * they made a chest, & set it wythout at the gate of the house of þe Lorde: & made proclamation thorow Juda and Jerusalem, to byng in to the Lorde * the taxation of money, that Moyses þe seruante of God set vpon Israel in the wyldernesse. And the lordes and all þe people reioysed & brought in, & cast into the chest, vntyll it was full. And it fortuned, þe at the same time they brought in the chest vnto them whych were in the kynge's bu-synes, by the hande of the Leuites. And whē they sawe that there was muche money, the kynge's scribe ( & one appoynted by the hye prest ) came and emptyed the chest, and toke it, and carped it to hys place agayne: thus they dyd daye by day and gathered much money.

And the kynge and Jehoiada gaue it to such as dyd the labour and worke in the house of the Lorde, and hyed masons and carpenters to repayre the house of the Lorde, and so dyd the ar-tisyers in yron and brasse, to amende the house of the Lorde. And so the workemen wrought, and the worke amended thorow theyr handes:
and they made the house of God as it oughte to be, and strenghted it. And when they had fyny-shed it, they brought the rest of þe money before the kynge and Jehoiada, and there wyth were made vesselles for the house of the Lorde: euen vesselles to mynister wythal, & to serue for burnt offerynges, chargers, & spones, vesselles of gold and syluer. And they offered burnt offerynges in the house of þe Lorde continually all the dayes of Jehoiada: But Jehoiada waxed olde, & dyed full of dayes. For an hundred and thyrty yere elde was he whē he dyed. And they buried hym in the cytie of David amonge the kynge's, because he delte well wyth Israel, and wyth God and wyth hys house. And after þe death of Jehoiada, came the lordes of Juda, and made obey-saunce to the kynge. And the kynge berkeued vnto them. And so they left the house of þe Lord God of theyr fathers, and serued groues and y-

Juda and Jerusalem, for thys theyr trespasses sake. And he sent prophetes to them, to byng them agayne vnto the Lord. And they testifed ria the sonne of Jehoiada the prest, which stode by the people, and sayd vnto them: Thus sayth God: why transgresse ye the commaundmentes of the Lorde, that ye can not prosper? For because ye haue forsaken the Lord, he also hath forsaken you. * And they conspyred against him and stoned hym wyth stones at the commaundment of the kynge: euen in the court of the house of the Lorde. And so Joas the kynge remembred not the kyndnesse whych Jehoiada hys father had done to hym, but slae hys sonne.

And when he dyed, he sayd the Lorde loke vpon it, and requyre it. And when the yere was out, it fortunied that the hoost of Siria came vpon agaynst hym and they came agaynst Iuda and Ierusalem, and destroyed all the Lordes of the people from amonge the people, and sent all the spoyle of them vnto the kynge of Damasco, for the Syrians came wyth a smal company of men, and the Lorde deliuered a very great hoost into theyr hande, because they had forsaken the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And moreover, they serued Joas accordynge to hys dedes.

And when they were departed fro hym, they left hym in great dyscaies, and hys owne seruantes conspyred agaynst hym for the bloude of the chyldren of Jehoiada the prest, & slae him on hys bed, & he dyed, and they buried him in the cyprie of David: but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they that conspyred agaynst hym: zebad the sonne of Amieathan Ammonite, and Jeholabad the sone of Sumrith a Moabite. And hys sonnes and the summe of the tate that was rayled in hys tyme, and the repaying of the house of God: beholde, they are wyrtten in the story of the booke of the kynges. And Amaziah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xxv. Chapter.

Amaziah ouercometh the Edomites. And Joas kynge of Israel ouercometh Amaziah.

Amaziah was. xxv. yere olde, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned. xxi. yere in Ierusalem. His motheres name was Jehoaddan of Ierusalem. And he dyd that which is right in the syght of the Lorde: but not with a perfect herte. And as sone as he was satlet in the kyngdome, he slae his seruantes, that had kyllid the kynge hys father. But he slae not theyr chyldren: because it is wyrtte thus in the lawe and booke of Moyses, where the Lorde commaunded, sayeng:

And Amaziah gathered Iuda together, and made them captaynes ouer thousandes, & ouer hundredes, accordynge to the houses of theyr fathers, thowse out all Iuda and Ben Iamin. And he nombred them from twenty yere olde & aboue, and founde amonge them, thre hundred thousand chosen men, able to go to battayle and that coulde handle speare and shylde. He bydded also an hundred thousande syghtryng stronge men out of Israel, for an hundred talentes of syluer. And there came a man of God to hym, and sayd: O kynge, let not the armye of Israel come with the: for the Lord is not with Israel, nether with al the house of Ephraim. But if thou wylt nedes be saythlesse, come on, & take the battayle in hande, and God shal make the fall before the enemy. For God hath power to helpe, and to cast downe. And Amaziah sayde to the man of God: what shal we do then, for the hundred talentes whych I haue geuen for the hooste of Israel? The man of God answered: the Lord is able to geue the muche more then they be.

And Amaziah leuied them to the army that was come to hym out of Ephraim, to go home agayne. Wherefore they were exceeding wroth with Iuda, and returned home in greete anger. And Amaziah toke herte, & caried out his people, and went to the salt valley, and smote of the chyldren of Siria: ten thousande. And other ten thousande dyd the chyldren of Iuda take alyue, and caried them vnto the toppe of a rokke and cast them downe from the top of the rokke, that they all to burst: but the souldyers of the army whych Amaziah sent away, that they shoulde not go wyth hys people to battayle, fel vpon the cypries of Iuda from Samaria vnto Bethhoron and smote. iii. M. of them, and toke much spoyle.

And it chanced, after that Amaziah was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the goddes of the chyldren of Siria, and set them vp to be his gods, and bowed hym self before them: and burned incense vnto them.

Wherefore the Lorde was wroth with Amaziah, and sent vnto hym a prophete, whych sayd vnto hym: why hast thou sought gods of the people, whych were not able to deliuer theyr owne people out of thy hande? And it chanced that as the prophete talked with hym, the kynge sayd vnto hym: haue men made the of the kynges counsaile: cease, why wylt thou be beaten? And the prophete ceased and sayd: I am sure the Lord is mynded to destroye the, because thou hast done this, and agreedst not vnto my counsaile.

* Then Amaziah kynge of Iuda toke aduise, and sent to Joas the sonne of Jehoaham the sonne of Jehu kynge of Israel, and sayde: come that we maye se eyther other. And Joas kynge of Israel sent to Amaziah kynge of Iuda, sayeng: a thyrtle that is in Liban sent to a Cedertre of Liban, sayeng. * geue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. And there came a wild beaste of Liban, and trode downe the thyrtle.

Thou sayest that thou hast beaten the Edomites and thine herte maketh the proude to glorifie thy selfe. Now therfore hyde at home: why dost thou prouoke vnto euill, that thou mayst perishe, both thou and Iuda wyth the.

But Amaziah wolde not hearken to hym: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them into the hande of theyr enemyes, because they sought counsaile at the goddes of Edom. And so Joas the kynge of Israel came vpon: and they sawe eyther other, both he and Amaziah kynge of Iuda at Bethlames, whych is in Iuda. And Iuda was put to the worse before Israel, & they fled euery man to hys tent. And Joas the kynge of Israel

toke

toke Amaziah king of Juda son of Joahas the son of Jehoahaz of Bethsames: & brought hym to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim unto the gate y<sup>e</sup> was ouer agaynst it foure hundred cubites. And he toke awaye also al the golde and syluer, and all the Jewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasures of the kynges house, and the ponge wardes, and returned to Samaria. And Amaziah the son of Joas kyng of Juda lyued after y<sup>e</sup> death of Joas sonne of Jehoahaz kyng of Israel sytten yere. The rest of the actes of Amaziah sytten & last, are they not wyrtten in the booke of the kynges of Juda & Israel? And after the tyme that Amaziah dyd tourne awaye from the Lorde, & they conspyred treason agaynst hym in Jerusalem and whē he was fled to Lachis, they sent to Lachis after hym, and slue hym there: and brought hym vp with horses & buried hym with hys fathers in the cytie of Juda.

The xxvi. Chapter.

After y<sup>e</sup> death of Amaziah raygneth Uzziah whiche is stylen with the lepre, and Jotham raygneth in hys estowre.

hen al the people of Juda toke Uzziah whych was sytten yere olde, and made hym kyng in y<sup>e</sup> rowme of hys father Amaziah. And he buylte Eklat, and brought it agayne to Juda after that the kyng was layd to slepe with hys fathers. Sytten yere olde was Uzziah, whē he began to raygne, and he raygned. lli. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Jerholiah of Jerusalem. And he dyd y<sup>e</sup> whych was cryghte in the syght of the Lorde: accordynge to all, as dyd hys father Amaziah. And it came to passe that he sought God in the dayes of zachariah (whych maynteyned the fear of God) & as longe as he sought y<sup>e</sup> Lorde: god made hym to profpere. And he went to battayle agaynst y<sup>e</sup> Philistynes and brake downe the wall of Geth, and the wall of Jabne, and the wall of Adod, and built cyties aboute Adod, and amenge the Philistynes. And God holpe hym agaynst the Philistynes, and agaynst the Arabians. y<sup>e</sup> dwelt in Surbaal and Hammehunim. And the Ammonites gaue tribute to Uzziah, & hys name spred abrode even to the entrynge in of Egypte: for he playd the mā exceedynge. Moreover, Uzziah buylt towres in Jerusalem by the corner gate, and by the valley gate, and at the turnyng of the wall: and made them stronge. And he buylt towres in the wyldernesse, and dygged many welles: For he had much cattel in the valleys & playnes, plowmen, and vyne pressers in the mountaynes, and in Charnel: for he loued husbandrie.

And Uzziah had an hoost of syghtrynge mē that went out to warre in the armye, accordynge to the nombze of theyr offyce vnder the hāde of Jziel the scribe, and Maaziah the ruler, and vnder the hāde of Hananiahu, whych was one of the kynges lordes. And the whole nombze of the auncient fathers, and of the mē of myght, were two. M. and syxe hundred and vnder the hāde of them was the army of the men of warre, euen thre hundred and seven thousande, and syxe hundred that made warre wth the power of an army, helppnge the kyng agaynst the enemyes. And Uzzia prouyded them thorowout all the hooste, sylbes, speares, helmettes, habergyns, bowes and synges for to cast stones. And he made subtyll engyns in Jerusalem, whych he inuented & laid on the towres and corners, to shote arrowes and great stones wythball. And hys name spred farre abrode, because he was helped so excellent lye, so that he became very myghtye.

But in hys strength, his herte arole to his destruction. For he transgressed agaynst the Lorde his God, and went into the temple of the Lorde to burne cence vpon the altare of incense. And Azariah the preeft went in after hym, & wyth hym foure scoze preeftes of the Lorde, that were valyant men. And they stode by Uzzia the kyng and sayd vnto hym. * it pertayneth not to the Uzzia to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the preeftes the chyldre of Aaron, that are consecrated for to offer incense: Come therfore out of the Sanctuary for thou hast trespassed, and it is no worshyp to be before the Lorde God.

And Uzzia was wyoth, and had incense in his hande to burne it: and so whyle he had indignacion agaynst the preeftes, & the leprolye sprange in hys foreheade before the preeftes in the house of the Lorde, euen besyde the incense altare. And Azariah y<sup>e</sup> chiefe preeft wyth all the other preeftes looked vpon hym: and beholde, he was become a lepre in hys foreheade, and they vaxed hym thēce. And he was sayne to go out, bycause the Lorde had smytten hym. And Uzzia y<sup>e</sup> kyng continued a lepre vnto y<sup>e</sup> daye of hys death, and dwelte seuerall, in an house beyng a lepre, and shut out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham his son had the gouernaunce of y<sup>e</sup> kynges house, and iudged the peopple of the lande. The rest of y<sup>e</sup> actes of Uzzia sytten and last, dyd I saue the prophet the son of Amos wyrtte. And so Uzzia slept with his fathers, & they buried hym with his fathers, in the felde of y<sup>e</sup> burpal whiche was besyde the sepulchres of y<sup>e</sup> kynges. For they sayd: he is a lepre. And Jotha hys son raygned in his stead.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Jotham raygned, and ouercometh the Amosites: & besyde hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

otham was syxe and twentye yere olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned sytten yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was also Jerusa the daughter of Adoc. And he dyd y<sup>e</sup> whych was cryghte in the syght of the Lorde in al poyntes as dyd his father Uzziah, saue y<sup>e</sup> he came not into the temple of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, and the people dyd yet wyckedly he buylt the byre gate of y<sup>e</sup> temple of the Lorde, and on the wall (where the house of ordynauce was) he buylt much. Moreover, he buylt cyties in the mountaynes of Juda, and in the woodcountrye he buylt castels and towres.

He fought with the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon, and preuayled agaynst them. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same yere an hundred hundred talentes of syluer: and ten thousande quarters of wheate, and ten thousande of barley. So much dyd the chyldren of Ammon geue hym in the seconde yere and the thyrde also. So Jotham became myghty, bycause he dyrected hys waye before the Lorde hys God.

D The rest of the actes of Jotham, and all hys warres and hys conuersacion, lo, they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel, and Iuda. He was. xxv. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned syrtene yere in Jerusalem. And Jotham slepte wth hys fathers: and they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid: and Ahaz hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xviii. Chapter.

The wickednesse of Ahaz kynge of Iuda. After hym raygned h Hzekia.

111. re. xvi. a

Ahaz was. x. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned syrtene yere in Jerusalem: and he dyd not that which is right in the sight of the Lord, as dyd hys father Dauid. For he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made molten ymages for Baalim: he offered incense in the valley of the sonne of Hinnom, and. x. burnte hys chyldren in fyre, after the abhominacions of the heethen, whome the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. He offred also, and burnt incense in bylalters, and on mountaynes and vnder every grene tre.

* Wherefore the Lord his God deliuered him into the hande of the kyng of Syria, which bet hym, and carped awaye a great multitude of hys captiue, and brought them to Damasco. And he was deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Israel, which smote him with a grete slaughter. For Decah the sonne of Remaliahu, slue in Iuda an hundred and twenty thousande in one daye, which were al fyghtyng men, and that bycause they had forsaken the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Achis a myghty man of Ephraim slue Maasiah the kynges sonne: and Asria a gouernour of the house, and Elcana that was nexte to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israel toke prysoners of theyr brethren, two hundred thousande women, sonnes and daughters, and carped awaye muche spople of them, & brought the spople to Samaria.

What there was a prophete of the Lordes (whose name was Obed, and he wente out before the hood. That came to Samaria, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, bycause the Lorde God of your fathers is wroth wth Iuda, he hath deliuered them into your hande. And ye haue slayne them wth cruelte, that reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Iuda and Jerusalem, and to make them bondmen and bondwomen. And do ye not lade your selues with synne, in the sight of the Lord your God: Now heare me therefore, and deliuer the captiues agayne, whiche ye haue taken of your brethren, for elles shall the grete wrath of God be vpon you.

Wherefore certayne of the heades of the chyldren of Ephraim, as Asaria the sonne of Iepo-hanan, Serechiahu the sonne of Mesilemoth, and Iechiahu the sonne of Shallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlai, stode vp agaynst them that came from the warre, and sayd vnto them: byngne not in the captiues hyther. For where as we haue offended towards God alreadye, ye entende to adde more to oure synnes & trespasses. For our trespasse is great alreadye, and there is a feare of wrath agaynst Israel. And vpon that, the men of armes left the captiues & the spoyles before the lordes and all the congregacion.

And the men that were nowe rehearsed by the name, rose vp and toke the prysoners, and with the spople clothed all that were naked amonge them, and araped them, and shod them, & gaue them to eat and to drynke, and anoynted them and carped all that were feble of them vpon asses, and brought them to Jericho (the cytie of Baalmetrees, to theyr brethren: and then they returned to Samaria agayne.

* At that same tyme dyd kyng Ahaz sende vnto the kynges of Assur, to haue helpe of them. And the Edomites came agayne, & slue the sonne of Iuda, and carped awaye captiues. And the Philistines enuaded the cyties in the lowe countrey, and towards the south of Iuda, and toke Bethsames, and Aialon, and Gederoth, & Soccho, wth the townes longyng therto, & Thinnah wth the townes of the same: Simso, and. x. townes therof, and dwelte there. For the Lorde brought Iuda lowe, bycause of Ahaz kyng of Iuda, whiche made Iuda naked, & transgressed sore agaynst the Lorde. And Tilgath Pilneser kyng of the Assyrians came vpo hym and troubled him rather then strengthened him. For Ahaz toke awaye a porcion out of the house of the Lorde and out of the kynges house, and out of the lordes houses, and gaue vnto the kyng of the Assyrians, and yet it helped hym not. And in the very tyme of hys tribulacion dyd kyng Ahaz trespasse yet more agaynst the Lorde.

For he offered vnto the goddes of them of Damasco, whiche sette hym, and he sayde: bycause the goddes of the kynges of Syria helpe them, therefore will I offer to them, & they may helpe me also. But they were hys destruction, and the destruction of all Israel. And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, and brake them, and. x. sette vp the dozes of the house of the Lorde, and made hym. x. alters in every corner of Jerusalem. And in al the cyties of Iuda he made bylalters, to burne incense vnto other goddes, and angered the Lorde God of hys fathers: The reste of hys actes, and hys workes fynt and laste: beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Iuda, and Israel. And Ahaz slepte wth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Jerusalem: but brought hym not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Israel. And Hzekia hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

Ezekia began to raygne, when he was fyue and twentye yere olde, & raygned nyne and twentye yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Abia the doughter of zachariahu. And he dyd that whiche was ryghte in the syght of the Lorde, in all poyntes as dyd Dauid hys father. * He opened the doores of the house of the Lorde (in the fyrst yere and fyrst moneth of hys raygne, & repayred them. And he broughte in the prestes and the Leuites, & gathered them together into the east strete: & sayd vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites, & now be sanctified and halowe the house of the Lorde God of your fathers, byngge fylthynesse out of the holy place. For our fathers haue trespassed, and done euyl in the eyes of the Lorde our God, and haue forsaken hym: and turned away theyr faces from the habitation of the Lorde, & turned theyr backs on it. And besyde that, they haue shut vp the doores of the porche, and quenched the lampes, and haue nether burnt incense, nor offered burnt offeringes in the holy place vnto the God of Israel.

Wherfore the wrath of the Lorde fell on Iuda and Jerusalem: and he both brought them to trouble, to be wondred on, and to be hyssed at, euen as ye se wyth our eyes. For lo, our fathers were ouerthrowen wyth the swearde, and our sonnes, our doughters and our wyues were carryed away captiue for the same cause. And now it is in my herte, to make a couenaunt wyth the Lorde God of Israel: that he maye turne away his heuy indignacion from vs. Nowe therfore my sons, be not negligent: for the Lorde hath chosen you to stande before hym, and for to minister and serue hym, as is to burne incense.

Ethen the Leuites arose: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Joel the sonne of Asariahu of the chyldre of the Cahatites. And of the sonnes of Merari, Isai the sonne of Addi, and Asariahu the sonne of Jehalelel. And of the sonnes of the Gerfonites, Johah the sonne of Simuna, & Eden the sonne of Joah. And of the sonnes of Elizaphan, Simri, and Jehiel. And of the sonnes of Asaph, Zechariahu, and Matthanahu. And of the sonnes of Heman, Jehiel, and Semel. And of the sonnes of Jeduthun, Semai and Uzziel. And they gathered theyr brethren, and purifed them selues, and came accordyng to the commaundement of the kynge, and the wordes of the Lorde for to cleanse the house of the Lorde. And the prestes went into the inner partes of the house of the Lorde, to cleanse it: & broughte out all the vncleynesse that they founde in the temple of the Lorde, into the courte of the house of the Lorde.

And the Leuites toke it, to carry it out into the broke Cedron. They beganne the fyrste daye of the fyrst moneth to purify, and the eyght daye of the moneth came they to the porch of the Lorde: and purged the house of the Lorde in eyght dayes, and in the thirte daye of the fyrst moneth they made an ende. And they went in to Hezekia the kynge and sayd: we haue cleansed all the house of the Lorde, the altare of burnt offeringe, wyth all hys vessels, and the shebeade table, wyth all hys apparell: and all the vessels whiche kynge Ahas dyd cast asyde when he raygned, & transgressed, them we haue prepared and sanctified: and behold, they are before the altare of the Lorde. And Hezekia the kynge rose early, and gathered the lordes of the cytie aboute, and went vp to the house of the Lorde. And they brought seuen oxen, seuen rammes, seuen shepe, and seuen begotes, to be a synofferyng for the kyngdome, for the sanctuary, and for Iuda. And he commaunded the prestes, & sonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the altare of the Lorde.

And they slue the oxen, and the prestes receyued the bloude, & spynkled it vpon the altare: lyke wyse, when they had slayne the rams, they spynkled the bloude vpon the altare: they slue also the shepe, and they spynkled the bloude vpon the altare. And then they brought forth the begotes for the synofferyng before the kynge & the congregacion, and put theyr handes vpon them. And the prestes slue them, and with the bloude of them they cleansed the altare to make satisfaction for all Israel, for the kynge commaunded that the burnt offeringe and the synne offeringe shoulde be made for all Israel.

And set the Leuites in the house of the Lorde with symbals, psalteries and harpes: accordyng to the commaundement of Dauid, & Gad the kynges sear, and Nathan the prophete. For so was the commaundement of the Lorde, throught the hande of his prophetes. And the Leuites stode haungge the instrumentes of Dauid, & the prestes beate the trompettes. And Hezekia commaunded to offer the burnt offeringe vpon the altare. And when the burnt offeringe began, the songe of the Lorde beganne also, and the trompettes, wyth the instrumentes that were ordeined by the hande of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the congregacion was wypped, syngyng a songe & blowyng with the trumpets, & all this continued, vntill the burnt offeringe was finished.

And when they had made an ende of offeringe the kynge and all that were presente wyth hym bowed them selues, and worshipped. And Hezekia the kynge and the lordes spake to the Leuites to praye the Lorde wyth the wordes of Dauid, and of Asaph the sear. And the Leuites sange prayses wyth gladnes, & the other bowed them selues, and worshipped.

And Hezekia answered, and sayde: now ye haue consecrate your handes to the Lorde: go to therfore, and byngge in the sacrifices & thankofferynges into the house of the Lorde. And the congregacion brought in the sacrifices, and thankofferynges and burnt offeringes, as many as were of the liberal lerte. And the nombre of the burnt offeringes which the congregacion brought was. lxx. oxen, an hundred rams, & two hundred shepe: which were all for the burnt offeringe of the Lorde. And there were dedicated sye hundred oxen, and thre thousand shepe. And the prestes were to sewe to slaye all the burnt offeringes: but theyr brethren the Leuites dyd helpe them, till they had ended the worke: and vntill the prestes were sanctified. For the Leuites were purer heretofore ted to be sanctified, then the prestes. And ther-to the burnt offeringes were many, with the fat of the peace offeringes and the drynke offeringes that belonge to the burnt offeringe. And so the seruyce pertayninge to the house of the Lorde, was fynished. And hezekia reioysed and al the people, that God had made the folke so ready: & that the thyng was so soone done.

The xxx. Chapter.

Hezekia remoueth the feast of Passouer.

IN Hezekia sent to all Israel, and Juda, and wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasse, that they shoulde come to the house of the Lord at Jethe Lorde God of Israel. And the kynge held a councell wyth his lordes and al the congregacion of Jerusalem: to kepe the feast of Passouer in the seconde moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme: because the prestes were not san-ctified sufficiently, neyther was the people gathered together to Jerusalem. And the thyng pleased the kynge, and all the congregacion.

Num. ix. 9

And they decreed that it shoulde be proclaymed thorowout all Israel from Berlabee to Dan, & they shulde come, and holde the feast of Passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel, at Jerusalem: for they had not done it of a greateson as they shulde haue done by the lawe.

So the postes went with letters of þe hãde of the kynge, and of hys lordes thorowout all Israel and Juda: and at the comaundement of the kynge they sayd: Ye children of Israel, turne a-gayne vnto the Lorde God of Abraham, Isahac and Israel, and let euery one retorne to the remnant that are escaped you oute of the han-des of the kynge of Assur. And be not ye lyke your fathers, and your brethren which trespassed agaynst the Lorde God of theyr fathers: wherby he gaue them vp to be destroyed as ye be.

25 And now be not ye stiffnecked lyke as were your fathers: but yelde your selues vnto þe Lord and entre into his holy place, whych he hath san-ctified for euer: and serue the Lorde your God, and the fearcenesse of hys wrathe shall turne awaye from you. For yf ye turne agayne vnto þe Lorde, then shall your brethren and your childre fynde compassion in the presence of them that toke them captiue, and they shall come agayne vnto thys lande, * for the Lord your God is gra-

God was in Juda, so that he gaue the one herte to do the comaundement of the kynge & of the rulers, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

And there assembled to Jerusalem much people and there was present a myghty great congre-seconde moneth. And they arose, & remoued the * altars that were in Jerusalem. And all the vessels of incense dyd they away, and cast them into the broke Cedron. And they slue Passouer the fourtenth daye of þe seconde moneth. And the prestes and Leuites whych were ashamed, san-ctified them selues, and brought in the burnt offeringes into the house of the Lorde. And they stode in theyr office after theyr maner, and accordynge to the lawe of Moyses the man of God.

II. Para. 1.
xxv. 1. 6

And the Prestes sprinkled the bloude, whych they receyued by the hãdes of the Leuites. For there were many in þe congregacion þe were not sanctified: & the Leuites dyd slaye Passouer for all that were not cleane, and that myght not execute the holy worke of the Lorde. For many of the people, and very many out of Ephraim, Manasse, Issachar and Zabulon were not clen-sed and yet dyd eate Passouer agaynst t. law appointed. Wherefore hezekia prayed for them, & sayde: the good Lorde be mercifull vnto them:
For he set his herte, to seke the Lorde God, eue the God of hys fathers: but al the other dyd not so, accordynge to vnfayned holynesse. And the Lorde herde hezekia, and healed the people.
And the children of Israel that were present at Jerusalem, helde the feast of swete breade seuen dayes with great gladnes, and the Leuites, and the prestes prayed and magnified the power of the Lorde, daye by daye, vpon instrumentes.

And hezekia spake hertely vnto all the Le-uites that had vnderstandynge, and were of a good mynde toward the Lorde. And they dyd eate thorowout that feast, seuen dayes longe, & offred peace offeringes, and thanked the Lord God of theyr fathers. And þe hole assemble toke consayle, to do so other seuen dayes, and they helde those seuen dayes with gladnesse. For hezekia kynge of Juda toke out (from amonge hys castell) for the congregacion, a thousande yoge oren, and seue thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue out to the congregacion a thousand yonge oren, and ten thousande shepe. And a great nombre of the prestes were sanctified.

And all the congregacion of Juda wyth the prestes and Leuites, and all the congregacion that came oute of Israel, & the straungers that came out of the lande of Israel, and that dwelte in Juda reioyced: and there was great gladnes in Jerusalem. For sens the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel, there was no suche ioye in Jerusalem. And the prestes and the Leuites arose, and blessed the people, & their voyce was herde of the Lorde, and theyr prayer came vp vnto heauen, hys holy dwelling place.

The xxxi. Chapter.

After that hezekia had called agayne the people vnto the image of the Lorde, he ordered the prestes, vnto whom he

the children of Israel returned euery man to his possessions and to theiꝝ owne cyties. And Hezekia appoynted sondꝝe companyes of þ̄ prestes and Leuites after the dyuerſitie of theiꝝ myniſtracions, euery man accordyng to hys offyce, both prestes and Leuites, for the burnt offering and peace offeringes, to myniſter, & to geue thankes, and prayſe in þ̄ gates of the hoſt of þ̄ Lorde. And the kynges porcyon of hys ſubſtance that he gaue, were daȝly burnt offeringes in the morning & euenyng, and burnt offeringes for the Sabbath dayes, newe Moones, and ſolempne feaſtes, accordyng as it is wrytten in the lawe of the Lorde. And he had the people that dwelt in Jeruſalem, geue the parte to the prestes, and Leuites, that they myght ſubſtancially applie them ſelues to the lawe of the Lorde,

And aſſone as the kynges commandement came abrode, the chyldren of Israel brought a-boundaunce of ſpyt frutes, of come, wyne, oyle, honye, and al maner of frutes of the felde, & the cythes of all maner of thynges, brought they in plenteouſly. And the chyldren of Israel & Juda þ̄ dwelt in the cities of Juda, they alſo brought in the tythes of oren and thepe, & other holy tythes whych were conſecrate vnto þ̄ Lorde theyꝝ God, they dyd offer, & brought them all by heapes. In the thyrde moneth they beganne to laye the hepes, in maner of a foundacion, and ſpynſhed them in the ſeuenth moneth. And whē Hezekia and the lordes came, and ſawe the heapes they bleſſed the Lorde & hys people Israel. And Hezekia queſtioned wyth the prestes and the Leuites, concernyng the heapes. And Azaria the chefe preſt of the houſe of Zadock, answered him and ſayd. ſyns the people beganne to byngge the beut offeringes into the houſe of the Lorde: we alſo haue had ynough to eate, there remayned ſo muche: for the Lorde hath bleſſed hys people & this heape is left. And Hezekia had prepare the chambers in the houſe of þ̄ Lorde. And they dyd prepare them, and carped in the ſpyt frutes, the tythes, and the dedicate thynges ſaythfully.

Quer whych, Conaiahu the Leuite had the rule, and Semei hys brother nexte to hym. And Jehiel, Aſariah, Rathath, Aſael, Jeremoth, Joſabad, Eliel, Jeſmachiahu, Maſath & Banaiadu, were ouerſeers ordeyned by Conaiahu, & Semei hys brother was an officer of Hezekia the kyng, and Azaria was the ruler of the houſe of God, (vnto whome al theſe chynges belonged.) And Choze the ſonne of Imma the Leuite & porter of the Eaſt dore, had the ouerſyght of þ̄ thynges that were offered of a fre wil vnto God, (and were geuen in maner ſeuerally vnto the Lorde) and ouer the thynges moꝝ holy. And vnder his haȝde were Eden, Maniamin, Jeſua: Semeiahu, Amariahu, and Sechaniahu in the cyties of the prestes apointed of theiꝝ ſydelyte to geue to theiꝝ brethern theiꝝ porcyons: aſwel to þ̄ ſmall as to the great. Except that to the males þ̄ were rekened from thre yere and aboue, among all þ̄ went into the houſe of þ̄ Lorde, they ſhulde geue daye by daye, for theiꝝ myniſtracyon, and for theiꝝ gnyng attendaunce, and for theiꝝ dyuerſe waytynges by courſe. And to þ̄ prestes and Leuites thowout the houſholde of theiꝝ fathers from twente yere and aboue, to wayte when theiꝝ courſes came.

And to the families of all theiꝝ babes, wyues, ſonnes, and doughters thowout all the congregacion. For vpon the ſydelyte of them were the holy thynges beſtowed. And to the children of Aaton, the prestes whych were in the feldes and ſuburbes of theiꝝ cyties, cytie by cytie, the men (whole names were expreſſed afore, ſhulde geue porcyons, euen to all the males amonge the prestes, and to all the Leuites, accordyng to theiꝝ nombꝛe. And of thys maner dyd Hezekia thowout al Juda, & wrought it that is good, and ryght and true, before the Lorde hys God. And in all the woꝝkes that he beganne for the ſcruyce of the houſe of God, for the lawe and for the commandementes, he ſought hys God and that dyd he wyth all hys herte, and prospered.

The xxxii. Chapter.

Sennacherib kyng of Aſſyria beſeiged Jeruſalem ſtryke of the angell Hezekia prayd, after whome ſuccedeth Aſaſiaſe.

After that theſe dedes were ſaythfully done, Sennacherib kyng of Aſſyria came, and entred into Juda, and compaſſed the ſtrong cyties, and thought to wyne them for hym ſelfe. And to when Hezekia ſawe that Sennacherib was come, and that he was purpoſed to fyght agaynſt Jeruſalem, he toke counſaile wyth his lordes and mie of myght, to ſtoppe the water of the fountaynes without the cytie: and they dyd helpe hym. For there gathered many of the people together, and ſtoppe all the welles, and the broke that ranne thowout the myds of the lande ſapenge: why ſhall the kynges of Aſſyria come, & fynde muche water? And Hezekia wente to luſtely, and buylt vp all þ̄ wall where it was broken, and made ordinaunce vpon the towꝝes and to the other wall wythout, and repayꝛed Willo in the cytie of David, and made many barres & ſheldes. And he ſet captaynes of warre ouer the people, and gathered them together to hym in þ̄ large ſtreet of the gate of the cytie and ſpake geſely to them, ſapenge: Plucke vp your hertes, & be ſtrong: Be not afrayed noꝝ diſcouraged, for the kyng of Aſſyria, & for all the myltitude that he hath w hym. For there be mo wyth vs then with hym. With hym is an arme of fleſh. But with vs is the Lord our God, for to helpe vs, & to fyght our battailes. And the people toke a courage thowout þ̄ woꝝdes of Hezekia kyng of Juda. After

E After this dyd Sennacherib king of Assyria sende of his seruantes to Jerusalem but he himselfe remayned besyde Lachis: hauynge all his power with him vnto Hezekia kyng of Iuda: vnto all Iuda that were at Jerusalem, saying: Thus sayeth Sennacherib kyng of Assyria: whereto do ye trust, Ope that dwell in Jerusalem which is besiged: Doth not Hezekia entyce you to gyue ouer your selues vnto death, hūgre and thyrst, saying: the Lorde our God shall ryd vs out of the hande of the kyng of Assyria: hath not the same Hezekia put downe his hye places and his alters, and commaunded Iuda & Jerusalem, saying. Ye shall worshyp before one aulter, and burne incense vpon the same.

Knowe ye not what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes? Were the gods of þe people of other landes able or myghty to saue theiꝝ landes out of my hande: whiche of al the goddes of those nacions (that my fathers destroyed) coulde not deliuer his people out of myne hande? And shal your God be habile to deliuer you out of myne hande? Wherfore now, let not Hezekia deceyue you, nor perswade you of this falspon, nor yet beleue hym.

D For as no god amonge all nacions & kyngdomes was able to rid his people out of my hand and out of the hande of my father. Howe moche lesse shal your goddes be able to kepe you out of my hande? And yet mo thynges dyd his seruantes spake agaynst the Lord God, and agaynst his seruaut Hezekia. And Sennacherib also wrote a lettre, to rayle on the Lord God of Israel & spake agaynst him, saying: as the gods of the nacions of other landes haue not ben able to deliuer their people out of my hand. Cūe so shal not the God of Hezekia deliuer his people out of myne hande. And they cryed w a loude voyce in the Jewes sprache vnto the people of Jerusalem that were on the wal to feare them and to make them saynt herte, and that they myght so take the cite. And they spake agaynst the God of Jerusalem as agaynst þe goddes of the nacions of the earth, which were þe workes of þe handes of men.

But Hezekia the kyng, and the prophet Isai the son of Amoz prayd agaynst þe blasphemie and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lorde sente an angel which destroyed all the men of war, and the lordes and captaynes of þe hoost of the kyng of Assyria, that he turned his face agayn w shame toward his owne land. * And when he was come into the house of his God, they that came of his owne body slayd hym there with the sword. And so the Lorde saved Hezekia and the inhabitants of Jerusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib kyng of Assyria, and from the hande of al oþer, and mayntayned them on euery syde. And many brought offerynges vnto the Lorde to Jerusalem, and presentes to Hezekia kyng of Iuda. so that he was magnified in the syght of all nacions from thence forth.

J In those dayes Hezekia was sycke vnto the death, and prayed vnto the Lord, which answered hym and thewed hym a wonderfull miracle. But Hezekia dyd not agayne vnto God according to it þe had thewed hym for his hert arose and there came wrath vpon hym, and vpon Iuda and Jerusalem. Notwithstanding Hezekia submitted hym selfe after that his hert was replenished, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and the wrath of the Lorde came not vpon them in the dayes of Hezekia.

And Hezekia had exceeding moche riches and honour. And he gat him treasures of syluer and golde, precious stones and spyrres, shylde, and of all maner of pleasant iuwels: and made store houses for þe frutes of corne, for wyne and oyle: and stalles for all maner of bestes, and foldes for shepe. And he made him cities & had of theye and oren great aboundance. For God had gyuen hym substance exceeding moche. This same Hezekia stopped the vpper water sprynges of Sion, and brought the downe to the west syde of the cite of Dauid. And Hezekia prospered in al his workes. And when the prynces of Babylon sent vnto hym embassadours, to enquire of the wonder that chaunced in the lande, God left hym * to trye hym, and that all that was in his herte myght be knowen.

The rest of the dedes of Hezekia, and his goodnes, beholde, they are wyrtten in the vpsyn of Isai the prophet the sonne of Amoz in the boke of the kynges of Iuda and Israel. And Hezekia slepte with his fathers, and they buried hym in the moost worthy place of the sepulchres of the sonnes of Dauid: and all Iuda & the inhabytors of Jerusalem dyd hym worshyppe at his death. And Manasse his sonne raygned in his stede.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Manasse was taken prisoner: and after that he cometh out, he bestereth the phylis. Heberth and after hym surerorth Amos, which is helled of hys owne people: p. Josias hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

Manasse was xli. yere olde & when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned true and fytte yere in Jerusalem: but dyd euyl in the syght of þe Lord lyke vnto the abhominaciōs of the hepythen, whome the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. For he went to, and buylte the hylaulter which Hezekia his father had brokē downe. And he reared vp aulter for Baali, and made groues, and worshipped all the host of heauen, and serued them.

And he buylt aulter in the house of þe Lord where as the Lorde yet had sayde: * in Jerusalem shall my name be for euer. And he buylded aulter for all the hoost of heauen in the two courtes for the house of the Lorde. And he burnt hys chyldren in fyre, in the valley of the son of Hinnon. He was a sozcerer: he regarded the cpynges of byrdes, vsed iuchauimentes, and mayntayned workers with spyrtes, & scars of fortunes: and wrought moche euyl in the syght of þe Lord to angre hym withall.

And he put the kerued ymage and ydol which he had made in þe house of God. Of which house God had sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: in this house and in Jerusalem, wyche I hane chosen afore all the trybes of Israel, & wyl I put my name for ever, and wyl nomore bring the seate of Israel from the lande which I haue ordeined for your fathers. Yf so be that they wil be diligent, and do all that I haue commaunded them in all the lawe and statutes, and ordinaunces by the hande of Moses. And so Manasse made Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the hepten whome the Lord destroyed before the children of Israel. And the Lord spake to Manasse and to his people, but they wolde not regarde.

Wherefore, the Lord brought vpon them the captaynes of the host of the kynge of the Assyrians, which toke Manasse in hoide, and bound hym with chaynes, and carped hym to Babilon. And when he was in tribulation, he besought the Lord his God, and humbled hym selfe exceedingly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to hym: and God was entreated of hym, and herde his prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jerusalem into his kingdome. And then Manasse knewe that the Lord was God.

After this he buylt a wall without the citie of Dauid, on the west syde of Sion, in the valey as they come to the frys gate, and round about Ophel, & brought it vp of a very great heyght, and put captaynes of warre in all the strong ctyes of Juda. And he toke a wape straunge goddes and ymages out of the house of God, and all the alters that he had buylt in the mounte of the house of God, & Jerusalem, and cast them out of the citie. And he prepared the alter of the Lord, and sacrificed thereon peace offrynges, & thank offrynges, and charged Juda to serue the Lord God of Israel. Nevertheless, the people dyd offer styll in the hylalters, howbeit, vnto the Lord they served onely.

The rest of the actes of Manasse & his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the sears, and of them that spake to him in the name of the Lord God of Israel, beholde, they are wyrtten in the saynges of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer, and how that he was herde, and all his synnes, and his trespasses, and the places where he made hylalters, and set vp groues and ymages (before he was mekened) beholde, they are wyrtten amonge the saynges of the sears. And Manasse slepte with his fathers, and they buryed hym in his owne house: And Amon his son raygned in his roume. Amon was two and twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned two yere in Jerusalem. But he dyd euyl in the syght of the Lord, lyke as dyd Manasse his father, for Amon sacrificed to all the kerued ymages, whiche Manasse his father had made and serued them, and submytted not hym selfe before the Lord: as Manasse his father hadde mekened hym selfe. But Amon trespassed greatly. And his owne seruantes conspyred agaynst hym, and slewe hym in his owne house. But the people of the lande slue all them that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon. And the same people of the land made Jolia his son king in his roume.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Jolia destroyed the ydols and restored the temple in which is founde the booke of the lawe. He sendeth to Buda the prophetesse for counsaile.

Jolia was eyght yere olde when he began to raygne, & and he raygned in Jerusalem. xxi. yere. And he dyd the whiche was eyght in the syght of the Lord, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, and bowed neyther to the right hande nor the left. In the eyght yere of his raygne (when he was yet a chyld) he began to seke after the God of Dauid his father. And in the twelue yere he began to poutge Juda, and Jerusalem from hylalters, groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall: and they brake downe the alters of Baalim, euen in his presence: and other ymages, that were in greater honoure then they, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall, he brake and made duste of them, and drawed it vpon the graues of them that had offered vnto them. And he burnt the bones of the prestes vpon the alters of them, and cleaused Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the ctyes of Manasse, Ephraim, Symeon, vnto Asephthai. And in the wylderesses of them, rounde aboute, he plucked asondre the alters and the groues, and dyd beate them and stampe them to pouldre, and beate downe all the ymagesthorowoute all the lande of Israel: and returned to Jerusalem agayne.

In the xviij. yere of his raygne when he had poured the lande and the temple, & he sent Shaphan the sonne of Amaziab, and Maasiah the gouernour of the ctye, and Joab the sonne of Joahaz the recorder, to repaire the house of the Lord his God. And when they came to Heliasah the hie priest, they deliuered hem the monney that was brought into the house of God, whiche the Leuytes that kept the entres, had gathered of the hande of Manasse, & Ephraim, and of all that yet remayned in Israel, and of all Juda and Beniamin, and of the inhabytors of Jerusalem. And they put it in the handes of the workemen that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lord: and they gaue it to the labourers that wrought in the house of the Lord, to repaire and amende the house. Euen to masons & carpenters gaue they it, to get stone and tymbre for couples and for beames of the houses, which the kynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men dyd the worke faythfully.

And the ouersers of them to courage them forwarde, were Jathath & Obadiab Leuytes, of the children of Merari: and Secharia, & Heliham, of the chyldren of the Sabathytes, and other of the Leuytes: whiche all coude skyll of instrumentes of musyke. And ouer the bearers of burthens, and ouer al that wrought, in whatsoeuer workmanshipp it were, were these scribes, offcers, and porters of the Leuytes.

And when they brought out the monney that was brought in to the house of the Lord, Helkia the prest & founde the booke of the lawe of the Lord ggeuen by Moses. And Helkia answered red & sayd to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the booke of the lawe in the house of the Lorde, and Helkia gaue the booke to Sapha. And Saphan carped the booke to the kyng, and brought the kynges worde agayne, sayinge: all that was committed to thy seruantes, that do they. And they haue gathered togyther the moneye þ was founde in the house of the Lorde, and haue deliuered into the handes of þ ouer sears of the work and to the handes of the workemen. And then Saphan the scribe shewed the kyng, sayinge: Helkia the preaste hath giuen me a booke, and Saphan red in it before the kyng.

E And it fortuned, that when the kyng had herd the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes and the kynges commaunded Helkia and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, and Abidon the sonne of Micah, and Saphan the scribe, and Aiaia a seruant of the kynges, sayinge: go and enquire of the Lorde for me, and for them that are left in Israel and Iuda, concernyng the wordes of the booke that is founde. For great is the wrath of the Lord that is fallen vpon vs, because our fathers haue not kept the worde of the Lorde, to do after all that is wyrtten in this booke.

And Helkia and they that the kyng had appointed, went to Hulda a propheteesse the wyfe of Shallum, the sonne of Tokhath, the sonne of Hasra keeper of the wardrobe (for she dwelte in Ierusalem within the seconde wall) and so they communed with her. She answered them: thus saeth the Lorde God of Israel: tell ye the man that sent you to me. Euen thus sayth the Lorde: beholde, I wyl bypnyng cnyl vpon this place, and vpon the inhabyters therof (euen all the curles, that are wyrtten in the booke which they haue red before the kyng of Iuda) because they haue forsaken me, and offered vnto other goddes, to angre me with all maner workes of theyr handes therfore is my wrath set on fyre, agaynst this place: and shall not be quenched. And as for the kyng of Iuda which sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall ye saye vnto hym: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, concernyng the wordes which thou hast herde.

B Because thyne heart dyd melt, and thou dydst meke thy self before God when thou herdest his wordes against this place and against the inhabyters therof and humbledst thy self before me and tarest thy clothes, and weptest before me, that haue I herde also sayth the Lorde. Beholde I wyl take the to thy fathers, and thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, and thyne eyes shall not se all the myschefe that I wyl bypnyng vpon this place and vpon the inhabyters of the same. And they brought þ king word agayne. * Chā the kynges sent and gathered togyther all the elders of Iuda & Ierusalem. And the kyng went vp into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Iuda, and the inhabyters of Ierusalem, and the prestes and Leuites and all the people great and small, and the kyng dyd reade in theyr eares all the wordes of the booke of the couenaunt that was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kyng stode at his standyng, and made a coue-naunt before the Lorde, to folowe the Lord, and to kepe his commaundementes, his wyrtnesses, and his statutes, with all his herte, and with all his soule, and to fulfyll the wordes of þ appoyntement wyrtten in the same booke.

And he set in theyr roume all them that were founde in Ierusalem, and Beniamin, and the inhabyters of Ierusalem dyd accordyng to the couenaunt of the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Josia put away al maner of abhominacions out of all landes that pertayned to the chyldren of Israel, & brought in all that were found in Israel to worshyp and to serue þ Lorde theyr God. And they turned not asyde from after the Lord God of theyr fathers as long as he lyued.

The xxxv. Chapter:

Josia holdeth passeouer. He forgetteth agaynst the kynges of Egypt, and dyeth. The people bewaile hym.

And Josia helde the * feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde in Ierusalem, & they shue passeouer in the xiii. daye of the fyrste moneth. And he set the prestes in theyr offices, and ayded them in the seruice of the house of the Lord. And he sayd vnto the Leuites (that taught al Israel and were sanctified vnto the Lord) put the holy arke in the house whiche Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng of Israel dyd buylde, there shal no other burthen be layed vpo your shulders: But nowe serue the Lorde your God and his people Israel. And prepare your selues by your auncyent householdes and compaynes, accordyng to the wyrtynge of Dauid kyng of Israel, and the wyrtynge of Salomon his sonne, and stande in the holy place accordyng to the deuyson of the auncient householdes of your brethren the chyldren of the people, and after the deuyson of the auncient householdes of the Leuites, shul passeouer, and sanctify, & prepare your brethren that they may do accordyng to the word of the Lord by the hande of Moses.]

And Josia gaue to the people flockes of shepe and kyddes, all for passeouer, and for all þ were present thynt thou. and by tale, & thre thousand oxen, & these were euen of the kynges substance. And his lordes gaue wyllonglye both vnto the people and to the prestes, and vnto the Leuites. Helkia also, zatharia and Jehiel rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto þ prestes for passeouer offrynges, two thousand & fyre hundred depe, and thre hundred oxen: Conania and Semeiahu and Netanel his brethren, and Hasabiah and Jael, and Josabad, rulers of the Leuites gaue vnto the Leuites passeouer offrynges, euen tye thousande shepe, and fyne hundre oxen.

And so the scrupce was prepared, & the prestes stode in theyr places, & the Leuites in theyr distinct copanies at the kynges commaundement. And they shue passeouer, and the prestes sprynkled the bloud with their hand, and the Leuites pulled of the skynnes of the beastes. And they set away the burnt offrynges to gyue them vnto the people that were deuyded by auncyente houses, and that they shuld offre vnto the Lord lyke * as it is wyrtte in the booke of Moses. And so dyd

And the other dedicate beastes sod they in pottes, cauldernes, and pannes, and deuoyded them amonge all the people. And afterwarde they made redy for them selues and for the prestes: for the chyldren of Aaron were busied in offering of burnt offorynges, & the fat vntyll nyght: thertore the Leuites prepared for them selues, & for the prestes the sonnes of Aaron.

And the syngers the children of Asaph stode

And the kyng sayd to his seruantes. carry me away, for I am sore wounded. His seruantes therfore had hym out of that charet, and put him <sup>as a king</sup> in an other charet that they had. And when they had brought him to Ierusalem he dyed, and was buried in the sepulchre of his fathers. * And all Juda and Ierusalem mourned for Josia. And Ieremia lamed Josia, and all syngynge men and syngynge women mourned for Josia in theyr lamentacions to this daye, and made the same lamentaciōs an ordinance in Israel and beholde, they be written in the lamentacyons. Wherfore, all the rulers, the prestes and the people trespassed moze, synnyng after all maner of abhominacions of the heythen, & polluted the house of the Lord which he had halowed in Ierusalem.

* And the Lorde God (f they fathers sent to them, by his messengers, tpsyng vpon by tymes, and sendyng, for he had compassion on his people, and on his dwellpunge place. But they mocked the messengers of God, & despyred his wordes, and imfused his pphetes, vntyll the wroth of the Lorde arose agaynst his people, and tyll there was no remedy. ### The iiii. Chapter.

¶ The buyldyng of the temple to be ended and set.

At the aduersaries of Juda and Benjamin herde, that the chyldren of the captivite buylded the temple vnto þ Lord God of Israel. And they cam to zoobabel, & to the pryncypall fathers, and sayd vnto them: We wyl buylde with you: for we seke the Lorde your God lyke as ye do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto hym syns the tyme of Asorhaddon the kynge of Assur: which brought vs up hyther. And zoobabel, and Iesua, and the other auncient fathers of Israel, sayde vnto them: It can not be, that you and we togyther, shoulde buylde the house vnto our God: for we our selues wyl buylde alone vnto the Lord our God of Israel, as Cyrus the kynge of Persia hath commaunded vs.

And it came to passe, that the folke of the land bynded the people of Juda, and troubled them as they were buyldyng, and byred counsailers agaynst them, to byndre theyr deuyce, as longe as Cyrus the kynge of Persia lyued, vntyll the rapgne of Darius kynge of Persia. And in the rapgne of Ahasuerus (even in the begynning of his rapgne) wrote they vnto hym a complaynt agaynst the inhabitants of Juda and Ierusalem.

And in the dayes of Artaxerxes, wrote Esdras the scribe, and the other of his counsell vnto Artaxerxes the kynge of Persia with large wordes. And the scrpytner of the letter was written in the Syriac speche, and interpreted in the language of the Syrians. Nehum the recorder, and Samai the scribe wrote a letter from Ierusalem to Artaxerxes the kynge: as it foloweth.

Then Nehum the recorder, and Samai the scribe, and ower of theyr compaigne of Dina, of Arphasath, of Charpla, of Persia, of Arach, of Babylon, of Susan, of Orba, of Elan, & other of the people: whom the great and noble Asinapar brought ouer: and set in the cyties of Samaria, and other, that are now on this syde the water. This is the coppye of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes.

Thy seruauntes and the men that are now on this syde the water. Be it knowen vnto þ kynge that the Jewes whiche came vs from the to vs, are come vnto Ierusalem: a cytie sedicious and frowarde, and buylde the same, and sette vp the walles thereof, and laye the foundations. Be it knowen now also vnto the kynge, that if this cytie be vnyded, and the walles therof made vpayne, then shall not they gyue tolle, trybute, & custome, and the kynges profyte shall incurre damage. And now in the meane season we haue destroyed the temple, and wolde no longer s. the kynges dishonoure. Therefore sent we out also, and certifyed the kynge: that it maye be sougde in the booke of the Chronicles of thy progenytours, and so shalt thou fynde in the booke of the Chronicles, and perceyue that this cytie is sedicious and noysome vnto kynges & landes, and that they cause other also among them to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cytie destroyed. Therefore do we certifye the kynge that if this cytie be buylde agayne, and the walles thereof made vp: thou shalt hereafter haue no pozepon on this syde the water.

Then sent þ kynge an answer vnto Nehum the recorder, & Samai þ scribe, & to the other of their copaigns that dwelt in Samaria, & vnto the other that were beyond þ water, in Selan & Ebeher. The letter which he sent vnto vs, hath ben openly red before me, & I haue comaunded to make searche: & it is founde: þ this cytie of olde, hath made insurrection agaynst the kynges, & that rebellion & sedition hath bene comytted therein. There haue ben nyghtye kynges also at Ierusalem, whiche haue raygned ouer all countreys, beyond the water: and tolle, trybute, & custome was gyuen vnto them: Gyue ye now therefore comaundement, that the same men be forbydden, and that the cytie be not buylde agayne, tyll I haue gyuen an other comaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent to do this: for why shoulde the kynge haue harme therethorowe?

Now when the coppye of kynge Artaxerxes letter was red before Nehum and Samai the scribe, and theyr compaigns, they went vp in all the haste to Ierusalem, vnto the Jewes, and forbade them with violence and power. Then ceased the worke of the house of God at Ierusalem: and continued so vnto the seconde yere of Darius kynge of Persia.

The. v. Chapter.

By the exhortation of Aggeus and zacharye is the temple buylded agayne.

¶ H. l. c. 3. v. 1. a

Agge 1. d

The prophetes Aggeus and zacharye the sonne of Iddo prophesied vnto the Jewes that wer in Iuda and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel.

* Then gat vp zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesua the sonne of Iosedec, and began to buyld the house of God at Jerusalem: and with the were the prophetes of God, which helped them. At the same tyme came to them Tathnai, whiche was captayne on this syde the water, and Starbazani, & theri companions, and sayd thus vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buyld this house, and to make vpon these walles? Then tolde we them the names of the men that made this buyldynge. But the eve of they: God was vpon the elders of the Jewes, that they coude not cause them to cease, tyl the matter was brought to Darius, and then they answered by letters there vnto.

¶ This is the coppe of the lettre, that Tahnai (whiche was captayne on this syde the water, and Starbazani, & the counsailers of Apharsah which were on this syde the water) sent vnto king Darius. And the matter that they sent vnto hym, was written thus within the lettre: Unto Darius the kyng, al peace. Be it known vnto the kyng, that we went in to the lande of Jewrye, to the house of the great God, which is builded with many great stones, and beames are layed in the walles, and the worke goth fast forth, & prospereth in theyr handes. Then asked we the elders, & sayd vnto them as it foloweth: Who commaunded you to buyld this house and to make vpon the walles thereof? We asked theyr names also, that we myght certifye the, & write the names of the men that were theyr rulers.

¶ So they answered vs with theise worde, & sayd. We are the seruautes of hym that is God of heauen & erth, and buyld the house that was buylded many yeres ago, * which a great kyng of Israel buylded, & set vp. But after that our father had prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath, he gaue them ouer into the hand of Nabuchodonozor the king of Babilon, & of the Chaldees whiche brake downe this house, and caried the people a waye captiue vnto Babilon.

* But in the fyrst yere of Cyrus the kyng of Babilon, the same kyng Cyrus gaue commaun-dement concernynge this house of God, that it shuld be buylded agayne. And the vessels of gold and syluer of the house of God, which Nabuchodonozor take out of the temple that was at Jerusalem, & brought them into the temple at Ba-bilon, those dyd Cyrus the kyng take out of the temple at Babilon, * and they were deliuered vnto one Shasbazar by name, whome he made captayne & sayd vnto hym: Take these vessels and go thy way, and set them in the temple that is at Jerusalem, and let the house of God be buyl-ded in his place. Then came the same Shasbazar and layed the foundation of the house of God, whiche is at Jerusalem. Synsthat tyme also vntill now hath it ben in buylding, and yet is it not finished. If it please the kyng nowe therfore let there be serche made in the kynges libra-rye whiche is there at Babilon, whether it haue ben kyng Cyrus commaundement, that this temple of God at Jerusalem shulde be buylded, and let hym sende vs the kynges answere concernynge the same matter.

The. vi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of Darius kyng of Persia, after the temple was buylded and dedicate, the children of Israel kept the feast of bulcuened byrd.

¶ Then commaunded kyng Darius, and they made serche in the librarye, euen in the place where they layed vpon the treasure at Babilon. * And there was founde in a coffre (in the place that is in the land of the Medes, a volume, and therein was it thus wrytten, & such a memorie: In the fyrst yere of kyng Cyrus, gaue the same kyng Cyrus commaundement concernynge the house of God at Jerusalem, that the same house shulde be buylded in the place where they offere the sacrifices, and to ioyne the walles together of threescore cuby-tes heygth, and threescore cubytes breadth. There rowes of rough stones, & one rowe of tymber, and the expences shall be giuen of the kynges house. And let the golde and syluer vessel of the house of God, (whiche Nabuchodonozor take out of the temple at Jerusalem and brought vnto Babilon) be restored and broughte agayne vnto the temple at Jerusalem to theyr place in the house of God.

¶ Set you far from them therfore, thou Tahnai captayne beyonde the water, and Starbazani, and your counsailers and Aphet Sechet, whiche are beyonde the water, get ye away from them. Let the worke of the house of this God a-loone, that the captayne of the Jewes and theyr elders maye buyld the house of God in his place.
I haue commaunded what shall be done to the elders of Iuda for the buyldynge of the house of God, that there shall be diligent hede taken of the kynges goodes, euen of the rentes beyonde the water, and giue vnto the men, that they be not hindered. And if they haue neede of calues, rammes, & lambs for the burnt offeringe of the God of heauen, wheate, salte, wyne, and oyle, after the custome of the prestes at Jerusalem, let the same be giuen them dayly without anye delay, that they maye offere swete sauiours vnto the God of heauen, and pray for the kynges lyfe and for his chylidren. And such a commaunde-ment haue I giuen, that what man soeuer he be that altereth this worde, there shall a beame be taken from his house, and set vp, and he shall be hanged thereon, and his house shall be made a donge hyll, for the same thynge.

¶ And the God that set his name there, destroy all kynges and people that put to theyr hand to altere, & to brake downe the house of God whiche is at Jerusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be done with speede.

¶ Then Tahnai the captayne of the country beyonde the water, and Starbazani with their counsailers

consaylers ( to whom kynge Darius had sent, & dyd they diligence : And y<sup>e</sup> elders of the Jewes buylded, and they prospered thowow the prophe- crenge of Aggeus the prophete, and zachary the sonne of Iddo : and they buylded and layd vp y<sup>e</sup> foundation, accordynge to the commaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaunde- ment of Cyrus and Darius, and Artaxerxes kin- ges of Persia. And the house was finished the thyrtyde day of the moneth Adar, even in the fyrte peate of the raygne of kynge Darius.

II. pz. vii. b

* And the chyldren of Israel, the prestes, the Levites, & the other chyldren of y<sup>e</sup> captivite held the dedication of thys house of God wyth ioye, and offred at the dedication of thys house of god an hundred oxen : two hundred rāmes : foure hū- dred goates, & for the reconcylynge of all Israel twelue hegoates accordynge to the nombre of the tribes of Israel, and set the prestes in they<sup>r</sup> sondre courtes : and the Levites in they<sup>r</sup> diuers offices to minstre vnto God at Ierusalem : as it is wyrtten in the boke of Moses.

¶ And the chyldre of the captivite held Pasce- ouer vpon the fourtenth daye of y<sup>e</sup> fyrste moneth for the prestes and Leuytes were purysed, so that they were all cleane togyther, and kyllid Pasceouer for all the chyldren of the captivite, & for they<sup>r</sup> brethren the prestes & for them selues. And the chyldren of Israel whych were come a- gayne out of captivite, and all such as had sepa- rated themselves vnto them, fro the sylthynesse of the hepythen of the lāde : to seke the Lord God of Israel, dyd eate, and helde the feast of vnleue- ned breade seuen dayes wyth ioye : for the Lord had made them glad, & turned the hart of y<sup>e</sup> king of Assur vnto them, to strengthe they<sup>r</sup> hades in the worke of y<sup>e</sup> house of god, eue y<sup>e</sup> god of Israel.

The vii. Chapter.

¶ Wher the commaundment of Artaxerxes, Esdras taketh hys compaynyons the chyldren of Israel and returneth to Ierusalem.

II. pz. vii. b

¶ After these actes, there was in the raygne of Artaxerxes kyng of Per- sia, one Esdras the sōne of Sariah the sōne of Asaria, the son of Hel- kiah, the sōne of Sallum, the sōne of Iadoc, the sōne of Ithob, the sōne of Amia- ria, the sōne of Asaria, the sōne of Adaraioth, the sōne of Ieremia, the sōne of Elsi, the sōne of Bucki, the sōne of Abisua, the sōne of Phine- hes, the sōne of Eleasar, the sōne of Jaro the chefe prest. Thys Esdras also went vp fro Ba- bylon, & was a perfyte scribe in y<sup>e</sup> lawe of Mo- ses, * whych the Lord God of Israel dyd gyue. And the king gaue hym all that he requyred by- cause the hande of the Lord his God was vpon hym. And there wente vncertayne of the chyl- dren of Israel of the prestes, Levites, syngers porters, & of the Netynims vnto Ierusalem, in the seuenth peate of kynge Artaxerxes. And he came to Ierusalem in the fyfth moneth, even in the seuenth peate of the kyng. For vps y<sup>e</sup> fyrst daye of the fyrste moneth, began he to go vp fro Babylon, & on the fyrst day of the fyrst moneth came he to Ierusalem, bycause the good hāde of God was vpon hym. For Esdras prepared hys berte to seke the lawe of the Lord, & to do it, and to teache the precept and iudgement in Israel.

And thys is the coppe of y<sup>e</sup> letter, that kynge Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the preaste and scribe, whiche was a wyrtter of the wordes and commaundments of the Lord, & of hys statutes ouer Israel. Artaxerxes a kyng of kynges. Vnto Esdras the preast & scribe of the lawe of the God of heuen peace & salutation. I haue co- maunded, that all they of the people of Israel, & of the prestes, & Leuytes in my realme (whych are wynded of their owne god wyl to go vp to Ierusalem) go wyth the and therefore art y<sup>e</sup> sent of the kyng & of hys leuen consaylers, to visyt Iuda & Ierusalem, accordynge to y<sup>e</sup> lawe of thy God, whych is in thy hāde. And that thou shuldest take wyth the syluer & golde, whych y<sup>e</sup> kyng & hys consaylers offre of they<sup>r</sup> owne good wyl, vnto the God of Israel (whose habitacion is at Ierusalem) & all the syluer & golde y<sup>e</sup> thou caus- fynde in all the countrey of Babylon, wyth it that the people offre of they<sup>r</sup> owne good wyl and the prestes gyue for the house of they<sup>r</sup> God whych is at Ierusalem.

Take thou the same, & bye diligēty wyth the same money, oxen, rāmes, and lābes, with their meatofferynge & drynkeofferynge : and thou shalt offer them vpon the autler of the house of y<sup>e</sup> our God, whiche is at Ierusalem. And loke what it lyketh the, & thy brethren to do wyth the rem- naunt of the money, that do after y<sup>e</sup> wyl of y<sup>e</sup> our God. And the vessels that are gyuen the for the ministracion in the house of thy God, those deli- uer thou before God at Ierusalem.

And what soeuer thing moze shal be nedeful for y<sup>e</sup> house of thy God, whiche is necessary for y<sup>e</sup> to spende, thou shalt receyue the charges out of the kynges treasure house, I kyng Artaxerxes haue comaunded al the treasurers beyonde y<sup>e</sup> wa- ter, that loke what soeuer Esdras the preest and scribe, in the lawe of the God of heauen, requy- reth of pou that ye fulfyll the same spedyly, vntyll an hundred talentes of syluer, vntyll an hū- dred quarters of wheat, and tyl an hūdzd Bat- thes of wyne, and tyl an hūdzd & 20 batthes of oyle : and salte wythout measure. What soeuer also belongeth to y<sup>e</sup> lawe of y<sup>e</sup> God of heauen, let the same bedone wythout any delay for y<sup>e</sup> house of the God of heauen, y<sup>e</sup> he be not wrauth agaynst the realme, & agaynst the kyng : & hys chyldren.

II. pz. vii. b

And we certifie pou : that ye haue no autho- ritie to requyre taxynge and custome, & paynt- mentes vpon anye of the prestes, Leuytes, syngers, porters, Netynims, and ministers in the house of hys God. And thou Esdras (after the wysdome of thy God, that is in thy hāde) set iudges and arbiters by my authoritie, to iudge all the people that is beyonde the water, even al suche as knowe the lawe of thy God : and them that knowe it not : those se that ye teache. And whosoever wyl not fulfyll the lawe of thy God, and the kynges lawe, lette hym haue hys iudge- mente wythout delaye, whether it be vnto death or to be rooted out, or to be condempned in goodes : or to be put in prison.

W. L. W. L.

* Blessed be the Lorde God of our fathers, whiche so hath inspired the kynges herte, to gather us to the house of the Lorde, that is at Ierusalem: and hath inclined his mercie vnto me, in the presence of the kyng and his counsaillers: and before all the kynges pynces. And I was comforted (even as the hande of the Lorde my God was vpon me) and so gathered I the heades of Israel together, that they myght go vp with me.

The viii. Chapter.

The nombre of them that returned to Ierusalem with Esdras.

ut. et. viii. c.

These are the principall fathers of them, & this is theyr register that wente vp with me from Babilon, what tyme as kyng Artaxerxes ragned. Of the chyldren of Phinehes, Gersom: of the chyldren of Ithamar, Daniel: of the chyldren of Dauid, Husus: of the chyldren of zacharia: among the chyldren of Pharos, zachary: and with hym were nombred an hundred and fyfty men. Of the chyldren of the captayne of Moab, Elionai, the sonne of zerahia, and with hym two hundred men. Of the chyldren of zacharia the sonne of Iahasiel, & with hym thre hundred men. Of the chyldren of Adin, Abed the sonne of Jonathan, & with hym fyfty men. Of the chyldren of Elam, Isai the sonne of Ithalia, and with hym seuentie men. Of the chyldren of Saphatia, sebadia the sonne of Michael, and with hym foure score men.

Of the chyldren of Joab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiel, and with hym two hundred and eghtene men. Of the chyldren of Shelomith the sonne of Iosephia, and with hym an hundred and thre score men.

Of the chyldren of Bebai, zachary the sonne of Bebai, and with hym eght and twenty men. Of the chyldren of Isgad, Johanan the sonne of Hakatan, and with hym an hundred and ten men. Of the chyldren of Adoniam, that were the last, whose names are these: Eliphelet, Jehiel & Samaiab, and with them thre score men. Of the chyldren of Bignai, Elthai, & zabud, and with them seuentie men. And I gathered them together by the water that runneth towarde Abana, and there abode we thre dayes. And I looked among the people & the prestes, and founde there none of the chyldren of Levi. Then sent I to Eliezer, to Aziel, Semera, Elmachan, Jarib, Elmathan, Nathan, zachary, and to Meshullam the rulers, and to Joiarib and Elmathan, whiche were men of vnderstandynge, and to those gaue I commaundement: vnto Jddo the chiefe at Casphia, that they shulde fetch vs mynstres for the house of our God, and I tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Jddo and to his brethren the Aethynims at Casphia.

And (thowwe the good hande of our God vpon vs) they brought vs a wyse man from among the chyldren of Moholi the sonne of Levi, the sonne of Israel and Sarabia with his sonne and his brethren, even eghtene. And Hasabia, and with hym Isai of the chyldren of Merari, with his brethren, and theyr sonnes twenty.

And of the Aethynims, whome Dauid and the pynces gaue to minister vnto the Leuytes, two hundred and twenty of Aethynims, whiche all were named by name.

And even there at the water, besyde Abana, I proclaimed a fast, that we myght humble our selues before our God, and seke of hym a ryght waye for vs, and for our chyldren, and for al our substance. For I was ashamed to requyre of the kyng, souldyours and horsemen, to helpe vs agaynst the enemy in the waye: but we sayd vnto the kyng: The hande of our God is vpon all them that seke hym in goodnes, & his violence and wrath is agaynst all them that forsake hym. So we fasted, and besought our God for this: and he herde vs.

And I toke out twelue of the chiefe prestes: Sarabia and Hasabia, and ten of their brethren with them, & wayed them the syluer & golde, and vessels that were appoynted for the house of our God, whiche the kyng and his counsaillers and his lordes, & all Israel that were there at hande had gyven together. And I wayed vnto theyr hande syxe hundred and fyfty talentes of syluer, and in syluer vessell an hundred talentes, and in golde an hundred talentes: twenty basens of golde, of a thousande peces, and two costly ornaments, of good brasse, as cleare as golde: and I sayd vnto them: Ye are consecrate vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, lyke as the vessels are holy also, and the golde & syluer are gyven of a good wyll vnto the Lorde God of your fathers. Marke ye, and kepe it for ye shall waye it downe before the chiefe prestes and Leuytes, & auncient fathers of Israel at Ierusalem in the treasures of y<sup>e</sup> house of the Lorde. Then toke the prestes and Leuytes the wayed syluer and golde, and vessell to brynge it to Ierusalem, vnto the house of our God. And we brake vp, from the water of Abana on the twelveth daye of the fyrst moneth, to go vnto Ierusalem: and the hande of our God was vpon vs, and deliuered vs from the hande of the enemyes and of such as layde wayte for vs by the waye. And we came to Ierusalem, and abode ther thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer & golde and vessell weyed in the house of our God by the hand of Meremoth the sonne of Aria the prest, & with him was Eleazar y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Phinehes, & with them was Josabad y<sup>e</sup> son of Jesua, & Roodia the sonne of Benoi the Leuytes. Accordyng to the nombre & weyght of euery one, was the weyght all wyrtten vp at the same tyme.

And the chyldren of the captiuite, which were come out of pryson, offred burntoffrynges vnto the God of Israel, twelue bullockes, for all Israel, syxe and nyntie rammes, seuen and seuentye lambes, twelue hegores for a synneoffryng, all to the burntoffryng of the Lorde. And they deliuered the kynges comission vnto the kynges offceers, and to the captaynes that were on this syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

When these thynges were done, the rulers cam to me, & said: The people of Israel, & the prestes and Leuites are not separated from the people of the landes (as touching their abominacions) namely, of the Cananites, Hethites, Pherezites, Jebusites, Amouites, Moabites, Egypci-ans, & Amozites. * For they haue take y<sup>e</sup> doughters of the same to them selues, & to they<sup>r</sup> sonnes & the holy seed is myxed wth the nations in the lande, and the hande of the princes and rulers hath ben principall in the trespassse.

And there resorted vnto me all suche as feared the wordes of the Lorde God of Israel, bycause of the transgression of y<sup>e</sup> people of the captiuitie. And I sat mournyng vntill the euenyng sacrifice. And aboute the euenyng sacrifice, I arose vp from my heynnes, and rent my clothes and my rayment and fell vpon my knees, and spredde out my handes vnto the Lorde my God, and sayd.

And now oure God, what shall we saye after this? For we haue forsaken thy commaundementes whiche thou hast comaunded by thy seruantes the prophetes, sayenge. The lande vnto whych ye go to possesse, it is an uncleane lade bycause of the fylthynesse of the people of y<sup>e</sup> landes, whiche wth they<sup>r</sup> abominacions haue made it ful of uncleannesse on euerye syde. * Therefore shal ye not giue your doughters vnto their sonnes, & they<sup>r</sup> doughters shal ye not take vnto your sonnes, nor like they<sup>r</sup> peace and wealth for euer, that ye maye be stronge and enioye the good in the lande, and that ye and your chyldren maye haue the inheritaunce of it for euermore.

The x. Chapter.

The people repent and curre, and put awaye they<sup>r</sup> straunge wyues.

And when * Eldras prayed after this manner, & knowledged, wepte, & laye before the house of god, there resorted vnto hym out of Israel a verie greate congregacion of men and womē & chyldren and the people wept verie sore. And Serchania y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Jehiel one of the chyldren of Elam, answered and sayd vnto Eldras: We haue trespassed agaynst our God, and haue taken straunge wyues of the people of the lande. Nowe there is hope yet in Israel concernyng this thyng: For now we wyl make a covenant wth oure God, and put awaye all the wyues (and such as are born of them) according to the counsaile of the Lorde & we wyl be in the feare of the commaundementes of our god, that we may do accoring to the law. Set the vp for this matter belogeth vnto the: we also wyl be wth the: be of good comforte therefore, and do it.

* Then arose Eldras & toke an oth of y<sup>e</sup> chiefe prestes & Leuites, & of al Israel, that they shoulde do accordyng to this worde: and they sweare. And Eldras stode vp fro before y<sup>e</sup> house of God & went into the chabze of Iohanan the sonne of Elasib. And when he cam thither, he dyd cate no bread, nor dronke water, for he mourned, bycause of the transgression of the people that had bene in captiuite. And they caused a proclamation to go thorowout Iuda and Ierusalem, vnto all the chyldren whiche had bene in captiuite, that they shuld gather them selues togyther vnto Ierusalem. And that whosoever came not wth in thre dayes accordyng to the denyce of the rulers and elders, all his substance shoulde be forfayt, and he shoulde be put forth from the congregacion of the captiue.

Then al the men of Iuda and Ben Iamin gathered them selues together vnto Ierusalem wthin thre dayes, euen the twentye daye of the nynt moneth: and al the people sate in the strete before the house of God, and trembled bycause of this matter, and for the rayne. And Eldras the prest stode vp, and sayd vnto them: * Ye haue transgressed, and haue taken straunge wyues, to make trespassse of Israel yet more: felle nowe therefore vnto the Lord God of your fathers, & do his pleasure, & separate your selues fro the people of y<sup>e</sup> lade, & fro the straunge wyues. And al the congregacion answered, and sayd wth a loude voyce: it shalbe so. & we wyl do as y<sup>e</sup> hast sayde. how it went at Ierusalem. And they sayd vnto me: The remnaunt of the captiuite are there in the land in great mysfortune and rebuke. * The wall of Ierusalem also is broken downe: and the gates thereof are brent with fyre.

It fortuneth, that when I herde these wordes,
I late me downe and wepte, and mourned cer-tayne dayes, and fasted and prayed before the God of heauen, and sayd. O Lorde God of heauen, thou great and terribble God, * thou that kepest couenaunt and mercy for them that loue the, and obserue thy commaundementes. let thyne eares hearken, I beseeche the, and let thyne eares

Israel, whiche we haue synned agaynst the.

I and my fathers house haue synned: we haue ben utterly dyspersed from thy lawe, and haue not kepte thy commaundementes, statutes and lawes, whiche thou commaundedest thy seruaunt Moses. I beseeche the, call to remembraunce the worde that thou commaundedest thy seruaunt Moses, and saydest. Ie wyl transgresse, and * I wyl scatre you abroad amonge the nacions. But yf ye turne vnto me, and kepe my commaundementes, and do them: though ye were cast out vnto y<sup>e</sup> uttermost parte of heauen, yet wyl I gather you fro thence, & wyl brynge you vnto the place that I haue chosyn, to set my name there. They are thy seruautes and thy people, whome thou hast deliuered thowow thy great power & in thy myghty hande. O Lorde, I beseeche the, let thyne eare hearken to the prayer of thy

¶ Then were appoynted Jonathan the sonne of

The. ii. Chapter.

After Achania had obtained letters of Artaxerxes, he came to Jerusalem and buylded the walles.

Fortuned, that in the moneth * Achan in the twentieth yere of king Artaxerxes, the wyne stode before hym, & I toke vp the wyne, & gaue it vnto the kyng. And I was heuie in his presence. And the kyng sayde vnto me: why lokest thou so sadly, whē part not sicke: it is nothinge els, but that part heuie herted. And I was sore afrayed, and sayd vnto the kyng, God saue the kynges lyfe for ever. Howe shoulde I not loke sadly, whē the cite and place of my fathers buriall lyeth wast, and the gates thereof are consumed wth fyre. And the kyng sayd vnto me: what is the thy request? I made my prayer also to the God of heauen, & sayd vnto the kyng: if it please the kyng: and if thy seruante haue founde fauoure in thy syght, sende me into Iuda vnto the cite of my fathers buryall, that I maye buylde it.

And the kyng sayd vnto me (the queene hys wyfe lettynge by hym) howe longe shal thy tourney continue, and when wilt thou come agayne? And it pleased the kyng to sende me, & I set hym a tyme, and sayde vnto the kyng: if it please the kyng, let hym geue me letters to the captaynes which are beyonde the water, that they maye conuay me ouer, tyll I come into Iuda: and letters vnto Asaph the lord of the kynges wood, that he maye geue me timber to make beames for the gates of the palace: which is herde be the house) & for the walles of the cite, & for the house I shall entre into. And the kyng gaue me accordyng to the hande of my God, which was good vpon me. And when I came to the captaynes beyonde the water, I gaue them the kynges letters. And the kyng sente captaynes and horsemen wth me.

Sanabalat also the Horonite and Tobia a seruante (the Ammonite) heard it, and it grieved them sore, that there was come a mā which sought the wealsh of the chyldre of Israell. And I came to Jerusalem, and was there thre dayes. & I gat me up in the night season, and a fewe men wryte me. Next day tolde I anye man, what God had gyuen me in my herte to do at Jerusalem: & there was not one beast wth me, saue it that I rode vpon. And I departed in the nyght by the valleye porte, before the draggon well, and to the donge porte, and conspyred the walles of Jerusalem howe they were broken downe and the portes thereof consumed with the fyre. And I went ouer vnto the well porte, and to the kynges conduyte, & there was no rowme for the beast that was vnder me to passe. Then went I on in the nyght by the brooke syde, and considered the wal, and turned backe, and came home agayne by the valleye porte.

And the rulers knewe not whyther I wente or what I dyd: neyther dyd I as yet tell it vnto the Jewes, to the prestes, to the noble men to the rulers, & to the other that laboured in the worke. Then sayde I vnto them: yee see the myserie that we are in, howe Jerusalem lyeth wast, & howe the gates thereof are brened with fyre: come therefore, that we maye buylde vp the wall of Jerusalem, & that we be nomore a rebuke. And I told them of the hande of my God, (that it was graciouse ouer me) & the kynges wordes that he had spoken vnto me. And they sayd: let vs get vp, and buylde: & they strengthened theyr hande to good.

But when Sanabalat the Horonite, & Tobia the seruant (an Ammonite,) and Gesein the Arabian herde it: they laughed vs to scorne, and mocked vs, and sayd: what is thys that ye do? Will ye fall awaye from the kyng? Then answered I them, and sayde: the God of heauen, he it is that hath graunted vs prosperitie: and we be hys seruantes. Let vs get vp and buylde. As for you, ye haue no porcion nor ryght, nor remembrance in Jerusalem.

The. iii. Chapter.

The nombre of them that buylded the walles.

And Eliash the hie prest gat hym vp with his brethren the prestes and they buylded the shepegate. They repayred it, and set vp the dores of it: euen vnto the towre Brea, repayred they it, and vnto the towre of Hananeel. Next vnto hym also buylded the men of Jericho. And beside hym Sachur the sonne of Ami. But the fyfthe porte dyd the chyldren of Sanna buylde, which also layed the beames thereof, & set on the dores, lockes and barres of it. And next vnto hym buylded Meremoth, the sonne of Uriah, the sonne of Hakoz: and next vnto them buylded Mesulam the sonne of Barachia the sonne of Meselabael: and next vnto hym buylded Zador the sonne of Baana. And next vnto hym buylded they of Thekoa. But the great men that were amonge them, put not theyr neckes to the worke of their Lorde.

The olde gate buylded Jeholada the sonne of Paseah, & Meshulā the sonne of Mesodias, they layed y beames thereof, & set on the dores, lockes & barres of it. Next vnto the buylded Melattiah of Sibeon, & Jadon of Merano, me of Sibeon, & of Mispa, where he that was captaine on this syde the water had a mansion. Next vnto hym buylded Meshiel the sonne of Harhabiah the goldsmith. Next vnto hym also buylded Barnania the sonne of Harakim, & they repayred Jerusalem vnto the brode well. Next vnto them buylded Raphaiah the sonne of Hur, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jerusalem. Next vnto hym buylded Jeholada the sonne of Harumaph ouer agaynst the house: & next vnto hym buylded Hatus the sonne of Halabnia. But Melchiah the sonne of Harim & Hasub the sonne of the captaine of Moab buylded the other pece, and the towre besyde the fornaces. Next vnto hym buylded Sallum a springers sonne, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jerusalem, he and hys donghters.

The valley gate buylded Hanani, & the cite of Zanoa. They buylded it, & set on the dores, & lockes

See xxxiij. Sach. v. 11.

The building of Jerusalem is hindered and left, but the Jews build it, being ready harnessed, till they enemies should invade them.

locks & barres therof, and a. M. cubites on the wall, vnto the donge porte. But the donge port buylded Melchiah the sonne of Rechab, the ruler of the fourth parte of Bethpazem: he repayred it, and set on the doores, lockes & barres therof. But the well gate repayred Shallu the sonne of Eholhofah, the ruler of the fourth parte of Milpa. He buylded it, and layde the beames, and set on the doores, lockes and barres therof, and the wall vnto the poole of Siloah, by the kinges garden, and vnto the steeppes that go downe from the citie of David. After hym buylded Sechemiah the sonne of Asbok: the ruler of the halfe parte of Bethsur, vntill the other syde ouer agaynst the sepulchres of David, and to the poole that was repayred, and vnto the house of the myghty.

After hym buylded the Leuytes, Rehum the sonne of Sani. and next vnto hym buylded Hasabiah the ruler of the halfe parte of Kirilab in his quarter. After hym buylded their brethren: Sarias the sonne of Menadad the ruler of the halfe parte of Kirilab: and after him buylded Ezer the sonne of Jesua the ruler of Milpa the other pece, harde ouer agaynst the gorge vnto the house of the ordynance that was in the corner. Agayne, after hym brake forth Baruch the sonne of Zachai of indignaciō, & repayred the other pece from the turnynge corner, vnto the doore of the house of Eliasib the hie preast. And after hym also buylded Adrimoth the sonne of Aria the sonne of Haros the other pece fro the doore of the house of Eliasib, euen as longe as the house of Eliasib extended. After hym buylded the preastes, the men of the playne. After hym buylded Beniamin and Hasub, ouer agaynst theyr house, and after hym brought Alaria, the sonne of Maasia, the sonne of Anania, next vnto his house. After hym also buylded Benai the sonne of Hanadad the other pece, from the house of Azaria vnto the turnyng of the wall, and vnto the corner.

After hym buylded Wala the sonne of Alai, ouer agaynst the corner & the hygh towre, which lyeth out ouer from the hyngers house, that was besyde the courte of the pylson. After hym buylded the sonne of Wharhos (as for the Bethinims they dwelt in the stronge holde vnto the watergate, toward the east, & to the towre that lyeth out.) After him buylded they of Ehekua the other pece ouer agaynst the great towre, that lyeth outwarde, vnto the wall of the stronge holde.

But from aboue the horse gate forth buylded the preastes, euery one ouer agaynst his house. And after them buylded Zadoh the sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. After hym buylded also Semeia the sonne of Sechemia the keyer of the east gate. After him buylded Hanania the sonne of Sclumia, & Hanun the sonne of Zalaph the other pece. And after hym buylded Melullai the son of Asarachia ouer agaynst his storehouse. After hym buylded Malachia the goldsmithes sonne, vntill the house of the Bethinims, and of the marchantes ouer agaynst the gate Nephkad, & to the parlour in the corner. And betwene the parlour of the corner vnto the speygate buylded the goldsmithes & the marchantes.

But when Sanabalat herde that we buylded the wall, he was wroth in hym selfe, & toke great indignaciō, & mocked the Jewes, & sayd before his brethren and the souldyours of Samaria: what do these impotent Jewes: wyl the heathen suffer them: Shall they offe: Shall they perforce it in one daye: Shall they make the stones whole agayne that are brought to dust & brent: And Tobiah the Ammonite was besyde hym, and sayd. Though they buyld, yet if a fore go vnto, he shall breake downe theyr stony wall. Heare (O our God) for we are despised, turne their shame vnto theyr owne heade, and gyue them ouer into despying in the lande of theyr captiuitie. Couer not theyr wickednes, and let not theyr synne be put out in thy presence: for they haue prouoked the buylders. And so buylded we the wall, & it was topped hole togyther, vnto the halfe height therof. And the people were mydded to labour.

And it fortuned, that when Sanabalat, and Tobiah, & the Arabians, Ammonites, & Idodites herde that the walles of Jerusalem were made vp, & that the gappes began to be stopped, they were very wroth, & conspired al togyther to come & fyght agaynst Jerusalem, & to make the people an hynderaunce therein. Nevertheless we made our prayer vnto our God, & set watchmen by them, whiche buylded day and nyght ouer agaynst them. And Juda sayd the strength of the beater is to feble: and there is yet moche more mortar, & we are not able to buyld on the wall. And our aduersaries sayd they shall not knowe neyther se, tyll we come in the myddes amonge them, & slay them, and hynder the worke. But it fortuned that when the Jewes, which dwelt besyde them came, they tolde vs as good as ten tymes, that in al places where ye go vnto, they are appoynted to fall vpon vs. Therefore set I the people after theyr kynredes with their swordes, speares, and bowes bynethe in the lowe places behynde the wall, and I looked, & gat me vp: and sayd vnto the chiefe men, to the rulers and to the other people, be not ye afrayde of them: * but thinke rather vpon the great Lorde, which ought to be feared, and fyght for your brethren, your sonnes, your daughters, your wyues, and your houses. Nevertheless, it chaunced that when our enemies herde, that we had gotten worde of it, God brought theyr counsell to nought: and we turned all agayne to the wall: euery one vnto his labour. And sed that tyme forth it came to passe that the halfe parte of the yonge men dyd the labour, and the other halfe parte of them helde the speares, shylbes, bowes, & breastplates: and the rulers stode behynde all the house of Juda, whiche buylded on the wall, & bare burthens from those that laded them. With one hande dyd euery one worke: and with the other helde his weapon. And euery one that buylded, had his swearde gyrded by his thygh, and so buylded they. And the trumpet blew besyde me.

And

D And I sayd vnto the pꝛincipall mē, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worke is great and large, and we are separated vpon the wall one farre fro an other. Loke in what place therfore ye heare the noyse of the trumpet, resorte ye thither vnto vs, * and oure God shall fyght for vs: and we wyll be labouryng in the worke. And the halfe part of them helde the speares fro the morninge spryng: tyl the starres cam forth. And at þe same tyme said I vnto the people. euery one abyde with hys seruaunt at Jerusalem, that in the night season we maye watch, and labour on the day tyme. As for me & my brethren, my seruauntes and the men of the watch (which were behynde me) we put neuer of oure clothes, nomore the the other dyd they: harnes saue only because of the water.

The. v. Chapter.

The people are vexed with hunger. He requyred not the paynge of a captayne.

And there arose a greate complaynt of the people, and of they: wyues agaynst they: brethren the Iues. Forther were some that sayd: our sonnes and doughters and we are to manye therfore wyll we take cozne for them, þe we maye eate and lyue. Some also there were that sayd: let vs set our landes: vntepardes & houses to pledge & take vpon cozne in the dearth. But some there were þe said let vs borrowe money for the kynges tribute: and that vpon our landes and vntepardes. Scholde, our bodies as the bodies of our brethren, & our chyldren as they: chyldren: els shulde we subdue our sonnes and daughters vnto bondage, and some of our daughters are subdued vnto bondage already and no strength is there in our handes, and other men haue our landes and vntepardes.

B And when I harde they: complaynt & suche wordes, it displeased me sore, and I aduised so in my minde, that I rebuked the counsellors, and þe rulers, & sayd vnto them. Euery one of you is to chargeable vnto his brother. And I brought a greate congregacion agaynst them, and sayde vnto them: we (after our abilitie) haue boughte our brethren the Iewes, which were solde vnto the heathen. And wyll you sell your brethren agayn vnto the heathen, after that they haue bene solde vnto vs? Then helde they they: peace, and coulde fynde nothynge to answer.

C And Achenua sayd. It is not good that ye do. Dought ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heathen that are our enemies? I and my brethren, and my seruauntes do lende them money and cozne: but as for vsurp let vs leaue it. Therfore, this same day I praye you se that ye restore them they: landes agayne they: vntepardes, oyle gardens, and they: houses, and remyt the hundred part of the money of the cozne, wyne, and oyle that ye haue wonne of them. Then sayde they: we wyll restore them agayne, and wyll requyre nothynge of them: and wyll do as thou hast spoken. And I called þe prestes, & toke an oth of them, that they shuld do so. And I spoke my lappe, & sayde: God wake one euery man after the same maner from hys house & labour that mayntayneth not this word eue thus be he thake out, & voyde. And all the cōgregation said. Amen, & prayed the Lord: And the people dyd so. And from the tyme forth that the kyng (commpted vnto me to be a captayne of them that were in the lande of Iuda eue fro þe. xx. yere vnto the. xxii. yere of kyng Artaxerxes (that is. xii. yere) I wold my brethren lyued not of such substance as was gyuen to a captayne. For the olde captaynes þe were before me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, & had taken of them breade and wyne, & xl. species of syluer yea & they: seruauntes had oppressed þe people. But so dyd not I, & that because of the feare of God. But I laboured also in the worke vpon the wal, & bought no lande. And all my seruauntes came thither together vnto þe worke. Moreover they were at my table an. C. and. l. of the Iewes & rulers, which came vnto me fro among the heathen that are aboute vs. And there was prepared for me daylye an ox, & syxe chosen shepe, & vydes, & euer ones in. x. dayes a great summe of wyne. Yet requyre not I the paynge of a captayne, for the bondage was greuous vnto the people.

* I thinke vpon me my God vnto the best, accordyng to all that I haue done for this people.

The. vi. Chapter.

The buyldinge is set agayne. Sanabalat and let.

And when Sanabalat, Tobiah, & Selem þe Arabian, & the other of our enemies hard that I had buylded þe wall: & that there were no mo gappes therein (howe be it at the same tyme had I not hanged the doores vpon the gates) Sanabalat & Selem sent vnto me, sayeng: come that we may mete & take counsell together in the villages þe are in the playn of þe cite. And I sente messengers vnto the, sayeng: I haue a greate busynesse to do & I can not come downe. The worke shuld stand styll, yf I were negligent, & came down to you. Howe it, they sent vnto me as good as foure tymes after þe same maner. And I gaue the the same answer. The sent Sanabalat his seruaunt agayne vnto me the fyfth tyme, w an open letter in hys hande wherin was written it is tolde the heathen, & Selem hath sayde it, that þe & the Iues thynke to rebel, for the whiche cause I buyldest the wall that I may be they: kyng in these matters, & hast ordeyned the prophetes to preache of the at Jerusalem, and to saye: he is kyng of Iuda.

And now shal this come to the kynges eares. And now therfore, & let vs take our counsell together. And I sent vnto hym, sayeng, there is no such thinge done as thou sayest for thou sayest them out of thyne owne herte. For they were all mynded to make vs afrayed, sayeng they shal wythdrawe they: handes fro the worke, that it shal not be fynished. Howbeit, I strengthened my hande the more. And I came to the house of Semia the sonne of Dalai the sonne of Ehetabell, & he had shut hym selfe wythyn, & sayde. let vs come together into þe house of God, eue vnto þe myddes of þe temple, & shal þe doores of þe temple for they: wyl come to slay þe. yea, eue in þe nyght wyl they they come to put the to death. And I sayd. Wulde any such man as I syle. Who is that beyng as I am, that wyl go in to the temple, to saue his lyfe? I wyl not go in.

E And I perceyued, that God had not sente hym. Yet spake he prophecie vpon me, neuer the-lesse, Tobiah and Sanabalat had hyred him for money. Therefore toke he þ money, that through feare I wulde so do, and synne: that they myght haue an euill reporte of me, to blaspheme me. My God thynke thou vpon Tobiah & Sanabalat accordyng vnto these theyr wordes, and of the prophete Hoadia, & of the other prophetes that wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was synplished on the syue and twenty day of the moneth Elul, in two & fyfity dayes. And when all our enemyes herde therof, all þ heathen that were about vs, were asfayde, and their courage fayled them. And they percep-ued, that this worke came of our God. And at þ same tyme were there many of the chiefe of Iuda whose letters went vnto Tobiah, & agayn from Tobiah vnto them (for there were many in Juda, that were sworne vnto hym, for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechania, the sonne of Arab, and his sonne Iehonathan had the doughter of Mesullam, the sonne of Sarachia, & they spake good of hym befoze me: & tolde him my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters, to put me in feare.

The. vii. Chapter.

After the wall was buylded: in the watch appoynted. They that returned from the captiuite are nombred.

And when the wall was buylded: I hangd on the doores also, and the porters, syngers, & Leuites were appoynted. And I comaunded my brother Ha-nani and Hanania the ruler of the castell at Jerusalem: for he was a faythfull man, and feared God more then dyd many other. And I sayd vnto them: let not the gates of Ierusalem be opened vntyl the sunne be whote. And whyle they were standyng in the watche, they shut the doores, and barred them. And we appoynted certayne cptesyngs of Ierusalem, to be watche men, euery one to kepe his watche, and euery one to be ouer a-gaynst his house. As for the cctie, it was large of rowme and great: but the people were fewe therin, and the houses were not buylded.

And my God gaue me in my herte, that I gathered togither the principal men, & the officers and the people, to nombre them: and I founde a register of the nombre of them: whiche came vp befoze out of the captiuite: and founde wyrtten therein. these are the sonnes of þ lande that went vp fro the captiuite of þ carpenge away: whom Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon had brought away: and came agayne to Ierusalem & with zoobabel are these, Iesua, Seremias, Asa-riah, Raamia, Rahamani, Mardochee, Sellā,

And so the people gathered them selues together as one man, in the strete that was before the watergate, and they sayde vnto Esdras the scribe, that he wuld fetch the boke of the lawe of Moyses, whiche & Lorde commaunded to Israel. And Esdras the preste brought the law before the congregacyon both of men and women: and all that coulde vnder-

For all the people wepte, when they hearde the wordes of the lawe.

And he sayde vnto them: * go your way and eate of the fat, and drinke the swete, and sende part vnto them also that haue not prepared the selues: for this daye is holy vnto our Lorde, be not ye soze therefore: for the ioye of the Lorde is your strength. And the Leuites stilled al the people, and sayde: hoide your prae, for the day is holy, were not ye your selues. And all the people went theyr waye to eate and drinke, and to sende parte vnto other, & to make great myght because they had vnderstande the wordes that were declared vnto them.

The ix. Chapter.

The people repente, and forsaue they: strange wordes & blasphemies the benefites of God, & the spyns of people.

In the xxiii. day of this moneth came the chylidren of Israel together agapne with fasting sackclothes, and earth vpon the and they that were of the seide of Israel were separated, from all the straunge chylidren, & stode and knowledged they synnes and the wycked-nes of they fathers, and stode vpon in the place and red in the booke of the lawe of the Lord their God four tymes on the daye, and they knowleged and worshypped the Lord they God four tymes on the day. And the Leuites stode on by namely Iesua, Bani, Cadmiel, Sabanah, Bu-ni, Sarebiah, Bani and Canani, & cryed loude vnto the Lord they God. And the Leuites, Iesua and Cadmiel Bani and Sabanah, Serebia and Iodiah, Sebanah & Iudabiah sayde: stande vpon, and praye the Lord poure God for euer: and let thankes be geuen vnto the name of thy glory, whiche excelleth all thankesgeyng and praye. Thou arte Lord alone. Thou hast made heauen, and the heauen of all heauens, wyth all they hoolle, the earthe: and all thynges that are therein, the see and all that is therin, and thou preseruest them all, and the hoolle of heuen worshyppeth the.

Thou arte the Lord God, that hast chosen Abraam, and broughtest him out of Chaldea: & and calleddest hym Abraam, and foun-dest his hert fapthfull before the * and madeest a couenaunt with hym, to geue vnto his seide the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Pheresites, Jebusites and Gerisites, and haste made good thy wordes: for thou arte ryghte-ous. * and haste considered the mylery of our fathers in Egypt, and heard the complaine by the red see, and shewed tokens and wonder vpon Pharao, and on all his seruantes, and on all the people of his lande. for thou knewest that they were presumptuous and cruel agaynst them, and so madeest thou the a name, as it is this daye.
And the red see dyddest thou denyde in sondre be-foze them, so that they went thorow the myd-des of the see drye shodde: and they persecuters threwest thou in to the depe (as a stone) in the myghtye waters: and leddest them on the daye tyme wyth a cloudye pyller, and on the nyghte season in a pyller of fyre to shewe them lyght in the waye that they wente.

Thou camest downe also vpon mount Sinai, and spakest vnto them from heuen, and gauest them ryght iudgementes, true lawes, good commaundementes and statutes, and declareddest vnto them thy holy Sabbath, & commaun-dest them preceptes, ordynances and lawes, by the haude of Moyses thy scruaunte. and gauest them breade from heuen, when they were hungrye, and broughtest forth water for them oute of the rocke, when they were thyrstye: and promysedest them that they shulde go in, & take possession of the lande. ouer which thou haddest lyfte by thyne hande for to geue them.

But they and our fathers were proude and herdened: so that they folowed not thy commaundementes: and wolde not obeye, neyther were mynde full of the wonders that thou dydest for them. but became obstinate & headye, in somuch that they touned backe to theyre bondage for theyr disobedience. And thou my God forga-uest, and wast gracypus, mercypful, pacient and of greates goodnesse, and forsokest not them.

* And thought they made a molten calfe: & sayd This is thy God that brought the oute of the lande of Egypte and dyd greates blasphemies, yet forsokest thou them not in the wyldernesse, accordinge to thy great mercy. * And the cloudye pyller departed not from them on the day tyme: to leade them the waye, neyther the pyller of fyre in the nyght season, to shewe them the lyght in the waye that they went.

And thou gauest them the good spyrite to enfourme them, & withheldest not thy manna from theyr mouth, and gauest the water when they were thyrstye. Fourtye yeres longe madeest thou prouision for them in the wyldernesse, for they lacked nothyng: theyr clothes wared not olde, and theyr fete welled not. And thou gauest them kyngdomes and nacpous, and parted dest them accordinge to theyr porcions: so that they possessed the lande of Sehon kyng of the sebon and the lande of Og the kyng of Kasan.
And they chylidren multiplieddest thou as the starrs of heauen, and broughtest them into the lande wherof thou haddest spoken vnto theyr fathers, that they shulde go into it, and haue it in possession.

And the chylidren went in, and possessed the lande, * and thou subduedest before them the inhabiters of the lande, euen the Cananites: and gauest them into theyr handes, with theyr knyges and the people of the lande, that they might do with them what they wolde. And they wan theyr stronge cityes and a fat lande, & toke possession of houses, that were full of all maner of goodes welles dygged out, byneparades, oyle-gardens, and many fruteful trees, and they did cate, and were fylled and became fat, and lyued in welth thorow thy great goodnes. Neuer the-lesse they were disobedient, & rebelled agaynst the, and cast thy lawe behynd theyr backs and * due thy prophetes whiche exhorted them carnestly, that they myght byng them agayne vnto the) and dyd greates blasphemies. Therefore thou gauest them ouer into the hande of theyre enemies that vted them.

And in the tyme of theyr trouble when they cryed vnto the: thou herdest them from heauen:
and thorow thy great mercy thou gauest them saupours

saupours which helped them out of the bande of theiꝝ enemies. But whē they came to rest they turned backe agayne, to do euil befoze the: theiꝝ foze lesteſt thou them in the bande of theiꝝ enemies, so that they had the dominyon ouer them. And when they conuerted and cryed vnto the, thou herdest them from heauen, & many tymes hast thou deliuered the accoꝝdyng to thy great mercy, and testifedst vnto the that thou myght testifyng them agayne vnto thy lawe.

Of the chyldren of Asaph there were syngers aboute the busynesse in the house of God, for it was the kynges commaundement concernynge them: that the syngers shoulde deale sayntfully euerye daye as was accordeynge.

And Bathara the sonne of Mesababel of þ chyldren of zerab the sonne of Iuda next þ kyng in all matters concernynge the people and theyre vyllages and landes. And some of the chyldren of Iuda that were without the townes of their lande dwelt at Mariath Arche, and in the vyllages therof: at Didon, and in the vyllages therof: and at Jezabel, and in the vyllages thereof: at Jesua, Moludap, Bethphalel in þ towne of Dual, Beerseba, and in theyre vyllages: at Silkelag & Moconah, and theyre vyllages: and at Enremon, zarah, Jerimoth, zonoa, Odollam, and in theyre vyllages at Lachis and in þ feldestherof: at Alka, and in the vyllages therof: and they dwelt fro Bersabe vnto þ vale of himmō

The chyl-dren of Leui, the principal fathers were wrytten in the Chronycles vnto the tyme of Jonathan the ſon of Eliaſib. And theſe were the cheſe amonge the Leuites haſabia, Serobia, and Jeſua the ſon of Cadmiel, and they & brethern in theyr preſence to geue prayſe and thankes, accordyng as Dauid the man of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynſte another, Mathania, Salbukia, Obadia, Meſullam, Talmon and Ahub were porters in the watche at the threſholdes of the gates. And in the dedication of the wall at Jeruſalem: they ſought the Leuites out of all theyr places, that they myght be brought to Jeruſale to kepe the dedicacyon & gladnetie, wyth thankſgeuynges and ſyngyng wyth cymbales, pſalteryes and harpes. And the chyl-dren of ſt ſyngers gathered them ſelues together from euery ſyde out of the playne countrey about Jeruſale, and from the byllages of Netophathi, fro the houſe of Gilgal, and out of the countreys of Geba, and Almaheth, for the ſyngers had buylded theym byllages rounde about Jeruſalem. And ſt preaſtes and Leuites were purifyed, and clenſed the people: and the gates, and the wall.

And I brought the prynces of Iuda vp vpon the wall, and appoynted two greate queres of men to geue thankes, whiche went on the ryght hande of the wall towarde the donge gate, and after them went Hoſaia, and halfe of the prynces of Iuda, and Alaria, Eldras: and Meſullam Iuda, Ben Janun, Semia & Jeremij & certayn of the preſtes chyl-dren wyth trompettes, namely zachari the ſonne of Jonathan, the ſone of Semia, the ſon of Mathania, the ſon of Michai the ſonne of zachari, the ſon of Alaph and his brethren, Semia, Alarael, Malalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathanael, and Iuda & Hanani, wyth ſt muſical instrumentes of Dauid the man of God.

And Eldras ſt ſcripbe went before them and beſyde the welgate, they went vp ouer agaynſt them vpon the ſteppes of the citty of Dauid, at the goynge vp of the wall beyonde the houſe of Dauid, vnto the watergate Eaſtwarde.

The other quere of them that gaue thankes went ouer agaynſt them, and I after them, & the

And the ſyngers ſange loude, haupng Jeſiah for theyr ouerſear.

And the ſame daye they offered greate ſacrifyces and reioyced: for God hadde geuen them great gladnetie, ſo that both the wyues & chyl-dren were ioyfull: and the myſth of Jeruſalem was hearde farre of.

At the ſame tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treaſure houſes (wherin were the heue-offrynges: the fyrſt ſynges, and the tythes) that they ſhulde gather them out of the feldeſ about the citty, to deſtribute them vnto the preaſtes and Leuites, accordyng to the lawe: for Iuda was glad of the preſtes and Leuites, that they ſode and waityd vpon the offyce of theyr God which is a pure offyce. And the ſyngers and porters ſode after the commaundement of Dauid and of Salomon his ſonne, * for in the tyme of Dauid and Alaph, were the cheſe ſyngers founde, and the ſonges of prayſe & thankſgeuyng vnto God. to Jerusalem. And I gat knowledge that Eliasib wyd vnto Tobia, in that he had made hym a chambre in the court of the house of God, and it grieved me sore, & I cast forth all the vessels of þ house of Tobia out of the chambre, and commaunded them to cleanse the chambres. And thither brought I agayne the vessels of þ house of God with the meat offering and the incense.

And I perceyued that the porcyons of the Le-uites were not geue them, & that every one fled to his lande, euen the Leuites and syngers that executed the worke. Then reproveth I the rulers and sayde: Why is the house of God forsaken?
And I gathered them together, and set them in theyr place. Then brought all Iuda the tythes of corne and wyne, and oyle, vnto the treasure.
And I made treasurers ouer the treasure, euen Selenium the prest, and Zador the scribe, and of the Leuites, Phadai, and vnder theyr hande was Hanan the sonne of zacur, the sonne of Ma-thania, for they were counted fapthfull, & theyr offyce was to distribute þ porcyons vnto theyr brethe. * Thynke vpon me, O my God herein and wyte not out my mercy that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on þ offyces therof.

At the same tyme saw I some treading wyne presses on the Sabbath, & bryngyng in beeres, and asses laden with wyne, grapes, fygges and bryngyng all maner of burthens vnto Jerusalem vpon the Sabbath day. And I rebuked the earnestly the same daye that they solde the vnt-taples. There dwelte men of Tyre also therein, which brought fyre and all maner of ware, and solde on the Sabbath vnto the chyldren of Juda in Jerusalem. Then reproveth I the rulers in Iuda, and sayde vnto them what euell thyng is this that ye do, and breake the Sabbath daye?
Wyd not your fathers euen thus, and oure God brought all this plage vpon vs, and vpon theyr cite? And ye make the wrath more yet vpo Irael, in that ye breake the Sabbath.

And it fortuneth that when the portes of Jerusalem began to be darke in þ euenyng before þ Sabbath, I commaunded to shut the gates and charged, that they shuld not be opened tyll after the Sabbath & some of my seruautes let I at þ gates, & there shulde no burthe be brought in on the Sabbath daye. Then remayned the chapmē and marchauntes ones or twyse ouer nyght wout Jerusalem with all maner of wares. Then reproveth I them sore, & sayde vnto the why tary ye all nyght about the wall? If ye do it ones agayne, I wyl lape handes vpon you. Fro that tyme forth came they nomore on the Sabbath.
And I sayde vnto the Leuites þ they shuld clese them selues, & that they shuld come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbath daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concernyng this also, & spare me accordyng to thy great mercy.

And at the same tyme saw I Jewes that manyed wyues of Adod, of Annon, and of Moab and theyr chyldren spake halfe in the speache of Adod, and could not speake in the Jewes language, but by the tynge myght a man perceyue euery people. Then I reproveth them, and cursed them, and smote certayne men of them, & made them bare, and toke an oth of them by God: Ye shall not geue your daughters vnto theyr son-nes, neyther shall ye take theyr daughters vnto your sonnes, or for your selues. Wyd not Salomon the kyng of Israel synne for such? and yet amonge many hepythen was there no kyng lyke hym, whiche was dere vnto his God, and God made hym kyng ouer Israel: and yet neuer the lesse, outlandyshe women caused hym to synne.

Shall we then obeye vnto you, to doo all theys greate euill, and to trasgresse agaynst our God and many straunge wyues?

And one of the chyldren of Jehoiada the son of Eliaf the hye preste had made a contracte wth Sanabalat the horonyte: but I chaled hym from me: (O my God) thynke thou vpon them þ desple the presthod & the couenaunt of the prest-hode & of the Leuites. Thus cleneth I them fro all such as were outlandyshe, and appoynted the courtes of the prestes and Leuites euerie one in his offyce, and to offer the wood at tymes ap-poynted, and the fyrst frutes: Thynke thou vpon me (O my God) for the best. Am.

The fyrst Chapter.

King Ahasuerus maketh a royal feast, wherunto þ quene
Waldi wyl not come, for whiche cause she is deuorced.

Fortuned, in the dayes of Ahasue- A rus, which raygned from Indea vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hundred and seuen and twenty landes) euen in those dayes when þ kyng Ahasuerus sat on his seate royal, whiche was in Susan the chefe cite, in the thyrde yere of his raygne, he made a feast vnto all his prynces and seruauntes. And the myghty men of Persia and Ededea, the captaynes also and rulers of his countries were before hym, and he shewed þ rycheffe and glorie of his kyngdome, & the glorious wor-shyppe of his greatnes many dayes longe: euen an hundred and. lxxx. dayes.

And when these dayes were expyred, þ kyng made a feast to all the people that were in Susan the chefe cite, bothe vnto greate and small seven dayes longe in the court of the garden by
the

the kynges palace: where there hanged whyte grene and yelow clothys, fastened with cordes of fyne sylke, and purple in siluer cynges, vpon pylers of marble stone.

The benches also were of golde and syluer made vpon a pauement of grene, whyte, yelow and blacke marble. And they dranke in vessels of golde. And chaunged vessel after vessel. And the kynges wyne was muche accordyng to the power of the kyng. And the drynke was so appoynted, that none shulde compell any man. for so the kyng had comaunded by the officers of hys house, that euery one shulde do, as it lyked hym. And the Quene Vasthi made a feaste also for the women in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seventh daye when the kyng was merry after the wyne, he comaunded Achiman, Bizsha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, zethar, and Charhas, the seven chamberlaynes (that dyd seruyce in the presence of kyng Ahasuerus) to fetch the Quene Vasthi with the crowne regal into the kynges presence, that he myghte shewe the people and princes her fayrenes, for she was beutiful. But the Quene Vasthi wold not come at the kynges worde, by hys chamberlaynes. Then was the kyng very wroth, and his indignacyon kyndled in hym.

And the kyng spake to the wyse men, that had vnderstandyng in the ordynaunces of the lande, for the kynges matters must be handled before all suche as haue knowledge of the lawe and iudgemente: and the <sup>(these are)</sup> nexte vnto hym were Carshena, Sethar, Admata, Charlis, Hares, Harcena and Hamutan & seven princes of Persia and Media, which sawe the kynges face, and sat aboue in the kyngdome. What lawe sayth the kyng shulde be executed vpon the Quene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordyng to the worde of the kyng Ahasuerus, which he comaunded by his chamberlaynes? And Hamutan answered before the kyng and the princes: the Quene Vasthi hath not onely done euell agaynst the kyng, but also agaynst all the princes, and agaynst all the people that are in all the landes of kyng Ahasuerus. for this dede of the quene shal come abrode vnto all women, so that they shal despyse their husbandes, before their eyes, and shal saye the kyng Ahasuerus comaunded Vasthi the quene to be brought in before hym, but she wolde not come. And so shal the princesses in Persia and Media, saye lykewyse vnto all the kynges princes wher they here of this dede of the Quene: thus shal there arys to muche despytfulnesse and wrath. Let it please the kyng therefore, lette there goo a comaundement from hym, and let it be wyrtten accordyng to the lawes of the Persians, and Medians and not to be transgressed that Vasthi come nomore before kyng Ahasuerus: and let the kyng geue her kyngdome vnto another that is better then she.

And when this comaundement of the kyng (which shal be made) is published thorowout all his empyre (which is great, all women shal holde their husbandes in honour both among great & small. This pleased the kyng and the princes, and the kyng dyd accordyng to the worde of Hamutan. For he sent letters forth into all the kynges landes, into euery land accordyng to the wyrtynge therof, and to euery people after their language, that euery man shoulde be forde in hys owne house. And this caused he to be spoken after the language of his people.

The ii. Chapter.

After the Quene is put away, certain goodly yonge damels are searched out. Whiche, other wyse called Esther, pleased the kyng, & is made Quene. Hamdocheus openeth his to the kyng those that wolde betraye hym.

After these actes, when the dyspleasure of kyng Ahasuerus was nowe layde, he thought vpon Vasthi, and what she had done, and what was concluded agaynst her. Then sayde the kynges seruauntes that ministred vnto hym: Let there be sayre yonge virgins sought for the kyng, and the kyng appoynted certayne men in all the landes of his empyre, whome he charged that they shulde bringe together all the sayre yonge virgins vnto Susan the heed cite, to the womens buyldyng, vnder the hande of Haggai the kynges chamberlayn. & kept the women, to geue them their apparel, <sup>(and other thynges neede to carrye to be had.)</sup> And that the damsel which pleased the kyng shoulde be Quene in Vasthis steade. And this pleased the kyng and he dyd so.

In the cite of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Hardocheus the son of Jair, the sonne of Serai, the son of Eli a man of Jermini, which was carped away from Jerusalem. When Jekonia the kyng of Iuda was led awaye, (whome Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon carped thence) he carryed Adassa, (that is Esther, his vncles daughter for she had neither father nor mother, and she was a fayre and beautifull damisell. Whome Hardocheus (when her father and mother was deed) receyued for his owne daughter.

So it fortuneth, that when the kynges comaundement and commissyon was published, and many damisells were broughte together in the cite of Susan, vnder the hande of Haggai: Esther was brought also vnto the kynges house, vnder the hand of Haggai the keeper of the women, and she damisell pleased hym, and she founde fauour in his syght. And he caused ornaments to be geuen her, and suche thynges as belonged to her, and appoynted her seven comely damiselles out of the kynges house, and fauoured both her and her gentyl women syngharlye in the house of the women. But Esther shewed not her people & her kynred. for Hardocheus had charged her, that she shulde not tel it. And Hardocheus walked euery daye before the courte of the womens house, that he myght knowe howe Esther dyd, and what shulde become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of euery damisell came, that she shulde go into the kyng Ahasuerus, after that she had bene twelue monethes in the dyscuyng of the women, for they decke up must haue so muche tyme, namelpe, syxe monethes with blame and myre, and syxe monethes with with good speeres: so were the women beautified: then went there one damasell vnto y<sup>e</sup> kyng and whatsoeuer she required doo (so that it were comely) that must be geuen her, to go with her out of the womens buyldyng vnto the kynges palace. In the euenynge she wente, and on the morowe agayne into the seconde house of the women abydyng vnder the hande of Saalgas the kynges chamberlayne, which kept the concubines. And she came into y<sup>e</sup> kynges nomore, except it pleased y<sup>e</sup> kyng to haue her, and y<sup>e</sup> he called her by name.

Now when the tyme came of Esther y<sup>e</sup> daughter of Abiam the vncle of Hardocheus (whiche hadde receaued her as his owne daughter) that she shoulde come into the kynges, she despyed no thyng, but what Hagei the kynges chamberlayne the keeper of the women saide.

And Esther founde fauour in the syght of all them that looked vpon her. And Esther was takē vnto kyng Ahasuerus into his house royal in the tenth moneth, whiche is the moneth Tebeth, in the tenth p<sup>er</sup>ce o. his raygne.

And the kyng loued Esther aboue all y<sup>e</sup> women, and she founde grace & fauour in his syght before all the vyrgins: so that he set the crowne of the kyngdome vpon her heade, and made her Quene in stede of Vashti. And the kyng made a great feaste vnto all his prynces & seruantes (which feast was because of Esther) and caused the landes to be in quyetnesse, and gaue gyftes, as became the royaltie of a kyng.

And when the vyrgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Hardocheus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Esther bowed her kynted and people, accordyng as Hardocheus had bydden her: for Esther dyd after the worde of Hardocheus, lyke as she had bene yet vnder his gouernaunce. At y<sup>e</sup> same tyme whyle Hardocheus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chamberlaynes, Bigthan and Therai, which kept the doze were wroth, and sought to lay th<sup>er</sup> handes on y<sup>e</sup> kyng Ahasuerus wherof also Hardocheus gat knowledge: and tolde it vnto Quene Esther, and Esther certified the kynges therof in Hardocheus name. And when inquisition was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tree and it was written in the chronycles before the kyng.

¶ The iii. Chapter.

¶ Haman the Macedonian, after he was exalted obtayned of the kyng, y<sup>e</sup> all the Jewes shoulde be put to death, because Hardocheus had not done him worshipp as other had.

¶ After these Actes dyd kyng Ahasuerus promote Haman the sone of Amadatha the Agagite, and sette hym on hye, and set his seate aboue all y<sup>e</sup> prynces that he had with him. And all the kynges seruantes that were in the kynges gate, bowed th<sup>er</sup> knees, and worshypped Haman: for the kyng had so comaunded concerning hym. But Hardocheus bowed not the knee, and worshypped hym not. Then the kynges seruantes whych were in the kynges gate saide vnto Hardocheus: whych transgressed y<sup>e</sup> the kynges commaundement? And when they spake this daye vnto hym, he folowed them not, and they tolde Haman that they myghte se howe Hardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had tolde them, y<sup>e</sup> he was a Jewe. And when Haman sawe that Hardocheus bowed not the knee vnto hym, nor worshypped hym, he was full of indignacyon, and thoughte it to lytle to lay handes onely on Hardocheus for they had shewed hym the nacyon of Hardocheus, wherfore he soughte to destroye all the Jewes, that were thowout the holl empyre of Ahasuerus and that were of the nacyon of Hardocheus.

In the fyrst moneth y<sup>e</sup> is the moneth Nisan in y<sup>e</sup> twelue p<sup>er</sup>ce of kyng Ahasuerus. they call Pur that is a lot) before Haman from day to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the twelue moneth, that is the moneth Adar. And Haman sayd vnto kyng Ahasuerus: There is here a people scattered abroad, & dispersed amonge all people in all the landes of thynne empyre, & they haue th<sup>er</sup> lawes contrary from all people, and do not alter the kynges lawes, nepther is it the kynges profyte to suffer them after this maner. If it please the kyng, let it be written that they maye be destroyed, and so wyl I wryte downe. x. thousande talentes of syluer by the handes of y<sup>e</sup> workemen, to be brought into the kynges treasury. And the kyng toke his rynge fro his hand and gaue it vnto Haman the sone of Amadatha the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kyng sayd vnto Haman: Let the syluer be geuen the, & do with that people as it pleaseth the.

Then were the kynges scribes called on the thytenth daye of the fyrst moneth (Nisan) and there was wrytten accordyng as Haman comaunded vnto all the kynges officers, and to the captaynes that were in all the landes, and to the rulers of euery people in the countreyes on euery syde, accordyng to the wrytyng of euery nacyon, and after th<sup>er</sup> language: in the name of kyng Ahasuerus was it written, and sealed with the kynges rynge. And the wrytynges were sent by postes into all the kynges landes, to roote oute, to kyll and to destroye all Jewes, bothe yonge and olde, chyldren and women, in one daye, namely, vpon the thytenth daye of y<sup>e</sup> twelue moneth, whiche is the moneth Adar and to spoyle th<sup>er</sup> goodes.

This was the sum of the wrytyng that ther shoulde be a comaundement geuen in all landes, and published vnto all people, that they shoulde be ready agaynst the same day. And y<sup>e</sup> postes went in all the haste, accordyng to the kynges comaundement. And in Susan y<sup>e</sup> cheefe cite was the comaundement drupled. And the kyng & Haman sat and dranke, when in y<sup>e</sup> meane tyme the cite of Susan was disquyeted.

¶ The iii. Chapter.

¶ Hardocheus geueth the Quene knowledge of the cruel decree of the Jewes agaynst the Jewes.

¶ He Hardocheus perceyued all that was done, he rente hys clothes, and putte on sackcloth, with ashes, and wente oute into the myddes of the cite, and cryed lowde, and lamentably, and came before the kynges gate, but he myght myghte not entre wythin the kynges gate, by-cause he had sackloth on And in all landes, counteyes and places, as farre as the kynges worde and commaundement extended, there was grea-lamentacion amonge the Jewes, fastynge, wepyng and mounyng, and many laye in sacklothes and in ashes. So Esthers damself and her chambrelaynes came and tolde it her. Then was the Quene exceedinglye astonysed. And she sent rayment, that Mardocheus shulde put on, and laye the sackloth from hym: But Mardocheus wolde not take them. Then called Esther Hathath one of the kynges chambrelaynes (which stode befoze her) and gaue hym a commaunde-ment vnto Mardocheus, that he myght knowe what it were, wherefore he dyd so. So Hathath wente forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of the cite, whiche was befoze the kynges gate.

23 And Mardocheus tolde hym of all that had happened vnto hym, and of the summe of spliuer that Haman had promysed to wepe downe into the kynges tresurye because of the Jewes, yf he wolde destroye them (and he gaue hym the copp of the kynges commaundement that was deuyled at Susan, to destroye them, f he myght wele it vnto Esther) and so speake to her, and charged her, that she shulde go into the kyng, and make her prayer and supplication vnto hym for her people.

E And when Hathath came in, he tolde Esther the wordes of Mardocheus. And agayne, Esther spake vnto Hathath, and commaunded hun, to saye vnto Mardocheus: all the kynges ser-uautes and the people in the landes of the king knowe that whosoever cometh within the court vnto the kyng, whether it be man or woman, whych is not called, the commaundement is, that the same shall dye: excepte the kyng holde oute the golden sceptre vnto hym, (in token of graciouse note) for then he shall lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come nowe vnto the kyng this thyrtye dayes.

W And they certified Mardocheus of Esthers wordes, and Mardocheus had saye agayne vnto Esther: thynke not to saue thyne owne lyfe, whyle thou arte in the kynges house, befoze all Jewes: for yf thou holdeste thy peace at this tyme, then shall the Jewes haue helpe and deli-uerance oute of an other place, and thou and thy fathers house shall be destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou arte come to the kyngdome, for this cause sake: Esther had the que Mardocheus this answer: So thou thy waye, and gather al the Iues togyther f are found at Su-lan, and fast ye for me, that ye eate not & drynke in thre dayes, neyther day nor nyght. I and my damselfs will fast lykewyse, and so will I go into the kyng, whiche thyng is pet contrarie to the commaundement: and yf I perthe I pe-rysh. So Mardocheus went his waye, and dyd all that Esther had commaunded hym.

The v. Chapter.

E Esther entred into the kyng, and byddeth hym and Haman to a feast. Haman prepared a gallous for Mardocheus.

Upon the thyrtye day it fortuneth: that Esther put on her royal apparell, & stode in the court of the kynges palace wythin, ouer agaynst the kynges house. And the kyng sat vpon his royal seate in the kynges palace ouer agaynst the gate of the house. And when the kyng sawe Esther the Quene standing in the court, she found grace in his syght. And the kyng helde out the golden sceptre that was in his hande toward Esther. So Esther strept forth, and touched the top of the sceptre. Then sayd the kyng vnto her What wylte thou Quene Esther: and what re-quyrest thou: aske euen the halfe of the empyre, & it shall be gyven the. And Esther answered: yf it please the kyng, let the king and Haman come this day vnto the banquet, that I haue prepared for hym. And the kyng sayde: cause Haman to make haste that he may do as Esther hath sayd.

So the kyng and Haman came to the banquet that Esther had prepared, and the kyng sayde vnto Esther at the banquet of wyne: what is thy petition, that it may be gyven the: And wire quyrest thou: yf it be eue the halfe of the empyre it shall be done.

Then answered Esther, and sayd: my petition and desyre is, yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kyng, and yf it please the kyng to goue me my petition, and fulfill my request, tha let the kyng and Haman come to the banquet f I shall prepare for them, and so will I do to mo-rowe, as the kyng hath sayde.

Then wente Haman forth the same day (op-full and mery in his mynde. And when the same Haman sawe Mardocheus in the kynges gate f he stode not vp and kneled befoze hym, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Neuerthelesse, Haman refrayned hym selfe: and when he came home he sent, & called for his frendes, and zares his wyfe, and Haman tolde them of the glory of his rychesse, and the multitud of his chyldren, and all togyther howe the kyng had promoted him so greatly, & how that he had set hym about the princes and seruautes of the kyng: Haman sayd mozeouer: Yea, & Esther the quene dyd let noman come in with the kyng to the ba-ket that she had prepared, except me. And to mo-rowe am I bydden vnto her also with the kyng.
But in all this am I not satisfied, as longe as I see Mardocheus the Jew: sytting at the kynges gate. Then sayd zares his wyfe and all his frendes vnto hym: Let them make a galous of syfte cubytes hye, and to morowe speake thou vnto the kyng, that Mardocheus maye be hanged thereon: and go thou in merly with the king vnto the banquet. And Haman was well content wthall, and caused the galous to be made.

The vi. Chapter.

The kyng turneth out the Chyonicles, and sendeth the hachite of Mardocheus: & then to the confusion of Haman, is commaunded Mardocheus to be had in honour.

The same nyght could not the kyng slepe and he commaunded to bring f chzonicles & Cortes: whych when they were red befoze the king, they happened on the place, where it was written howe
A. l. Mardocheus

Mardocheus had tolde that Bigthana, and Theres the kynges two chamberlaynes (which kept the thresholdes, sought to laye handes on kyng Ahasuerus. And the kyng sayd: What worlshipp & good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then sayd the kynges seruantes that mynystred vnto hym: There is nothyng at all done for hym. And the kyng sayd: Who is in the courte? (for Haman was gone in to the courte without, before y<sup>e</sup> kynges house) that he myght speake vnto the kyng to hange Mardocheus on the tree (that he had prepared for hym). And the kynges seruantes sayd vnto him beholde, Haman standeth wout in the courte. And the kyng sayd: let hym come in. And when Haman came in, the kyng sayd vnto hym: What shall be done vnto the man whom y<sup>e</sup> kyng wold sayne bypunge vnto worlshipp? Haman thought in his herte: Whom despyeth the kyng to bypunge vnto worlshipp more then me? And Haman answered the kyng: Let the man whom the kyng please to bypunge vnto worlshipp, be brought byther: that he may be arayed wth the royal garmentes, which the kyng useth to weare and the horse that the kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne copall may be set vpon his head. And let this capment and horse be deliuered vnder the hande of one of the kynges princes, that they may aray the man withall, whom the kyng is disposed to bypunge to honour) and carpe hym vpon the horse thorow the strete of the cite, and proclayne before him: thus shall it be done vnto the man whome the kyng please to bypunge to honour.

And the kyng sayd: make haste, and take as thou hast sayd: the rayment and the horse: and do euen so vnto Mardocheus the Jewe, that speaketh before the kynges gate, & let nothyng faile of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment and the horse, and arayed Mardocheus, and brought hym on horsebacke thorow the strete of the cite, & proclaymed before hym: Euen this shall it be done to the man whom the kyng is disposed to honour. And Mardocheus came agayn to the kynges gate. but Haman gat hym home in all the halte mourning bareheaded, and tolde zares his wyfe & all his frendes euery thyng that had happened hym. Then sayd his wyfe men, and zares his wyfe vnto hym: If it be Mardocheus of the sede of the Jewes, before whom thou hast begon to fall, thou shalt not preuaile agaynst hym, but shalt surely fall before hym. And whyle they were yet talkyng with hym, came the kynges chamberlaynes, and caused Haman to make haste, to come vnto the banket that Ester had prepared.

The vii. Chapter.

The Quene byddeth the kyng and Haman agayne and prayeth for her selfe & her people. She accuseth Haman, and he is hanged on the gallows, wher he had prepared for Mardocheus.

And the kyng & Haman came in to the banket that Quene Ester had prepared, and the kyng sayd vnto Ester on the second day at the banket of wyne: What is thy petycon, (Quene Ester) that it may be gyuen the? And what request thou?

For aske euen halfe of the empyre, and it shall be done. And Ester the Quene answered, & sayd: If I haue founde grace in thy syght (O kyng) and if it please the kyng, then graunte me my lyfe at my desyre, and my people for my petycons sake: for we are solde, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perishe. And wolde God that we were solde to be bondmen and bondwomen, then wolde I holde my tongue: for the enemy pondreth not the kynges harme. The kyng Ahasuerus answered, and sayd vnto Quene Ester: Who is he? and where is he, that dare presume in his mynde to do after that manner? And Ester sayd: the enemy and aduersary is this wycked Haman.

Haman was exceedingly afraid before y<sup>e</sup> kyng & the Quene. And the kyng arose fro the banket and from the wyne in his displeasure, & wente in to the palays garden. And Haman stode vp, and besought Quene Ester for his lyfe: for he sawe that there was a myschefe prepared for hym of the kyng already. And when the kyng came agayn out of y<sup>e</sup> palays garden, into y<sup>e</sup> place where they dranke wyne, Haman had layde hym vpon the bed that Ester sat vpon. Then sayd y<sup>e</sup> kyng: wyl be force y<sup>e</sup> Quene also before me in y<sup>e</sup> house? As soone as that worde went out of the kynges mouth, they couered Hamans face: and Harbona one of y<sup>e</sup> chamberlaynes that stode before y<sup>e</sup> kyng sayd: behold, there standeth a galows in Hamans house. I. cubites hie, which he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for y<sup>e</sup> kyng. The kyng sayd: hang hym theron. So they hanged Haman on the galows, that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath pacified.

The viii. Chapter.

After the death of Haman was Mardocheus entailed, and then are there comfortable letters sent vnto the Jewes.

The same day byd kyng Ahasuerus gyue the house of Haman the Jewes enemy vnto Quene Ester. And Mardocheus came before the kyng for Ester tolde how that he belonged vnto her. And the kyng put of his fygger a rynge whiche he had taken fro Haman, and gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Ester set Mardocheus ouer the house of Haman. And Ester spake yet more before the kyng, and fell downe at his fete wepyng, and besought hym that he wolde put away the wyckednes of Haman the Agagite, & his deuyce that he had pyngined agaynst the Jewes. And the kyng (accorsyng to the maner, helde out the golden scepter toward Ester, wherby was declared a token of graciouslyness.) Then arose Ester, and stode before the kyng, and sayd: If it please the kyng, and if I haue founde grace in his syght, and if it be acceptable before the kyng, then let it be wyrtten, that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the sonne of Amadatha the Agagite may be called agayne: whiche letters he wrote to destroye the Jewes, which are in all the kynges landes. For how can I suffice and se the euill, that shall happen vnto my people? Or how can I loke vpon the destruction of my kynred?

And the kyng Ahasuerus sayd vnto Quene Ester:

Esther and to Mardocheus the Jewe: Scholde I haue gyuen Esther the house of Haman, who they haue hanged vpon a tree, because he layed hand vpon the Jewes. Wryte ye also for the Jewes, as it lyketh you in the kynges name, and scale it wryth the kynges rpnge, (for the wrytynge that were wrytten in the kynges name, and scaled with the kynges rpnge, durst nomā disannull.) Then were the kynges scribes called at þe same tyme, euen in the thyrde moneth, that is the moneth * Sivan, on the xlii. dape.

D And it was wrytten (accozdyng to all as Mardocheus comaunded) vnto the Jewes and to the princes, to the deputies and captaynes in the lādes whych are from India vnto Ethiopia namely an hundred and seuen and twentye lādes, vnto euerie one accozdyng to the wrytynge therof, and to euerie people after theyr speache, and the Jewes accozdyng to theyr wrytynge and language.

And he wrote in the kyng Ahasuerus name, and sealed it with the kynges rpnge. And by postes that rode vpon horses, and swifte pounge mules sent he the wrytynge wher in the kyng graunted the Jewes in what cityes soeuer they were to gather them selues together, & to stande for theyr lyfe, and for to roste out, to slaye and to destroye al the power of the people and lāde that wold trouble them wryth chyldren and women, and to spole theyr good vpon one dape in all the lādes of kyng Ahasuerus, namely, vpon the thyrtyenth dape of the twelue moneth, whiche is the moneth * Adar.

February

E The summe of the wrytting was, how there shulde be a comaundement gyuen in all lādes, and publyshed amonge all people, and that the Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that dape, and to avenge them selues on theyr enemyes. And so the postes that rode vpon the swifte horses and mules made haste with all speede, to execute the kynges worde: and the comaundement was decayed in Susan the chefe cite.

And Mardocheus went out from the palace from the kyng in royall apparell of pelowe and white, and with a great crowne of golde, being arrayed wryth a garment of sylke and purple, and the cite of Susan reioysed and was glad, and vnto the Jewes there was come a newe lyght and gladnesse, ioye and worshipp. In all lādes and cityes, into what place soeuer the kynges word and comaundement reached, there was ioye and myght, prosperite and good dayes amonge the Jewes in somuche that many of the people of the lāde became of the Jewes belefe and the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The ix Chapter.

Of the comaundement of the kyng, the Jewes put theyr aduersaries to death: The sonnes of Haman are hanged. The Jewes kept a feall dape in remembrance of theyr deliuerance.

In the twelue moneth, that is þe moneth Adar, vpon the thyrtyenth dape of the same, when the kynges worde and comaundement shulde be done, euen vpon the same dape that the enemyes shuld haue destroyed the Jewes, to haue oppressed them, it turned contrary wryse, euen that the Jewes shuld subdue theyr enemyes. For they gathered the Jewes togyther in theyr cityes wrythin all the lādes of kyng Ahasuerus, to lay hande on such as wold do them euill, and no man coulde with stande them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the lādes, and princes and deputies & officers of the kyng, promoted the Jewes, for the feare of Mardocheus came vpon them. For Mardocheus was great in the kynges house, and the report of him was noysed in al lādes, howe he encreased and grewe.

Thus the Jewes smote all theyr enemyes to a sore slaughter, and slue and destroyed and dyd after theyr wyl vnto suche as were theyr aduersaries. And at Susan the chefe cite slue the Jewes, and destroyed fyue hundred men, and slue Pharandatha, Dalphon Asphatha, Pharatha Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmatha, Arisai, Aridai and Mazatha the ten sonnes of Haman, the sonnes of Haman the enemye of the Jewes: but on theyr goodes they layed no handes. At þe same tyme was the kyng creptyd of the nombre of those that were slayne in þe cite of Susan. And the kyng sayd vnto Quene Esther: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed fyue hundred men in the cite of Susan, and the ten sonnes of Haman what haue they done (thynkest thou) in other lādes of the kyng? And what is thy petition, that it maye be gyuen the? Or what requyeste thou more to be done? Esther answered: If it please the kyng, let hym suffice the Jewes to morowe also to do accozdyng vnto thys dayes comaundement, that they maye hange Hamans ten sonnes vpon tree. And the kyng charged to do so, and the comaundement was decayed at Susan, and they hanged Hamans ten sonnes. For the Jewes that were in Susan gathered them selues togyther, vpon the fourtenth dape of the moneth Adar, and slue thre hundred men at Susan, but on theyr goodes they layed no handes. As for the other Jewes that were in the kynges lādes, they came togyther, and stode for theyr lyues, that they myght haue rest fro theyr enemyes: and slue of theyr enemyes fyue & seuentye thousande: howbeit, they layed no handes on theyr goodes. Thys they dyd on the thyrtyenth dape of the moneth Adar, and on the fourtenth dape of the same moneth rested they, whych day they helde wryth feastyng and gladnesse. But the Jewes that were at Susan came together both on the thyrtyenth dape, and on the fourtenth, and on the fyftenth dape of the same they rested and held that dape wryth feastyng and gladnes. And therfore the Jewes that dwelt in the villages and vnwalled townes, helde the fourtenth dape of the moneth Adar, wryth gladnesse and feastyng, and kepte holpe dape, and euerie one sent gyftes vnto an other.

And Mardocheus wrote these actes, & sente the wrytynge vnto al the Jewes that were in all the lādes of kyng Ahasuerus, both nye and far, that they shuld make a lawe amonge them selues, and holde the fourtenth, and fyftenth daye of the moneth Adar, as the dayes wherein the Jewes came to rest from theyr enemyes, and as a moneth wherein theyr payne was turned to ioye, and theyr sorowe in to an holy daye, and that in those dayes they shoulde make feastes, and gladnesse, and one to sende gyftes vnto an other, and to distribute vnto the poore.

E And the Jewes were content with it that they had begon to do, and that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Haman the sennel of Hamanabatha all the Jewes enemy, had deuyled agaynst the Jewes, how he myght destroy them and caused to cast Pur (that is a lot, for to put them in feare, & to bypasse them to nought, and how Esther wente and spake to the kynge, that thoroowe letters his wycked deuyce (whiche he pynagled agaynst the Jewes, myght be turned vpon his owne head, and how he and his sonnes were hanged on tree. For the whiche cause they called this daye Purim, bycause of the name of the lot, and bycause of all the wordes of this wyptynge: and what they them selues had sene, and what had happened vnto them.

I And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpon them and theyr seide, and vpon all suche as ioyned them selues vnto them, that they wolde not myse, but obserue those two dayes verely, accordyng as they were wypten and appoynted: how that these dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kept of chylders chyldren amonge all kynredes in all landes and ctytes. They are the dayes of Purim, which are not to be ouerslypt amonge the Jewes, and the memorypall of them ought not to perishe from theyr seide.

And Quene Esther the doughter of Abihail and Mardocheus the Jewe wrote with all auctoritie (to confirme the seconde wyptynge of Purim) and sent the letters vnto al the Jewes in the hundred and seuen and twenty landes of the empyre of Ahasuerus, with frendly & faythfull wordes, to confirme these dayes of Purim in theyr tyme appoynted, accordyng as Mardocheus the Jewe and Esther the Quene had appoynted them. And they bounde theyr soule and theyr seide to fastyng and prayer. And Esther stablyshed the wordes of these lottes, as it is wypten in the booke.

G And the kyng Ahasuerus layde tribute vpon the lande, and vpon the ples of the see. And all that he dyd by his power and auctorite, and the great worshyp of Mardocheus, whiche the kynge gaue hym, be they not wypten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Media and Persia: For Mardocheus the Jewe was the seconde nexte vnto kyng Ahasuerus, & great amonge the Jewes, and accepted amonge the multitude of his brethren, as one that seeketh the welth of his people, and speaketh the best for all his seide.

The fyrst Chapter.

Job is plagued of God by the losse of his goodes and chyldren.

In the lād of * Hus there was a man whose name was Job: and the same was a perfect iust man, suche one as feared God, and eschewed euyl. And he had seuen sonnes, and thre doughters: his substance also was seuen. M. Quepe, and thre A camels, fyue. E. yoke of oren, and fyue hundred she asses, and a very great houtholde, so that he was one of the moost princypall men amonge all men of the East countrey. And his sonnes wente and made bankettes: one daye in one house, an other daye in an other, and sent for theyr thre systers to eate and drynke with them. And it fortuned, that when they had palled ouer the tyme of theyr bankettyng, and coude aboute, Job sent for them, and sanctified them, and gat vp early, & offered for euery one a burnt offerynge. For Job sayd: lest peradventure my sonnes haue done some offence: and haue ben vnthankfull to God in theyr vertes.

Thus dyd Job euery daye: And vpon a daye * when the chyldren of God came and stode before the Lorde, it fortuned that Satan came also amonge them. And the Lorde sayd vnto Satan. From whence comest thou? Satan answered the Lorde and sayd * I haue gone about the lande, and walked thorowe it.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Satan: Hast thou not conspyred my seruant Job, how that there is none lyke hym in the lande: a perfect and a iust man: suche a one as feareth God, and escheweth euyl. Satan answered, & sayd vnto the Lorde. Doth Job feare God for nought: haue thou not preserued hym & his house, and al that he hath on euery syde: Thou hast blessed the workes of his handes, & his possession is encreased in the land. But laye thy hande now vpon hym, & he shall curse the to thy face. And the Lorde sayd vnto Satan: lo, all that he hath, be in thy power: onely vpon hym selfe, se that thou lay not thy hande. And Satan went forth from the presence of the Lorde.

And vpon a certayne daye, it fortuned that his sonnes and doughters were eatyng & drynkyng wyne in theyr eldest brothers house, and there there came an messenger vnto Job, & said: Whyle the oxen were a plowynge, and the asses goynge in the pasture besyde them, the Sabees cam violently, & toke them away: yea they haue sleyn thy seruantes wth the edge of the swerde, and I onely ranne my waye to tell the.

Whyle he was yet speakynge, there came an other, and sayd: The fyre of God is fallen from heauen, and hath brent vp all thy shepe and seruantes, and consumed them: and I onely ran awaye, to tell the. And whyle he was yet speakynge, there came an other, and sayd: The Caldees made thre armies, and fell in vpon the camels, and haue carryed them away: yea & slayne thy seruantes wth the swerde: and I onely am gotten awaye to tell the. And whyle he was yet speakinge, there came an other, and sayde: Thy sonnes and thy daughters were eatynge and drynkinge wth the eldest brothers house, & beholde, there came a myghty great wynde out of the south, & smote the four corners of the house, whiche fel vpon thy chyldren and they: & deed and I am gotten awaye alone to tell the.

Then Job stode vp, and rent his clothe, and shaued hys heed, fell downe vpon the grounde worshipped, and sayde: * Naked came I out of my mothers wombe, and naked shall I returne thither agayne. The Lorde gaue, and the Lorde hath taken awaye, * as it hath pleased the Lorde, so it is come to passe: blessed be the name of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, * In all these thynges dyd Job not offende, nor murmured foolshyp agaynst God.

The ii Chapter.

Job is plagued with sore boiles and afterwarde is more afflicted with loss of his children, and his wife, and his friends.

And the chyldren of God came & stode before the Lorde, and Satan came also amonge them, and trode before the Lorde. And the Lorde sayd vnto Satan: From whence comest thou? Satan answered the Lorde, and sayd I haue gone aboute the lande, and walked thorow it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Satan: Hast thou not conspyred my seruant Job: for there is none lyke hym in the lande. For he is a perfecte & iust man: suche a one as feareth God, and eschueth euyll, and cotinueth styll in hys godlynesse. And thou mouest me agaynst hym, that I shoulde punyssh hym for noughe. And Satan answered y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, and sayd: Skryme for saynne: yea a man wyl gyue al that euer he hath for hys lyfe. But laye thyne hande now vpon hym, and touche ouer hys bone and flesh, and he shall curse the to thy face. And the Lorde sayde vnto Satan: lo, there hast y<sup>e</sup> hym in thy power, but spare his life.

So went Satan forth from the presence of the Lorde, and smote Job, with maruailous sores byles, from the sole of hys foete vnto his crowne so y<sup>e</sup> he sat vpon the grounde, in the ashes: and scraped the fylth of hys lores with a votsharde.

Then sayd his wyfe vnto hym: * Dost thou cotinue yet in thy perfectnesse: curse God & dye. But Job sayd vnto her: th<sup>e</sup> aspeake I lyke a foolysh woman. Shall we receyue prosperitie at the hande of God, and not receyue aduersitee? * In all these thynges dyd not Job syn wth his lippes.

Nowe when Jobs frendes hearde of all the trouble that happened vnto hym, there cam thre of them, euerye one from hys owne place, namely, Eliphaz the Themanite, Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite.

And they were agreed togyther to come to shewe thei<sup>r</sup> compassion vpon hym, and to comfort him. So when they lifte vp thei<sup>r</sup> eyes a farre of, they knewe hym not.

Then they cryed and wepte, and euery one of them rente his clothes, and sprinkled dust vpon thei<sup>r</sup> heedes in the ashe. They sat then downe vpon hym also vpon the grounde seuen dayes, and seuen nyghtes. Neyther was there any of them that spake one worde vnto hym: for they sawe, that hys payne was very great.

The iii Chapter.

Job is visited by the three friends, and they comfort him.

After this opened Job hys mouth, and cursed hys daye. And Job answered, and sayde: lost be that daye, wherein I was borne: and y<sup>e</sup> nyght wherein I was brought forth. In the which it was sayd: there is a mannynde conceived. The same daye be thou<sup>r</sup> led to darknesse, and not regarded of God from aboue: neither let hym shyne vpon it with light, nor let it be stayned wth darknesse, and the shadowe of death. Let the dynne cloude fall vpon it, and let it be lapped in wyth sorow on the day tyme: let the darke storme overcome that night, and let it not be ioyued vnto the dayes of y<sup>e</sup> pere, nor counted in the monethes.

Desolate be that nyght, and wythout gladnesse, let them that curse the daye and that be reuoyde to rayse vpon mourninge, gyue it also thei<sup>r</sup> curse. Let the starres of that nyght be dynne, the shadowe darknesse of it. Let it loke for lyghte, but let it see none: neyther the rysonge vp of the sayre morninge, because it put not vp y<sup>e</sup> wombe that bare me. For then shoulde the sorowes haue bene hyd from myne eyes.

Alas: why dyed I not in the byrth: why dyd not I perishe as soone as I came out of my mothers wombe? Why set they me vpon thei<sup>r</sup> knees? why gaue they me sucke wth thei<sup>r</sup> breastes? Then shoulde I now haue lye styll, I shoulde haue slept, and bene at rest, lyk as the kynges and lordes of the earth, whyche haue buylde thei<sup>r</sup> selues special places: Or as y<sup>e</sup> princes y<sup>e</sup> haue had great substance of gold & then houses ful of siluer. Or why was I not hyd, as a chyld borne out of the wome, eyther as y<sup>e</sup> younge chyldren, whyche neuer sawe y<sup>e</sup> lyght? There must the wicked cease from thei<sup>r</sup> tyrannyng, and there such as be ouerlaboured be at rest: there are those let out free, whyche haue bene in prysen. So that they beare no more the voyce of the oppressoure. There are smal and great: and the seruant is free from his maister. Wherefore is the lyght gyuen to him that is in miserie: and lyfe vnto them y<sup>e</sup> haue heuy hartes? Whyche longe for death: (and though it com not) wolde byg it out of hys places, which also wolde be exceedinge glad and reioyse, yf they coulde. Qui. spnde fynde they graue any where. That shoulde be tope to that man whose tope is hydde, and God keper it backe from hym. For my syghes come before I eate, and my roynages fall out lyke the water. For the thyng that I feared is come vpon me: and the thyng that I was asfayde of is happened vnto me: was I not happy? had I not quyetnesse? Was I not iust? And now commeth suche myserye vpon me.

The.iii. Chapter.

Job is rebuked of impatience and of the presumption of his owne righteousness.

And Eliphaz the Themanite answered and sayd. If we begyn to commune with the, wylte thou be discontent? But who can withholde hym selfe from speaking? Beholde thou hast ben a chastener of many, and hast comforted the wepyng handes.

Thy wordes haue set vp those that were fallen, thou hast refreshed the weake knees. But now that the plague is come vpon the, thou art greued: now that it hath touched thy selfe, thou arte sapntly herted. * Is not this thy feare, thy stedfastnesse, thy patience, and the perfectnesse of thy wayes? Consydre (I praye the) who curperysed beynge an innocent? Or when were they godly destroyed? For (as I haue proued by experience) they that plowe iniquyte, and sow wickednesse, reape the same. And the wrath of God they perishe, and with theyr bones no stekes are they consumed.

The rounge of the lyon, and the howle of the lyon, and the teeth of the lyon whiche he pulled out. The lyon perspeth for prey, and the lyons whelpes are scattered.

And to me came they secretly, and myne care hath receyued a burden. In the thoughtes and visions in the night (when slepe cometh vpon me) I dreame, and dreame whiche myne eyes see not, and I heare a voyce, and I praye the, and made the heeres of my head to stand vp. He stode there, & I knew not his face: an ymage there was before myne eyes, and in the sylens verbe I a voyce. * Shall man be more iust then God? Or shall a man be purer then his maker? Beholde, he foande no trewe in his seruantes, and in his aungels there was folpe: how moche more in them that dwell in houses of claye, and whose foundacyon is but dust: whiche shall be consumed as it were with a moth? They shall be smytten from the morning vnto the euening: yee, they shall pershe for euer, when no man thynketh thereon. Is not thy parauylte gone awaye with them: they shall dye, and not in wysedome.

The.ii. Chapter.

The rebuke of a false prophet. The righteousness of God. The rebuke of the false prophet and his punishment.

Aye (I praye the) if happily there be any that wyl answer the, & loke thou vpon any of the holy men. As for the folysh man, displeasure kylleth hym, & angre sleeth hym ignorant.

* I haue sene my selfe, when the folysh was depe rooted and soden. I cursed his habitacyon. His children were without prosperitie, and they were slayne in the gate, and there was no man to deliuer them. * His harness was eaten vp of the hunger, and the weaponed man spoyled it, and the thyrd parte dranke vp theyr labour. It is not the earth that bringeth forth iniquitie: neyther cometh forth out of the ground, but man is borne vnto iniquitie, lyke as the sparkes flye vp out of the coles.

But I wyl be counsellye at the Lorde, and I wyl talke with hym. Whiche both thynges that are vnsayd are vnsayd. * He giveth water vpon the earth, and powereth the hyndes, to set vp them that be downe. He maketh the subtle, so that theyr handes are not found out. He maketh the wyle in theyr owne craft. He sheweth the counsaile of the heart, that they runne vnto darkness. * And grope aboute them as in the nyght.

He depueth the poore from the swerde, & he depueth the meane from the hande of the mighty. He is the hope of the poore: the mouth of the wicked shall be stopped.

Beholde, * happy is the man whome God vnsayeth. Therefore refuse not thou the chastitee of the almyghty. For though he make a wounde, he giveth a plaster: though he smyte, his hande maketh whole agayne.

He shall deliuer the in synne troubles, and he shall scure them there shall no euill come to the. In hunger he shall saue the from death and when it is warre, from the power of the swerde.

Thou shalt be kept from the euill tonge, and thou shalt not nede to feare. In destruction & death thou shalt be merry, and thou shalt not be asfayd of beastes of the earth. For the stones of the land shall be confederate with the, and the beastes of the felde shall geue the peace.

And thou shalt knowe that thy dwelling place shall be in rest, and thou shalt go & beholde thy habitacion, and shalt not syme. Thou shalt see also, that thy seed shall increase, and that thy posterity shall be as the grasse vpon the earth. Thou shalt come also to thy graue in a fayr age: lyke as whē they take vp a cozne these in due season. So, this we our selues haue proued by experience, and euen thus it is. Hearken thou to it also that thou mayst take hede to thy selfe.

The.vi. Chapter.

Job answered that his paine is more greuous then his fault, yet not withstandyng he despayeth therein.

Job answered also and sayd: O that the displeasure whiche I haue, were trewly weyed, and my punishment layde in the balauces togyther: for nowe is it heavier then the sande of the see. And this is the cause that my wordes are so sorowfull.

For the arrowes of the almyghty are round about me, whose indignacion hath dronke vp my spirit and y terrible feares of God are set agaynst me.

Doeth

Amos. 11 *Doth the wyld be affe rore Or cryeth the ore when he b.
 That whyche is unsauere, shal out salte? or is there any taste in the egge? The thynges that soustyme I n. awaye wythal, are nowe my meate for very rowe. That I myght haue my desire, and that God wolde graunt me the thyng that I longe for. That God wolde begyne and sympte me: that he wold let hys hande go, and take me cleue awaye. Then shulde I haue some comforte. yea I wolde desyre hym in my payne, that he shulde not spare, for I wyl not be agaynst the wordes of the holpe one.

What power haue I to endure? And what is myne ende, that my soule myght be pa-cent? Is my strength the strength of stones?
 Or is my flesch made of brasse? Is it not so, that there is in me no helpe: and that my substaunce is taken from me? He that is in tribulation ought to be comforted of his neyghbour: but the feare of the Lorde is cleane awaye. Myne owne brethren passe ouer by me as the water brooke, and as the ryuer of the water, do hastily go awaye.
 But they that feare the dozerost, the snow shal fall vpon them.

Euen they tyme cometh, they shal be destroyed and perishe: when they be set on fyre they shal be remoued out of theyr place for the pathes that they go in, are croked, they haue after name thynges, and shal perishe. They turne them to the pathes of Chanaan, and to the waies of Baba, wherein they haue put theyr trust. Confounded are they that put anye confidence in them.
 For wher they come to obtayn the thynges, that they loke for, they are brought to confusyon.

Euen so are ye also com vnto me but nowe that ye se my myscepe, ye are afrayed. Wpd I desyre you to bypunge vnto me, or to gyue me any of your substaunce? To deliuer me from the enemyes hande, or to saue me from the hande of tyrantes? Teach me, and I wyl holde my tong: and when I do erre, shewe me wherin. Howe stedfast are the wordes of truthe? And whyche of you can rebuke and reprove them? Woe take deliberatiō to cheeke mens sayenges, and iudge a pore worde spoken in vayne: Ye fall vpon the fatherlesse, and go aboute to ouerthrowe your owne frende. And therefore be contente, and loke nowe vpon me, and I wyl not lye before your face. Turne I praye you, be indifferent iudges turne agayne, and ye shal se my vnglytynesse, whether there be anye vnglytynesse in my tonge, or vayne wordes in my mouth.

 that my lyfe is but a wynde, and that myne eye shal nomore se pleasures therof: yea, and I none other mens eye shal se me any more. For if thou fasten thyne eye vpon me, I com to nought. The cloude is consumed and vanisshed awaye, euen so be that goeth downe to the graue shal come neyther shal hys face knowe hym any more.

Therefore I wyl not spare my mouth, but wyl speake in the trouble of my spirite, I muse in the bytternesse of my mynde. Am I a sec or a

 When I saye: my bed shal comforte me, I shal haue some refreshynge by talkynge to my selfe vpon my couteche. *Eyetroubleth thou me with Job. 11. 2 dreames, and makest me so afrayed thowow vi-made me to stande in the waye, and am so heuie a burthen vnto my selfe? Why doest thou not forgiue me my synne? Wherefore takest thou not awaye my wyckednesse? Beholde, nowe must I slepe in the dust, and yet thou sekest me to morowe in the moynynge, I shal be gone.

The viii. Chapter.

Job is reprehended and noted to haue deservyd his payne & affliction of hypocrysie.

He answered Eliphaz the Shubite and sayde: Howe longe wylte thou talke of suche thynges? Howe longe shal thy mouth speake so proude wordes?
 Doth God peruerte the thyng that is lawfull?
 Or dothe the almyghtygye destroye the thyng, that is ryght? For sepunge that thy sonnes synned agaynst hym, wpd not he punishe them for theyr wyckednesse? If thou woldest nowe resort vnto God by tymes, and make thyne humble prayer to the almyghtygye, yf thou woldest lye a pure and a godly lyfe, shulde he not awake vp vnto the immediatly, and gyue the the leaunte of ryghteousnes agayn? In so much, that wher-in so er thou haddest lytle afoze, thou shuldest nowe haue greates aboundaunce.

Enquyre (I praye the) of them that haue

May a rushe be grene without moe
Or may the greffe growe without water. but (oz euer it be shot forth, and oz it be g.

so goeth it with all them that forgette God, and euen thus also shall the hypocrites hope come to nought. his confydence shall be destroyed, and his trust shall be a spyders webbe. he shall leane vpon his house, but it shall not stande. he shall holde hym fast by it, yet shall it not endure. It is euen as a grene tree before the Sunne, and sho-teth forth the braunches in his garden. It taketh many rootes by a wel syde, in so moche that it is like an house of stones. But yf it be taken out of his place, euerp man denyeth it, sayinge. I knowe the not. Lo, thus is it with hym, that re-topseth in his owne dopnges: and as for other, they growe out of the earth.

Beholde, God wyll not cast awaye a vertuous man, neyther wyll he helpe the vngodlye.
Thy mouth shall be fylled with laughynge, and thy lippes with gladnesse. They also that hate the, shall be confounded, and the dwelling of the vngodly shall come to nought.

The ix. Chapter.

Job declareth the benefites of God: and that his ryghteousnesse is nothyng.

Job answered, and sayde: I knowe it is so of a trewthe. For howe may a man (compared vnto God) * be iusti-fied? yf he wyll argue with hym, there is not one amonge a thousand that can answer hym. Concernynge suche as be wyse of herte, oz myghty in strength, who euer prospered, that toke parte agaynst hym? he tranlateth the mountaynes oz euer they be aware. It is he that ouerthroweth them in his wrath. he remoueth the earth out of her place, that the pylers therof shake withall. he commaundeth the sunne, and it clyeth not: he closeth vp the starres, as it were vnder a sygnet. he hym selfe alone spreadeth out the heauens, and goeth vpon the waues in the see. he maketh the waues of heauen the Oxen, * the seven starres, and the secrete places of the South. he doeth great thynges, suche as are vnsearchable: yee, and wonders without nombre.

Lo, when he goeth ouer by me, I shall not se hym. And when he departeth by me, I shall not loke vpon hym. I shall not perceyue hym. Yf he be hasty to take any thyng awaye, who wyll make hym restore it agayne? Or who wyll saye vnto hym * what doest thou? he is God, whose wrath no man may withstande, but the proudest of all must stoupe vnder hym. howe shulde
I then answer hym? Or what wordes shulde I fynde out agaynst hym? Yee, though I were ryghtous, yet might I not geue hym one worde agayne, but mekely submyt my selfe to hym as my iudge. Yf I had called vpon hym, and he had answered me: yet wolde I not bylde, that he herde my voyce. he troubleth me so with the tempest, and woundeth me out of measure without let my spiryte be in rest, opternesse.

A sprake of strengthe. In, he is men wyll speake of ryghtousnesse, ye my recorder? yf I wyll iustifye my ne owne mouth shall condemne me: yf I wyll put forth my selfe for a perfecte man, he shall reprove me a wycked doer. For though I be an innocent, and my conscience cleare, yet am I wery of my lyfe.

One thyng it is, and therefore I sayd: he destroyeth bothe the ryghteous and vngodly.
And though he slap sodeynly with the scourge, yet wyll he laugh at the punishment of the innocent. As for the world, it is gyven ouer in to the hande of the wycked, and he shall couer the faces of the iudges therof. Is it not so? wher is there any, but he is suche one?

* Thy dayes are more swyfte then a runner: they are gone, and haue leue no good thyng. Job. xlii. 6 They are passed awaye as the shippes that be good vnder sayle, and as the Eagle that flyeth to the praye. When I am purposed to forget my complaynyng, to leaue it fro my wrath, and to comforte my selfe, then I am afrayde of all my sorowes: for I knowe that thou wilt not iudge me innocent. Yf I be then a wycked doer, why laboure I in vayne? Yf I walche my selfe with snowe water, and make my handes neuer so cleane at the well, yet shalt thou dyppe me in the myre, and myne owne clothes shall defyle me.
For he that I muste geue answer vnto, and with whom I go to lawe, is not a man as I am.
Neyther is there any daylman to laye his hande bytweene vs. Let hym take his rodde awaye fro me: yee, let hym make me no more afrayde of hym, and then shall I answer hym without any feare. for as longe as it is thus, I can make no answer.

The x. Chapter.

Job is wery of his lyfe, and letteth out his sorowes in this before God. he despayeth yet tyme to repaire.
A description of death.

Greth my soule to lyue: I wyll make my complaynt, and wyll speake out of the very heynesse of my soule.
I wyll saye vnto God: do not condemne me, but shewe me the cause wherefore thou contendest with me. Thyngkest thou it well done to oppresse me, to cast me of, (being the workes of thy handes) and to mayn-tayne the counsaile of the vngodly? hast thou fleshye eyes? oz doest thou loke as a man lo-keth? Or are thy dayes as the dayes of man, and thy yeares as mannes yeares? that thou makest suche inquisicion for i. y. wyckednesse, and searchest out my synne? Is it as not with standynge) thou knowest that I am no wycked person, and that * there is no man able to deli-uer me out of thy hande. Job. xlii. 6

* Thyne handes hath made me, and fastened me all together rounde aboute, wilt thou then destroye me sodeynly? Ouercome (I beseeche the:) howe that thou makest me of the mould of the earth, and shalt bringe me in to duell agayne.

hast

Hast thou not turned me, as it were my lye, and turned me to cruds lyke chese? Thou hast co-uered me with skynne & flesh, & ioynded me together with bones & sinowes. Thou hast graunted me lyfe, and done me good, and the dylpget hede that I tokest vpon me, hath preserued my sperte.

E Thou hast hyd these thynges in thyne hert.
I am sure that thou remembrest this thyng. If I dyd synne, thou haddest an eye vnto me, and wouldest not declare me innocent because of mine offence. If I haue done wyckedly, wo is me therfore. If I haue done ryghteously, yet darre I not lyfe vpon my heade so full am I of confusyon and of myne owne myserye.

E Thou huntest me out (beinge in heynnes) as it were a lyon, and troublest me oute of measure. Thou byngest frethe wytnesse agaynst me, and thy wrath increaseth thou vpon me, ve-rye many are the plagges that I am in. * Wherefore haste thou broughte me out of my mothers wombe? O that I had perished, and that no eye had sene me. If they had carped me to my graue as soone as I was borne, then woulde I be nowe as though I had neuer bene. Are not my dayes fewer? Let hym then leaue of frome and let me alone, that I may ease my selfe a lytle afore I go thither, from whence I shall not turne agayne euen to the lande of darkenesse and shadowe of death: yea, into the darke cloudy lande and deadlye shadowe, where as is no oyle, but terribile feare as in the darkenesse.

C The. xi. Chapter.

E Job is brynnyngly reprobated of Sophar. God is incomprehensible he is irreprehensible to the reprobate.

E Then answered Sophar the Naamathite, and sayde: Shuld not he that maketh many wordes, be answered?
Shulde he that bableth muche be commended therein? Shulde men geue care vnto the enchy? Thou wylt laugh other men to scoone, and shall no body mocke the agayne? Wylt thou say vnto God, The thyng that I take in hande is perfect, and I am cleane in thy syght? O that God wolde speake & open his lippes agaynll the, that he myght shewe (oute of hys secreete wysdome) why he rewar-deth the double as he was appoynted to do: the shuldest thou knowe, that God hath forgotten the, because of thy synne.

B Arte thou able to fynde out the secretes of God? Wylt thou attayne to the parfynnes of the almyghty? He is hyer then heuen, what art thou able to do? Deper then the hell, howe wylt thou then knowe hym? hys length exceedeth the length of the earth, and hys bredth the bredth of the see. Though he turne all thynges vpon syde downe, close the in, gather them together, who wylt turne hym from hys purpose? * O who may scape vnto hym, why dost thou so.

E For it is he that knoweth the vanite of mē he seeth theyr wyckednesse also, woulde he not then consyder it? A vayne bodye callethe hym selfe, and a mā netoe bozne is lyke a wyld ass colt. If thou haddest nowe a ryght herte, & iuftest vpon thyne handes towarde hym. If thou wol-dest put away the wickednesse which thou hast in hande, so that no vngodlynesse dwell in thy house, then myghtest thou lyft vpon thy face with out shame, and then wouldest thou be sure, and haue no nede to feare.

E Then shuldest thou forget thy myserye, and thyne nomore vpon it, then vpon the waters that runne by. Then shouldest thou rejoyce of thy lyfe be as cleare as the noone daye, and syng forth as the mornynge. Then myghtest thou haue comforte, in the hope that thou hast: & slepe quyetly, when thou art burped. Then shouldest thou take thy rest, and noman make the afraid yea, many one shoulde set muche by the. As for the eyes of the vngodlye they shalbe consumed, and not escape: theyr hope shalbe myserye and sorrowe of mynde.

E Job shewynge his patience, declarreth the myght and power of God.

E Job answered, and sayde: Then (no doubt) ye are the men alone, and wyldome is all perperthe wylth you. But I haue vnderstanding as wel as ye, and am no lesse then ye. Yea, who knoweth not these thynges? Thus he that calleth vpon God, and whome God heareth, is mockt of hys neygh-boure: the godly and innocent mā is laughed to scoone. Godlynes is a lyght de lypsed in the hartes of the wyche, and is let for them to stumblen vpon. The houses of robbers are in welch & pro-spertye: & they that malicously medle agaynst God, dwell without care in those thynges that God hath geuen xchely with his handes.

E Like the cattell, and they shall enfourme the the foules of the ayre, & they shall tel the. Of the increase of the earth, and it shall shewe the. Of the fyshes of the see, and they shall certyfy the.
* What is he, but he knoweth that the hand of the Lorde made all these? In whose hande is soule of euery luyng thyng, and the breath of the fleshe of all men.

E * Haue not the eares pleasure in hearynge, & the mouth in tastynge the thyng that it eateth?
Amonge olde personnes there is wysdome, and in age is vnderstandynge. Yea, wylth God is wysdome and strength, it is he that hath coun-cell and fore knowledge. Beholde, yf he breake downe a thyng, who can set it vpon agayne? * If he shut a thyng, who wyl open it? Beholde, yf he withholde the waters, they drye vp. If he let them go, they destroye the earth. With hym is strength and wysdome: he knoweth both the deceyuer, and hym that is decepted.

E He carpethe awaye the wyse men, as it were a spoyle, and byngeth the Judges out of theyr wytes. He taketh awaye the subieccion of the people fro theyr kynges: and gyrdeth theyr loynes with a bande. He leadech awaye the grete men into captiuite, and turneth the myghty vpon syde downe. * He taketh the verpte from out of the mouth, and disapoynteth the aged of theyr reason. He poureth the confusyon vpon prynces and comforteth them that haue bene opprelled.

E * Loke wylt lyth hym in darkenesse, he decla-
